23 Tough Convicts Surrender After 45-Hour Riot

TRENTON, N.J., April 1 (AP)—Twenty-three of the meanest convicts in New Jersey state prison surrendered to their keepers Monday night after a 45-hour display of defiance and violence. Sullen, hungry and cold, the 23 trooped singly from a three-storey segregation building they had all but gutted in a desperate bid for privileges they said were denied them. Killers, thugs and sex offenders, they had been placed in the building with 22 others to keep them all from mingling with the prison's 1,300 other inmates.

Early Sunday morning, a riot broke out in the building. The men, demanding better treatment, smashed cell doors, ripped out plumbing, set mattresses afire, broke up beds.

Six prisoners assigned trusty posts in the building were held captive. Prison guards lobbed tear gas grenades into the building, but they had no effect. By dawn a detachment of State police was on hand. The show of force convinced 22 who surrendered.

Others Held Out

The others held out. They kept the trusty group prisoner. They fashioned weapons out of lead pipe and electric cables and defied prison guards to come in and get them.

The gang shouted complaints about food and medical treatment. Warden William Carty refused to talk to them until they named a spokesman.

Two Trenton fire trucks pumped heavy streams of water into the building for two hours. The convicts huddled against walls to avoid the water.

More tear gas was hurled into the building by prison guards. But the gas floated harmlessly through broken windows.

By nightfall, the convicts were dickering with Carty. They reduced their demands.

"They wanted us to make some promises, but we would not," said Sanford Bates, state commissioner of institutions and agencies.

The men decided to release the trusty group. Finally, after more bargaining, the holdup convicts gave up.

The convicts will be "properly dealt with after they are checked through the hospital," said Bates who added that no one was injured.

Audit Reveals Shortage In Town's Books

DESERONTO, April 1. (CP)—D. A. MacDonald, Toronto chartered accountant, told town council Monday a partial audit of the town's books shows a shortage of $7,006. The audit followed the resignation in February of Miss Mary Maher, town clerk for more than 25 years.

MacDonald said the job is not complete but there are apparent total shortages as follows: Collections of $5,288; fines collected at Hastings County Court in Belleville sent to Deseronto and not found on the books, $667; relief subsidies paid by the provincial government and not recorded on the books, $114; work done for local property owners by the town and not traced, $77; and shortages in bank deposits from the beginning of 1951 to the time of the audit, $849.

For some years annual audit of the town's books has been made by G. D. C. Morton of Tweed, an auditor in about 20 municipalities.

Break Down Shortage

According to the Toronto accountant the $5,288 shortage in tax collections is made up of $3,182 for which the auditors have seen receipted tax bills and amounts which people have verbally claimed are paid. He said that, according to the books, there is still an outstanding amount of $9,641 which has not been explained by the taxpayers.

Mayor R. K. Jackson reported Miss Maher was bonded for $4,000. She was clerk, treasurer and tax collector in the town.

At the February meeting of the council Finance Committee Chairman Ross E. Neal, a chartered accountant, said the tax arrears at that time were $25,667 spread over the past 10 years. He said the town must take steps to collect them. The mayor ordered a land tax sale.

At that meeting Miss Maher said the $25,667 figure included unpaid taxes on a number of properties which had been turned back to the town, and it did not reflect a true picture.

Wilkie Hoping To Get Freedom

VANCOUVER, April 1 (CP) — Melville Wilkie, convicted murderer who five times escaped from the Ontario Mental Hospital at Penetanguishene, hopes to make a legal bid for his freedom.

Wilkie lived what friends described as an exemplary life here for a year as Andy McBeth. He hopes these same friends will help him to get his release.

The so-called mad-killer was recaptured Friday and now waits return to Penetanguishene. He will arrive back in Toronto on Wednesday.

His common-law wife, Shirley McBeth, and some of his friends, Monday told the story of his hopes for the future after he was permitted to telephone them over the weekend.

Wilkie, who was convicted in 1933 of the arson slaying of his wife and child at Owen Sound, was quoted as telling friends here that he did not know his wife and child were in the house. He thought they were visiting neighbors.

He admitted to them that he fully intended to commit arson because he was desperate for money to save his trucking business, hard hit in the depression years. The house was insured for $1,100.

Discover Letter Contained Explosive

THE HAGUE, The Netherlands, April 1 (AP)—Police said today a letter containing an explosive was sent to the leader of the West German delegation discussing reparations claims with representatives of Israel and world Jewry.

The letter was delivered Monday to the German embassy, where officials became suspicious because of its weight. It was opened on the wrong side—an act that probably saved workers in the embassy mailing room from injury, police said. It had been mailed in Amsterdam.

It contained 40 grams (1.4) ounces of a "very modern explosive," police said, as well as a note written in "shabby French" aimed at giving the impression that it was sent by representatives of a Jewish organization.

Firm's Estimate Error Costs Board $100,000

TORONTO, April 1 (CP). — An error in an estimate made by a firm of consulting engineers has sent Toronto Board of Education seeking $100,000 it didn't think it would need.

The slip-up occurred in connection with boiler installations and structural alterations at Central Technical School. The finance committee asked the board to provide the additional $100,000.

However, since there is no provision in the current estimates for the extra money, board chairman Herbert Orliffe said he doesn't know where it's coming from.

Mrs. Tong To Receive Husband's Full Salary

TORONTO, April 1 (CP)—Mrs. Edmund Tong, widow of the city detective fatally shot by one of two men he stopped for questioning, will receive his full salary as long as she lives or has need of it, board of control decided Monday night.

Mayor Allan Lamport said the salary would not prejudice any other commitments made by organizations or individuals to Mrs. Tong. The Canadian Bankers Association has purchased an annuity for the woman and her two children. The Tong Honor Fund, to which citizens are contributing, today stood at $712.

Atomic Bomb Spy Scare Found April Fool Joke

LONDON, April 1 (AP) — A spy scare involving an atomic-bomb research centre was exposed late today as an April Fool joke.

Three teen-agers let the cat out of the bag when they learned they had caused a commotion clear up to the government's ministerial level.

Harry Sibley, 14, and Neville Thompson, 13, showed up Monday night at the Highgate police station with documents marked "Harwell Atomic Research Establishment" and "Burn After Reading." There were a number of blueprints and mathematical notations.

The Highgate police put in a call for Scotland Yard.

"We couldn't tell whether it was a formula for atomic energy or lemonade," a detective said.

Scotland Yard called in experts of the supply ministry, which runs the atomic establishment at Harwell. They were almost certain the papers hadn't come from Harwell—"of course this might be the work of some independent private researcher."

Meanwhile newspapermen ran down young Sibley.

"Monday night I met Victor Mehra at the Highgate Youth Club," he said. "Victor's 15. He showed me a buff-colored folder. Inside were typewritten papers with some symbols and signatures in ink. There were also a couple of blueprints.

"Victor said I should take them to the police."

Victor, an apprentice draftsman, told reporters:

"I didn't think it would go as far as this. I made up the bundle as an April Fool's joke at lunchtime Monday."

All London evening papers headlined the inquiries into the "mystery."

Third War No Nearer Stalin Says

Russ Leader Tells Editors Meeting Might Be Helpful

NEW YORK, April 1. (AP)—Premier Stalin sent a message today to a group of United States newspaper and radio editors saying a third world war is no nearer than it was two or three years ago.

The message suggested a meeting of the heads of great powers might be helpful.

It also declared the present moment opportune for the unification of Germany.

James L. Wick, chairman of the Board of the Niles, Ohio, Daily Times, said two Russians delivered the message to him today. He said it appears to be a reply to four questions the editors sent to Stalin.

Gives Answers.

Wick said the questions and the replies were:

"1. Is a Third World War closer now than two or three years ago?"

Reply: "No, it is not."

"2. Would a meeting of the heads of the great powers be useful?", Reply: "Possibly it would be useful."

"3. Do you consider the present moment opportune for the unification of Germany?"

Reply: "Yes, I do."

"4. On what basis is co-existence of capitalism and Communism possible?"

Reply: "Peaceful co-existence of capitalism and Communism is quite possible if there is a mutual disire for co-operation, if there is a readiness to fulfill the undertaken obligation, if there is obserance of the principle of equality and not interference in the internal affairs of the other states."

Deliver Reply.

Wick was one of 19 editors who returned today from a fact-finding tour of Europe. He said the editors telegraphed the questions weeks ago.

Wick said the Russians came to his home here and identified themselves as S. K. Tsarajkin, alternate representative to the United Nations, and A. K. Startsev, second secretary to the delegation.

Before receiving the messages, Wick had told newspapermen at Idlewild airport that the editors encountered little fear in Europe of a war with Russiia. He said "the war fear" seems to centre in the U. S.

"No one in Europe seems to think that we are close to a war with Russia," he said.

Wick, who organized the editors' tour, said he was surprised at the support he found for a European Federation —a "United States of Europe."

"The interest in a Federation is phenomenal," he said. "Almost every European leader endorses it."

Lay Joint Charge

TORONTO, April 1 — (CP) — A joint charge of murder in the fatal shooting of Sergeant of Detectives Edmund Tong was laid today against Steve Suchan and Leonard Jackson.

WITH MRS. TRUMAN at his side, President Truman waves in answer to an ovation after he told Democrats at the Jefferson-Jackson Day dinner in Washington Saturday that he will not be a candidate for re-election. Under his arm is the text of his speech, advance copies of which did not contain the surprise announcement. "Are you happy over the decision?" Mrs. Truman was asked. "Of course. Anything he says goes," she replied.

Mosher Suing McGuire For Damages

OTTAWA, April 1 —(CP)—A. R. Mosher, President of Canadian Brotherhood of Railway Employees (C. C. L.), today brought suit for unstated damages for libel against James E. McGuire, expelled secretary-treasurer of the big railway union.

Mr. Mosher who also is president of the Canadian Congress of Labor, launched the suit in Ontario Supreme Court here claiming he was libelled in a press statement issued by Mr. McGuire last Friday.

At the same time Judge Alan McDougall granted Mr. Mosher's application for an eight-day injunction restraining Mr. McGuire from printing, distributing, publishing or repeating orally the charges made in his press statement of last week.

A further request of the C. B. R. E. president for a further injunction restraining repetition of the statements by Mr. McGuire until a court hearing of the libel action, will be heard by Judge McDougall next Saturday.

In a affidavit filed with the court, Mr. Mosher said Mr. McGuire's press release "contained many statements that are untrue and that were made for the sole purpose of holding me up to shame and ridicule in the eyes of the public and to defame my character to the greatest possible extent."

Th court action was the latest development in a feud between Mr. Mosher and Mr. McGuire. It broke into the open when the executive board of the C. B. R. E. found Mr. McGuire guilty of a number of charges including insubordination, and removed him from the post of secretary-treasurer which he had held for 10 years.

U.S. Beginning New Atom Tests

LAS VEGAS, Nev., April 1 (AP) —Flash of fire, clearly visible in the bright daylight, signalled the start of a new series of atomic tests today.

The blast was timed at 8 a.m. PST (noon EST) and apparently was an aerial burst, although its elevation could not be accurately determined by observers here.

The test ground is at Yucca Flat, in a wide, desert flatland 80 miles northwest of this southern Nevada city.

A reddish orange sheet of flame against the horizon was visible from Las Vegas.

There was no shock or sound noted immediately in Las Vegas.

2 Missing On Plane

WINNIPEG, April 1—(CP)—A small United States plane with two persons aboard today was reported overdue on a 128-mile flight from Sioux Lookout to Armstrong in Northwestern Ontario. Names of the pilot and his passenger were not immediately known. R.C.A.F. officials said the plane left Sioux Lookout Monday and was expected at Armstrong two hours later. A communications check of points along the flight path has been restricted because lines are down to some points following a recent storm.

Believe Truman Richer On Leaving White House

WASHINGTON, April 1 (AP)—Harry Truman seems likely to be more comfortably fixed financially when he leaves the White House than he was when he entered it seven years ago. There is no information available on how much of his pay the president has been able to salt away, but some of his associates believe it's considerable.

The president, who announced Saturday night he wouldn't accept nomination for another term, has been drawing a $100,000-a-year salary since January, 1949—plus an annual $50,000 tax-free allowance.

When he took office April 12, 1945, the presidential pay was $75,000 a year—all of it taxable. As vice-president under Franklin D. Roosevelt from January until April of that year, Truman was paid at the rate of $20,000 a year — a job that now pays Alben Barkley $30,000 and a $10,000 non-taxable allowance.

The big pay increase in 1949 sems to have headed off the expectation that Truman would step out of the White House with a heavy personal debt.

Expenses Less

In addition, there were the three years the Trumans lived at Blair House — from November, 1948, until last week—while the White House was being remodelled.

Expenses were much less at the temporary living quarters across Pennsylvanian Avenue. Less domestic help was required and there was a big saving on entertainment.

Truman is a frugal man and can be expected to live modestly when he returns to private life.

Truman's decision to bow out means some of his cronies in the government will be looking for new jobs next January. For example, the President's army aide, Maj.-Gen. Harry H. Vaughan, undoubtedly will go out with his chief.

In the cabinet, only the secretary of the treasury, John Snyder, is generally regarded as being in the category of presidential cronies.

A new president will want to select his own cabinet, so there probably will be new men running the top departments.

1,000 Flee Flood In Medicine Hat

MEDICINE HAT, Alta., April 1 (CP)—Flood waters and thawing ground caused havoc in Southern Alberta Monday with the fiercest onslaught directed against Medicine Hat where 1,000 persons have been evacuated and more than 30 city blocks covered with water.

Rivers in the central part of the province were behaving but those in the south were sweeping over their banks or threatening. A retaining wall and a bridge collapsed near Lethbridge.

Medicine Hat city council Monday night estimated damage at $250,000. Some 300 homes, one school and several industrial basements were flooded by the Seven Persons creek.

Late Monday night public works foreman Rollie Cairns announced that flood waters were receding.

Dugout basement walls collapsed in five evacuated home Monday, making the small dwellings total losses to their owners.

Police Find $8,040 Hidden In Farm Home

HAMILTON, April 1 (CP) Cash amounting to $8,040 has been found by police in the Caistor township farm home of William and Nina Clayton, elderly brother and sister found dead last week. In addition, two bankbooks were found which showed reposits of around $15,000.

Search of the run-down farm home of the Claytons, who leave no immediate survivors, was made as a result of repeated rumors that the eccentric old couple had a fortune of $50,000 hidden away.

Carefully hidden in the backs of old picture frames hanging on the walls, the officers found a total of $8,015. In other places, they found bills and change amounting to $25.

The backs of the picture frames were carefully sealed with brown paper but memos found in the home indicated the money had been taken out each month and carefully counted. Receipts and expenditures were carefully noted in the memo.

Soldiers Stage Street Battle

BARRIE, April 1 (CP).—After a street fight here Monday night two soldiers from nearby Camp Borden were taken to hospital and 29 others were escorted back to camp under Provost Corps guard.

Army Service Corps men took other truckloads of men back to camp.

Two store windows were smashed during the fight. Provost men described the night as the worst they had witnessed here since the Second World War.

Won't Push Briton For Appointment Churchill Reports

LONDON, April 1. (Reuters)—Prime Minister Churchill told the House of Commons today Britain will support the appointment of another American to head the North Atlantic forces in Europe after General Eisenhower leaves. Churchill said that if the United States has the slightest wish to keep the command, then Britain will "certainly support them." He was answering a question from a Labor member, former Defence Minister Emanuel Shinwell, who asked whether the U.S. has made any mention of Eisenhower's resignation or his replacement by Gen. Alfred Gruenther, his present deputy.

Churchill replied: "I do not think I could guarantee to announce if any representations were made to me as the mere fact of that might preclude such representations."

When Shinwell said there are high-ranking military officers in Britain competent to undertake the task, Churchill said "I don't think it would be advisable for us to express a very strong opinion about this."

Churchill said he has no hint of just when Eisenhower will step out of uniform to campaign actively for the Republican presidential nomination in the U.S.

Gruenther is mentioned prominently as among those likely to succeed Eisenhower.

Shinwell said that at least "the matter might be discussed by the House before a decision is reached."

8 Enemy Jets Shot Down

SEOUL, Korea, April 1 (AP)—United States Sabre pilots shot down eight Red MIG-15 fighters today in a flurry of air fights over Northwest Korea.

The U.S. Fifth Air Force said five of the Russia-made planes were knocked down just south of the Yalu river, Manchurian-Korea boundary, when 26 Sabres ambushed 16 MIGs about noon.

Col. Francis S. Gabreski, commanding officer of the 51st Fighter Interceptor Wing, got one of those and became the eighth U.S. jet ace.

The kill raised his total for the Korean fighting to 5½ MIGs. Five kills make an ace.

"The MIGs never even saw us," said Gabreski, a leading ace of the Second World War. "We had a perfect 'bounce' and we dived right down their tail pipes."

Positive Steel Strike Will Begin April 8

WASHINGTON, April 1 (AP)—Price stabilizer Ellis Arnall said today, after conferring with Benjamin Fairless, president of the United States Steel Company, that he fears a steel strike may hit the United States April 8.

"I hope for the best but I fear the worst," Arnall told newspaper men.

The 650,000 C.I.O. steelworkers have a strike set for a week from today and Fairless—the steel industry's top spokesman—had come to see Arnall, presumably about prospects of the government allowing some price-ceiling boosts to offset wage raises recommended by the Wage Stabilization Board.

Arnall, gave reporters the impression that he is sticking by his guns against giving the steel industry any special price aid to encourage the industry to accept the W.S.B. recommendations.

Time Aiding Democracies Oust Communism—Attlee

PHILADELPHIA, April 1 — Clement Attlee said Monday night time is on the side of the Western democracies and if a Third World War can be prevented they will win out over Communism.

"I do not think that if we can avoid war the Iron Curtain will remain impermeable," the former Labor Prime Minister said in an address here.

He joined with political leaders from four other countries in a symposium "The Free World speaks," sponsored by the Philadelphia Fellowship Commission.

Attlee, who spoke for Europe, said:

"We are all greatly concerned today with building up sufficent armaments to deter any would-be aggressor. That is necessary, but it is only one part of the task before us. We have to build up a community of interests between the people. We have to strengthed our civililization so that it presents an alternative of great attractive power, for the essential thing in this contest is not mastery of force of arms but victory in the spiritual battle.

"Our task today is to strengthen by every means we can intercommunication among the free people. We must seek to emphasize all the things which we have in common."

Brig.-Gen. Carlos Romulo, Philippine ambassador to the U. S., discussed Asia's "struggle for dignity, security and freedom," Kalu Exera, Nigerian student, expressed the aspirations of African youth, and the U. S. outlook was presented by Mayor Joseph Clark, Jr., of Philadelphia.

Queen Juliana Leaves On Trip To U.S.

SCHIPHOL AIRPORT, Amsterdam, The Netherlands, April 1 (AP).—Queen Juliana of The Netherlands—cheered by thousands of her subjects—left by plane today for a month's visit to the United States and Canada.

The 43 - year - old monarch's four-engine Constellation left the sunny, snow-patched airfield just before noon. The Queen is due in Washington at 4 p.m. E.S.T. Wednesday, after an overnight stop in Gander, Nfld.

Travelling with her are her husband, Prince Bernhard, Dutch Foreign Minister Dirk U. Stikker and 11 others.

A main purpose of her trip is to say "thank you" for American aid to The Netherlands since the war.

In Washington, where she will make a three-day state visit, the Queen will be the first guest of President and Mrs. Truman in the rebuilt White House.

Her program in the capital includes a speech to Congress, visits to Mt. Vernon and Arlington National Cemetery, three receptions and two state dinners—one given her by the President, the other her bread-and-butter party for the Trumans.

After three weeks in the United States, Juliana is to spend a week's private visit in Canada, where Princess Margriet — the third of her four daughters—was born during the Dutch royal family's wartime exile.

The Queen will return home just in time for the April 30 national holiday celebrating her 43rd birthday.

Drug Peddlers Caught In Raid

ROME, April 1 (AP)—Police, aided by tips from United States federal agents, seized more than $500,000 worth of U.S.-bound drugs and arrested at least seven persons in raids stretching from Milan to Sicily, it was disclosed today.

Among those arrested or still sought as suspects in any international dope ring are men reported previously deported from the United States.

The new cleanup of Italian elements in the ring started 10 days ago at Alcamo, Sicily, where police seized large quantities of heroin hidden in a false-bottomed trunk. They arrested Frank Mancuso, whom they identified as having been deported from the United States.

Officers said they later raided the residence near Rome of Frank Coppola and found another large quantity of heroin. Coppola, also identified as having been deported from the United States, escaped.

A series of raids in Milan produced six more arrests.

The arrest in San Diego, Calif., last September of a man named Salvatore Vitale is believed to have given the tip that led to the Sicilian raid and the arrest of Mancuso.

Lamport Asks Ottawa To Pay City Taxes

TORONTO, April 1 (CP) — Mayor Allan Lamport said today he will ask the federal government to pay for the free municipal services it receives on its buildings in Toronto.

He said he will present Finance Minister Abbott with a $1,500,000 bill for police and fire protection and other services provided without cost by the taxpayers to federal government buildings.

Mayor Lamport will meet Mr. Abbott and Public Works Minister Fournier in Ottawa Thursday.

Expect Investment Program To Set Five Billion Record

OTTAWA, April 1. (CP)—Canada's 1952 investment program is shaping into a peak $5,003,000,000 prosperity-making project with greater emphasis on Federal spending. Trade Minister Howe, tabling in the Commons Monday his annual forecast for public and private investment, estimated the program will be boosted by $422,000,000 from the previous high of $4,581,000,000 in 1951. The 44-page report forecast a $227,000,000 increase in Federal government expenditures, compared with a rise of $172,000,000 by private business.

Provincial governments plan to boast capital-investment programs by about $12,000,000 and municipal governments by $11,000,000.

Total investment by private business is forecast at $3,545,000,000, up from $3,373,000,000 last year. Investment by all governments is expected to increase to $1,458,000,000 from $1,208,000,000.

The forecast of a $503,000,000 capital-investment program is exclusive of spending by the defence department on military equipment.

Mr. Howe, who recently told a labor delegation that inflation appears to be working in reverse, estimated that prices generally "are expected to be somewhat higher in 1952."

Whether the program will be realized will depend on many factors, including available supplies and the confidence of industry in prosperity.

Some Scarcities

Some supplies will be scarce, said Mr. Howe, but on the whole, shortages likely will not prevent completion of the program.

With many Canadians still finding it tough to raise enough money to finance new home-construction, housing is expected to decline to $758,000,000 from $840,000,000 last year.

A report signed by M. W. Sharp, associated deputy minister of trade and commerce, and tabled by Mr. Howe said supply of most building materials will increase this year. There should be sufficient materials to permit the realization of the two-to three-per-cent volume increase in the construction program indicated by a survey of investment intentions.

Structural steel, concrete reinforcing bars and steel pipe are likely to remain in short supply and cement deliveries will be slow during the summer and early autumn. Deliveries of rigid insulating board and of a few types of electrical equipment may also be slow.

Production Increase

A production increase of more than 10 per cent is expected for hot water storage tanks, gypsum products, cement and concrete brick and building blocks. An increase of from three to 10 per cent is expected for furnaces, cast-iron radiators, sanitary ware, cement pipe and tile, non-metallic sheated cable, mineral wool products, rigid insulating boards and asphalt shingles.

Decline in output is anticipated for steel pipe and fittings, electrical hot water heaters, sawn lumber, building brick, structural tile and builders' hardware.

There will be plenty of copper tubing.

Expect Cheese Support Plan

OTTAWA, April 1 (CP) — The federal government, moving to avert a crack-up in the cheese market, is expected to announce shortly a new support program for cheddar, it was learned Monday night.

The support price will range near last year's 28 cents a pound, lower than current demands by producers.

This was disclosed in informed quarters after announcement in London that a shortage of dollars will prevent Britain from purchasing cheese from Canada.

Ontario cheese producers last year completed a deal with Britain covering some 20,000,000 pounds at approximately 32 cents a pound, four cents above the federal support price.

This year the United Kingdom market is gone; the United States has restrictions on cheese imports and there are prospects of increased production in Canada because of the U.S. embargo on Canadian dairy cattle. The surplus, informants estimated, is likely to climb to more than 30,000,000 pounds.

Big Grass Fire Cuts Off Power

BUFFALO, N. Y., April 1 (AP) A grass fire in nearby West Seneca Monday night brought darkness to thousands of homes, silenced three radio stations and partially tied up Pennsylvania Railroad traffic.

Flames shot more than 50 feet in the air and burned through four 34,000-volt lines near the Gardenville switching station which was occupied jointly by the Niagara Mohawk Power Corp., and the New York State Electric and Gas Corp.

One of the high-tensioned lines was fused to the nearby Pennsylvania Railroad tracks. Others hung over the tracks preventing passage of trains. Many homes along the southern shore of Lake Erie were plunged into darkness for more than an hour.

Stations WGR, WBNY and WKBW were put off the air for about 45 minutes, station officials said.

Western Oils Continue Show Steady Advance

TORONTO, April 1 (CP). — Western oils continued a steady advance today in early afternoon stock market dealings but other sections made little headway.

Trading was heavy as oil speculation dominated exchange dealings. High Crest Oil was a standout as it climbed strongly while more than 500,000 shares changed hands.

Western oil gains ranged from pennies to more than $1. Anglo-Canadian, Calgary and Edmonton, Canada Southern, Devon-Leduc, Pacific Petroleum, Security Free, Trans Empire and Canadian Williston climbed strongly.

Steels, foods, refining oils and manufacturing companies led industrials upward with a scattered list of fractional advances. Banks, liquors and agricultures also drew firm support but retail stores eased.

Base metal leaders eased. Barvue, Eureka, Golden Manitou, Labrador, Pend Oreille and Sherritt-Gordon slipped. Anacon and Opemiska were firm.

Senior golds were mixed. Junior issues posted a slight majority of penny losses but prospects were firm.

Hector George Clark

Funeral services for Hector George Clark, 51, 267 Prince St., were held Monday from the Belleghem funeral home.

The Rev. H. D. McCormack of St. James United Church officiated.

Flower bearers were Neil and Lorne Clark, Harold, Gordon and John Moncrief, James Anderson, Clark Armstrong and Dennis Dorrington.

Honorary pallbearers were Robert Armstrong, Robert Clark, Sidney Fairbairn and William Atchison.

Active pallbearers were Clarence Hancock, Stanley Wright, William Laverne Clark, Walter Brown, Roland Hutchinson and J. C. Grier.

Burial was in Little Lake Cemetery.

Find Sutton Guilty Of Robbery

Jury Gives Verdict After Deliberating More Than 10 Hours

NEW YORK, April 1. (AP)—An all-male jury today found Willie (the Actor) Sutton and Thomas (Scup) Kling guilty of the $64,000 robbery of a Queens bank two years ago.

The jury returned its verdict at 5:45 a.m. E.S.T. after deliberating more than 10 hours.

Kling and Sutton, a notorious bank robber and jail breaker, were found guilty on counts of robbery, burglary, assault, and grand larceny.

Sutton, 51, and Kling, 45, were charged with holding up the Sunnyside branch of the Manufacturers Trust Company in Queens on March 9, 1950.

May Be Stiffer

Each of the defendants faces up to 30 years in prison. Taking into account their previous records, the penalty could be considerably stiffer.

Sutton and Kling were accused of pulling off the robbery with John De Venuta, 37, who won a separate trial at a later date by turning state's evidence and testifying against Sutton and Kling.

Both Sutton and Kling maintained their innocence.

Sutton, for five years the nation's most sought bank robber and jail breaker, was arrested in Brooklyn last Feb. 18 after a young clothing salesman spotted him on a subway train and pointed him out to police.

The salesman, 24-year-old Arnold Schuster, was shot and killed outside his Brooklyn home on March 8.

Police, still seeking the slayer, took extraordinary security measures at the trial. They fear the killer might be a pathological hero-worshipper of Sutton.

Two Cars Collide One Driver Charged

Damage estimated at $300 resulted when two vehicles collided at George and McDonnel Sts. Monday evening.

George E. Orr, Lakefield, was travelling east on McDonnel St. According to police, he failed to stop at the George St. intersection, and collided broadside with a truck. Orr is being charged with failing to stop for a stop sign.

The truck, which was going north on George St., was driven by Milton Nelson, 262 Rubidge St.

Constable Louis Rodreque investigated.

Discontinue Premiums

OTTAWA, April 1 — (CP) — The Agriculture Department announced Monday night that premiums on heavyweight hogs will be discontinued April 19. Old gradings then will be recognized. That means that grade A hogs of 170 to 180 pounds will qualify for at $2 premium over the floor price of $26 at Toronto, for instance.

Approve Paying $311,449 To Sask. Farmers

OTTAWA, April 1 (CP).—The Commons Monday night approved parliamentary appropriations for payment of $311,449 to Saskatchewan farmers for livestock slaughtered in the drive to stamp out foot-and-mouth disease.

The amount covers recompense for 1,061 head of cattle, 127 swine, 97 sheep, one goat, 1,666 hens and 13,272 eggs, all destroyed since the outbreak of the virulent disease was discovered in the Regina area.

The vote was contained in supplementary estimates of $246,000,000 for the fiscal year just ended.

Agriculture Minister Gardiner said the $311,449 total was approved by the Federal cabinet on the basis of the recommendations of a board established in Regina to fix compensation for farmers whose animals were slaughtered.

Not Included

The figure, he said, does not include payment for feed and farm buildings lost as a result of the outbreak. Those payments will be computed and placed before parliament later.

While approving the vote, opposition members suggested the amount should be considered merely as a "token" payment to the livestock industry for losses suffered in what they termed a "national emergency."

They pressed Mr. Gardiner to announce a floor price for beef, but he said he could not do that until after his conference here Wednesday with the provinces. He could make no announcement before Friday, if then.

Mr. Gardiner told Hazen Argue (C.C.F.-Assiniboia) he could not give the average payment per head for cattle, though he did know that the payments ranged from $300 to $700 a head for pure-bred livestock.

In Agreement

The Compensation Board, unanimous in its recommendations, fixed the value of a purebred bull at $700, a 10-year-old purebred cow at $550, a four-year-old grade cow at $320 and a grade male calf at $80.

The largest amount paid to an individual farmer was approximately $54,525.

Of more than $20,000 to be paid to the Burns Packing Plant in Regina, where the disease also broke out, $13,160 was for 49 steers in good condition, $6,548 for 24 steers in fair shape, $239 for a six-year-old cow, $1,140 for 57 lambs and $220 for 11 sheep.

Douglas Harkness (P.C.-Calgary East) said he understood the prairie farmers were "not too satisfied" with the payments for cattle, but were disappointed with those they were to receive for hogs.

Mrs. Joseph Manley

The funeral was held on Monday from Mather Funeral Home, Keene, of Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Manley, widow of the late Joseph Manley. Mrs. Manley, who before her marriage Mary Elizabeth Edwards, daughter of the late Charles Edwards and Isabella Cummings, was in her 73rd year. Born in Otonabee she resided there all her life. Her death occurred on Saturday at the home of her son Percy, lot 4, concession 17, Otonabee.

Mr. Samuel Taylor of Gospel Hall, Peterborough, was in charge of the service and burial was in Keene cemetery.

Pallbearers were Charles Elliott, Russel Edwards, Garnet Linton, Gerald Junkin, Randall Whalen and Ted McDowell.

Would Revise Provincial Aid To Cities

Suggest Ontario Pay For Education, Hospitals and Relief

TORONTO, April 1. (CP)—A government back-bencher suggested to the Ontario legislature Monday a plan for revising provincial aid to municipalities.

Elmer Brandon (PC-York West) said he felt municipalities would be happy to pay the whole cost of direct services such as police and fire protection if the province would assume total responsibility for education, hospitals, welfare and relief.

At present, responsibility for all these lies with the municipalities, although the province pays grants.

Mr. Brandon, speaking in the budget debate, said municipalities welcome grants, which next year would total $18,000,000 above last year's figure.

But costs such as education and welfare were a "perpetual headache" to municipal councils which had to pay for them from taxes on local real estate.

Sole Opposition

Opposition during Monday's study of Labor Department estimates came solely from the only Communist member, J. B. Salsberg (Labor-Prog-Tronto St. Andrew).

Mr. Salsberg said the laws are being used "by an increasing element in industry" to delay certification of unions and settlement of contract disputes.

Referring to a handful of newspaper clippings reporting union criticisms, he charged: "Many people in the province are coming to the conclusion that important sectors of industry are not prepared to bargain in good faith."

Labor Minister Daley countered that delaying tactics were "not the attitude of most of the employers in the province."

Conciliation should be a delaying process, Mr. Daley said. "While proceedings are going ahead, nobody is hurt." Strikes were avoided and the final agreement usually provided retroactive pay increases.

Up To Court

Mr. Salsberg also charged that the government "did not see fit to defend" its labor relations act when Mr. Justice G. A. Gale quashed an order of the Labor Relations Board certifying the Toronto Newspaper Guild at the Globe Printing Company, Toronto.

Attorney-General Porter said it was not the government's duty to defend legislation. "The court is there to see what it means."

A bill introduced by Acting Highways Minister Dunbar will open the way for United States trucks to carry loads in bond across the province.

Trucking companies in Michigan have urged such a step, which would permit them to cut more than 100 miles from the trip to Buffalo by going across Southern Ontario rather than around the south shore of Lake Erie.

Water Tower Needed For Wallace Drive

The mate of the water tower on Weller St. west, near Civic Hospital, will claim a place in the north Monaghan skyline when proposed services west of Hilltop Farm are completed.

That was the prospect in a brief and casual conversation at the meeting of the Utilities Commission Monday. Those altitudinous residential sections, such as Wallace Drive and its neighborhood, apart from the hospital and its top floors, put an excessive strain on the pumping and pressure capacity of the waterwork system.

Recently, Hugh Stewart of Hilltop enquired about the possibilities of obtaining water connections into his own property.

As a preliminary of reply, commission is asking for definite information as to the number of houses might be expected in his own area.

How Much For Area?

"And not just for Mr. Stewart," Gordon R. Langley remarked. "I think we should get an estimate of the total capital expenditure for that whole new area."

Gordon S. Matthews, chairman, said the contemplated extension should go all the way up Wallace Drive, from Sherbrooke St. to Park Hill Road.

"We can't service that area from the present tank at Weller St.," Mr. Dobbin said. "It will need another tower tank and boaster pump."

"It's all up to North Monaghan," Fred Hills commented.

In other words, Monaghan council will have to undertake whatever water extension project is laid across the boundary to Wallace Drive. Attitude of the Commission is partly that a lot of work still remains to be done in the city without going looking for it in the township.

One of the comments in this conversation was to the effect that the property recommending itself to the Commission for a housing area is the old Hilliard farm.

The last heard of that property was the hope of the council in 1951 that the Ontario Government would accept it as a gift from Peterborough as the site of a provincial mental institution.

That idea has resumed dormancy since the first of the year.

Planning Conversion Of Locomotive Shop

NEW YORK, April 1 —(AP)—The New York Central Railroad announced detailed plans today for conversion of its Collinwood, O., steam locomotive shop into a multimillion-dollar diesel repair facility.

When completed early in 1953, the Collinwood shop will handle all heavy repair and overhaul work on the Central's diesel fleet with the exception of switch engines in the Detroit-Chicago area and diesel power assigned to the line's Canadian operations.

The 86-acre shop area will employ 2,000 men. It will turn out 60 to 70 diesel units a month. It will be located on the Central's main line on Cleveland's east side.

Award Billion Defence Orders

OTTAWA, April 1 (CP). — Production Minister Howe, tabling his annual report in the Commons, Monday estimated that the newly-created defence production department distributed about $1,500,000,000 worth of orders in the last nine months of 1951.

As Canada launched a three-year military program, contracts began flowing out for $550,000,000 worth of aircraft; $225,000,000 for weapons and ammunition; $100,000,000 for shipbuilding; and a host of other items including $80,000,000 for electronic equipment.

It was not all smooth sailing. The department found itself amidst an acute shortage of machine tools and certain materials. it started to ration oil equipment and the chemical used to maintain the anti-knock in gasoline.

Explosives required by the United States and the United Kingdom led to the rehabilitation of an idling plant at Welland for picrite.

Canada had planned to buy American tanks, but cancelled the requisition and ordered British Centurions instead. The Centurion now has become Canada's main armored vehicle.

Refloat Freighter

SANDWICH, MASS., April 1—(AP)—Army engineers have announced that the freighter S. S. Arizona Sword, half submerged in the Cape Cod Canal for almost a year, will soon be afloat. The 306-foot vessel and its 4,800-ton cargo of sulphur were abandoned by her owners, the Sowrd Line, and became the property of the U.S. government. She collided with the Collier Berwindvale on May 5, 1951, about 1,800 feet inside the east end of the canal.

New President Takes Over N.R.C. Position

OTTAWA, April 1 (CP) — An outspoken chemist with an international reputation and a gift for administration today assumes command of the National Research Council, the big government scientific body that studies everything from radar to artificial rain.

He is Dr. Edgar William Richard Steacie who was born on Christmas Day, 1900, and sneaked into army uniform in 1918 ahead of the age-deadline but still too late to get into action.

He takes over from Dr. C. J. Mackenzie, named boss of Atomic Energy of Canada, Ltd., the new Crown company that will run the Chalk River atomic project.

Dr. Steacie becomes the first N.R.C. president to rise through the ranks.

Son of a Westmount, Que., business man killed in the First World War as an infantry captain, Dr. Steacie spent a year at Kingston's Royal Military College, then he switched to McGill, convinced that he wanted to devote himself to science.

He graduated from McGill and eventually became associate professor of chemistry there, the job he held when he was named head of N.R.C.'s chemistry division in 1939. During the last war, he was a big figure in the organization of Canadian chemistry for war purposes, especially in chemical warfare and in development of explosives.

Publishes Works

Dr. Steacie has written and published 160 scientific papers and three books including one which has found wide use as a textbook in universities. It is an abridged version of his "Atomic and Free Radical Reactions."

His main work has been in the field of photochemistry and gas reactions, becoming increasingly important as the basic work underlying petroleum technology.

Dr. Steacie is one of those figures whose abilities have built up Canada's scientific reputation abroad and he largely fathered the N.R.C. program of post-doctorate fellowships under which foreign graduate students come here to further their educations.

In his new job, he will devote much time to administrative and executive functions but still intends to keep in his hand at chemistry.

Wildcat Strike In Ohio Plant

AKRON, O., April 1—(AP)—A wildcat strike at Firestone Tire & Rubber Co. raised the number of idle rubber workers in Akron to 18,000 today.

At the same time, Akron's only public transportation was stalled by a strike of 450 bus drivers and 100 bus mechanics.

The walkout at Firestone started when eight men quit work in an allowance dispute, the company said.

Some 4,000 rubber workers at the Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co. continue an unauthorized strike in a dispute over piecework rates.

The bus strike—the fourth in eight years at the Akron Transportation Co.—left 300,000 persons without public transportation. The drivers and mechanics want wage boosts.

Refuse To Reduce Travelling Allowance

OTTAWA, April 1 (CP)—By a standing committee vote of 81 to 8, the Commons Monday night defeated a C.C.F. move to cut to $1 a Government appropriation of $21,000 to reimburse lieutenant-governors for their costs of travelling and hospitality.

Prime Minister St. Laurent said the increase was recommended because the royal visit last fall demonstrated that lieutenant-governors incur expenses which are "proper and dignified" for the people of Canada to pay.

John Jackson

HAVELOCK, April 1 — (ENS) —Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Roche, with Mr. and Mrs. T. W. Quinn were in Trenton Friday attending the funeral of John Jackson, a former resident of Havelock, and a brother of the late Mrs. J. W. Bryans.

Mr. Jackson was 87, and was about his work until three weeks ago when he fell, fracturing his hip. He was stricken with a heart seizure and died Thursday in the Trenton hospital.

Mr. Jackson was with the C. P. R. in Havelock for several years, going to Trenton when the Toronto to Smiths Falls line was opened by the C. P. R. for traffic and has been a resident of Trenton since. He leaves his widow and two children George of Trenton and Fannie of Toronto.

No Appeal Made By India For Aid

OTTAWA, April 1 (CP)—India has made no special appeal to Canada for assistance as a result of famine and starvation reported to be facing the state of Madras, External Affairs Minister Pearson said Monday.

He told the Commons, however, that $10,000,000 of Canadian wheat now is arriving in India under the Colombo Plan.

Margaret Truman Hopes To Take Trip To Europe

VICTORIA, B. C., April 1 (CP) —Margaret Truman said Monday she and her mother are both happy that "Daddy" won't stand for re-election as President of the United States.

"It was in no way a family decision," she said. "Daddy told us about it some time ago but reports that mother and I want to return to Independence (Missouri) are untrue.

"I live in New York now and will continue to live there. I don't know what my parents will do but I imagine they'll use the family home as a base. I hope, though, that they take a good, long trip. They've been tied down in Washington too long."

Miss Truman, here on a concert tour, was poised and flashed a sense of humor as she handled a press conference with tact and charm.

"I won't have to campaign this year, so perhaps I can make a trip to Europe," she said. "I've been there only once and would like to go again."

The singer was presented with a Cowichan Indian sweater, made from wool spun and knitted by Indian women of Vancouver Island.

The sweater was a gift of the British Columbia Conquer Cancer campaign, which Miss Truman officially opened here.

Miss Truman's concert here tonight will be her first professional appearance in Canada, although she visited Ottawa five years ago.

Killed By Snow

EPPING, Essex, England, April 1 (AP)—Melting snow killed 10-month-old Jack Waitling Monday as he lay in his baby buggy outside his home here. His mother found the child suffocated under a pile of snow which has been eased from the house roof by the warm afternoon sun.

PUTTING PEP IN PASTURE

The fertility of your soil is like a bank account. You can't keep taking it out, without putting some back in.

Today's demands for more production and greater yield at lower cost need the proper use and application of fertilizers to pastures, grain fields and all areas where produce is grown. These fertilizers will help replace in the soil those minerals so essential to plant growth.

President Truman Does Not Choose To Run

President Coolidge said (as if speaking of the cars of his own era), "I do not choose to run." President Truman said "I shall not be a candidate for re-election . . . I shall not accept a renomination.' I do not feel that it is my duty to spend another four years in the White House." He means what he says, although it was not as forthright a rejection as W. T. Sherman telegraphed to the Republicans in 1884: "I will not accept if nominated, and will not serve if elected."

* * *

The President feels he has done his duty. Judging from the book recently issued on him as "Mr. President", Mr. Truman will be glad to say to his successor in the White House, as President Buchanan said to Abraham Lincoln: "If you are as happy, my dear sir, on entering this house as I am in leaving it and returning home, you are the happiest man in the country." That indeed seems to be the chief reason that President Truman does not seek re-election. The burden is very heavy, and Mr. Truman will have held it by next January for nearly eight years. Presidents from Jefferson onwards have spoken of the trials and cares of the office: "it brings nothing but unceasing drudgery and daily loss of friends," Jefferson wrote.

* * *

Mr. Truman has great political acumen. No other can say, and perhaps not even Mr. Truman himself, what his decision would have been had General Eisenhower not loomed as an opposition candidate. But now, with Eisenhower and, failing him, several other strong Republican candidates in view, the Democratic party's hopes of continuing their eighteen-year regime seem low. Even President Truman, an optimist about such matters (an optimism justified by his own re-election in 1948 in the face of predicted defeat), even Mr. Truman must not be confident. He said on Sunday that he was not a "fair-day Democrat." Does he foresee bad days ahead for his party?

* * *

It is too early to assess President Truman's administration. Despite the present charges of corruption in high places, Mr. Truman himself has not been touched by scandal, and it is safe to disagree with Jefferson that no man will ever bring out of the Presidency the reputation which carries him into it. Mr. Truman has grown in stature and international esteem since the fateful day in 1945 when President Roosevelt's death thrust the presidency on the unprepared shoulders of this unassuming and comparatively unknown mid-Western American.

Our Bookish Government

Of late some public interest has been shown in the high costs of books to the Canadian public, and in particular complaints have been made about the ten per cent. sales tax which the government collects on each book sold, whether it is printed in Canada or not.

If the government gets ten per cent. on the sale price of a book, it is getting as much as the author gets in the way of royalty, in a good many cases. And as Canadian authors are afterward taxed on their royalties under the head of unearned income—we repeat that, unearned income—it may be said that, insofar as literature flourishes in Canada, it benefits the government more than it benefits the writers.

Undoubtedly it is too much to expect our parliamentarians to concern themselves with such a small matter. When they rest from their labours, they curl up with a mystery story or a Western—but not one which they have bought. No, no; these canny gentlemen get their literature from the Parliamentary Library, which contains more light and diverting reading than the average overawed taxpayer might suppose.

Destroy Mount Royal?

For 310 years the mountain which overlooks Montreal and now stands in its very centre, has been the chief glory of its name city—the 'royal mountain' of Jacques Cartier. In the midst of a million people it is a natural park, denied to automobiles, trams and amusement joints; a refuge from city bustle, a pleasance for ramblers above the smoke and nervous fray of a great metropolis. No other large city in the world has this supreme natural advantage. Yet there are officials in Montreal who would destroy it. They want to put in a golf course, swimming baths, hot-dog stands, mechanical amusements; to turn it into a carnival centre.

Councillor Frank Hanley has said that "despite the opposition of outside municipalities we'll develop Mount Royal as we wish." We admit to being an outsider but we think we have a right, as a frequent visitor and admirer, and as a citizen of this country in which Montreal is the largest city, to voice opposition—if the councillor's "as we wish" means the desecration of Mount Royal. The chief opposition will surely come from within Montreal; we hope only that outside support for the opponents will quicken their efforts to prevent the mountain being made a hill-top Coney Island.

Teaching Granny To Suck Eggs

Newspapers have need of those little items—called "floating items" or "fillers" which may be put at the bottom of a column which is not quite long enough. Knowing this, many special interests, industries and government bureaus send us material which they hope that we will use in this way. We throw it into the waste paper basket unread, as a rule, for we can smell propaganda half a mile away. But this morning we relented, and read some of the junk which the Department of National Health and Welfare sends out, hopefully headed, "Press Fillers."

Here is a bit of hot news, which will astonish every mother and father, from the above-mentioned government department: "The teenager usually has a big appetite and, to maintain his growth and greater activity, often needs more food than an adult. Plenty of milk and good nourishing food will help to keep him healthy." Well, now; imagine that! Teenagers eat a lot! Who would ever have guessed it? But there is better to come; listen to this: "The motorist who drives long distances on the highway at night often becomes drowsy. It is safer in such a case to pull off the road and take a few minutes nap, thereby preventing the chance of an accident through falling asleep at the wheel." Breath-taking, isn't it? How does the Department ever think up such things? And—oh, goody!—here is a fine new thought, fire-new from the mint: "Wet or slippery floors may cause serious accidents through falls. Articles left on stairs also constitute a hazard." (Note the elegance of this writing; things on stairs aren't dangerous because you may trip on them and break your neck; they "constitute a hazard"; it takes a Government publicity man to write such jewelled prose as that.)

We are cantankerous. We shall go right on publishing such fillers as: "A breed of three-eyed mice are found on the eastern slopes of the Andes." There is a dash of romance, of the gratuitous and the useless, about them which we like.

No Muse For Mr. Massey

In other countries great events of state and historic moments in the nation's career call forth the poetic muse. Men of rhyme, wise in words; gentlemen of cultivation with a fine frenzy for the public weal, indite odes for the occasion—ceremonial or blistering, depending on their political penchants.

In England today Edmund Blunden can always be relied on to turn a phrase to mark a state occasion; the Poet Laureate Masefield dutifully produces lines on the King's death and the Queen's accession. But in Canada the muse is silent. From the failed hands of our handful of poets, only amateur versifiers (with more heart than art) take the theme, and offer newspapers their variations on the burden.

How different matters were when the Earl of Godlophon took the Seals (became Lord Privy Seal) in 1735. The occasion is almost lost to history, and the noble Earl's title is extinct, but still Isaac Hawkins Browne's 'The Fire Side: a Pastoral Soliloquy,' lives among the cognoscenti:

I love my fire side, there I long to repair
And to drink a delightful oblivion of care . . .

But there must be "drudges of state" so that "the Sage may securely enjoy his retreat." And there are times when "a man dauntless and wise" is needed.

If such can be found, sure he ought to come forth
And lend to the publick his talents and worth.
Whate'er inclination or ease may suggest,
If the state wants his aid, he has no claim to rest.

Mr. Vincent Massey came forth when the Government wanted to have a Canadian Governor-General. But where is our Isaac Hawkins Browne to raise a paean for Mr. Massey's sacrifice of his Port Hope fireside in assuming the stone burden of Rideau Hall?

As great even as this sacrifice is the historic significance: a Canadian becomes the Queen's personal viceroy in Canada. What matter of Canadian state has been as important in this decade? Yet no minor Blunden nor middling Masefield has raised a verse. O tempora, O poetica, O Canada!

Is there not even a poetaster to sing a heroic couplet that a Canadian has ascended the vice-regal dais?

No; there has not been a couplet, heroic or blasphemous.. The Muse is mute for Massey.

Children At The Movies

By DENNIS BLOODWORTH

IF, LIKE ME, you take your escapism seriously, you know that there is one place where even the greatest child lover becomes apprehensive at the proximity of flannel shorts or regulation pinafores—the cinema. The pleasurable anticipation created by the word "Technical Assistant to Special Colour Effects Producer: Elmer K. Rembrandt", flashed across the screen to the accompaniment of an angelic choir, is replaced by a small secret worry when the vacant seat beside you is taken by a young person in knickerbockers. For the next hour and a half you will not know what he is going to do from one moment to the next.

According to a UNESCO report just published, on an extensive survey of the problem of juvenile audiences, you may expect him to "talk, fidget, walk about, wiggle with excitement, scream with joy, howl with fear or yawn with boredom; applaud, exclaim, laugh, jeer, miaow or whistle". It seems a restrained, yet indicative, list.

THE more conscientious, however, may be worried by a more serious question; should the child be there at all? The British expert Roger Manvell says that the four and a half million British and twelve million American children who go weekly to the movies see an endless repetition of well-worn cliches; luxury, especially associated with women; the pursuit of women; men as a source of money for women; sex, the most important thing in life; foreigners are funny; Easterners are horrific.

It was to study what has been done and can be done in the future to educate children progressively to be discriminating filmgoers, critical and not credulous of the screen's often spurious morality, that UNESCO carried out its research. The objects were to find out, on the one hand, what is psychologically injurious to children, what they like, and what they do not understand in films, and on the other, what has been done to classify films accordingly and to arrange for the production and showing of special programmes for juvenile audiences.

Ample material on children's reactions to films has been made available by organisations which in the last few years have made a wide series of experimental tests. These have included listening to and recording the behaviour of a juvenile audience, filming the auditorium during a projection, memory tests and discussion after film-showings, collective games, and an ingenious American system called the "Wiggle Test" which produces a graph showing how children react to a given film, scene by scene.

THESE have led to some fairly obvious conclusions — that films for children should be easy to understand, full of action, and should not contain scenes of gambling, drunkenness, crime, unhappy marriage, terror or the supernatural. But investigations has shown up more subtle considerations than these—and not without surprises. Psychiatrists have found that a stupid or immoral film may have no effect on a child, where a fleeting image does lasting harm, and that an inflexible censorship system may run counter completely to the findings of children's experts. Censorship banned Louisiana Story, but psychologists found it had a favorable effect on juveniles. Yet films which seem to have been made with a youthful audience in view can, in fact, be undesirable or even damaging. Cartoons, with their bright colours and swift action, often bewilder and disconcert children, and such films as Snow White, Pinocchio and Bambi contained scenes which distressed or frightened them. Charlie Chaplin comic shorts are found to repel adolescents rather than to amuse them, because they show people in degrading or deceitful positions, and victims of poverty and injustice.

CAMERAWORK plays a big part, the UNESCO survey established, in making a film suitable or unsuitable for children. Close-ups, for example, frighten them, especially close-ups of animals or frightening facts. Slow-motion bewilders and even terrifies sometimes, while speeded-up films are incomprehensible. While they grasp the idea of a "fade out" juveniles are mystified by "fade-ins", and complicated photography that switches from one panorama to another, or films alternately a scene as viewed by two different persons on the screen, is meaningless to them. They despise dubbing (substituting other voices for those of the artists filmed) as a contemptable and unconvincing deception.

All indications confirm that the young audience is simple and acute at the same time, and—rather heartening this—has an ingrained love of justice and beauty. The ideal film for children is a straightforward action story in which no character is left in suspense and the audience is not caught unawares. Criminals must be punished and the good must triumph. Further, these symbols should be easy to recognise. Funny men, are, of necessity, fat, for example, and villains can be spotted at once by their ragged clothes and general unkemptness. Children have been found to be impatient of the "whodunit", (who has done it?) cliches whereby the wrongdoer is suddenly revealed in the last scene as the amiable short-sighted old grandmother or the upstanding but one-armed young man with the romantic war record. Most liked of all is the film where a juvenile hero of the audience's own age grapples successfully with—inevitably but distressingly—adult dishonesty.

BRITAIN, America and France have been in the forefront of individual countries which, in the last twenty years, have studied juvenile film needs and worked to meet them, the report says. First steps were taken in Britain only in 1930, yet by 1936 seven hundred cinemas in the United Kingdom were giving special programmes weekly attended by some 700,000 children. Today it is estimated that this figure has risen to one million. Since 1944 the (British) Advisory Council of Children's Entertainment Films, sponsored by the Gaumont British Corporation and the Rank Organisation, has supervised the production and distribution of numerous films for juveniles which are shown weekly at two thousand special performances given by non-profit-making juvenile cine-clubs established by the Odeon, Gaumont and A.B.C. cinema chains.

In France, more than twenty children's films have been made in the last five years and shown by special clubs, which have also developed a routine system for selecting adult films suitable for the young. The United States has a Children's Film Library, directed by a committee representing twenty associations interested in youth which reviews more than two hundred films annually and classifies those suitable for children.

CZECHOSLOVAKIA, where there are special children's cinemas in the four main cities, and the U.S.S.R., have been actively producing juvenile films since 1945, and many other countries, including New Zealand, Australia, Denmark, Norway, Sweden, Austria, Germany, Italy and Poland have made notable contributions to the world's stocks of films for children.

The juvenile audience renews itself rapidly and films can be used over and over again. Throughout the world there are stocks of aging films, and new films for children are in production. The UNESCO survey was the first step taken to ensure that the present assets in material, organisation and knowledge are used to the greatest advantage on an international scale in the future. The next move is likely to be the calling of an international conference of cinema owners to arrange for the printing and distribution of old films, the establishment of an exchange system for children's features, the pooling of organisational and psychological knowledge gained by experience in individual countries, and possibly the setting up of co-ordinated national committees to supervise the holding of regular special performances for children.

LONDON HEADQUARTERS of the Royal Empire Society. This fine building was opened by King George VI and Queen Elizabeth (then the Duke and Duchess of York) in 1936. It contains one of the world's finest libraries on imperial systems and offers facilities for people of the Commonwealth in London to meet socially by providing lounges and assembly rooms and arranging dances, receptions and concerts.

Royal Empire Cornerstone

By A. K. ASTBURY

LONDON, centre and capital city of the Commonwealth, is host to over a dozen societies whose purpose it is to encourage mutual understanding between all Commonwealth peoples. Many of these are of long standing, with interests covering all Commonwealth countries; other—such as the Association of British Malaya or the East India Association—have more limited territorial interests.

But all, however they may differ in organisation, activities or privileges, have the same general object—the promotion of understanding and personal friendship between British subjects throughout the world, and the maintenance of the finest traditions of the Commonwealth by personal service to its cause.

Of these dozen or so Commonwealth societies the oldest and one of the most influential is the Royal Empire Society. It has branches in eight places in Britain and in the Commonwealth cities of Adelaide, Auckland, Brisbane, Christchurch, Colombo, Hobart, Montreal, Melbourne, Sydney and Wellington. And yet while its connections are thus world-wide, to most people in Britain and to many of their Commonwealth friends overseas, the Royal Empire Society means the fine headquarters building in central London which is in itself a living witness to the ties of Commonwealth. Not only is it a place where Commonwealth citizens of whatever race or creed meet on terms of equality and friendship but in its very furnishing are commemorated most of the member states and territories of the Commonwealth.

THE CEYLON ROOM, the New Zealand Room, the Australian Lounge, the British Columbian Smoking Room—these are panelled and in part furnished with woods from the countries whose names they bear; while at the moment of writing a gift of timber from the Union of South Africa Government, wooden columns from Malta, furniture from the Governments of Malaya and Singapore, with flooring timber from Nigeria, are all helping to restore to its former splendour the war-damaged Council Chamber of the Society.

Of even greater value in cementing the ties of Commonwealth are the friendships formed at the Society. There are, first, facilities there to encourage social intercourse, such as club accommodation for the overseas visitor, with lounges and assembly rooms; dances, receptions and concerts are arranged throughout the year, with visits in the summer to such places as the Mansion House, official residence of the Lord Mayor of London; Chartwell, home of Mr. Winston Churchill, and such famous buildings as Canterbury Cathedral and Arundel Castle.

And, at times, more informal activities are possible—as when a party of Commonwealth Fellows recently visited a church in the Old Kent Road, London, for a coster's harvest festival thanksgiving and were delighted to see these real London characters at close quarters, the babies in suits of feathers, their mothers and fathers dressed, in traditional fashion, in clothes covered with pearl buttons.

AND YET the Royal Empire Society is first and foremost a learned society. It is the recognised authority on all matters touching the places and peoples of the Commonwealth, and it houses within the building one of the world's finest libraries on imperial systems. Its newspaper room contains a complete collection of papers from every part of the Commonwealth, and its information bureau issues up to 25,000 copies of reports each year on living conditions in 24 Colonial territories. As part of its educational work the Society also holds an annual essay competition open to children of any Commonwealth country.

The present headquarters of the Royal Empire Society were opened in 1936 by King George VI and Queen Elizabeth, then Duke and Duchess of York; yet already they have their own international atmosphere. It is suggested, partly, by the gifts to the Society displayed throughout the building: Queen Mary's photographs of Royal visits to India before World War I; a silver bo tree and a lion skin in the secretary general's office; and valuable old books of exploration on display.

Yet more than anything the wide horizons and the truly international spirit of the Commonwealth are to be found in the London headquarters of the Royal Empire Society because it is the one place, above all others, where men and women from the Commonwealth meet daily in friendship and in recollection of their common heritage.

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

And this is the record of John, when the Jews sent priests and Levites from Jerusalem to ask him, Who art thou? And he confessed, and denied not; but confessed, I am not the Christ. And they asked him, What then? Art thou Elias? And he saith, I am not. Art thou that prophet? And he answered, No.

Then said they unto him, Who art thou? that we may give an answer to them that sent us. What sayest thou of thyself? He said, I am the voice of one crying in the wilderness, Make straight the way of the Lord, as said the prophet Esaias.

The next day John seeth Jesus coming unto him, and saith, Behold the Lamb of God, which taketh away the sin of the world. This is he of whom I said, After me cometh a man which is preferred before me: for he was before me. (John 1: 19-23, 29, 30.)

But unto every one of us is given grace according to the measure of the gift of Christ. Wherefore he saith, When he ascended up on high, he led captivity captive, and gave gifts unto men . . . And he gave some, apostles; and some, prophets; and some, Evangelists; and some, pastors and teachers; for the perfecting of the saints, for the work of the ministry, for the edifying of the body of Christ; till we all come in the unity of the faith, and of the knowledge of the Son of God, unto a perfect man, unto the measure of the stature of the fulness of Christ. (Eph. 4: 7, 8, 11-13.)

Now I beseech you, brethren, by the name of our Lord Jesus Christ, that ye all speak the same thing, and that there be no divisions among you; but that ye be perfectly joined together in the same mind and in the same judgement. (I Cor. 1: 10.)

Can't Believe Our Dollar At Par

(Port Arthur News-Chronicle)

With the Canadian dollar at par and better of the American, people of this country are encountering more than ever interesting experiences as they visit the United States.

A few businesses and institutions across the line, particularly hotels which are first to contact visitors and to whom they are most important, concede the new relationship of currencies. Elsewhere there is the ingrown tendency to regard Canadian money as only a little more valuable than dirt.

Garages and small business places, even in such nearby states as Minnesota, seem determined to maintain their discount of 10 per cent. Most of them will offer only 90 cents for a Canadian dollar, and when they are told that "It is worth more than your own," they seem to regard it as the delusion of some peculiar character.

One Canadian reports that, as he went about different parts of the States well knowing the attitude toward Canadian money, he had a considerable amount of pleasure, when the time came to pay for goods and services, in bringing forth Canadian money. Thereupon he would remark something to the effect that "I can't give you that. It is worth more than your American money." He would then make everyone happy by paying in American currency.

Truman's Choice Oil Millionaire?

By KENNETH HARRIS

WATCH OUT for Senator "Bob" Kerr. He may be the next President of the United States.

A millionaire oil-man, he has been a power in the Democratic Party since 1940. Mr. Truman will have, as President, great influence on the choice of his successor. He is very keen on Senator Kerr, and most people in Washington just now believe he will choose between him and Adlai Stevenson, the Governor of the State of Illinois.

Bob Kerr is the average American's idea of a great American. He was born 50 years ago, in a home-made log cabin in the State of Oklahoma, the old Indian territory, son of a pioneer father who went through life with a Bible in one hand and a rifle in the other. Like Truman, he went through World War One as an artilleryman, came out broke, went into one of the oil wells with which Oklahoma then bristled, and in twenty years came out with a million dollars.

Every Sunday he taught in a Baptist Sunday school—his wife is a Christian Scientist—but he is not the kind of man who believes that the "meek shall inherit the earth". "They'll do that over my dead body—and I don't die easily" has been his slogan for those who stand in his way, and coming out of the strong-lipped jaw of an ebullient man standing six foot three inches with weight to match, the words make a firm impression.

As Governor of the rich, bustling Western State of Oklahoma—it lies about halfway across the United States, just where the great wheat-bearing plains rise into the foothills of the Rocky mountains—Kerr launched a programme typical of that liberal enlightened businessman's approach to civic and social problems which in the short term at any rate has done the Americans a lot of good and the world no great harm. In four years he converted a State public debt of forty three million dollars into a surplus of forty million, increased teachers' salaries, put workmen's unemployment compensation on a sound basis, and did more towards a settlement of Oklahoma's Indian problem than any Governor before him.

COMING to Washington as a Senator in 1948, he soon established himself as about the best rough-and-tumble debater on either side of the chamber. His enlightened attitude to labour problems and his support for aid to agriculture has won him the support of progressives. In international affairs he is a loyal supporter of the Administration. The world may remember, American Democrats will never forget, that he was the first Senator to come out publicly with a speech denouncing the mutinous conduct of General MacArthur and commending the President for sacking him.

Bob Kerr, now campaigning in Nebraska, where today the Democrats of that State are voting to say whether they prefer him or Senator Kefauver as Presidential candidate, will be a very good candidate. He has a good record, tremendous energy and personality, a snappy platform manner—he has just called Senator Taft a "Hoover re-tread" a broad, eupeptic, but tough, grin. He also has a beautiful wife, three sons taller than their father, a charming daughter and a bouncing baby grandson in Bob Kerr III. He will by no means be the perfect candidate; he has no experience of international affairs, and even within his own party he has been criticised for obstructing the Government's attempts to control the activites of the oil industry from which he derives his personal wealth, a criticism which places him too near the shadow of the "Corruption in Government" issue which this year may hang fatally over the Party's election fortunes. But in a year when the Democrats are not rich with brilliant candidates, they might do worse than choose him, and of one thing they can be certain: Bob Kerr, in the spirit of his Bible-and-rifle-carrying father, will fight to the end against anybody getting in his way.

Editorial Writing

Filion, managing editor of the French-Language Daily Le Devoir, won the award in editorial writing with a submission of 10 signed editorials on a wide range of topics. They showed fine craftsmanship and were seen by the judges as "written with polish, understanding and wit on subject-matter, usually significant." Two dealt with international Communism. Others included commentaries on the cost-of-living index, labor-management relations, the Quebec budget, yellow journalism and propagandists in international affairs. One was a thoughtful, affectionate welcome to president Auriol of France who visited Canada last April.

Spot News Reporting

Thomas, veteran police reporter on the Toronto Star, won the spot news award with an exclusive death-cell interview from San Quentin penitentiary last Oct. 27 in which Stanley Buckowski revealed himself as the killer concerned in a Toronto double murder which had long gone unsolved.

Acting on a hunch, Thomas asked and got permission to visit San Quentin where Buckowski was under sentence of death for a killing in California. The criminal talked freely.

Four other reporters were specially mentioned by the judges in this category. They are Frank Lowe of the Montreal Star, for his beat last August 17 on Count Jaques de Bernonville's departure for Brazil; Wilfred List, Toronto Globe and Mail, for his Vancouver story September 23 backgrounding Pat Conroy's resignation as secretary-treasurer of the Congress of Labor; Robert Tyre of the Regina Leader-Post for an interview with a Russian refugee; and Mark Romaine, St. John's, Nfld., Telegram, for stories on the winter search for a missing trawler and on the birth of a baby in the air during a mercy flight.

Feature Writing

Boss's award for feature writing went to one story of the hundreds Boss has sent back to Canada in the course of his 1½ years on the Korean front as C.P.'s war correspondent with Canadian troops. It is the saga of Ptes. Tony Edmond of Toronto and Glace Bay, N.S., who though badly wounded in action and ordered back to Canada, put up a fruitless fight to stay and see it through.

Staff Corresponding

Bird, chairman of Southam News Services, won the staff corresponding award with a series of stories from Britain preceding the British election last October. He wrote from various localities in the English provinces, reporting colorfully on meetings addressed by leaders and effectively bringing out the flavor of the campaign.

Photography

Bier's award-winning picture in the spot news photography class is a stirring shot of boxer Rocky Graziano standing over Montrealer Johnny Greco whom he has just floored with a right to the jaw. Bier's lens caught and highlighted the concentrated savagery in Graziano's face.

Other pictures mentioned in this class included an action shot in a Hamilton-Ottawa football game by Harry McClorinan of the Toronto Globe and Mail.

Dunlop won the feature news photography prize with his hot-weather picture of a Kodiak bear reclining belly-up in his rock-walled pool at the Toronto zoo. Dunlop, on another assignment at the time, noticed the bear's relaxed pose and snapped through the cage bars.

Harold Whyte, of the Toronto Telegram, and Jack De Lorme, of The Calgary Herald, winner of the spot news picture award in 1949, were singled out for mention by the judges in this class.

Cartooning

Norris won the award in cartoning with a cartoon entitled "Canada's Undefended Border." The picture, published when the tobacco industry was complaining about cigarette-smuggling, shows a harassed tourist in a customs office being dissected by four Mounties while a fifth policeman burrows under his car outside. The judges noted: "It was felt he expressed clearly, with good drawing and striking pictorial effect, an idea of considerable public interest."

Citation

How was cited by the judges in the spot news category for his exclusive interview with Kurt Meyer at Offleben, Germany, November 25, revealing that Meyer was out of prison on ticket-of-leave.

TOP SPOT NEWS PICTURE—This photo, taken by David Bier of the Montreal Herald, has been chosen the best spot news photograph of 1951 in the third annual National Newspaper Awards. Rocky Graziano is standing over Montrealer Johnny Greco whom he has just floored with a right to the jaw. Bier's lens caught and highlighted the concentrated savagery of Graziano's face.

Canada Feeling Scrap Shortage Plans Campaign

By FORBES RHUDE,
Canadian Press Business Editor.

As sure as machines are made, they wear out. But even when worn out, there is a place for them.

The place is back in the furnaces of iron and steel industries, which originally poured them out, and which await to melt them down again, so that they can start out on a new career of usefulness.

Just now, not enough of the worn-out machines are getting back to the mills. Obsolete lathes collect cobwebs in corners of machine shops; broken-down farm machines remain in the fields; old motor cars pile up in automobile graveyards.

Unless these get moving to the mills, steel production will be threatened, because scrap makes up half the material which goes into new steel.

National Emergency

In the United States, the scrap shortage is called a "national emergency." In Canada, a campaign to get the scrap flowing is scheduled for this month.

The campaign, however, is not a call to housewives for their discarded pots and pans—certainly not yet. The usual sources of industry and farm are thought to have sufficient scrap if they will dig it out; for experience has shown that industries have more scrap lying around than they generally realize.

The campaign will, however, be organized on a community basis. Heading it will be the Canadian scrap iron and steel committee, formed by Canadian Iron and Steel Producers, in co-operation with the National Scrap Dealers' Association.

Some Examples

Here are some examples from United States experience.

A maker of photographic equipment found 88 carloads of heavy iron and steel scrap in a 30-day period.

More than 200 slot machines which had been destined for destruction and burial in a pit, after confiscation by police, yielded 10,000 pounds of scrap.

A lumber mill sold five carloads of obsolete iron and steel equipment.

Since the beginning of the Korean war, the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad has collected enough iron and steel scrap to build a fleet of more than 40 merchant ships.

A small button works scrapped 20 tons of obsolete machinery.

With Stouffville Clippers bolstering for senior "B" puck playdowns, the O.H.A. ruling that Petes can add three players from the Eagles will be welcome news indeed for the Ellis' squad. They have chosen Keith Montgomery, Toodie Greenlaw and Freddy Mortimer—three fast-skating guys who can score goals. We don't know which three of the Petes will be dropped, as they have a lot of good material aboard the club, but Monty, Toodie and Freddie will certainly be a big help the rest of the route for the Petes. As they go into April—what is the date, by the way? Oh, yes, April Fool's Day again! Well, well, well. And Monty, Toodie and Freddy can hang 'em up again.

* * * * * *

Petes feel they are strong enough as is to take this big series o'er the speedy Clippers. They clash tonight in Stouffville, and the local pack will sure be gunning for a victory to square the sawoffs at a win each. Clippers had to go overtime to nudge out a nod here last Friday in the opener. Petes aren't worried about the trip or strange ice—they know they can take tonight's tilt if they turn in a real effort. They know, too, what the other club has now and what to do about it. And they realize that a second straight setback would put 'em on the w.k. spot for the third joust here Thursday. On account of the fourth is back in Stouffville this Saturday night.

Jack Christie Replies

Secretary Jack Christie of the O.M.H.A. writes us to say he noted some criticism in our paper by the Havelock juvenile manager as to Havelock being over-matched in juvenile "B" finals with Georgetown. Jack points out that the only definite rule on classification of towns according to population is that the O.M.H.A. executive shall classify all teams. Though they try usually to go by size of centres. But they also consider calibre, ice conditions and other matters. He says Georgetown had never before sent a team past the second round of playdowns, and their midgets this year were erased in the second round. He adds:

* * * * * *

"We might also point out that as to calibre we have one or two centres under 3,000 playing in the 'B' series; also that for some years Peterborough was classified in the 'B' series. I cannot bring this note to a close without paying tribute to the fine sportsmanship displayed by Havelock players all year and the excellent co-operation given by Mr. Kirk in playdowns. They had a splendid team of good players and real sportsmen. Whether or not they would have beaten Kincardine or Blenheim (also eliminated by Georgetown) is only a matter of conjecture. We do not wish to be in any controversy that might in any way reflect upon the good sportsmanship and ability to take a loss of the Havelock boys, who after losing to Georgetown, cheered the winning team on the ice. Havelock won the first game of the series."

Mighty Trundling Marks

City Bowling League wound up its lengthy season with Jack Wade hitting a terrific pace to win the high average of 245. Finished the schedule with an 885 triple and a 353 single to show the younger sprouts how to lay those pins. He got the Clapper Trophy. Roy Suddards took the Davis Cup for a grand three of 1,002, as Bill Rutledge won the Riley Trophy for a potent single of 420. City Loop Champs are Madill & Post, with McGillis runners-up, Clapper's third, and Bassel's fourth. Others were strung out in the also-ran class. Hard-working Secretary Mel Akers advises that the annual league banquet will be this Thursday e'en at the Peterborough Golf Club.

Len Symonds and Jack McNamara of the baseballic Petes went to Kingston on Sunday for the C.O.B.L. meeting, but several expected entries hadn't representatives. Again it was stated that three teams from northern New York State wanted in, as well as Smiths Falls, Brockville, Kingston, Belleville, Batawa and the Petes. It is probable that the latter four will be grouped together in an interlocking schedule. However, that's just conjecture yet and they set next week-end as the deadline for entries, so that definite plans can be made for the senior ball season early in April. If taken into the loop, the local club will get busy and re-organize right away.

B'nai B'rith Trundlers Third In Tournament

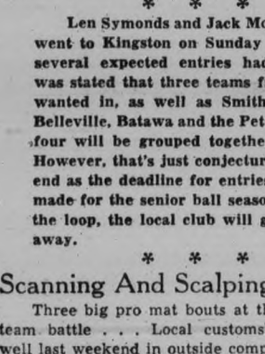
Peterborough's B'nai B'rith bowlers made a most successful showing in the annual Canadian B'nai B'rith five-pin tournament in Toronto over the weekend.

Peterborough placed third in the five-game pinnage with a total of 5,863, only two pins less than Toronto Eglinton Lodge who were second. Toronto's Upper Canada Lodge won easily by more than 150 pins.

Competing in the tourney were 32 teams representing lodges from Eastern Canada. Centres such as London, Montreal, Kingston, Hamilton, Oshawa, Toronto and Peterborough were represented.

Peterborough bowlers, Aaron Black and Isadore Black, placed second in the high double, won by Toronto Eglinton bowlers.

Bowling for Peterborough were the Black brothers, Zimmel Levine, Phil Marks, Joe Rogow, Herb Schacher and Ben Abramsky.



LU KIMM, above, who teams up with Zorra, the French Tarzan, against Lord Athol Layton and Hi Lee in the feature bout at the Brock tonight. This is a tag team match and it should be a sizzler from start to finish. Layton and Lee can be depended upon to make it a rugged battle. Bobo Brazil ties into Wee Willie Davis of Hollywood in the semi-final. This is another redhot match. The opener has Ray Clarke against Lous Pitoscia, Layton's trainer.

Indians Edge Greyhounds, Lead In Series

STRATFORD, April 1 (CP). — Stratford Indians may have tied that first game with Sault Ste. Marie Greyhounds, but they've made no mistake since about their best-of-seven Eastern Canada Allan Cup semi-finals.

The Ontario Hockey Association champions are flying high after Monday evening's 4-3 victory which gave them a 2-0 lead in the playoff.

Mickey Roth, Billy Flick and Denny Flanagan tallied singletons in the Indians' first period assault while Jackie White added the other. Doug Towers, Roy Heximer and Bill Johnson collected the Sault Ste. Marie markers.

Despite their win, the Indians were outplayed over most of the route. Bruce Dale was called upon to make 38 saves in the Stratford net while Boofie Casola turned aside 31 pucks from the Greyhound cage.

Greyhounds played it much rougher than in the two games at the Sault. They stepped into the Indians and collected nine of the 19 penalties handed out. More than once, play was stopped as the game threatened to develop into a wholesale brawl.

Dodgers Eager To Get Even With Giants

MIAMI, Fla., April 1—(AP)—After a long winter of explaining "how we blew a 13½-game lead," Brooklyn Dodgers are eager to get even with New York Giants.

Manager Chuck Dressen, slightly chastened but bearing no visible wounds of the 1951 polo grounds disaster, is anxious to vindicate himself.

"If you're picking on form, you'd have to say the Giants are the team to beat," Dressen says, "after all, we lost a 20-game winner in Don Newcombe."

"If Clem Labine pitches like he did last year, our pitching will be better than last year, despite Newcombe being in the army. Labine can start and relieve both. And we've got some great looking kids."

Despite the "great-looking kids" and Labine's promise, Dressen realizes the difficulties in making up Newcombe's 20 wins. That is why trade rumors persist in the Dodger camp.

Dressen is counting on Preacher Roe (22-3), Ralph Branca (13-12), Carl Erskine (16-12), Labine (5-1), and Chris Van Cuyk (1-2) as his starters. Van Cuyk, jumbo-sized lefty, may turn out to be the surpise of the staff.

Divide Relief Work

Billy Loes, back from service, and Clyde King (14-7) probably will divide the relief work with help from rookies John Rutherford and Ben Wade.

The rest of the club is the same as the 1951 gang that scored 100 more runs than anybody in the league, hit 11 points higher with a .275 average, led the league with 184 home runs—but lost the pennant to the Giants on Thomson's homer off Branca in the dramatic playoff finale.

Gill Hodges on first, the Jackie Robinson-pee wee Reese double play combination and Billy Cox at third give the Brooks the best infield in the league. In reserve they have Rocky Bridges, Bobby Morgan and handyman Bert Haas, just brought up from Montreal.

Same story in the outfield—best in the league—with Andy Pafko in left, Duke Snider in centre and Carl Furillo in right. George Shuba, a .310 thumper at Montreal last year, won a job with his fine spring work.

Despite the off season confusion about catcher Roy Campanella's refusal to undergo an operation on his elbow, the catcher looks as good as ever.

Find Beef Expensive

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., April 1. (CP)—The price of beef hit $1 a pound at the St. Louis Cardinal training camp today. Manager Eddie Stanky posted a list of the weights he expects his players to scale when the team breaks camp tomorrow and announced that overweight athletes would pay $1 a pound. The biggest potential loser is outfielder Harry Lowrey who will have to do some rapid sweating from his present 174 pounds to reach the Stanky standard of 161.

R. Payne's Rink Captures The Kiwanis Trophy In Annual Local Bonspiel

By HERB MARTIN.

For the second consecutive year the visiting Kiwanians dominated the play in the annual Kiwanis bonspiel held at the Charlotte St. rink Monday. Not only did they take home the majority of the prizes—they captured two of the three trophies The honor of winning the Kiwanis Trophy went to R. Payne's local rink. A. Parkhill, Oshawa, took the Calvert Trophy, and George Fitzpatrick, Orillia, the Rueben N. Wilson Trophy. The remaining prizes were fairly well distributed.

The bonspiel was well attended, rinks coming from Hamilton, Oshawa, Orillia, Kingston, Scarboro, Dunbarton, Lindsay, Chatham and Brockville.

Brief Ceremony

The opening ceremonies were very brief, the men being anxious to get going. Chairman Fred Stenson had a busy day. Besides curling (and winning) his three games he was here, there and everywhere, attending to all details.

The ladies did a wonderful job attending to the inner man. The hot dinner was well served and greatly appreciated. The games were all over around 11 o'clock and the prizes distributed.

52 Jumpers Set To Start In Great Steeplechase

By BEN PHLEGAR

LONDON, April 1 —(AP)—The Grand National, the world's most famous and unpredictable steeplechase, will be run Saturday at Aintree.

If you're looking for a winner you'd better get the old hatpin sharpened up.

For years, science and the bookies have proved that the hatpin method is by far the most reliable for finding the winner of this free-for-all where the favorite almost never wins and where most of the field never sees the finish line.

Fifty-two horses, including two previous winners, are eligible to start in the 4½-mile chase over 30 of the toughest fences on any race course. Veteran observers agree that the odds against any particular horse even finishing are at least 10 to 1.

The shortest price at the moment, as far as possible winners are concerned, is a fraction more than that. J. H. Griffin's Irish-bred Royal Tan heads the list at 100 to 9.

Royal Tan, an eight-year-old gelding, finished second to Nickel Coin last year. They were the only two horses of a starting field of 36 to finish the course without falling.

Derrinstown finished third despite the fact it fell at the 22nd fence. Jockey Albert Power scrambled to his feet, remounted and brought his horse home at odds of 66 to 1.

Derrinstown is in this year's race, too, but so far the betting public must consider that last year's events were only luck. You can still get odds of 100 to 1 against Derrinstown winning.

Sweeps Based On Race

This tremendous uncertainty and long odds against success make the National an ideal fixture for the Irish hospital sweepstakes. The sweeps base their main drawing each year on the results of this race

On form alone the horses to watch this year are Royal Tan, which will carry 160 pounds compared with 143 last year; Freebooter, the 1950 winner which is loaded down with top weight of 175 pounds, Joy and Border Luck, both of them winners in two of their last three races.

In addition to Freebooter, there is one other previous winner in the field. It's Russian Hero, a long shot victor in 1949 which hasn't won a race since the Grand National Triumph.

In addition to its other claims to fame, the National is also the world's richest steeplechase. First place this year will be worth $26,753.

Twenty-eight special trains will run to Liverpool from all parts of the British Isles. The crowd, on which an official figure is never announced, is expected to run somewhere near the usual 300,000.

If 50 or more of the eligibles start the field will be the third largest in the 106-year history of the race. The record field is 66 in 1929 when Greglach won at 100 to 1. In 1947 there were 57 starters and again a 100-to-1 shot, Caughoo, won. Forty-nine started and seven finished when Freebooter won at 10 to 1 in 1950.

Post time for the race is 10.15 a.m. EST.

Peewee Hawks Retain Kinsmen Trophy

Black Hawks defeated Maple Leafs 5-1 last night at Civic Arena to win the peewee city hockey championship and the Kinsmen Trophy for the third straight year.

An early goal by Henary was called back with a boy in the crease. Patterson put Hawks up one early in the second on a long shot that went in off the goalie's pads. Nicholls went off when Hawks had too many on the ice and Jay tallied a fine solo to even it up. Hawks clicked better in the third, Brown scoring first from Haig. The latter served an interference penalty and later Kinlin went in from centre with Burns acting as decoy to bang home a neat top corner shot. Haig and Kimball wound up the scoring a bit later. Curtis drew Leafs' lone penalty for tripping.

Johnson stood out in Leafs' goal in every period as Hawks pressed. Shaw, McFadden and Jay also shone for the losers. Jim Smillie, in his last peewee season, was brilliant in the winners' net, showing a lot of style. Hendry, Burns and Patterson also performed well for the champions. Teams:

Leafs: Johnson, Murphy, McFadden, Shaw, Jay, Barrie, Conners, Douglas, Parker, Billingsley, Curtis, Smith, Davis.

Hawks: Smillie, Hendry, Patterson, Casey, Burns, Kinlin, Brown, Haig, Kimball, Wood, Olmstead, Copping, Nicholls, Moffat, Morton.

Referees: B. Batley and C. Morrissey.

Senators May Sign Newsom As Pitcher

ORLANDO, Fla., April 1 (AP)—Buck Newsom, who admits to being 42, was close today to being signed to the Washington Senators pitching staff.

President Clark Griffith said he's for it but the decision is up to manager Bucky Harris. Harris has praised the veteran's preseason performance and, showing unusual interest Monday, cautioned him: "Take it easy—you're working too hard."

Newsom, an ex-Senator, has been in the Southern Association for the past three years.

Madill And Post Winners In City League

In convincing fashion, Jack Wade of McGillis in the men's City Bowling League hit a terrific pace in recent weeks to finish the season with a triple of 885, a single of 353 and high average of 245 to lead the league this year. The popular veteran bowler wins the Clapper Trophy for his showing.

Roy Suddards of McGillis took the Harold Davis Trophy for his great triple of 1,002 the past season. Bill Rutledge, with a mighty single of 420, won the Ed Riley Trophy.

City League champions are Madill and Post to take the Duffus Trophy with a total of 120 points. McGillis were next with 110, followed by Clapper's 96, Bassel's 88, Moore's 82, Sunocos 80, DeLaval 74, Bond's 72, Anthony's 68 and Kawartha 20. Leafs Making Final Effort To Snatch Win From Wings

By JACK SULLIVAN

TORONTO, April 1. (CP)—This being April Fool's Day, the fun-loving folk around here would laugh themselves silly if their Maple Leafs indulged in some April foolishness and knocked the bejabers out of Detroit Red Wings tonight. The general idea of the day, so some historians say, is to snicker at somebody else's discomfiture and the 14,000 or so Leaf-doting fans would think it a big gag if their heroes took at least one game from Detroit in the best-of-seven Stanley Cup semi-final series. The prospects for celebrating aren't too bright.

The rampaging Red Wings, National Hockey League champions by a margin from here to there over the second-place Montreal Canadiens and third-place Leafs, are three games up on the blue and white and a victory tonight would sew it up. A Wing victory also would mean the earliest closing-out date in years for professional hockey at Maple Leaf Gardens.

The Leafs haven't a gag to pull. There'll be a reshuffling in the lineup in the last big effort to overcome the powerful Wings who will stand pat on their Saturday night team which swamped the Leafs 6-2 at Toronto following 3-0 and 1-0 shutouts at Detroit last week.

Two Or Three Changes

Smythe said Monday he planned "two or three" changes and that he'll announce them at game time (8.30 p.m. E.S.T.). Reporters on the hockey beat are guessing it will be goalkeeper Al Rollins for Turk Broda who was called in for the second and third games and one change each on defence and on the forward line.

Hugh Bolton probably will replace Jim Morrison on defence and observers believe left-winger Danny Lewicki will get some activity for the first time of the series. One guess is that George Armstrong will be benched in favor of 21-year-old Lewicki.

Detroit will be minus Len (Red) Kelly, ace defenceman who suffered a sprained wrist in the second game. "We're not desperate, so we'll rest him to get the soreness out of the wrist," said manager Jack Adams.

The Leafs have an added incentive to take this one. They've never lost a playoff series in four straight.

But this being April Fool's Day . . .

Probable line-ups:

Detroit—Goal, Sawchuk; defence, Reise, Pronovost, Goldham, Wolt, Zeidel; forwards, Abel, Howe, Lindsay, Prystai, Leswick, Pavelich, Skov, Delvecchio, Wilson, Stasiuk.

Toronto—Goal, Rollins; defence, Thomson, Mortson, Flaman, Juzda, Bolton; forwards, Kennedy, Klukay, Smith, Bentley, Timgren, Lewicki, Sloan, Meeker, Watson, Gardner.

Boston Bruins Stanley Cup Hopes Depend On Keeping Up Pace

By BUD WEEKS

BOSTON, April 1 (AP)—Can the Boston Bruins keep up the speedy, hard-checking play that brought them their first playoff victory over Montreal's Canadiens after losing the first two contests?

That's the big question as those two National Hockey League rivals meet in the fourth game of their best-of-seven Stanley Cup semi-final series tonight in the Boston Garden.

Coach Lynn Patrick of Boston says the Bruins finaly won (4-1) after dropping two games (5-1 and 4-0) because his crew did what he told them to do—namely, throw some bodychecks.

Also, he is high in praise of the whole team for its increased speed and hustle. A combination of youth and age turned the trick here Sunday night for Boston.

Great Performances

Patrick got a god game out of young defenceman Bob Armstrong and winger Leo Lebine—a couple of farmhands from the Hershey club of the American Hockey League. Young Fleming Mackell came off the sick list to add zip to the Bruin offensive.

On the veteran side, Boston had great performances from bespectacled Hal Laycoe — a one-time Canadien — Bill Quackenbush, Murray Henderson, Sugar Jim Henry, Woody Dumart and Captain Milt Schmidt.

"Getting that first goal was a big help, too," said Patrick. 'That's something we couldn't do in the first two games at Montreal."

Both clubs should be at full strength for tonight's clash, although the final word on Bruin Ed Kryzanowski won't be known until late in the day. He accidentally got whacked by Dolly St. Laurent's stick in the first period Sunday night and one eye closed up tight.

Armstrong, a rugged six-foot 180-pound defenceman, suffered a shoulder bruise in the final minute of play Sunday, but should be in shape.

Likely To Play

For Canadiens, rookie forwards Boom Boom Geoffrion and Dickie Moore both suffered banged knees Sunday but are expected to recuperate fully by game time.

It is possible that Irvin may try another alignment of his forward lines, since they have not looked too good since centre Kenny Mosdell was lost with leg fractures in the second game.

Among the sporting gentry, the odds are 10 to 8 in favor of Boston on tonight's tilt but the Canadiens are favored 20 to 7 to take the series.

The probable line-up:

Montreal—Goal, McNeill; defence, MacPherson, Bouchard, St. Laurent, Harvey; forwards, Lach, Richard, Olmstead, Reay, Geoffrion, Meger, Moore, Curry, Gamble, Johnson, Edmundson.

Boston—Goal, Henry; defence, Quackenbush, Henderson, Armstrong, Laycoe; forwards, Schmidt Labine, Chevrefils, Dumart, Mackell, Sandford, Creighton, Peirson, McIntyre, Sullivan, Kryzanowski.

Vic Seixas Defeats Savitt In Tourney

MIAMI, Fla., April 1 (AP) — Top-seeded Vic Seixas of Philadelphia performed according to expectations when he defeated second-seeded Dick Savitt of Orange, N.J., for the men's singles title in the Miami invitational tennis tournament Monday. The score was 5-7, 6-3, 6-2.

Gardnar Mulloy of Miami and Billy Talbert of New York won the doubles title, beating Art Larsen of San Leandro, Calif., and Sidney Schwartz of Miami, 6-1, 6-4.

Magda Rurac of Los Angeles and Tony Vincent of Miami won the mixed doubles championship over Mr. and Mrs. Bob Curtis of Denver, 6-1, 6-4.

Joins Galt Team

GALT, April 1 (CP).—Pete Karpuk of Ottawa football and baseball fame has signed to play with Galt Terriers of the Intercounty Senior Baseball League this season. Rated as a good pitcher, infielder and outfielder, Karpuk opened the 1951 season with Cornwall of the now-defunct Class C Border League. He finished the year with Ottawa Giants of the International League.

Bilts Edge Teepees To Win Ontario Junior A Crown

GUELPH, April 1 (CP). — Guelph Biltmores will move north Wednesday for the first game of their Eastern Canada Memorial Cup semi-finals against Porcupine Combines. The series will decide the all-Ontario Junior A title.

Bilts edged St. Catharines Teepees 5-4 here Monday night to win the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A title four games to one and earn the right to move into Memorial Cup play. Guelph dropped the first game of the best-of-seven series to the Teeps and then won the next four straight.

The winners took a 1-0 first period edge, but were deadlocked 3-3 with the Teepees at the finish of the middle session. Outscoring St. Catharines 2-1 in the final, they pulled off the series-winning victory.

Led For Time

At one stage in the second period, St. Catharines led 3-1, but a flurry of penalties toward the close of the session proved the turning point for the Biltmores. The Teeps picked up three sentences in one minute and 18 seconds. While they were two men short, Guelph punched two quick goals.

The Teepees removed goalie Marv Edwards in the final minute in an attempt to get the tying marker, but it failed. Although they kept the puck in the Guelph end, they failed to score.

Ken Laufman potted two for the winners while Andy Howell Ron Stewart and Dean Prentice notched the others. Gerry Foley came through twice for St. Catharines. Brian Cullen and Gord Myles clicked for singletons.

Marv Edwards fended off 32 pucks in the St. Catharines net while Mary Brewer had to handle only 16 in the Guelph goal.

FROM BEHIND IRON CURTAIN, these Bulgarian Moslems, expelled from their homes by the Reds, find refuge in Turkey. First they're sprayed with DDT to eliminate any Iron Curtain bugs.

Turks Thwart Reds, Give Aid To Bulgarian Refugees

EDRINE, Turkey (NEA).—The old woman steps haltingly down to the platform. On her shoulder is a burlap sack, filled with her few belongings; two children hold tightly to her skirt.

Behind them, another woman is being removed on a stretcher. Their anxiety and weariness is mirrored by the hundreds of others who peer from the open doors of the long freight train while awaiting their turn to alight.

These bewildered people have come from behind the Iron Curtain. Destitute Moslems, they have been driven from their Bulgarian homes by the Communist government and thrust across the border into Turkey at the rate of 600 a day. The tide shows no signs of a let-up.

The majority are elderly men and women, often ill or infirm, and small children. The able-bodied relatives were kept behind to serve the Communists in the military or labor services.

Only What They Can Carry

Most face the prospect of making a complete new start. The Communists have allowed them to take out of Bulgaria only what they could carry in their hands or on their backs.

The Moslems are Bulgarian by birth and upbringing but have been persecuted and expelled from their homeland because of their Turkish ancestry.

First they were called on to pay discriminatory taxes and their crops were seized. Then they were denied rations and the right to worship in their Moslem faith. Finally they were shorn of their major possessions and driven across the border.

The Turks view the mass expulsions as an attempt by the Communists to swamp the struggling Turkish economy with thousands of new immigrants. But Turkey has accepted the challenge and met it head-on.

A $25,000,000 resettlement program has been organized. Farming families are given 30 acres of land and enough money to tide them over until harvest. The others are resettled in villages. To accommodate them, whole new villages are under construction, with 20,000 homes expected to be ready by Spring and 12,000 more in the planning stage.

Counterpart Funds

Nearly half of the necessary money has been contributed by the Marshall Plan in the form of counterpart funds—Turkish currency allocations set aside by the government to match dollar grants. Special technical advice has come from the International Refugee Organization.

The project is paying off. The Turks say the immigrants have displayed a willingness to work for their new homeland that is making the Communist scheme backfire.

Watching an elderly woman sit atop a pile of her meagre possessions while awaiting her turn to be vaccinated, one Turkish official summed up the national attitude this way:

"What is Bulgaria's loss is Turkey's gain."

1,400 Immigrants Fail To Pay Loans

OTTAWA, April 1 (CP). — The Canadian government has loaned $3,020,310 to immigrants to help them pay their passage to Canada, Finance Minister Abbott Monday told the Commons. Repayments total approximately $216,208.

Immigration Minister Harris said loans were made to approximately 15,000 immigrants, averaging $200 each. The immigrants undertook to repay the loans within a maximum of 24 months after arrival in Canada.

About 1,400 immigrants now are in default and possibly 200 of them cannot be traced.

He said that when an immigrant obtains employment in Canada an arrangement is made whereby the employer agrees to deduct during a period of months the amount owed to the government.

EXPEDITER—Senate G.O.P. leader Styles Bridges of New Hampshire tells House subcommittee that his sole interest in liquor dealer Hyman H. Klein's $7,000,000 tax case was a desire "to encourage quick and proper action." He claimed he did not know Klein personally.

Trees Destroyed

KING, April 1 (CP)—Meadow mice and rabbits have destroyed thousands of yearling trees on farms in this area, a few miles north of Toronto. At the experimental station of the Department of Lands and Forests, more than 1,000 of 8,000 pine trees planted last year have been lost, biologist Dr. Carl Heimburger said.

Ice On Way Out

GRAND VALLEY, April 1 (CP) —Spring arrived in this village 60 miles northwest of Toronto at 12:32 p.m .Monday when a steel barrel embedded in the ice of the Grand river began to move, a sign the ice is on its way out.

Movie Column

Danny Kaye Attempts Straight Role

HOLLYWOOD, April 1 (AP)—Danny Kaye, unlike the usual run of top-flight comedians, remains aloof from television.

His colleagues make upwards to three movies a year; Kaye averages less than one. Other funnymen would break their necks to land a radio show, Kaye displays no interest.

Now the Brooklyn-born redhead is going far out on a lamb to play a relatively straight role in "Hans Christian Andersen." While he has comic moments in the film and sings 10 numbers, the film will display nothing of tricks usually associated with Kaye.

Taking A Chance

"Mr. (Sam) Goldwyn's taking the chance," he says. "It's his 4,600,000 bucks, not mine."

Kaye doesn't think playing straight roles will become a habit. "I thought it would be interesting to play a warm, simple character for a change," he observed. "But for my next picture, I want to go back to a real comedy."

The Kaye role as Hans Christian Andersen is unique in movie history in that it has already been criticized—before the picture has even been finished. The Danish foreign office indicated it was planning a strong protest over the casting of Kaye, previously known as a clown, in the role of the Danish writer.

Kaye has remained calm throughout the controversy.

"I don't know what they're complaining about—since they haven't even seen the picture," he commented. "We're not attempting to show the life of Andersen. We're just presenting an incident which could have happened during his life."

Four Boys Blamed When Sap Disappears

ROSENEATH, April 1 (ENS).—Provincial police from Cobourg took only a few hours Monday to clear up the mystery of how five gallons of maple syrup disappeared from the sugar bush of Joseph Robins, Alnwick township.

The police went to Alderville school and put the finger on four boys. Shortly afterwards the five gallons of syrup—valued at $20—was produced from a cream can in the barn of a farm where one of the boys lives.

Along with the syrup, several sap buckets were returned to Mr. Robins, who lives two miles south of Roseneath.

The syrup was believed stolen some time during the night; and the loss was discovered early Monday when Mr. Robins made the half-mile trip from his farm home to the sugar bush.

Change Not Likely

OTTAWA, April 1 (CP)—Stanley Woodward, United States ambassador to Canada, said Monday he is confident President Truman's program of foreign relations will be maintained by whoever succeeds him in the November elections. He said in a statement: "Since the war, this policy has been generally accepted by the people of the United States."

Cut Food Price

MOSCOW, April 1 (AP)—For the fifth time in five years, the Soviet government ordered reductions today in the retail prices of foodstuffs. Announcements of price cuts have more propaganda value than realistic effect. Most materials are priced well above the reach of the average Soviet resident.

Authorize Bill

WASHINGTON, April 1 (AP) — The Senate Monday passed and sent to the House of Representatives a bill authorizing Canadian vessels to go from one United States port to another with ore this year.

NEW YORK, April 1 (AP) — Margaret Truman has been signed for another year of radio and television performances by NBC at $2,500 apiece.

Canada May Soon Start Collecting Atomic Dividends

OTTAWA, April 1 (CP)—Canada, pumping millions annually into atomic energy developments, soon may start collecting dividends on investments.

Production Minister Howe, predicting that large-scale industrial application of atomic energy is closer than many expected, told the Commons Monday that one field alone may repay Canada for all the millions spent on atomic developments.

"There are many who feel that the dividends from the isotope field alone may well repay all the money spent for atomic energy," said Mr. Howe.

The radioactive isotype, a by-product of the atomic pile at Chalk River, is finding increasing use in industry, in medical science and in research and development.

During the past year the Chalk River plant has made some 800 shipments of more than 70 different radioactive isotypes to industries, to universities, to research institutions and to hospitals.

Business Will Expand

"It is expected that this business will expand rapidly in the immediate future" said Mr. Howe. He added:

"Within the past year our experience in research, development and operation has made us feel that the large-scale industrial application of atomic energy is closer at hand than we had expected."

He referred to reports that the Atomic Energy Commission of the United States has announced the awarding of five commercial contracts for the development of prototype power plants for use in submarines and aircraft.

"While no active steps have as yet been taken in Canada to design and build complete power plants, studies of the component parts that will be necessary to the solution of the over-all project are being made," he said.

"It is hoped that within the next 10 years we may see in this country as well as in the United States and in the United Kingdom, the first atomic energy power plants in commercial use."

Transfer Assets

Mr. Howe spoke during study of supplementary estimates of expenditure for the fiscal year ended Monday. One item transferred ownership of the assets of the Chalk River establishment from the Federal government to a new Crown company to be known as Atomic Energy of Canada Limited.

The company begins operations today under Dr. C. J. Mackenzie, former president of the National Research Council. N.R.C. has been directing Chalk River along with its other research activities.

Dr. Edgar William Richard Steacie, former vice-president of N.R.C., replaces Dr. Mackenzie as president.

Besides the discussion on atomic energy, the day brought these other developments in the Commons:

1. Mr. Howe tabled a report showing that public and private investment in Canada this year is expected to reach a peak $5,003,000,000, an increase of $422,000,000 over 1951.

2. Mr. Howe tabled a second report which predicted that an improvement in supplies of building materials this year will permit completion of "practically all" planned construction.

Defence Production

3. Mr. Howe also tabled the annual report of his defence production department. It showed that in the last nine months of 1951, the department distributed about $1,500,000,000 worth of defence orders.

4. Members finally voted $246,000,000 in supplementary estimates of expenditures for the 1951-52 fiscal year. Progressive Conservative members again criticized what they described as attempts of the government to have the estimates passed with "machine-gun" rapidity.

5. Mr. Howe disclosed that the federal government plans to rearrange the financial structure of Polymer Corporation, the synthetic rubber-producing company at Sarnia. The assets now held by the government, will be invested in a Crown corporation.

Suggest Committee

During the atomic debate, Howard Green (PC-Vancouver-Quadra) urged that a committee, similar to one which functioned in 1949, be established to study advances in atomic energy.

Mr. Howe said if members felt they wanted a committee he would not oppose it. But he would not be "very enthusiastic" for or against a committee.

One of the reasons was the situation pertaining to the exchange of information with the United States. The Americans were "jealous" about information on atomic energy.

"Our chance of obtaining some depends largely on our ability to keep the secrets that we have," said Mr. Howe.

"All our people are working under secrecy wraps, and it is difficult to bring them before a parliamentary committee and expect them not to divulge information which may prejudice our position abroad."

"Outrageous Attempt"

J. M. Macdonnell (P.C.-Toronto Greenwood) accused the cabinet of an "outrageous attempt" to prevent members from "doing their plain duty" in scrutinizing the estimates.

His complaint was a revival of a battle which developed Friday when Geoorge Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, clashed with government leaders over the late hour at which the estimates were introduced for consideration.

In the uproar, Mr. Howe suggested Mr. Macdonnell was "completely out of order"—the chamber was dealing with civilian war pensions—and that the whole situation was "absolutely intolerable." It was the "greatest breach of rules" he had seen in his 17 years in the Commons.

Rush For Seats For Coronation

LONDON (CP)—Application for seating accommodation to view the coronation procession of Queen Elizabeth II have been pouring into London booking offices although the date and route have not yet been determined.

Latest speculation is that it will take place either in the spring or early summer of 1953.

Agencies report inquiries have been particularly heavy from North America with one agency alone asked to find more than 7,000 seats.

Not until the route has been officially designated will it be possible to estimate what accommodation will be available for visitors. Those lucky enough to get ringside reservations will pay generously for the privilege. Most seats will cost between £10 and £20.

In lining up prospective customers some of the agencies are offering free refreshments as an inducement to reserve seats. For those taking the higher-priced spots a champagne lunch will be provided.

Manitoba Plans To Renew Gov't Agreement

By The Canadian Press

Anybody can be a "doctor" in Alberta.

Provincial Secretary C. E. Gerhart told the Alberta legislature last night that anyone in the province can use the title "doctor" as long as there is no pretence at being a medical doctor or surgeon.

The matter came up while the House was in committee giving clause-by-clause approval to a Bill establishing a professional Act for chiropodists. It received second reading, approval in principle.

Explaining the measure, Mr. Gerhart said it was the "fairest and nicest" of all the provincial professional acts. Under the act, chiropodists have no right to make membership in the Alberta Chiropody Association compulsory.

Premier Joseph Smallwood told the Newfoundland House that his government's future financial policy will be to build up the province's economy to a point where taxation can finance capital expenditure. The policy on public services will be to "pay as we go" on capital account, he said. He added that the government does not plan to borrow money to finance public services.

To Renew Agreement

A bill authorizing Manitoba to renew the 1947 tax-rental agreement with Ottawa was passed by the provincial legislature. Manitoba would receive about $21,907,000 in grants during the first of the five-year agreement if payments were made annually. During the old agreement, the province received approximately $83,789,000.

A "small" oil field was reported to the Saskatchewan House by Resources Minister J. H. Brockelbank. It is at Fosterton, northwest of Swift Current.

A deficit of $1,879,000 for Prince Edward Island was predicted by Provincial Treasurer Walter E. Dary. It was caused by increased highway expenditures and other capital spending. In his budget speech, he also forecast a surplus on ordinary account of some $376,000 for the next fiscal year, ending March 31, 1953. He said there would be no increase in present taxes or imposition of new taxes.

Considering Action

OTTAWA, April 1 (CP)—Works Minister Fournier reiterated in the Commons' Monday the federal government is considering remedial works on the Lake Ontario shore line when damage endangers navigation or federal structures. He replied to H. P. Cavers (L-Lincoln) about measures to relieve erosion on the Canadian shore.

A TREAT ON ST. JOSEPH'S DAY—A street-corner "fritelle" vendor does a land-office business in Rome, Italy, as children and grown-ups throng to buy the delicacy on St. Joseph's Day. The Feast Day of the saint is one of the most important of the Liturgical year to Italians, and is celebrated with reverence and enthusiasm.

Seize Canadian-Built Ships Plan Dash To Shanghai

By F. K. WU.

HONG KONG, April 1 (CP)—The Chinese Communists may now have taken over the last of seven ships on which Canadian banks hold a multi-million-dollar mortgage.

Last month the independent newspaper Wah Kiu Yat Fo said four of the ships had been commandeered by the Reds at Canton. Now a Lingnan University student from Canton reports that Communist officials claim ownership of all seven.

The student says he was one of a party of university students who recently inspected one of the ships, the Hu Men. He said the Reds claim that "ownership" of the seven vessels is a sign of the glory of their administration.

Another message from Canton says the ships, built at Lauzon, Que., for the Ming Sung Industrial Co. Ltd., are being prepared for a dash 950 miles north along the China coast to Shanghai and the Yangtse River.

Fear of a naval blockade of the coast by U.N. ships is said to be the spur to this plan. The dash presumably would not be made until after the Canadian destroyer Athabaskan leaves Hong Kong for Korean waters after a brief overhaul.

Useless At Canton

The seven ships are useless at Canton and lying idle in berths near Lingnan University. They were intended for the Yangtse River service between Shanghai and Chungking, plying through some of China's richest provinces.

The forecast voyage to Shanghai would be difficult despite the ships' sped of 14 to 16 knots. The vessels would have to pass through waters patrolled by British, Canadian and U.S. warships. If intercepted they might seek refuge in such Red-held ports as Swatow, Amoy, Foochow and Wenchow.

Radar-controlled anti-aircraft guns are believed to have been mounted near the ships' Canton berths, it is reported by a crew member now back in Hong Kong after being paid off.

The Ming Sung Industrial Co. at present operates a fleet of dilapidated steamers on the Yangtse between Shanghai and Chengtu, in Szechuan Province of West China. Informed sources here said they believe the Canadian-built ships are badly needed on the Yangtse where troop movements have been in progress for several weeks.

Chinese Nationalist observers in Hong Kong said they believe Canada's only chance to regain possession of the Ming Sung ships is to seek aid of the British and U.S. navies and seize them during the Canton-Shanghai voyage.

Last month it was reported here that four of the ships were being dismantled by the Reds. At that time the Canadian Government said it had no such information.

Under the new scale printers will earn $106 for a 36-hour work week on the day shift; $111.50 for 30 hours on the overnight shift.

PETERBOROUGH EXAMINER

VOL. CIV. No. 78 — TUESDAY, APRIL 1, 1952

MAIN STREET TOPICS

CUSTOMS RECEIPTS

Customs receipts during March at the Peterborough customs house totalled $674,206.30 as compared with $613,765.56 in 1951.

TEMPORARY BARRIERS

C.N.R. completed Monday afternoon the laying of new rails at Charlotte St. Traffic was switched around the work while it was in progress.

RADIO LICENCE DAY

April 1st is due day for radio licences. Six local representatives of the Federal Department of Transport set out this morning on a round up of Peterborough homes to collect the fee.

CITY HALL BLOOM

A mauve crocus in bloom on the Murray St. side of the City Hall, near the entrance, was pointed out to The Examiner today by Assessment Commissioner J. E. Davis.

25 ATTEND FLORIDA CHURCH

The Peterborough people who gathered after church in St. Petersburg, Florida, a week ago Sunday numbered 25. Two families from this group are now at home and another on the way but the others are staying a little longer to miss the first round of April weather here.

SALARY BRIEF

A salary brief from employees of the city hall was received by the council in committee of the board of works Monday night. After subsequent discussion by the board, it was proposed that a further meeting with the employees' representatives may be arranged at the call of Mayor Waddell.

OF THE SMELT RUN

A few city smelt fishermen tried one or two Durham County streams at Lake Ontaro for smelt on Saturday; they had some success, they said, but the big run is not here, yet. At Grafton, garageman Roy Goodie reports no smelt at all running yet in Shelter Valley Creek. He thinks with one or two days of Monday's type of weather, and perhaps some warm rain, they might start about Wednesday, but this coming weekend would be a safer bet.

WATCH THOSE BONFIRES

Monday's sunny weather brought on a multitude of bonfires by people who wanted to clean up their backyard rubbish. But Fire Chief George Smith has a cautionary word to utter to such tidy folk: You are not permitted to light any bonfires without first getting the permission of the fire department. Phone 5713 to do so. Furthermore: permission will not be given on Mondays because of the effect smoke will have on housewives' washing hung out to dry.

REQUEST REJECTED

Request of Junior Chamber of Commerce for permission to set up their tourist information booth this season at Charlotte and Park Streets was reluctantly turned down by the board of works Monday night. The location is a little gore park, and it was felt by the board that the flow of heavy traffic at that intersection would be checked by tourist enquirers, and that the booth might create a traffic hazard.

Industrial Use Of Atom Means End Of Capitalism

Just as the harnessing of steam touched off a social revolution, ending the feudal system and ushering in capitalism, the development of atomic energy makes capitalism obsolete and socialism inevitable. This thesis of the effect of the splitting of the atom on civilization was developed by Fred Young, C.C.F. provincial organizer who addressed the annual meeting of the local C.C.F. Monday night.

"Today, we are standing on the threshold of the greatest thing that ever happened to civilization," declared Mr. Young. "The atom is going to transfer civilization to the same or a greater extent than the development of steam."

Played Its Part

Capitalism, he said, has played an essential role in human organization, but the coming of the atomic era makes capitalism obsolete and marks the beginning of "the gradual transition of the key levers of power from private to public enterprise."

The United States recognized how disastrous it would be for one private company to have control over atomic energy when it really gets rolling, said Mr. Young and placed the development of atomic energy under public control.

"Regardless of how long we take to shift our emphasis from the development of atom bombs to atomic energy for industrial uses, it can only be handled by the people, using the benefits for the raising of the standard of living and not to pay dividends."

Mr. Young warned that if atomic energy is left to private enterprise to produce dividends for shareholders when it is applied to industrial uses, "it will smash civilization."

Common Sense

Terming Socialism a program of "common sense," Mr. Young said that more than 90 per cent of the people in any area are Socialists and are not aware of it. They want what we are trying to achieve, he explained, but they think they can obtain these things "via the Tory or Liberal road." They have not learned how to achieve these things. "When they examine Socialism with an open mind, it becomes so sensible that many people who have opposed the C.C.F. for years, suddenly discover that our aims are the goals they would like to see achieved.

"Socialists," said Mr. Young, "have the future in their keeping They are the people who are concerned with the future."

Rapping government authorities for what he called "blind leadership," Mr. Young said that a half million unemployed are regarded as "reserve pool of labor" to keep labor quiet. They fail to realize, he said, "that unemployment cuts purchasing power and in the end can trigger chaos and corruption."

Mr. Young urged that the "purposeful planning" of wartime be used in peacetime, which he said is merely determining needs, then producing them.

The goal of Socialists, said Mr. Young, is not fortunes for a few, but security for all. He said this did not mean that people could expect something for nothing, "you never get that in this world," but rather, the using of the techniques of representative government to assure that the "wealth that we all help create will be used for the benefit of all."

Brotherhood is the ideal of the majority of Socialisists and the fundamental basis of the Socialist movement, said Mr. Young.

2 Substations, New Switches Cost $276,322

Expenditure for the two new 3,000 k.v.a. substations on High St., and the addition of switching facilities at the Aylmer St. substation, have been approved by Ontario Hydro, as reported at the meeting of the Utilities Commission Monday.

Cost of the two substations which are located on High St. will amount to $136,745. One of them is at the top of the hill, up from Prince of Wales School. The other is on the west side of High St., south of the C.P.R.

The new installations of switching equipment at the Aylmer St. substation will amount to $139,577, for a total of $276,322.

Borrow $300,000

This expenditure will be financed by the borrowing of $300,000 by the issuing of debentures for that amount. They are the serial type, carrying 4½ per cent interest.

The public is reminded, as customers of the Utilities Commission, that these capital spendings are a consequence of the growth of the city. Power services have had to keep pace with that expansion.

The substation on the High St. hill takes in Civic Hostpital, Dominion Woollens and Worsteds and generally the domestic connections in the west end.

The other High St. unit delivers power to Timber Structures of Canada, Peterborough Lumber Co., Peterborough Canoe Co., Outboard Marine and Manufacturing Co., and so on.

These new substations have been erected to relieve the main station on Aylmer St. There is another one on Clifton St. in Ashburnham, one on Romaine St., the first to be built, and there is also a transformer at Auburn.

Temporary equipment is in use at the lower High St. station until delivery is received from the Canadian General Electric Company of the permanent apparatus.

City Firemen, Council At Stalemate

Fail To Agree On Salary, 3 Proposals Made

City council and Peterborough Fire Fighters' Association have failed to agree on salary terms in their working agreement for this year.

City Clerk Outram is directed by the board of works, as recommended Monday night, to inform the Association that the council cannot accept its final proposals of March 19 for salary adjustment:

In that letter by George J. Gimblett, secretary-treasurer of the Association, its position was briefly stated as follows: If the three alternate proposals was acceptable to the council "Local 519 is prepared to go to arbitration on the 1952 brief."

Final Offer

"Any one of the following three proposals would be our final offer," was the resolution adopted by the Association.

Incorporation of all or part of the cost of living bonus in the basic salary of the Fire Fighters was the impeding point on which negotiations have been stymied.

The men presented the following choice of salary terms for the council's consideration: (a) Incorporation of $532 across the board into basic salary, plus a continuing cost of living bonus of 40 cents a point from a base of 191.5; (b) Incorporation of $532 across the board into basic salary and eliminate any cost of living bonus; (c) Incorporation of $350 across the board into basic salary and $200 cost-of-living bonus, plus a continuing C-O-L- bonus of 40c a point from a base of 191.5.

Old Contract Continues

It is understood that until the working agreement for this year is settled, the salary terms of the 1952 agreement continue in effect.

City council memorandum of salary terms to the Association as proposed on March 13 was as follows:

"That 18 per cent be applied to the basic salaries of all firemen across the board.

"That in addition such payment should be included in the regular salary cheques during 1952, and assuming that the cost-of-living index, as determined by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics at Ottawa, was 191.5 as of January 1, 1952. In the event that the cost-of-living goes above 191.5 each member of the Fire Department is entitled to receive an additional amount payable at the rate of 55c per week for each two point rise above the 191.5 index. And in the event that the cost-of-living index decreases, there is to be a similar reduction of 55c per week for each two point fall until the figure index of 1915 is reached.

"Also, in the event that the cost-of-living index decreases, the accumulated cost-of-living bonus should be reduced one per cent for each one point fall below the index figure of 189.8 (which was the index as of September 1, 1951) computed on the basic salaries as presently paid and that such adjustments in the cost-of-living bonus shall be made monthly, these payments to take effect in the month following the publication of the most recent cost-of-living index figure."

Booth In Sportsman's Show At Cleveland Besieged

How far is it from Cleveland to the Kawarthas? How big are your lakes? What type of fishing is there in the Kawarthas? These are just three of the questions being asked by thousands of people at the Kawartha booth at the Cleveland Sportsman's Show. Assistant Manager of the Peterborough Chamber of Commerce Don Kingdon returned to the city on Monday night with a glowing account of the success of this Kawartha publicity project at the Cleveland Show, which began last Friday and will continue until Sunday.

The Kawartha booth is situated just to the left of the main door of the Hotel Auditorium where this 10-day show is being held. As a result everyone attending the show sees the booth as they enter.

60 Booths

The biggest day of the show so far was Sunday when Mr. Kingdon estimated 20,000 attended. There are 60 booths in the show with 14 of them from Canada. The major booths from this country are the Kawartha one, one from Norfolk county and one from Muskoka. Lake of Bays and the French River districts also have booths and the remainder are mostly representing private resorts.

"I would say that we handed out about 600 inquiry cards since the show opened until I left Monday," Mr. Kingdon said.

"We were amazed by the number of people who were familiar with Peterborough and the Kawarthas," the assistant manager said. "Numerous people would see the name Kawarthas, come up to the booth and tell us that they had been in Peterborough or spent a vacation in the area."

Given Folder

Mr. Kingdon said that everyone who stopped at the booth was given a Kawartha folder listing the attractions of the city and district and also a map of the area. Folders of the other chambers participating were also given out.

Besides the Peterborough chamber, the Lindsay, Bobcaygeon and Fenelon Falls chambers and the Rice Lake Tourist Association are sponsoring this $2,100 project publicizing the Kawarthas.

The personnel of the booth are working in two shifts. The first shift was made up of Mr. Kingdon, Russ Shields, Bobcaygeon; Miss Ada Greaves, Lindsay and Mrs. Wilma Wilson, Rice Lake. The second shift includes Bob Garner, Peterborough; Alex Kilner, Lindsay; Art Braithwaite and Don Sidey, Rice Lake; Cecil Pardy, Bobcaygeon and Fred Rice, Austin Lake. Al Brokenshire, Fenelon Falls will be at the booth for the entire show.

Jumped Bail "Drowned" Man Believed Found

TORONTO, April 1 — (CP) — A Hamilton man, sought since 1950 when he jumped bail on a theft charge in Cobourg, was arrested Monday in Toronto.

Albert Stinson, 40, was thought drowned in Hamilton Bay after an overturned rowboat was found floating in the bay and police dragged for some time without recovering the body.

A woman later is reported to have identified a photograph of Stinson as the man who gave the alarm, then vanished.

Stinson faces charges of bigamy, false pretences, theft, and non-support. The false pretences charge involves a $15 cheque.

Today in police court Stenson pleaded guilty to uttering and bigamy charges.

Rented Outboard

In August, 1950, a man who gave his name as Jack Smith rented an outboard motor from Alex Meeks, McGill St., Peterborough. He didn't bring the motor back and a theft charge was laid.

Stinson was later arrested in Cobourg and was released in $1,000 bail. Det.-Sgt. Jack Stevenson of Peterborough went to Cobourg with Meeks on September 8, 1950, but Stinson did not appear.

The story jumps from Cobourg to Hamilton at this point. On September 7, 1950, Stinson is alleged to have rented a boat in Hamilton.

Report of Drowning

A short time later, a man ran up to a cottage on Hamilton Bay and told a woman he had seen a man fall out of a boat in the bay and not come up again. She called police, and later is said to have identified the photograph of Stinson.

Police believe Stinson rowed the boat for a while, got out on shore, overturned it, and pushed it out into the bay.

Stinson was married and had two children in Hamilton. A Hamilton detective said Stinson went to Toronto to live, under the name of Robert Stensen. Police claim that on last April 7, he married a girl in Toronto.

W. C. Grant Re-elected C.C.F. President

W. C. Grant was re-elected president of Peterborough C.C.F. association at the association's annual meeting at the Labor centre Monday night.

Mr. Grant was returned as the head of the local C.C.F. by acclamation, when three other nominees declined to stand for election.

Before calling for the annual report, Mr. Grant indulged in some plain talk, and warned the meeting that if the C.C.F. intends to "spread out in the city and riding, we are going to have to work at the home level. If we are going to make ourselves felt, we will have to spread out in all sections of the city."

Criticizes Quietness

Mr. Grant said that both educational and social activities should be emphasized and he criticized the lack of controversy which takes place at association meetings. He said he believed that difference of opinion was a healthy sign and there should be more than there had been in the past.

Other members of the 1952-53 executive are: vice-president, Alf Barber, and the executive committee, consisting of W. J. Whibbs, Bill Beggs and Mrs. Helen Yeo. Irwin Yeo was named as the local member appointed to the C.C.F. provincial council.

Don Rosenberg, Howard Myles and W. J. Whibbs were appointed as delegates to attend the C.C.F. provincial convention in Toronto on April 10, 11 and 12.

Brant Inquiry To Be Held April 17

Advertising For Witnesses Delays Hearing

Investigation into the case of Fred Brant—the Lindsay youth who had part of both feet amputated as a result of frostbite—will begin 10 a.m., April 17, in the county courthouse.

Dr. Herbert Young, chairman of the city council's legal committee, today confirmed these arrangements.

Judge J. D. McRae of Whitby will preside at the investigation and R. D. Humphries of Oshawa will be counsel for the investigation.

Originally, the investigation was scheduled to get underway today. But it was postponed.

Advertise

The chief reason for the postponement is to permit legal advertising in Peterborough and Lindsay papers so anybody knowing anything about the case can have ample time to hear about the investigation.

Those who have relevant information are requested to bring forward their evidence so the public can be made fully aware of the circumstances leading up to the youth's present crippled state.

Brant's feet were frostbitten in January. After serving a vagrancy term in jail he was taken out on the highway by city police and let out of the cruiser. His home is in Lindsay. Five days later he was again booked for vagrancy in Peterborough. Frostbite is believed to have accurred in that five-day period.

April Fool Gags Are An Old, Tired Story

By JIM ENGLISH

By this time, many a chuckle will have been had out of guileless citizens who are made the butts of April Fool's gags.

With howls of delight, jokesters with a magnificent grasp of the obvious will drag out the same old chestnuts that court jesters used when Elizabeth I was queen.

Although the April Fool's funnies of today have degenerated somewhat in physical violence from those of the old days, they are still pretty objectionable—to the person on the receiving end.

With an alarmed look a self-appointed funnyman will walk up to a friend and gasp: "What's that on your neck?" The friend, a-dither, will run to a mirror, expecting to find a stream of blood flowing down to his collar or a particularly vicious insect gnawing at his Adam's apple.

Very Funny

Finally he will turn to the guffawing friend and say in all innocence that he doesn't see anything wrong, much less funny. The funnyman will say, "It's your head! April Fool!", will then take a fit of apoplexy from too much laughing and drop dead.

In Queen Elizabeth's time, probably the joke went something like this: The amateur jokester would glance out a window, do an Elizabethan double - take, and shout to his host:

"Fore Gad! Mine eyes deceive me! A Questing Beast in the middle of thy garden!"

The host would run to the window, whereupon the instigator of the joke would jab him gently astern with the point of his sword so that the host would leap through the glass into the garden.

Howling with glee, the assembled guests would lean out the shattered window and cry "April Fool!" to their disgruntled and probably dislocated host.

Older And Warmer

Going back further, we could assume that when knighthood was in flower, humor was indeed a nasty blossom. The height of jollity in those times, no doubt, was to cry "Behind thee!" to a knight, who would whirl about in his saddle.

Then the court wit would dash up with a torch and hold it against the horse's stomach. The horse would throw the knight, injuring him badly, and causing peals of merriment from the watchers.

The medieval wit no doubt was knighted for his innovation in humor. He had borrowed it, unwittingly, from Stone Age times, when the best of humor was even more violent.

Then one hairy chap would be talking to another and suddenly would point with his club to something behind his friend. The guileless citizen would turn and gaze behind to see which kind of dinosaur was about to make a mouthful of him.

The first hairy chap would wind up and clobber his friend with the knotty club. All the other prehistoric characters would come out of their caves happy as clams at this new form of humor.

For trusting souls, here is a horoscope for April Fool's Day: "This one is a stinker. Stay in bed, and don't let anybody come in the room. Don't eat. If you can hold your breath, don't even breathe."

At that, somebody will find a way, and another April Fool gag will be born—another one that would be better off dead.

Youngster, 5, Lights Curtains

A five-year-old boy who found some matches while rummaging through his father's bedroom drawer, Monday night started a fire in the upstairs of his home.

When the curtains on the bedroom window began to shoot up in flames, the boy—Patrick Wilkes, son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl W. Wilkes, 783 Duffus St.—shouted for his mother who was outside wiping off a clothesline.

Mrs. Wilkes rushed back into the house and took Patrick and his two-year-old brother, Brian, to a neighbor's home. Alex Burrett, who lives next door, went into the Wilkes' house, ripped down the remains of the curtains and threw a flaming blind through the storm window of the bedroom.

Damage was confined to the broken window and the destroyed bind and curtains. The fire was out by the time firemen arrived.

Lucky draws for Easter baskets were won by Mrs. Jim Fraser and Mrs. Alex Wigfield. It was announced that Mr. Dyer will be succeeded by Mr. James Clarkson as personnel manager.

Those attending the National Executive meeting of the United Church Training School campaign in Toronto on Monday were Mrs. Carmen Bell, Mrs. A. E. Metcalfe, Mrs. E. Wand and Mrs. F. Samis, representing Peterborough Presbytery.

Stoles, Halters Covering Bare Shoulders

It probably is not a sign of returning modestly, but it is interesting to note that in the new spring fashions there is a tendency to cover-up a little around the shoulders and neckline.

The completely strapless dress in any category seems to be on the way out, and designers are doing all sorts of interesting things in detail above the bustline. Stoles were of course the first indication that a slight cover-up was on its way, but they are being worn with the new dresses anyway.

Many of the new summer evenink dresses have halters, usually soft banding of self material. While they give some support they are there mostly for the appearance. Tiny shoulder straps are also being shown again—some of them very, very narrow—but always decorative.

In daytime dresses watch for a variation of the turtle neck. It is fuller and looser than has been shown before and generally becoming, except to the woman with extremely broad shoulders or an extremely wide face. But for her there is the V-neck which is always in fashion, or a more rounded neckline cut fairly deep in front.

Raise $9,000 First Month For New School

TORONTO, April 1—The campaign to raise $600,000 for a new United Church Training School has netted $9,000 in its first month, according to Miss Harriet Christie, executive secretary of the national campaign committee.

The campaign, to be conducted over a two-year period, is being undertaken by the women of the United Church. Problems of raising money and organizing local committees were discussed here yesterday at a tea and dinner for delegates from presbytery committees in Southern Ontario. Delegates came from Ottawa, Montreal, London, Hamilton and Bay of Quinte conferences.

Mrs. John Woodside of Ottawa told the delegates how her district had gone about organizing a women's committee. They tried to get a cross-section of women in the church, she said, and had found that they were enthusiastic about the challenge of conducting their own campaign.

Mrs. J. D. H. Hutchinson, principal of the United Church Training School, discussed the plans for the new building to be erected on Charles St. She felt that the $600,000 estimate was low, considering that the building was to be a school and residence combined. Estimates were based on other residences built recently in Canada, she said, and no contracts would be let until the money was raised.

LONDON STYLES FOR 1952 make it plain that women can choose between wide or slim skirts. The formal day dress (left) is of smoke grey tulle beneath an overdress of beige lace, with long sleeves and a moderate decolletage. A wide sash of strawberry taffeta provides a splash of color. At right, is an elegant ensemble. It's a topaz surah, dotted and braided with black. The drape bodice is elegant and restrained, while the unlined matching coat, cut full but not exaggerated, has flying cuffs to emphasize the following line.

Education Expert Deplores Softness In Training Child

WINNIPEG— (CP) —The old saying "spare the rod and spoil the child" is still highly regarded by Prof. Neville Scarfe, new dean of education at the University of Manitoba.

"Softness for children is as bad as alcohol for grownup," the Dean says. "It gives a false sense of confidence. Firmness is lacking today. Not kindness."

Dean Scarfe, a recent arrival from Britain and father of three school-age children, says there is a tendency in Canada to omit any form of drill in physical training. He finds it strange because drill makes alert bodies and it can be fun.

"It's needed by children who cannot play games because they aren't agile enough," Prof. Scarfe says. "Yet you stress grammar and spelling."

Telling a child thin ice is unsafe is not enough either. "I tell my children it's going to be painful if they go on the ice .. better a slap than death.

"Perhaps we try to protect our children too much," he says. "We lull them into false confidence until they don't know what is dangerous. Don't talk to them as they do on the radio. Speak to them in an adult voice when you speak of danger."

The Dean says he used to pick up student hitch-hikers, "but not now. Let them walk .. do them good. These high school boys are just lazy."

Men's Drabness In Dress Blamed On British Women

From England comes a report that London's latest Edwardian look for men is "merely John Bull's last despairing effort to dig in his conservative toes before his wife turns him into a butterfly."

So says James Laver, curator of London's Victoria and Albert Museum and an authority on bygone fashions in his spare time. He thinks women's desire for brighter clothing, such as brocaded vests and plum-colored dinner jackets will win the end.

Mr. Laver thinks that basically Mrs. John Bull is the cause of her husband's drabness in dress. "All clothes are decided by the unconscious desire of the opposite sex," says Laver.

"In earlier days women wanted their men to look like aristocrats. So men developed the complicated dress of the 17th and 18th centuries.

"Then women suddenly decided they wanted security instead of glamour. So just over 100 years ago men switched round and began to look like bankers instead of aristocrats. Now women are earning their own living so they to starting to change back again from security to glamour."

But the step before the return to glamour—the Edwardian look, is causing great interest in London's West End. Two months ago a London department store staged a male dress show at which they displayed, on live models, a range of ready-to-wear suits and coats, at popular prices, based on the Edwardian style.

These styles are all influenced by the clothing worn during the reign of Edward VII, who was greatly interested in dress. Chief features of the garments are neatness, velvet trim, lapels on vests, turn-back cuffs on sleeves and flaps on pockets. The two models illustrated on this page are stock ready-to-wear clothes.

In the pictures the model wears a bowler hat. In London this hat has become more popular than ever. It is a hat which looks dressy and formal, and, above all, it is a hat which does not acquire a slovenly appearance through becoming mis-shapen.

It will also be noticed that the model wears a stiff white linen collar. This, too, is a style which has returned to popularity among businessmen for town wear. During the war the problems of laundering and lack of variety of shapes caused the stiff collar to give way to the matching collar. These never looked smart.

The man who buys the modified ready-to-wear Edwardian suit can make his own additions to it according to his taste. The vest can sometimes be replaced by a fancy one. In England the price for a wool one is less than $5, a silk one goes higher than $30.

The choice of accessories is simple because on the whole the suits are of plain cloth, mostly greys. They are in pic-and-pic, hop sack or worsted flannel. Bird's eye pattern is also favored but this is too costly a cloth for the popular-priced suits. The general tendency is for a return to fine cloths in dark grey for town wear. In a room full of men about nine out of 10 will be found to wear dark grey and the odd one may be in black with a white or colored stripe or perhaps in dark blue.

This return to formality for town wear is probably the main reason for the return of Edwardianism. The rather loose draped style, double-breasted button one, with wide heavily padded shoulders, was too informal, too free and easy, to appeal to the professional and businessman who is, by tradition, almost a slave to rigidly correct and dignified attire.

Edmonton Minister's Wife Designer Of Women's Hats

EDMONTON —(CP)—Antoinette Caune, designer of women's hats, says "it is terrible to put the wrong hat on the wrong face."

"A woman's hat should be suited to the shape of her face," says the milliner, in private life the wife of Rev. Elmars Caune, a Latvian minister.

Mrs. Caune, or "Madame Tony" as she calls herself professionally, recently moved to Edmonton. She began her career at 15 in Riga, Latvia, and her flair for design led her employer to take her to Paris to gather new ideas.

By the time she was 19 the blue-eyed Latvian girl had taken over management of a Riga Hat Shop employing 24 persons. Then, in 1941, she married the young minister.

"Although I was very happy in marriage," she said, "I couldn't reconcile myself to being merely a housewife. Because I felt I had to be doing something, I often designed hats for friends."

When she and her husband and their small child moved to Stockholm in 1944, she re-entered the millinery business. There, some of her creations caught the eye of Jacques Fath, Paris designer, who had some of them shown at a fashion show he was sponsoring in the Swedish capital.

Mr. and Mrs. Caune came to Canada two years ago.

Scarves Have Many Uses Practical And Decorative

Time was when a scarf was something to keep you warm. That day is long since a memory and scarves are among the most important of a fashionable woman's accessories. In a variety of sizes and shapes, as well as in a variety of fabrics. They can be worn from early in the morning until late at night—because the ultra-fashionable stole is actually nothing but a scarf.

The smaller squares, roughly about 18 inches, still lead the way in a wealth of attractive patterns. They are the scarves you tie around your throat with sweaters and plain blouses. You will see them this spring in all-over patterns, in polka dots and with animal figures.

Larger More Practical

The larger scarves, which run about 36 inches square, are still the best size for under-the-coat wear, or if you want to simulate a blouse or vest in a hurry. They, too, make attractive waist-ties for summer dresses.

All square scarves will be available in the softer materials, such as silks, chiffons and organza and you will find them in almost every color, and combination of colors, that you could possibly want.

Stoles, except for evening, when they are of the most fragile material, are being shown this spring in light weight wools, such as jerseys and knitted patterns. They can be used, as well as for decoration, to take the place of a light wrap on a cool summer evening.

Ascots, and adaptations of the Ascot are being shown as a strong fashion feature of spring. Some of the Ascots are shaped, to make for easier handling. They are cut narrower in the back than in front so they will fit more neatly around the collars.

Others can be worn either tied or drawn down into a jabot. Some are made with pointed ends, some rounded. In the smaller ties there will be a good deal of attractive trimming to carry out the feminine fashion theme — rhinestones, lace and embroidery will all find a place on trimming the gayer of the scarves.

Materials used in the smaller scarves, which are for wear, particularly with semi-tailored dresses, or suits have a perky crisp air. They include organza pique and organdy.

Collars, Cuffs

Of course the average woman isn't out of pigtails before she knows the value of the separate white pieces, collars and cuffs for dressing up or changing the appearance of a basic dress. White is the color most in demand but there are women who favor blue, pinks, greens and even browns. In linen and pique you will see large bows, collars approximating the old sailor collar and any number of old favorites back on the fashion list again.

Incidentally it is a wise idea, right about now, to take out all your clothes, study them carefully with an eye to what will point them up in the way of an accessory. Think in terms of color and suitability and then shop accordingly.

Tumor Tests Progress Cancer Study

VANCOUVER —(CP) Cancer research was described by an American expert here as being "at the end of the beginning."

Dr. Michael B. Shimkin, chief of the laboratory of Experimental Oncology at San Francisco, told the annual meeting of the B. C. division of the Canadian Cancer Society "I have no doubt the problem of cancer is solvable." (Oncology is the study of tumors).

"We have enough now to indicate this is no pious hope," he said. "It may not happen in five years, nor in 10, but it will occur. These things take time. No not be afraid that cancer research is a gamble."

The secret of cancer, he said, was the differntiation of cells The most important line of attack might be the study of how a variety of stimuli caused cells to lose their ability to differentiate. This was tied up with the study of cell-splitting and of whole cells.

In another branch of research it had been found possible to use chickenpox to cause a relapse in tumor growth. Its own laboratories had become interested in study of the blood supply to tumors, and it appeared as though the tumor produced a sufficient supply to maintain its growth.

Chances of curing cancer by chemical methods are good, he said. Some of the neurotropic viruses having an affinity for nerves —had been found to have the ability to kill tumors in mice.

"While there is no chemical today that will cure tumors," he added, "a field of wide promise is offered by many chemicals such as the Butane Surfones, which have a definite regressive effect on tumors."

Make-Up Base Can Influence For Beauty

Do you really know how important a tinted make-up base is for your appearance? Properly used, it can influence your clothes, hair and complexion.

One of the best features about a foundation is its ability to help make a problem skin smooth and unblemished. No need to suffer with sallowness, fret over freckles or brood because of broken veins.

A make-up base with good coverage will neatly conceal all three. Birthmarks are no longer a blight, either. One famous cosmetic house has developed a foundation that will completely cover such discolorations.

Rosy Base

How many times have you put on your best black dress only to find it gives your skin a sallow, lifeless look, regardless of your make-up? A rosier base is what you need.

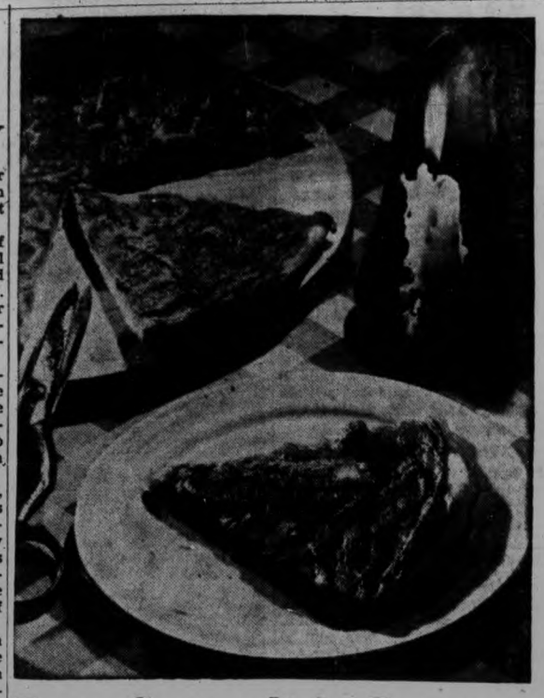
Then there's the question of the clothes in your wardrobe that add too much color to your skin. Tone down the unnatural flush with a beige-toned base.

And when you're tired out after a strenuous day, a lively shade of make-up base will give your skin a lift.

Foundations are available in cream, liquid and cake form. You'll even find some in a combination powder-base. This can be puffed right on your skin.

Pick a make-up base that is neither too light nor too dark. Either one will give your skin an unflattering tone. Look for a neutral shade, except when you are trying for special effects.

You may also consider your foundation an invisible veil of protection. It guards your skin from the dryness of winter weather and indoor heating. From all indications, a good make-up base in one of your firmest foundations for beauty.



From Sunny Italy Comes Pizza—Meatless Main Dish

MEATLESS DISHES are the order of the day, so from sunny Italy, we've borrowed the recipe for one of the most flavorful ones we know. Pizza it's called—red-ripe tomato and nippy cheese, seasoned generously with onion, baked in a tender, golden-brown crust, and served bubbling hot from the oven.

In its native land, pizza is made, not with the fresh fruit, but with a puree of tomatoes, smooth in texture and spiced just so. Here at home, you can achieve the same effect with condensed tomato soup.

PIZZA (ITALIAN TOMATO PIE)

1 cake compressed yest
1 cup lukewarm water
1 pound sifted all-purpose flour (4 cups)
1 teaspoon salt
5 tablespoons salad oil
1½ cups sliced onions
2 10-ounce cans condensed tomato soup, undiluted
½ cup water
2 teaspoons cider vinegar
½ teaspoon oregano
1 teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
¼ cup grated cheese

Dissolve yeast in lukewarm water. Combine flour and salt in large bowl; add dissolved yeast and 2 tablespoons salad oil. Knead thoroughly 10 minutes. Let stand in warm place 3 hours. Prepare sauce by saute'ing onions in 3 tablespoons salad oil until lightly browned. Add remaining ingredients except cheese and simmer uncovered 35 minutes, stirring frequently. When dough has risen, spread in well-greased 12" x 16" pan or make 2 11-inch pies on greased cookie sheets. Turn edges up slightly. Pour sauce over dough, spread within ⅛ inch of edge. Sprinkle with cheese. Bake in hot oven (400°F.) for 30 to 40 minutes. Serves 4 to 5.

For a satisfying variation of the pizza described above, try following the same directions, then arranging anchovy fillets on top of the sauce, just before sprinkling with the cheese.

Proper Shoes Proper Time

Today, footwear authorities listed the necessities a man must own to be properly shod in the spring and summer months ahead. These are their recommendations for the following occasions:

Daytime and semi-formal: Black, plain toe bal oxfords, single toe.

Formal and after five o'clock: Black oxfords of either patent leather or dull black calf with plain toe.

Business and street: Brown blucher or brown bal oxfords.

Country hiking or city slush: Brogues.

Country club or head office: Brushed leather shoes, or shoes combining brushed leather with calf or with reptile. Patterns may be wing-tip or U-throat and preferred colors are blue, brown, wine, grey and green.

July and August: Oxfords ventilated with nylon mesh or by perforations in the vamp. Navy nylon with navy calf promises to be a favorite this summer.

Casual: Loafers, with either flat or raised seams. Those with elasticized gores require no lacing.

MARY MOORE SAYS:

Old-Fashioned Jelly Roll From Foolproof Recipe

Your facetious family may think it is April Fool's Day for them—but you, you poor old Jill-of-all-trades—are not permitted the privilege of fooling over their precious dinner. You have to come through with foolproof food.

For the same reasons that you might decide to do it—because there were plenty of eggs in the refrigerator and because the egg-man was due to arrive next day and because eggs are cheap—I made a four-egg old-fashioned jelly roll.

We had four people for dinner and they ate the works. I had forgotten that homemade jelly roll could taste so good.

It seems like such a tricky little number for just an ordinary homebaker to manipulate, but believe me girls, I think it is foolproof.

Don't be timid about this recipe—for I have given careful details that teen-agers and brides can follow with confidence.

Clear the decks then for Operation Jelly Roll.

Four-Egg Jelly Roll

One and one-half teaspoons of baking powder, ¼ teaspoon salt, 4 eggs, ¾ cup sifted cake flour, ¾ cup sifted sugar, 1 teaspoon vanilla, about 1 cup any flavor jelly or lemon filling (see below). In rather large bowl put the measured baking powder and salt, then the eggs. Stand this over slightly smaller bowl containing hot water. The top bowl should be touching the water a little. Beat with rotary beater or electric beater until eggs are as light as possible—about 10 minutes. Now while beating add the sugar gradually until the mixture becomes light colored and thick. Remove the top bowl from hot water. Sift flour over mixture and gradually fold in. Add vanilla. Butter a pan which is approximately 9 x 13 inches. Size of pan is important because of exactness of baking time and traditional shape of jelly roll. Now line buttered pan on bottom within ½ inch of long edges with buttered wax paper. Bake at 400 deg. Fahr. for 13 or 14 minutes or until cake just shrinks from sides of pan. Have ready a tea towel sprinkled generously with icing sugar. Immediately turn cake out on towel. Quickly cut off long edge which is crisp and would prevent cake having a smooth appearance at ends. Spread with any flavor of jelly or lemon filling, and roll up at once. Wrap towel around it and cool on cake rack.

Lemon Filling for Jelly Roll

This is good of course for a filling for layer cakes too.

It must be made before the cake is made because it must be cold before spreading on hot cake.

In top of double boiler mix 5 tablespoons flour, ¾ cup sugar, and ⅛ teaspoon salt. Stir into them 1 egg. Now add ½ cup hot water and stir over boiling water until thick, then cook for 10 minutes, stirring occasionally. Remove from heat, add 2 tablespoons butter or margarine, ¼ cup lemon juice and ½ teaspoon grated lemon rind. Stir well and chill.

For extra rich cake and extra special occasion fold ½ cup cream whipped into the cold lemon filling before spreading on cake.

DOROTHY DIX

Man Trying To Win Back His Wife's Faith

DEAR MISS DIX: I am a young married man in my early 30's with a very loyal wife whom I love dearly. About four months ago I went on a so-called fling with the boys, and we met a few women. Evidence of petting was discovered by my wife, and since then I've been living in misery. She has turned from a sweet and loving wife to a cold and almost too distant person. How can I prove to her that I am truly sorry for my mistake and assure her that it will never happen again? I'd give anything to hear her chatter again as she used to do before all this happened. T.G.

ANSWER: How to restore lost trust is something that only your own patience and intuition can decide. It is no easy task, I'm afraid. Your wife is taking rather an extreme view of an unfortunate incident; you can only hope that she'll realize you should be entitled to foregiveness at least once.

Since we can only be truly hurt by those we love deeply, your wife's love for you must be very great indeed. That, coupled with her own high principles, makes it very difficult for her to overlook a fall from grace in one to whom she is so deeply devoted.

While giving her time to see things in a fairer light, you must continue every effort to assure her of your love and devotion. Try to realize how she feels about things. She sees her love and trust betrayed, and lacks all confidence in future security. What has happened once, she reasons, can happen again! Without nagging, and with as little reference to the past as possible, you must bring back her confidence in you and your love.

Write To Her

You have probably exhausted every vocal argument; why not send her an old-fashioned love letter—or several of them? It's always a nice custom for a husband and wife to write each other; even though they see each other every day, a letter often conveys thoughts that are difficult to express in speech. An unexpected gift, particularly of something she has wanted for a long time, may help the warming process. Suggest a week end in the city for a second honeymoon trip—in fact, anything out of the ordinary daily routine may take her thoughts out of the despairing depths that you sent them to.

Remember above all you have hurt your wife very much and the pain will not go quickly. I hope this experience will be a lesson and that hereafter you'll let the boys go on their flings without you. The perfect trust of someone you love is a precious thing, to be sacredly held and treated with infinite care. Your wife is a fine woman and you are a fine man. I hope this difference soon passes, leaving you both wiser and happier people.

DEAR MISS DIX: My brother is planning to get married and my mother is objecting because (1) he hasn't got a steady job but just works part time; (2) he has no money saved to take care of the wedding expenses; (3) his girl friend is not of our religion and would cause some difference in the family and (4) my mother is afraid they plan to live with us and we really haven't the room. Mother is very worried. What can we do? D. L. S.

ANSWER: I must say your mother has plenty to worry about, but what is the girl's family doing? They certainly should be as much concerned over the disadvantages of this wedding. However, if your brother and his girl friend are of age, the marriage cannot be stopped unless some persuasive member of the family can make them realize their mistake.

A husband with no job is not exactly the best matrimonial prospect, and the religious difference certainly is a potential source of trouble. The young people will have to work out their own problems, and your mother's worrying is futile. You have a good understanding of the situation and may be able to make her see the brighter side of the matter, which is simply that in time things usually work out for the best.

DEAR MISS DIX: My boy friend and I have been planning on getting married for four years. We are 35 and 40 years old. Whose place is it to buy the home and car? JANIS

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Your future husband is responsible for housing and providing for you. The car, as a luxury, could be a joint effort, but see that the necessities of life are provided by him.

Flower Group Of Omemee Revises List

OMEMEE, April 1 (ENS). — March meeting of the Omemee and District Horticultural Society was well attended. Revising of the prize list for the August show was the chief item of business, the early revision being made with a view to having the list in the hands of would-be exhibitors when they plan their gardens.

Director Mrs. H. Hill submitted changes recommended by the committee, and led a discussion on further changes, after which the list wase accepted as revised. An entry for High School students was agreed upon, which should be along the line of miniature landscaping made up with cut flowers. It was decided to solicit the co-operation of Home and School in introducing this project.

An interesting report of the 46th horticultural convention was given by Mrs. J. A. McConnell and Mrs. D. Hicks, who were the delegates.

Under the management of Mrs. Howard Bent, films were shown demonstrating practical uses for two D.D.T. compounds, namely "Weed No More" and "Pestroy." Some warnings about the safe use of these were given by Mrs. S. Moyr and the Rev. V. E. R. Zufelt, who had experience with their use.

Let Dogs Run In Deer Country Man Fined $20

Bernie Pluard of Buckhorn, was convicted in police court today of allowing dogs to run at large during the closed season for deer, in a locality deer usually inhabit.

He was fined $20 and $22.40 costs.

Arthur Bott of Apsley testified that he and Jack McEwan of Peterborough prevented two dogs from killing a deer the dogs were molesting about a mile and a half from Buckhorn on February 10.

Saw Dogs

Mr. Bott said that he saw both the dogs at the Pluard home on March 16.

Mr. McEwen said that when he visited Pluard's on February 16, he saw the smaller of the two dogs which had been attacking the deer.

Robert Carley defended Mr. Pluard and asked Magistrate W. R. Philp to accept his client's evidence that he had not let the dogs out of his shed that day until 1.30. Since Mr. Pluard claimed that the dogs were still at his place when he left after 1.30, Mr. Carley argued that his dogs could not have been the ones attacking the deer. Mr. Bott said he and McEwan found the dogs attacking the deer about 1.30.

In finding Mr. Pluard guilty, Magistrate W. R. Philp said he was finding that deer do usually inhabit the area and that he was prepared to accept the evidence of Mr. Bott and Mr. McEwan in regard to identification of the dogs.

Polio Outbreak Puzzles Village

TATAMAGOUCHE, N.S., April 1. (CP)—An outbreak of poliomyelitis in this farming community of 1,000 persons is puzzling village and provincial officials.

Eleven cases from here now have been diagnosed as infantile paralysis at the polio clinic at Halifax.

Health Minister Martin announced in Ottawa Monday night that two Federal Health Department doctors are en route to help provincial authorities battle the disease.

Schools were closed last week, soon after the outbreak was spotted.

The odd feature of the outbreak is that Tatamagouche escaped entirely last summer when Nova Scotia suffered its worst polio epidemic in history. There still are some 50 cases in the Halifax clinic from last summer's epidemic.

Authorities are at a loss to explain the winter outbreak of the disease, regarded as a warm weather scourge.

The men struck for the higher rate this morning.

Joseph L. Easton, former M.P.P. and business agent for the group which controls 500 dump trucks and about 50 hired by the city, declared:

"We must have an offer from the board of control before we call the association together."

Control Of Water In Trent Told To Hunters

Peterborough Fish and Game Protective Association had one of their best-attended meetings on Monday at the Public Library.

James McGrath of the maintenance staff of the Trent Valley System was guest speaker; his subject was "Water Control of the Trent." A film by the National Film Board, pertaining closely to the speaker's subject, followed.

A suggestion was brought forth at the meeting that the association would be willing to post placards at all heavily fished areas giving current fishing rules and pictures of fish types to be found in the Kawarthas.

In discussing the progress of their Sportsmen's Show which is being staged at the Civic Arena on May 1, 2 and 3, it was found that more space to date has already been sold this year than during the same period in 1951.

"We still have a little space left," said president Jack O'Neil.

The show committee said they had received word that the Department of Lands and Forests will display their live fish tanks this year in addition to their fire prevention exhibit. At least four large tents will be used to house exhibits that have overflowed from the arena space. There will be horseshoe courts, archery, bait casting and stage and auto show.

The club is planning a "Young Canada Night" to spark the formation of a junior conservation club in Peterborough.

It is expected that at least 125 Scouts will be in attendance and there will be suitable films and speaker. Anticipating a large crowd the place where the meeting will be held is to be announced later.

COOKSVILLE, April 1 (CP) — The law cought up with 28 speeding motorists in less than half an hour today.

Chief Constable Garnet McGill said hundreds of children go to school daily in the area where a 30-mile-an-hour speed limit is in force but generally ignored. He said the speed trap will be in operation 24 hours a day "until some of these motorists learn to drive through our community at the proper rate of speed."

Think Progress Being Made In F-M Cleanup

WASHINGTON, April 1 (AP)—Charles Brannan, U.S. Secretary of Agriculture, says the effectiveness of efforts by Canadian officials to clean up the outbreak of foot-and-mouth disease in cattle will not be known until warmer weather. But "present indications are favorable."

In a letter made public today by Senator Milton Young (Rep.-N.D.), Brannan said measures being taken by the United States government to prevent spread into this country of the disease will depend upon the success of the efforts by the Canadians.

Brannan said that when his department was notified Feb. 25 of the outbreak of the disease in Canada an embargo was immediately placed on shipments into this country of all cattle, sheep, goats and swine and of fresh meats of those animals.

The department immediately began tracking down shipments of livestock from Canada which were made just prior to the outbreak.

"Reports received to date show that livestock of Canadian origin are under supervision and observation in 29 states and in 68 counties," Brennan said. "These include 150 herds consisting of 2,430 cattle, one swine, and 133 sheep."

Brannan said an increased number of department experts have been assigned to work on control operations along the border, with special emphasis on the section from Lake Superior to the West Coast.

Regrets Resignation

Reeve of Lakefield, E. H. Northey, said today that council "regretted sincerely" Chief Samis' resignation. Advertisements for a new chief constable will be placed soon, he added.

Reeve Northey scotched a rumor that Monday night's council meeting had anything to do with the chief's resignation. "We met to strike the estimates for the year," he said. Beyond the acceptance of his resignation, there was no discussion of Chief Samis.

The chief's resignation reads in part:

"I am taking this action on the advice of my doctor, who is of the opinion that it would be very dangerous to my health to continue to work the long hours it is necessary to put in to effectively carry out my duties as chief constable of Lakefield.

"My doctor has advised me to seek employment where I will have fixed hours."

The resignation takes effect at midnight, April 30.

County Constable

Chief Samis is also county constable for Peterborough county, and says he has no intention of resigning that post.

In September, 1942, he became chief constable of Lakefield, replacing Clare Chittick. Before that he had been chief constable at Bath, and county constable for Lennox and Addington. He came to Lakefield shortly after his discharge from the army.

He joined the army near the start of the Second World War and served with the military police at Petawawa, coming to Peterborough in October, 1940. While there he was in charge of military police for this district.

For three years he was president of the Kawartha Police Association, and secretary for the same length of time. He has been a vice-president of the Police Association of Ontario, and was a member of the board of directors of Police News.

At present, he is Eastern Ontario representative of the Ontario Police Association's voluntary burial fund.

N.B.A. Suspends Johnny Bratton

WASHINGTON, April 1—(AP)—The National Boxing Association today suspended Johnny Bratton, ranking Chicago welterweight, for failure to show up for a match in Montreal Monday night.

The action was taken, the N.B.A. said, at the request of the Montreal Boxing Commission, an association affiliate.

The association said Bratton, rated third among the welters, had made a contract to box sixth-rated Pierre Langlois Monday night at Montreal.

The N.B.A. said the indefinite suspension also applies to Bratton's manager, Hymie Waldman.

The suspension means, the N.B.A. said, that Bratton cannot box in any N.B.A.-affiliated state until he goes through with a Langlois bout in Montreal.

9,000 Changes In Numbers In Phone Book

A large number of new and changed listings appear in the 1952 Peterborough telephone directory, delivery of which began today.

Because of these additions and changes, E. G. Baker, Bell Telephone manager here, urged subscribers to check any personal lists of telephone numbers against the numbers listed in the new book and to make any necessary alterations.

"Looking up the desired number before calling," he said, "helps to avoid the possibility of getting wrong numbers and saves time for both calling and called parties. 'Information' should be called only when the number you are seeking is not listed in the directory."

9,000 In Area

Mr. Baker pointed out that in addition to Peterborough, the new directory contains listings for subscribers in Lindsay, Beaverton, Bobcaygeon, Cannington, Cobodonk, Fenelon Falls, Kirkfield, Sturgeon Point, Woodville, Campbellford, Hastings, Havelock, Lakefield, Norwood, Omemee and other district centres. Throughout this entire area, the number of new and changed listings totals more than 9,000.

Other suggestions to help subscribers obtain the best possible service from their telephones are included in the directory. There is also a handy list of emergency numbers on page one, and a page of postal information.

An indication of the growth of this area may be seen in the fact that 36,801 copies of the new green-covered book were needed fo homes and business establishments, compared with 36,009 when the last directory was issued.

Perfect Crib Hand

BANCROFT, April 1 (ENS) —The thrill of a lifetime came to E. C. Ellerbeck, Bancroft barber and member of the village council, when he received a perfect cribbage hand Saturday. Playing with Mr. Ellerbeck in the family residence were Mrs. Ellerbeck, Steven Tripp and Charles Hunt. It was the first time that any had seen a perfect hand. Mr. Ellerbeck said that Tripp had been playing cribbage for 50 years and that the other three had been playing for about 20 years.

WITH THE BOY SCOUTS

By G. E. GROOMBRIDGE.

Learning the Hard Way

David Parrish will no doubt remember one of his first scout hikes and the proper way to use an axe as he looks back to the hike he enjoyed with the 1st Peterborough Troop on Saturday last.

Under the leadership of Scouter Ernie Clark and the Rev. D. P. Morris of Bridgenorth, the troop hiked to Beaver Banks taking in the signs of spring and camp cooking. Here it was that Dave missed the piece of wood he was supposed to be chopping for the fire and received a deep cut in his foot. First aid was administered by the Scouter. He got home under his own steam. The game part of the program was arranged by the patrol leaders Bill Lawrence and Jim Caldwell and enjoyed by all. Some of the boys made a good start toward their fire lighting and cooking tests.

Cubbing at St. Paul's

Some 28 Cubs attended the last meeting to enjoy the games of "Dog and Bone" and "Pass the Potato" as arranged by Sixers Rishor and Phillips, and to take up some other work in the jungle. Three artist badges were earned by Larry Greig, Tom Caldwell and Bill Watters with Tom Caldwell also passing for his Collector badge.

Murray St. Troop

A. S. M. Len Foskett was kept busy instructing and in the course of the evening Norman Tetlock ably explained the Union Jack, its makeup and functions whilst Terry Armstrong, Darryl Dinsdale and N. Tetlock mastered the Scout signs. A parents' night is planned very shortly.

All Saints' Reports

The making of tom-tom drums is taking up the interest with the Cubs, with the best drum in each six to be used in the Red Flower programs to supply the rhythm during singing. A special compass game was included on the evening's program and Graham Sutton was presented with his third year service star.

Ken Butler was invested into the World Brotherhood of Scouting in a ceremony immediately following opening ceremonies of the troop last Thursday evening. Before the meeting was brought to its close Gar White, Ken Johnson and Doug Livingstone were presented with the second class badge, Doug Livingstone together with Jack Morton received his second year service star whilst Ken Johnson and Mike Stock chalked up their first year service stars. The Eagle Patrol came through with high points for the evening activities.

With the damage to their headquarters leaving the crew without a home for the next few weeks, plans are being made to devote as much time as possible on working on the den with meetings arranged in various manners. Thanks to Parkhill group, temporary headquarters are available if necessary.

Second Armour Group

The Rev. Walter Gilling was present at the last meeting to award some of the Cubs with badges earned during the last few weeks, the recipients being Ray Baptie, and Don Morrison, first aider, Gordon Sanderson; guide and observer and Bob Simmons, artist. Several members of the Pack were able to pass tests as follows: Don Easterbrook, Somersault and ball throwing; Bill Exell, knots; Daird Pilley, Union Jack and cleanliness; Kim Salonius, time and ball throwing; Ken Starr, signs, salute and grand howl; Darrell Halstead and Wayne Ash, promise; Roger Mesley, laws; Jack Watson, thrift.

Patrol instruction was the main theme of the meeting last Friday with special talks by Scouter Nokes on wearing of uniform and the paying of weekly dues. Final results for the evening showed Bill Harvey passing first aid, Bob Depallaro, Union Jack and Ensign; Ronald Land, John Glennie, camp bed; Robert Leggit, axe, knife and bicycle; Fred Nurse, axe and knife.

A Visit To Mark St. United

Your scribe was invited to attend the meeting of Mark St. Pack last Thursday and found a full attendance of enthusiastic youngsters on hand under the leadership of C. Munro assisted by W. Brady and Bill English. The first two men have no previous experience in the Cub work and Bill English was in Cubbing years ago. The boys were given a short talk on how cubbing started and the general ideas behind the training they receive with two games being played, demonstrating the hand shake and salute, also the opening ceremony from the Cub lairs. Another six had to be formed to accommodate the increased numbers making a total of six sixes, Bobby Duncan being appointed Sixer of the new six with Joe Berardi as his seconder. Eddy Pomeroy was then promoted to the rank of Seconder to fill the place vacated by Bobby. The singing of the two old favorite songs brought the meeting to its close. The Sixes and Seconders are reminded of the Sixers' Council being held on Wednesday evening at the home of A. C. M. Bill English, Rogers St.

At St. John's

Bagheera Stan Purser carried on the leadership of the Pack last Friday evening in the absence of Akela and had the Cubs hopping all over the floor trying to guide checks into circles. Instruction in tenderpad work went on under Skipper G. whilst the rest of the Pack took skipping, knotting, etc. Jerry Sedgwick, John Mitchell and Ken Collins came through their skipping in fine style, Tommy Gunn passed cleanliness and highway rules, Jamie Welsh completed first star knots, Ken Druce nimbly tumbled through somersault.

We missed the regular report from Trinity this week and trust that the reporter is not sick and we are also wondering where Sacred Heart, St. Albans, George Street, Salvation Army, St. James and others are wandering.

Cub Tests

Members of group committees should get themselves acquainted with the badge tests for cubbing for, according to the district setup, you fellows are responsible for the passing of such tests and not the Cub officers

Also, to those who do not realize it, there has been a real change in the first and second star work of cubbing and you will do well to buy the new P O. R. from provincial headquarters in which all changes have been printed.

McFater Awarded Seventh-Round TKO

HAMILTON, April 1 (CP). — Allan McFater of Toronto was awarded a seventh-round technical knockout over Howard Leslie of Saint John, N. B., Monday night. The decision almost produced a small riot.

Referee Jack Silvers called the main bout—scheduled for 10 rounds—at 1:10 of the seventh after Leslie had been partly knocked, partly shoved through the ropes. He reached through, pulled Leslie up and, looking at a closed left eye, awarded the fight to McFater.

Fans crowded about the ring demanding that the New Brunswick Negro be allowed to continue. Although McFater had the better of the fight in the preceding rounds, they figured Leslie wasn't beaten.

Fred Steel, Ontario Athletics Commissioner, agreed with Silvers' decision. "What do they want, murder?" he asked.

RESCUE ELDERLY PATIENT—An elderly patient—one of 27 rescued—is carried down a ladder from the Brierbush private hospital at Stouffville, Ont., 20 miles northeast of Toronto. The patients, many crippled and more than 80 years of age, were carried out by nurses and firemen when fire, which originated from defective wiring in the basement caused an estimated $10,000 damage to the building. The patients will be housed in private homes until repairs are made to the hospital.

Here and There In Sport

By The Canadian Press

A few hours after Chicago welterweight Johnny Bratton showed up to make his peace with Montreal fight officials, Pierre Langlois of France Monday night won a 10-round decision over Charlie Salas of Phoenix, Ariz., who was pinch-hitting for Bratton.

Although Langlois finished with a flurry in the last two rounds to take the judges' decision, there were no knockdowns and neither fighter was damaged.

Bratton, under suspension by the Montreal Athletic Commission, was originally signed to meet the Frenchman but took another date, last Friday, against Rocky Castellani in New York. Bratton lost and in addition was suspended by the M.A.C.

The Chicagoan conferred with promoter Adelard Godbout Monday and afterwards it was indicated Godbout would ask the Commission to lift Bratton's suspension if he can arrange a match in Montreal for Bratton.

Fred Corcoran has been signed again by the touring golf pros to repair public relations, an authoritative source said Monday in Augusta, Ga. A contract between the promoter and the tournament committee of the Professional Golfers' Association was signed March 1.

Corcoran refused to begin functioning until he gets approval from the executive committee of the P.G.A. itself. The committee meets in Chicago in mid-April.

Corcoran became tournament director for the men's P.G.A. in 1936 when the circuit paid only $80,000 in prize money. When he was forced out in 1947 during a battle among the touring pros, the prize money totalled $600,000. After he left, the pros had differences among themselves and with sponsors.

Corcoran, now tournament director for the Ladies' Professional Golf Association, also serves as business manager and promoter for such sports figures as baseballers Ted Williams and Stan Musial and golfers Babe Zaharias, Sam Snead and Jack Burke, Jr.

Someone threw a knife at George Mikan during a basketball game at Rochester, N. Y., Sunday night, Max Winter, Minneapolis Lakers general manager, said on Monday in Minneapolis. Winter said the weapon, a pocket knife with two open blades pointing in two directions, whizzed past the Laker centre as he walked to the bench after fouling out, but so much trash was being thrown at the time it was impossible to tell who tossed the knife. Lakers won 83-78.

Twenty-six Canadian hockey players arrived in Tokyo today from the Korean front for an exhibition tour against Japanese teams.

College wrestlers will be required to wear helmets because there are "too many cauliflower ears" resulting from the sport, the wrestling committee of the National Collegiate Athletic Association decided Monday in Port Collins, Colo.

Canada's representatives at the 1952 Olympic summer games in Helsinki, Finland, will leave Montreal by air July 5 and 11, the Canadian Olympic Association decided in Montreal.

Australia's Frank Sedgman and his wife were defeated Monday in Cannes, France, by England's Joan Curry and South Africa's Tower Williams in the mixed doubles of the Cannes tennis tournament, 6-2, 4-6, 8-6.

ALBANY, N. Y., April 1—(AP)—Deer and bear may be hunted with a bow and arrow for 14 days in New York State this year. Governor Thomas Dewey signed a bill today providing for a special $5.25 archery licence to hunt bucks, does and bears for two weeks before the regular big-game season. Archers will be entitled to bag one deer and one bear. If they get one of each, however, they will not be allowed to take another with firearms during the regular season.

Cavan Puckists Take Title In Final Game

MILLBROOK, April 1 (ENS)— Fourth Line of Cavan yanked out an 8-6 overtime victory against Mount Pleasant in Peterborough's Civic Arena last night to win the Millbrook-Cavan Rural Hockey League championship. It was their third win after each club had taken two in the best-of-five finals for the Henry Gray Trophy.

Following the overtime contest, league president Percy Hamilton called upon Reeve Dr. J. W. Wright of Millbrook to present the trophy. He made the presentation to Allan Hutchinson, captain of the victorious team, while most of the large paid crowd of nearly 700 fans cheered.

The score was drawn at 6-all after three hot periods between the speedy and well-matched teams. In the 10-minute extra inning, Ted McDowell rapped home two goals without a comeback to clinch the crown for the Line lads. McDowell and Goalie Gerald Hubbard shone throughout the tussle for the winners, with the whole team turning in a fine windup effort. The brother act of Roy and Don Crawford starred for Mount Pleasant, with the bunch of them battling gamely right down to the finish.

Cobra Venom Donors Present Weekly Show In Siam Snake-Pit

By BILL BOSS.

BANGKOK, April 1—(CP)—The King Cobra reared its head, spread out its hood, and hissed.

Lat Tapnoi, 25-year-old snake handler at Bangkok's Pasteur Institute, did what mothers sometimes do to naughty children. He slapped it briskly on the head. The hissing stopped, but the hood stayed spread.

As spectators gaped over the snake-pit barricade, Lat slowly extended a hand, grasped the reptile gently two feet below the mouth rubbed it slowly with his fingers, then raised it. The hood subsided slowly.

Gradually, hand over hand, Lat worked his grasp toward the cobra's head. Then he quickly seized the nine-footer behind the jaws, expertly planted a bare foot on its tail and forced the jaws wide open.

His Chief, 47-year-old Kamchat Synchai, chief handler at the Institute, inserted a circular glass slide between the cobra's jaws. Young Lat forced them down upon it.

A clear, colorless liquid squirted onto the slide—enough to fill an eyedropper and enough to kill a man or an elephant.

The venom extracted, a long dropper filled with milk was poked about four inches down the cobra's throat. As Kamchat squeezed the liquid in, Lat worked his fingers over the cobra's gullet, helping down the milk.

Weekly Chore

Venom is extracted once a week from the three king cobras, 127 common cobras, 12 branded kraits and 70 Russell's vipers in the institute pits. They are fed twice weekly with milk, and smaller snakes also are left in the pens as food.

Kamchat, here 15 years, has been bitten only once. He says it was his own fault.

"It was a hot day and the perspiration running down my forehead got into my eyes. I was holding a snake with my two hands and as I shook my head to clear my eyes I frightened it. It bit my arm."

Lat, here only six years, has been bitten three times.

Thailand has 78 species of snake including the python which here reaches 18 feet in length. There are 13 kinds of poisonous snake, commonest of which is the king cobra which moves rapidly along the ground, head reared several feet. The demand for the common cobra's meat as food has reduced its numbers.

Kamchat maintains that usually a snake won't attack a man unless it is frightened. Nonetheless, there are 14,000 cases of snakebite a year in Siam, and the Pasteur Institute's serum goes to treatment centres throughout the country.

The Institute also produces anti-rabies serum. In this centre alone more than 100 patients are treated daily. Killing of animals is contrary to the Buddhist religion and dogs that elsewhere would be rounded up and killed are left at large.

Treatment at the clinic is free, but patients are expected to offer payment if they can afford it.

EXTRACT SNAKE VENOM Lat Tapnoi, 25-year-old snake handler at Bangkok's Pasteur Institute, holds a number of Branded Krait snakes from which venom is to be extracted. The extracted venom is used to treat patients who have been bitten by any of Thailand's 13 species of poisonous snakes. There are 14,000 cases of snakebite in the country a year.

Rotary To Spend $5,000 To Help City Crippled

Two topics, the Easter Seal Campaign, and Vocational Service, were included in the Rotary luncheon meeting program, Monday.

Graham Ferguson, chairman of the Easter Seal campaign, explained that the committee had budgeted to spend $5,000 on crippled children in Peterborough city and county in 1952. Last year the Rotary club spent $4,880 in this work.

Cared For 60

"Last year we cared for 60 children in the city and county," Mr. Ferguson said. "At present we have 80 cases on file. Agencies for this work are already in existence. The purpose of this campaign is to provide funds for carrying on and expanding this work. Our aim is to give aid to all crippled children in the county."

Mr. Ferguson said that 45,000 envelopes containing seals, campaign letters and return envelopes would be sent out.

A skit entitled Vocational Service, written by the Rev. Ivan C. Morgan of Murray St. Baptist Church, was presented by the Vocational Service committee.

The purpose of the skit was to show the proper attitude of a Rotarian in his daily work — service for others on my job.

Four Spirits

Simon LeGree, the Rotarian who has a vision, was played by Mr. Morgan; Clare Collins was the spirit of Rotary, and the other four spirits were: Clifford Curtis, Is It The Truth?; Frank Montgomery, Is It Fair To All Concerned?; Norm Hanley, Will It Build Goodwill For Our Business and Better Friendship For Our People?; and Bill Hamilton, Will It Be Profitable To All Concerned?

Charles Pilon thanked the members of this committee for presenting the play.

The following guests were introduced by Frank Paterson: W. J. Gamble, North Battleford, Saskatchewan; Ian McRea, Toronto; Laurie Shepherd, St. Catherines; Claude Elliott, Toronto.

Ready To Begin 2 Housing Plans

OTTAWA, April 1 (CP)—New housing projects will be undertaken shortly in the Ontario municipalities of Midland and Prescott under joint federal-provincial agreements, the Resources Department announced Monday.

The Midland agreement provides for development of 66 serviced lots, 20 of which will be used for construction of rental housing at a cost of $221,200. The others, 46 lots will be sold to builders and individuals for residential construction. The 20 houses to be built include four two-bed units and 16 three-bedroom houses and rentals will average $58 a month.

Five-Year Building Plan In East Germany Failure

BERLIN, April 1 (Reuters) — Communist East Germany's attempt to introduce a "five-year plan" into the building industry has turned into a costly failure.

Builders put up buildings without knowing what they are supposed to look like when completed.

Late delivery of state-approved plans for buildings is to blame. It has resulted in hundreds of thousands of dollars in losses, high costs and long months of unemployment for East German construction workers.

Government officials claimed that the economic five-year plan which started last year would turn the country into "one big building site."

But the economic editor of the semi-official Berliner Zeitung, after going out and seeing for himself, commented:

"Masses of masons and other building workers having involuntary holidays are an unpleasant sight in view of our huge reconstruction plans."

To trace the cause, the editor interviewed workers, architects and state officials.

Workers Grumble

Heinz Uhlemann, a bricklayer, was quoted as saying: "The basic cause of high building costs is the late delivery of plans. . . about 90 per cent of all builders beginning a building do not know how it will look when it is finished.

"The workers grumble. Skilled bricklayers who make big efforts to overfulfil their daily quotas suddenly have to take pickaxe and shovel to clear rubble or—as has also happened—to tear down walls already erected because of an unexpected change in the plans. This kills all pleasure in work."

Waldemar Alder, director of the designing office in East Berlin—where hundreds of designers, architects and engineers work on the five-year-plans—said this year's building projects could not be carried out smoothly.

He explained that in the preparation of a building project under East Germany's planned economy, there are three stages: a preliminary project, a final project and then the plans. Builders can't start work after either the preliminary or after the final project. They need the plans, and only 10 per cent of these for buildings to be erected this year are ready.

Sees Little Hope Strike Averted

MONTREAL, April 1—(CP)—R. Kent Rowley, Canadian director of the United Textile Workers of America (A.F.L.) Monday night said he saw little hope of averting a wage-strike of some 6,000 Dominion Textile Company workers scheduled for midnight tonight unless the Provincial Government intervenes.

The workers, from plants in Montreal and Valleyfield, Que., are asking a 21-cent an hour increase. The company originally offered seven cents and a provincial arbitration board recommended 13 cents.

At a meeting with union and government representatives Monday night, the company boosted its offer to a 10 per cent increase, five per cent of which would be retroactive to last September when the contract ran out and five per cent to be offered on signature of a new contract.

The offer, termed by the company "an extreme one in view of drastic business conditions," was rejected by the union.

Mr. Rowley described Monday's meeting as concluding "without any appreciable progress."

He said the union would hold meetings in Montreal and Valleyfield tonight but that "it would appear that the strike will begin at midnight."

Report TLC Preparing Organization Drive

TORONTO, April 1—(CP)—A Toronto paper says today that the Trades and Labor Congress has "opened the door to a major organization drive among federal government employees."

In a newspage story, the paper says:

"The Congress has set up a permanent committee on government employees' problems which, in effect, will become the bargaining agent for tens of thousands of federal government employees across Canada."

Bequest Gives St. Paul's Anglican Church New Floor

MARMORA, April 1 (ENS). — Work has recently been completed on the installing of a tile floor and a rich Wilton rug in the sanctuary and aisles of St. Paul's Anglican Church, Marmora. Such an accomplishment was made possible through the generosity of relatives and close friends of the late Dr. and Mrs. Hamilton Crawford. The bequest was entrusted to the rector, Canon J. M. Brownlie, in appreciation of many kindnesses to them and in loving memory of them both." The entire floor of the nave has been relaid with plywood, then covered with tile squares in keeping with the decorative scheme of the church's interior. The entire sanctuary and aisle are covered with deep piled Wilton.

The members of the congregation are proud of the church's interior and realize that with due care the floor and carpeting will endure for many years. The work was carried out by a Peterborough firm.

Ask Legislature Curb Blacklisting Powers of Teachers

TORONTO, April 2. (CP)—Changes in legislation which gives the Ontario Teachers' Federation power to blacklist school boards are asked in a brief issued by the Ontario Urban and Rural School Trustees' Association. The brief, released Tuesday, will be circulated to all school boards. Its suggestions probably will be the main topic discussed at the June convention of the association. It marked another development in a continuing battle between teachers and school boards over salary demands.

The brief specifically asked for abolition of the closed-shop principle and the check-off system of dues and abolition of a clause in the Ontario Teaching Profession Act of 1944 which gives a teacher being disciplined the chance of seeing the charge and answering it in writing before the federation files it with a board.

It also asked adjustment of blacklisting powers. Blacklisting was defined as the power of the federation to forbid its members to take positions with boards with which it was displeased. The brief contended that any board might find itself in the federation's bad books at any time and over any matter.

Used Illegally

Blacklisting, the brief charged, has been used illegally by the Ontario Secondary School Teachers' Federation. Secondary school teachers were said to be advised on a pink slip that if they take positions with banned boards they will lose the support of the federation.

The pink slip action, said under way at Hamilton, Kingston and Stratford, has brought about retaliation. The London school board has refused to hire any secondary school teachers who have left a blacklisted city.

Incorrect Impression

Nora Hodgins, secretary of the Ontario Teachers Federation, said the brief gave an incorrect impression.

"There are more than 4,000 school boards in the province and some 27,000 teachers," she said. "In the eight years of the Federation exactly two school boards have been blacklisted because they refused to meet the Federation in negotiations."

Miss Hodgins said some of the five teachers' federations affiliated with the Parent Association have sent out letters advising teachers if they take positions in certain cities they will go there without assistance from the Federation because no satisfactory terms have been reached in negotiations.

"That wasn't a blacklist," she said. "It was a letter of dissociation."

Anglo-Egyptian Talks Result In Agreement

CAIRO, April 2 (Reuters) — Recent talks between Egyptian and British officials here on the shape of future negotiations to end their dispute have resulted in agreement, the independent newspaper Al Ahram said today.

The main problem still to be overcome before full-scale negotiations begin is the exchange of formal commitments by each country of the major grounds for compromise, the paper said. When this stage is reached, it will mark "a half-way point to final agreement."

Since Saturday British ambassador Sir Ralph Stevenson has met several times with Foreign Minister Abdel Khalek Hassouna Pasha. No official statement on the talks has been made.

The metings are regarded as the preliminary to a final solution to Egypt's demands—that the British evacuate the Suez Canal zone and that the adjoining Sudan be incorporated under Egyptian rule.

Make Offer

Britain is said to agree to a withdrawal of troops if Egypt will set up a western-approved Middle East defence pact to guard the vital Canal zone.

Egypt, however, says the two questions should not be discussed together.

The Sudan, now jointly ruled by Britain and Egypt, should be allowed to settle its future by plebisicte, Egyptian officials say, predicting the vote would result in union with Egypt.

Britain has traditionally held that the Sudan should eventually be completely self-governing.

Full-scale negotiations are not expected to begin until after the May 18 elections, which Premier Hilay Pasha hopes will give him a firm parliamentary backing.

Lamport Plans Proper Welcome

TORONTO, April 2 (CP). — Mayor Allan Lamport said today Toronto will give a "proper welcome" Friday to Governor-General Vincent Massey.

"We are going to give the Governor-General a rousing reception Friday—not like Montreal and Ottawa, where he was treated most rudely by the mayors," the mayor said.

He said Mayor Charlotte Whitton of Ottawa and Mayor Camillien Houde of Montreal have been "most remiss" in not showing courtesy to Mr. Massey on the occasions he had been in their cities since elevation to his high office.

"Toronto is above that sort of thing," he said. "We will show our loyalty to the symbol which the Governor-General represents, and leave all the political and individual prejudices out of it."

A civic reception wil be held in the council chamber.

Wild Swan Has Role In Film Board Movie

PORT ROWAN, Ont., April 2—(CP)— Yappy, a wild swan, got caught in a muskrat trap on his annual flight to the Arctic circle and is likely to find himself in the movies.

Trapper Len Pretty found Yappy in the trap. The swan "hissed and yapped and threatened" when he was released but was too weak to strike at the trapper or fly away.

Mr. Pretty took him to Charles Reeves, keeper of a game preserve at Long Point last Monday. Today Yappy was feeling better after a diet of bread and milk.

Conservation officer Jack Allan said Yappy may be strong enough soon to rejoin a flock in flight. But before he goes, the swan is scheduled to appear in a National Film Board movie which has arranged to take pictures on the game preserve.

May Lose Victory

Fears Wage Demands In U.S. May Bring Inflation—Howe

OTTAWA, April 2 (CP) — Trade Minister Howe Tuesday warned that wage demands by United States steel workers might start a chain reaction in Canada that could throw away victory over inflation.

He told delegates to the National Federation of Liberal Women that Canada appears to have inflation licked. The cost-of-living index report, due in a few days, will show that prices have been pushed back to last August's levels.

A further reduction could be expected the following month. The two reductions might mean a two points drop in theindex.

"The cost of living is well under control but with one reservation," Mr. Howe said. "Organized labor can upset the applecart. There are one or two disturbing situations outside of Canada which may spread into Canada."

Wages demands of the type made by United States steel workers could lead to price increases.

The Canadian economy was almost ready for anything if only labor could be counselled to use "moderation".

"Labor has not done too badly in the last few years . . . It does not seem necessary that labor should try to get extraordinary gains at this time."

He said the government was justified in not imposing price control. Inflation was curbed by tightening credit, increasing excise taxes and other ways.

The government's anti-price-fixing legislation also brought no calamity to the retail trade as the opposition forecast when the bill was introduced.

Senator J. Gordon Fogo, president of the National Liberal Federation of Canada, also spoke. He said last week's Progressive Conservative Association announced no policy because "it has no fixed policy at the present time."

He said George Nowlan, president of the Progressive Conservative Association, covered up this situation by saying no policy statement would be made so the Liberals couldn't steal it.

No Secret Deals Pearson Says

Confidential Talks Good Thing Statement To House

OTTAWA, April 2. (CP) — External Affairs Minister Pearson said Tuesday that Canada has no "secret" or "under-the-table" diplomatic deals with other countries.

He suggested that the world could benefit from "confidential" diplomacy. Confidential discussions in place of the "headline and housetop diplomacy" of the Ruslans could result in more progress at the United Nations.

Speaking in a foreign-affairs debate, Mr. Pearson said:

"There is not much secret diplomacy these days about the United Nations. Possibly we might make more progress if we had a little more confidential discussion there.

"Open covenants, yes; but open covenants occasionally confidentially negotiated, after the principles and purposes of the negotiations have been made known to our own people.

"I am not sure that would not be more effective and far better for peace and good understanding than the headline and housetop diplomacy on which the Russian Communists, who now are the staunchest believers in open diplomacy, insist."

Has Secret Negotiations

He made it clear that Canada, while concluding no secret deals with other countries, does conduct confidential diplomatic discussions.

He referred to a statement made earlier in the debate by George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader. Mr. Drew had asked if Canada knew of an arrangement between Britain and the United States last year concerning the possible extension of the Korean fighting to Red bases on the China coast.

Allied Troops Hurl Back Reds

SEOUL, Korea, April 2 (AP)— United States Sabre pilots today destroyed one MIG-15 and damaged two others of a Chinese Communist Air Force that showed little desire to fight after the rough handling it got Tuesday.

The air force raised Tuesday's MIG casualty total by two more damaged, confirmed after evaluation of gun camera films. These raised the day's toll to 10 MIGs shot down, three probably destroyed and 12 damaged. It was the second biggest daily bag of the war for the Sabre pilots.

The Red plane shot down today was in a 10-minute fight between 33 Sabres and about 30 MIGs over North Korea just before dusk.

Sabre pilots traded shots with MIG fliers at other times during the day but the MIGs dodged back into their Manchurian sanctuary rather than fight.

Counter-attacking allied troops Tuesday night and early today hurled back about 1,500 Chinese Reds who hit United Nations lines on the western front four miles from the Panmunjom truce tents.

The troops fought hand-to-hand at several points. The Chinese attacked with bugles blowing under the light of red and white flares after four probing jabs had been repulsed. The Allies withdrew, gathered for a counter-attack, then drove the Communists back to their own lines. A front-line officer said Red casualties appeared "severe."

Williams, Coleman Pass Military Medicals

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., April 2 —(AP)—Ted Williams of Boston Red Sox—highest salaried player in baseball—and Gerry Coleman of New York Yankees today passed physical examinations for return to duty as marine air corps captains.

Capt. J. C. Early, senior medical officer at the Jacksonville naval air station, made the announcement following a two-hour examination.

THE GENERAL REPORTS—Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, supreme commander of the Allied Powers in Europe, reports on the first-year progress of the NATO military organiaztion from his SHAPE headquarters near Paris. The report was simultaneously transmitted by radio and televison to all 14 NATO nations.

U.S. Must Continue To Help Europe Rearm Message From Eisenhower

PARIS, April 2. (AP)—Gen. Dwight Eisenhower said today the United States needs to continue its support of European rearmament—but must get more results for the money. The general's opinion was stated in his first annual report as commander of the North Atlantic Treaty defence forces. "Europe must become self-sustaining in military manufacturers at the earliest possible date," he said. "America cannot continue to be the primary source of munitions for the entire free world.

"It would be fatuous for anyone to assume that the taxpayers of America will continue to pour money and resources into Europe unless encouraged by steady progress toward mutual co-operation and full effectiveness."

But the General left no doubt about his belief in N.A.T.O. Without it, he said, the future of Canada and the United States "could promise ever-greater danger of attack, requiring endless sacrifices and defence costs which would ultimately break their economies."

Collective Security

Eisenhower presented a 11,000-word report to the 14 nations aligned in defence against Communism.

"The purpose of our governments (in forming N.A.T.O.) was a very simple one—to retain the peace through establishment of a sound collective security."

Complete success is "still a long way off," he said, adding:

"On the discouraging side, for example, we have had the strained economies in Europe threatening and slowing previously predicted schedules. We know that, in spite of the expenditure of vast sums of money in the United States and elsewhere, the flow of equipment has not been as rapid as previously predicted.

"In Korea, Indo-China and Malaya, N.A.T.O. nations of Europe and in America are carrying very heavy burdens; burdens that are costly, both in blood and treasure. They have a direct effect upon our efforts here to establish a secure defensive arrangement in western Europe.

Morale Much Higher

"On the encouraging side, there has been almost a revolutionary rise in the morale of the armed forces. Their training is efficient, directed by some of the most experienced soldiers, sailors and airmen alive today. In each case, in each unit, there is a growing confidence that they can do their job."

Their job was a tough one. The report said the soldiers on the Senate Plans Spending Inquiry

OTTAWA, April 2 (CP). —The Senate finance committee today adopted a five-point program of inquiry into government income and expenditure at all levels and the effect of taxes on the average family income group in Canada.

Senator Gordon Isnor (L., Nova Scotia) suggested the committee go specifically into labor costs and related productivity and its effect on the cost of living, but the committee left the question open for possible discussion later.

The program of inquiry, to be undertaken by the committee after the Easter recess of parliament and aimed basically at probing taxes, includes:

1. Investigation of the combined revenues and expenditures of federal, provincial and municipal governments.

2. Determine if possible how combined taxes of all governments affect various income groups, probably centring on those in the $3,000, $5,000 and $7,000-a-year brackets.

3. Investigation of up-to-date figures on Canada's gross national production as related to the increase in actual physical volume of goods to determine the part played by inflation in the increase in gross national production figures.

4. Investigation of the current cost-of-living index as compared with the new consumer's price index which is to become Canada's living chart this year.

Senator Thomas Crerar (L., Manitoba), 75-year-old chairman of the committee which last session prepared a report strongly urging government economies, said the committee's terms of reference would probably have to be widened if it wanted to go specifically into rising labor costs.

Senator Ralph Horner (L., Saskatchewan) agreed with Senator Isnor regarding a labor-cost inquiry and said the appointed members of the Senate were in a better position to carry it out than elected members of the Commons.

Radar Warning System Against Air Attack Put Into Operation In Western Europe

FONTAINEBLEAU, France, April 2—(AP)—A radar warning system against air attack covering eastern France, Luxembourg, Belgium and the Netherlands was put in operation today by Allied Central European Air Forces.

Lt.-Gen. Lauris Norstad, Commander-in-Chief of the Central European Air Forces of General Eisenhower, announced organization of the radar screen at a press conference.

Norstad, whose command includes Canadian, British, United States, French, Belgian and Dutch units, said progress in knitting the different nationalities to work together had been made in the last year, but "we still cannot carry out our assigned mission"—that of handling the Soviet Air Force in case of attack.

He said deliveries of aircraft were on schedule but, "I would rather have a few more airfields than additional squadrons right now. You don't build airfields overnight."

The radar network is co-ordinated with a similar system in Western Germany.

Sutton Given Minimum Of 30 Years

Judge Voices Regret He Can't Sentence Robber To Death

NEW YORK, April 2 (AP)— Bank Robber Willie Sutton was sentenced today as a fourth offender to 30 years to life imprisonment. The judge said he wished he could sentence Sutton to death.

Said Judge Louis Goldstein in sentencing Sutton as a fourth offender: "I only regret that the law prevents me from sentencing you to death." He had pleaded guilty to a gun-carrying charge.

Sutton stood, blinking and handcuffed to two guards but made no comment during a 15-minute castigation delivered by the judge.

Second Conviction

Sutton and his henchman, Thomas Kling, 45, were convicted Tuesday of the $64,000 holdup of a trust company here in 1950.

They each face up to 30 years or more on this verdict. They will be sentenced later.

Meanwhile, Kling is awaiting trial on charge of illegal possession of a gun. Like Sutton, the gun was found in his possession when he was arrested last February.

Steel Parley To Start Again

NEW YORK, April 2—(AP)— A steel-industry spokesman said today that negotiations between the industry and the United Steelworkers' union (C.I.O.) will open here Thursday. They have been delayed for the last three days.

The announcement came as negotiating teams for both sides were standing by waiting for a call into session.

The union negotiators came to New York to begin joint sessions on Monday at the invitation of the industry, but the sessions were postponed.

Abbott Refuses Change Policy

TORONTO, April 2 (CP)— Toronto Board of Control was told today that the Federal government doesn't plan to change its municipal tax policies.

Finance Minister Abbott so advised the Board in a letter which was tabled today.

Meanwhile Mayor Allan Lamport announced Tuesday that he will see Mr. Abbott Thursday to urge payment of municipal taxes on post-offices and other Federally-owned buildings.

Mr. Abbott's letter said the Federal government already makes grants covering local improvements equal to taxes paid by private interests. When new property is acquired in a municipality, full taxes are paid the first year and in the succeeding three years 75, 50 and 25 per cent of taxes are paid.

Newfoundland Senator Herman Quinton Dies

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld., April 2 — (CP).—Senator Herman W. Quinton, prominent in Newfoundland's turbulent political life for many years and member of her first provincial government, died today. He was 56.

Senator Quinton was twice a member of the Newfoundland House of Assembly before the old colony ran into financial difficulties and relinquished responsible government in 1933.

Then he served as commissioner for health and welfare, home affairs and education during the years that Newfoundland was ruled by a commission government.

He was one of the two commissioners who declared themselves in favor of confederation between Newfoundland and Canada during a heated controversy. When the island threw in her lot with the Dominion in 1949, he was appointed Finance Minister in Premier Joseph Smallwood's first Liberal government.

Kefauver Gets Win Over Senator Kerr, Victory Impressive

OMAHA, April 2. (AP)—Senator Robert Taft of Ohio drove to a hard-fought victory today over General Eisenhower on the basis of mounting returns from Nebraska's gruelling Republican presidential primary. With three-fourths of the state's 2,058 precincts counted, the trend clearly indicated that only a political bombshell could reverse the slow but steady flow of votes toward Taft. With 1,512 precincts counted, Taft's lead of 12,500 votes over Eisenhower was roughly the plurality given him in Omaha.

In the Democratic presidential contest, lanky Senator Estes Kefauver of Tennessee scored an impressive victory over Senator Robert Kerr of Oklahoma. Kerr conceded his defeat early today, thanked the voters of Nebraska for courtesies, and then said his defeat would not halt him in his fight for the Democratic presidential nomination. But the defeat was a jolt—because it came in his first entry into a primary contest.

The latest rundown, based on 1,542 of 2,058 precincts:

Republican—Taft 53,705; Eisenhower 41,225; Stassen 35,997; Mrs. Mary Kenny (stand-in for Gen. Douglas MacArthur) 6,615.

Democrats 1,483 precincts — Kefauver 44,690; Kerr 29, 439.

Taft, whose fortunes dropped to a low ebb with his defeat in New Hampshire and Minnesota primaries, took 24 of Wisconsin's 30 convention delegates. Governor Earl Warren of California, a part-time campaigner in the Wisconsin race, won six delegates. Stassen, who won the Wisconsin primary in 1948, lost out everywhere.

Among the Democrats, Senator Estes Kefauver of Tenessee rode to a landslide victory, taking all 28 conventfon votes and nearly 85 per cent of the party's total state-wide vote. His only opponents were Jerome Fox and Charles Broughton, politically unknown in the national scene.

The vote was exceptionally heavy in Wisconsin and Nebraska—two of the 16 states which hold primaries in election years with the idea of giving voters an opportunity of indicating preference for presidential candidates. Delegates elected to go to national party nominating conventions in Chicago in July are not always bound to support the candidates they backed in the primaries. However, there are generally expected to do so until released by their candidate.

Russ Problem Under Review

MUNSAN, Korea, April 2 (AP) —The Russian problem shifts to a higher level in Korean truce talks Thursday but the Allies announced it won't make any difference.

In their final word on the subject, Allied staff officers told the Communists today that U.N. negotiators at any level will not accept Soviet Russia as a "neutral nation" to help police an armistice.

A sub-committee of top-ranking truce delegates will tackle the question at 11 a.m. Thursday (9 p.m. tonight E.S.T.) at the Reds' request.

It will be the first time the subdelegation on truce supervision has discussed Russia. The Communists first proposed Russia as a neutral supervising nation at a staff meeting Feb. 16. The subcommittee of delegates last met Jan. 27, when it reached an impasse on whether Reds would be permitted to rebuild airfields.

Staff officers spent an hour on Wednesday repeating well-worn arguments about Russia and the name to be used to designate Korea.

6,000 Textile Workers Strike In Quebec Plants

MONTREAL, April 2 (CP) — Some 6,000 textile employees here and at Valleyfield, Que., are on strike today, seeking higher wages.

The strike went into effect at midnight, E.S.T., and closed down five Montreal mills of the Dominion Textile Company and a subsidiary company at Valleyfield, Montreal Cottons, Ltd.

The strikers are members of the United Textile Workers of America (A.F.L.)

Shortly after midnight, some 200 men started picketing the plant at Valleyfield, some 35 miles south of Montreal.

Police said a number of stones were thrown and that most of the windows on one side of the plant were smashed. No arrests were made but police were posted around the plant to prevent a recurrence of the outbreak.

No Provocation

Informed on the situation, a company spokesman said in Montreal that there was "no provocation for this. It was an obvious piece of organized violence intended to set off the strike with a bang."

There was no violence reported from the Montreal plants, most of which had been working on a curtailed week due to lack of orders.

In a statement following the strike, the company said that "the entire textile industry in Canada, and throughout the world, is in the grip of a serious depression.

Final approval of strike action came at meetings in the centres affected Tuesday night. There was no immediate union statement.

1,000 Homeless In Flood At Medicine Hat

MEDICINE HAT, Alta., April 2 (CP).—Homesick evacuees Tuesday added to the havoc in flood-soaked Medicine Hat while a temporary respite from spring run-off water flooding hinged on the hope for cool weather

City police had to be stationed in the flood-battered 25-block area Tuesday to halt attempts of many of the 305 evacuated families to return home.

Meanwhile, five more families were evacuated from the flooded district and a new threat, though still remote, was seen in the one-foot rise of the South Saskatchewan River.

More than 1,000 persons have been left homeless, 25 city blocks have been inundated and mills, factories and one school have been closed. Two flour mills bordering the rampaging Seven Persons Creek went back into operation Tuesday. One company ferried employees to work by truck through fender-deep water.

Flood Committee

Late Tuesday night the city set up a nine-man flood committee and established a flood relief fund objective of $200,000.

Evacuees started their back-home movement after reports that the twisting Seven Persons Creek was receding. The creek dropped two feet early Tuesday morning, then climbed four inches and dropped back to its earlier level.

But a high of 50 degrees was forecast for the area today and officials thought this could easily cause a swift rise in the water level.

The downtown business section of this city of 16,000 is relatively safe. It is protected by high banks on one side of the South Saskatchewan and is across the city from the flooding Seven Persons Creek.

Most of the evacuees were being cared for by friends or relatives. Others were under the care of the Red Cross and other organizations. Welfare officials cited one case of an unidentified city policeman who had taken 14 strangers into his small home.

Woman Agrees Son Belongs To Germans

FRANKFORD, Germany, April 2 —(Reuters)—A German couple Tuesday won their struggle to keep their foster-son after his mother, now living in Canada, had written, "the title 'Mother' really belongs to you."

The couple, Mr. and Mrs. Ludwig Hertrich of Muelheim, near here, have looked after the boy, Guenther, 6, since he was six months old.

Mrs. Velta Margarieta Zvaigne of Woodbine Cres., Hamilton, Ont., wrote to the Hertrichs giving them her blessing when she heard the International Refugee Organization sought permission to send Guenther to the United States.

"You have been able to give Guenther a home and love, which I have not been able to do for him," she wrote.

Mrs. Zvaigne, a Latvian, came to West Germany in 1945. Seven days after Guenther was born she left him in a children's home, went to Canada and married.

Queen Juliana

Modern Monarch

Queen Juliana is a modern monarch in every sense of the word.

Tuesday night she slept at the Jupiter Hotel, in a bare room with no bath or washstand. The floor was bare; the bedstead simple. Outside were all the noises of a busy international airport.

The Royal four-engined Constellation landed here early last night, first stopover of the North American tour that will end in Ottawa at the birthplace of Princess Margaret, third of her four daughters.

Her free and easy gait during her stopover would indicate that her visit may overshadow the informality of the visit to Washington last fall of Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip.

Shortly after she was escorted to her room, she appeared in the hotel lobby with her lady in waiting and asked the manager for directions to the "Big Dipper," a bar and restaurant as luxurious as the hotel is bare.

The manager told her it was just across the street and offered to escort her there. The Queen remained at the Big Dipper about half an hour and then returned to the hotel alone, waving off the Mounties who moved to form an escort behind her.

Council Terms Open To Misinterpretation

Firemen say that one clause in the city council's terms relating the salary section of the 1952 working agreement might be misinterpreted by the public.

Text of that clause is: "That 18 per cent be applied across the board to the basic salaries of all firemen."

George J. Gimblett, secretary-treasurer of the Fire Fighters' Association, said today it related only to cost of living bonus. Council, he said, made no offer to incorporate any part of the cost of living bonus into basic salaries. In the meantime until settlement is reached, evidently by arbitration, the 1951 working agreement remains effective.

"If Canada did know, Mr. Drew had suggested, parliament should have been informed of the arrangement "in complete detail."

Mr. Pearson suggested that would be a "most unusual and unfortunate way in which to conduct diplomacy." Canada could not expect foreign governments to deal with her in complete confidence if such disclosures were made in parliament.

The Canadian government did know of the London-Washington discussions, but if they were to be made public that should have been done by the governments concerned.

While the discussions were going on, Canada made known her views to Britain and to the United States—that there should be no retaliatory action against China without consultation unless the safety of the troops made such action essential and time and circumstances did not permit consultation.

Other Points

In a 95-minute speech, Mr. Pearson made these other points:

1. The North Atlantic Treaty Organization is aiming to build up enough armed strength by the end of 1954 to halt an invasion of Europe. The Alliance expects to have a land force of between 80, 110 and 115 divisions by that time. The goal of 50 divisions by the end of this year is "firm;" goals for 1953 and 1954 are subject to review.

2. N.A.T.O. asked Canada to contribute $475,000,000 in mutual aid this year, but the government whittled the amount to $325,000,000.

3. Since 1945, Canada has extended $2,430,000,000 of mutual aid to other countries.

4. For the next three years, Canada has no further military scommitments to N.A.T.O. beyond the already-announced intention of supplying an army brigade and 12 squadrons of R.C.A.F. fighters.

5. Canada has no new or additional commitments in Korea, where the United Nations still hopes to repel aggression to prove to the aggressor that it does not pay.

6. The question of whether or not Formosa should be handed to Red China should be left open until steps are taken to settle Asian problems.

7. The time has not yet arrived to consider the establishment of a Pacific pact.

In the debate, to be resumed today Stanley Knowles (C.C.F.—Winnipeg North Centre) called for support of his party's motion of non-confidence in the government.

The motion charges the government with "failure" to take the initiative in implementing sections of the Atlantic Pact dealing with non-military economic co-operation.

Stalin's Latest Words Encouraging–Attlee

LONDON, April 2 (AP). —Labor leader Clement Attlee said today in a cautious comment that Prime Minister Stalin's latest statement on the international situation is "very encouraging."

Arriving by plane at Prestwick, Scotland, after a two-day visit to the United States, Attlee told reporters: "I will not say more until I have time to study it."

In a reply Tuesday to questions from a group of United States newspaper and radio executives, Stalin said he believes a third world war is no nearer than it was in 1949.

Officials Expect Steel Strike

WASHINGTON, April 2 (AP)— A country-wide steel strike in the United States next week appears inevitable today unless the government can block it either by seizing the industry or getting a court injunction against the union.

Price director Ellis Arnall explained the government's attitude this way to newspapermen:

"I am very, very fearful we are going to have a steel strike. That is, if everyone continues as adamant as they appear to be now. In other words I don't see how it can be averted unless someone gives. I have no reason to feel optimistic."

Arnall's comments came after long talks with President Benjamin Fairless of the U. S. Steel Corp., the biggest producer. Fairless was pleading for price increases to offset government-suggested pay boosts for Philip Murray's United Steelworkers of America (C.I.O.)

A strike of 650,000 workers in basic steel is set for next Tuesday. Negotiations which were to have started in New York Monday, never got under way and await "further developments" from Washington. Murray called the delay "unwarranted."

Arnall gave every indication of standing fast against giving the steel industry any special price consideration. He said his policy continues to be that "any industry will get what it's entitled to.—and no more."

On the Allied side are fewer than 50 divisions and 4,000 planes to be ready by the end of this year.

"The Soviet army casts its shadow over the length and breadth of Europe," he said. "The satellite countries have increased the size and combat effectiveness of their armed forces. Reports from behind the iron curtain indicate that the restiveness of these captive peoples has led to even tighter, tougher, more brutal measures of state control. The familiar technique of the purge, deliberate terror, and intimidation has forced a measure of unity —however unhappy — in this area. . . .

Slim People Less Likely To Get Cancer Doctors Say

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE

CHICAGO, April 2 (AP) — Keeping slim apparently is some insurance against getting cancer.

Overweight people are more prone to cancer and other diseases than normal weights, life insurance figures show.

The picture was described today to newspapermen on an American Cancer Society tour by Dr. Albert Tannenbaum of the department of cancer research, Medical Research Institute, Michael Reese Hospital.

The abundant diet, especially in calories, seems to make it easier for cancers to start, he said. Food doesn't cause cancer, but it may modify or influence the cancer process.

Cancers take longer to appear when animals eat diets below the accepted health minimums in calories, fat, protein, vitamins and minerals. But if human's don't get enough energy foods, vitamins or other things, they become prey to other diseases, especially infections.

So the best bet seems to be a good balanced diet designed to keep normal weight for your own height, build, and age.

Once cancer has started, diets to lose weight are bad. Cancers tend to rob the rest of the body of foods, and insufficient diet hurts general health all the more.

Churches Ask Ottawa Give More Aid To DP's

TORONTO, April 2 — (CP-.— Canadian Council of Churches will ask the Federal Government to help settle displaced persons in Canada who do not fulfil the ordinary requirements of the Department of Labor and Health.

The Council said today after a meeting that persons in whom the World Council of Churches is especially interested could be regarded as subjects for special care and asylum in Canada.

Council praised the government's immigration policy and recommended that it give "additional care to providing housing accommodation and employment upon arrival."

Stock Market Prices Climb In Dealings

TORONTO, April 2 (CP) — Stock market prices turned upward today in early afternoon dealings.

Trading was again heavy with western oil speculation dominating. High Crest Oil was again a standout as more than 220,000 shares changed hands while the stock added pennies. Industrial dealing spread slightly from leading issues. Volume for the first three hours was 2,790,000 shares.

Papers and steels led industrials upward with a scattered list of fractional advances. Utilities, constructions and retail stores also drew firm support but banks slipped. Brazilian Traction was strong as it climbed more than a point in active trading.

Western oil gains ranged from pennies to about 50 cents. Calvan Consolidated, Canadian Atlantic, Del Rio, Home Oil, National Petroleum, Canadian Williston and Spooner pushed upward.

Base metals were firm as Barvue, East Sullivan, Emerald Glacier, Golden Manitou, International Nickel, Sherritt-Gordon and Steep Rock traded higher.

Senior golds were strong, Dome, Malartic, McIntyre, Teck Hughes and Wright-Hargreaves climbed moderately. Secondary issues showed little trend.

Extend Zoo

WINNIPEG—(CP)—Extension of Assiniboine Park Zoo to include "as far as practicable" all species of animals native to Manitoba was urged in the Parks Board's annual report. Also recommended was preparation of an over-all plan for zoo expansion with improvements in housing of the animals.

United Counties Council Advised To Prepare For Women Jurors

COBOURG, April 2 (ENS) — Northumberland and Durham Counties Council met yesterday for its second session of the year. Usually, unless there is a special session called, council meets in January, June and November. At the January session this year it was decided to hold four sessions a year and instead of getting five days' pay for four days' session, council members will be paid only for the actual number of days in which council sits.

A number of communications from departments of the provincial government and from other county councils were read and referred to the appropriate committees.

Included was a request from Bowmanville registry office asking for certain improvements; referred to the special property committee. The town of Campbellford protested the connecting link in the county road system being Raney street instead of its former location, Front street. The latter thoroughfare was paved and for other reasons was more suitable as a connecting link. Council referred it to the road and bridge committee. A resolution from Lincoln County Council in regard to the high cost of education to local municipalities was referred to the bylaws committee. Several requests for grants were turned over to the finance committee. Ontario County Council's resolution which recommended a standardization of assessment rates on industrial buildings and which asked for more supervisory power for county assessors over local assessors, was referred to the equalization committee.

Better Fire Protection

A letter from the Fire Marshall's office had some recommendations for better fire protection at the Counties Home for the Aged. It pointed out that some of the major recommendations made by the Fire Marshall in 1949 had not been carried out. The installation of an automatic fire alarm was very important, the letter said, as early detection of a fire prevented loss of life from smoke and hot gasses. Exit facilities could be improved. The six-inch main from the town of Cobourg did not have enough pressure for fire purposes but if a large reservoir were kept underground the six-inch main could be used to keep it filled up. The fire alarm system at the Counties Home should be linked with the alarm system at Cobourg fire hall. The letter was referred to the County Property Committee.

Peterborough county council asked that the Department of Highways take over the Cavan boundary road, being a stretch of five miles, and the resolution to that effect was referred to the road and bridge committee of Northumberland and Durham counties council. A letter from the inspector of legal offices advised council that since there were to be women jurors by next spring assizes, that council should see that there was appropriate accommodation for women on jury duty. A request from the family court committee for a yearly appropriation of $6,050 for 1952, was referred to the finance committee.

Road Expenditures

Expenditures this year on the counties road system, up to the present date, were about the same as last year, it was revealed by the report of the road superintendent, Jack Jordan. The cost of the winter's work was well within the estimates. Tenders had been let for the new Factory Creek bridge in Cobourg and work would start in June. Total expenditure on counties roads, maintenance and construction, up to February 29 this year, was $46,535.

Work on the reassessment of the counties was proceeding satisfactorily, it was pointed out by Dick Hall, county assessor. Darlington township was the testing ground and although the assessment had been increased from two and three-quarter million to four million and there had been 163 appeals, the reduction only amounted to $1,000, although four appeals were going on to the county judge. In fact some of the appellants had their assessment increased. Twelve municipalities were in the process of being reassessed, six more would be started in the next few months and nine would be completed this year. He estimated that another three years would see the whole job done.

Although the town of Cobourg asked for $2,000 to be added to the figure covered by the lease of county offices in the town hall, counties council decided to stick to the original figure of $1,500 and not pay any more.

Council then adjourned until Wednesday.

Campbellford Legion Reach Bowling Final

CAMPBELLFORD, April 2 — (ENS).—The boys of Branch 103, Canadian Legion, covered themselves with glory in qualifying for the Provincial Legion bowling finals. Playing in Tweed on Saturday in district finals, after winning in the zone play-offs in Brighton some time ago, they were able to finish in third place, thus enabling them to go to Oshawa on April 19 to compete in the all-Ontario championship.

Teams from Oshawa, Bowmanville, Tweed, Madoc, Stirling, Brighton, Cobourg and Campbellford competed on Saturday in some stiff competitive bowling. George Bibby was high team bowler for the local Legion.

Further honor was bestowed on the local branch when Ross Taylor was victorious in the singles bowling tournament, advancing him to the Ontario championship at Oshawa. By a slim margin of 18 pins, the doubles entry of Don Holmes, and Jack Stocker were eliminated. In their first year of tournament bowling Branch 103 can well be proud of their record. The following comrades were members of the winning team Saturday: G. Bibby, J. Stocker, Ross Taylor, Don Holmes, Tom Smith and L. Holmes.

Printing Firm Asks Bylaw Be Amended

COBOURG, April 2 (ENS).—The amendment to the east end residential bylaw which would permit use of Hatfield Hall school building, now unoccupied, for business offices, is being fought by residents in that area. Some time ago a Port Hope advertising firm sought to acquire the former Hatfield Hall for its offices and also to instal printing equipment from its parent plant in Port Hope. However, since there is a residential bylaw for that area, a request was made that it be amended.

Council at its meeting Monday night discussed the matter at great length with the solicitor acting for the east end residents, and deferred action to a later date.

For the first five days of each week the Examiner will publish a baby picture and quote from the collection of Constance Bannister and on Saturday will publish the winning local pictures. In the Examiner's contest readers are being asked to submit baby pictures and the trick is to write a suitable caption implying what could have been on the baby's mind to create such an expressive picture. Every home where here are children has an unusual baby picture, so look over your family album, pick out and write the caption and send picture to Baby Photo Editor, Examiner, Peterborough. Pictures must be of babies two years and less. Two prizes of five dollars a week are given and a grand prize of ten dollars at end of contest.

Drunk Pleads Guilty To Third Offence

One third offender drunk and a pair of two time offenders sobered up in jail overnight from an April Fool's Day drinking spree and appeared in police court today.

Leo Emery, 49 of Bridgenorth, claimed he should not have pleaded guilty last June to having liquor in a place other than his residence. He admitted being convicted on a drunk charge in September but asked crown attorney John A. Bradshaw to reduce the charge to a second offence.

Mr. Bradshaw refused and Emery pleaded guilty. He was sentenced to three months definite and one month indefinite in Ontario Reformatory with a recommendation that he be sent to Mimico for alcoholic treatment.

John McMurray, 29, Douro township asked for an adjournment on a drunk charge alleging one prior conviction. Mr. Bradshaw said it would have to be a remand and asked for $100 bail. McMurray said that was no good to him and pleaded guilty. He was fined $50 and $2.50 costs or one month in county jail.

Thomas Steele, 37, Lakefield Highway asked for and was granted an adjournment of one week when he was charged with a second offence drunk charge.

CAMPBELLFORD, April 2 — (ENS) — Past President Arthur Loucks introduced D. H. Craighead, B.Sc., of the mathematics department of the Ryerson Institute of Technology, Toronto, on Monday, when Mr. Craighead addressed the regular meeting of the Rotary Club here. The guest spoke regarding the work of the institute.

Mr. Craighead said that the institute provides an opportunity for education and stands in relative position between high school and the university. It is, of course, concentrated on specialized fields, though some academic studies are taught.

Entrance requirements include four years' high school. Fees are nominal, an Ontario resident paying $66 a year which includes tuition, laboratory, medical, students' council, sickness and accident insurance and the student newspaper.

Designed to give the high school graduate advanced training at minimum cost, it is a government sponsored school. There are about 1,100 day students and about 2,400 night students, taught by a staff of 90 teachers. Most courses take three years.

The graduates find employment readily, and the standards are high in the 27 career courses.

After introductory remarks, Mr. Craighead showed films embracing the activities of students in architectural drafting, merchandising, industrial chemistry, costume design, electrical technology, home management, furniture design, lithography, newspaper work, jewellery arts, horology, photography and mechanical or tool design, metallurgy and welding.

Iron Ore Output At Marmora May Hit 400 Tons

Daily production of iron ore in the Marmora region may go as high as 400 tons, acording to a summary released by the Department of Mines and Technical Surveys.

The Marmora deposits— along with deposits at Calabogie, near Arnprior—gives every promise of becoming among the most important source of iron ore in Canada, say Federal mines officials.

Because of a new extraction process it is believed that about 1,000 tons of iron ore can be treated daily from the three deposits The quality of the ore is about 40 per cent.

Raise Grade

The departmental report says that tests have been made on ore samples and indicate that the ore can be brought up to a grade that will make it suitable for blast-furnace feed.

"This work is of importance in view of the increasing interest being shown in the search for iron ore deposits in various parts of Canada," says the report, "and also because many of the deposits are low grade.

After the Ungava deposits are opened up Canada will become one of the major iron producers in the world. And the Eastern Ontario iron ore production will help Canada stand on her own feet, so far as iron is concerned.

The two Calabogie deposits are being worked by the Algoma Steel Corporation and the Marmora deposit by Bethlehem Steel. Both firms are apparently attaching major importance to the finds.

The mining boom is expected to bring a new surge of business to the village of Marmora.

Leading Oil Producer In Commonwealth

LONDON, April 2 (Reuters)— Canada became the leading producer of oil in the British Commonwealth for the first time last year.

Figures released today by the Petroleum Information Burea here gave Canadian production as 6,500,000 tons—for the first time ahead of British Borneo which supplied 5,000,000 tons.

Oil production generally in the Commonwealth climbed in 1951 to almost 30 per cent more than the previous year. The total of 15,000,000 tons was more than three times as much as in 1946.

The sharp rise in Canadian output last year was due to the opening of a 1,000-mile pipeline from Alberta to the Great Lakes, it said.

This made it possible for the first time to pump Alberta's oil in bulk to Canada's main oil-consuming area in the east.

MONTREALER A SUCCESS —Montreal-born Robert Whitehead has had great success with the play series he has been staging in New York for the American National Theatre and Academy in his first year as managing director. This season A.N.T.A. has scored three hits in a row with "Golden Boy," "Mrs. McThing," and "Desire Under the Elms." He now is rehearsing the somewhat baffling play "Four Saints in Three Acts," by Gertrude Stein. He thinks the latter will be the commercial failure it was when produced but, in justice to good theatre, he thinks it should be presented again.

Explorer Hopes To Domesticate Arctic Musk Ox

NEW YORK, April 2—(AP)—An Arctic explorer plans to attempt to domesticate the nearly-extinct musk ox in New England.

John J. Teal of McGill University has received permission to trap eight musk ox calves on Ellesmere Island, in Canada's Arctic Archipelago.

He said Tuesday he will try to domesticate the animals for the Vermont Animal Research Foundation. Teal believes that if they can exist on Tundra-like, submarginal farm lands of New England, musk oxen might introduce a new factor in the area's economy.

He said musk ox is a misnomer for the animal, which is half way between a sheep and a cow.

"The meat is better than beef," Teil said, "the wool is the lightest and softest known and the milk is as good as cow's milk."

He plans to leave for the Arctic April 20 to hunt for eight calves. He said that if the musk ox can be domesticated "it will be the greatest contribution to agriculture since the taming of the cow."

The Coming Tourist Season

The Deputy Minister of Travel and Publicity for Ontario expects this to be a boom year in the tourist business, but he warned the Legislature that it will be a highly competitive year. It is likely that resort operators and others catering to tourists will face, as Mr. McCall said, a price war.

* * *

Prices for accommodation, food and services in many of the tourist areas in Ontario are much higher than in comparable regions in the United States: and sometimes what the Ontario people offer is not as good. Motel rates in Ontario, for example, are about two dollars higher than in the U.S.A. Tourist rooms in private or semi-private houses in Ontario towns on travellers' routes are a dollar or two higher than better accommodation in beautiful Vermont and New Hampshire towns. Summer cottage and hotel accommodation in some of our southern Ontario resort areas verges on the squalid—but the prices asked suggest first class room and services. Meals offered by restaurants in Ontario towns of ten to thirty thousand people are less varied, often less well prepared, and as high in price or higher than meals one can get in a New England town.

* * *

These conditions will have to change if tourist areas like the Kawarthas are to keep visitors coming back. They will have to change this year if, as the Deputy Minister of Travel and Publicity predicts, a price war develops. Prices will have to be brought into line with the kind of accommodation, services and food offered; or these will have to be brought up to the high standard of the prices. Certainly one change must be made: Ontario resort conditions must be made comparable in price and reception standards with American. In former years the American tourist got a premium on his dollar. This year he will have none, and may have to take a discount. Therefore, unless he gets his money's worth in Ontario, he will spend it in the States.

* * *

The tourist business in the Kawarthas and elsewhere throughout the Province is big business, and must be run in a businesslike way, providing the best value in a competitive market. It depends for its existence on the customer—the tourist; therefore he must be well served, at the right prices. This year American tourists will be more exacting in their requirements, more insistent on getting a good dollar's worth, than in any time since before the war. A "price war" should cause an adjustment in prices to bring them into relation with American prices. The Department's continuing effort to inspect and grade the accommodation and services offered should provide better assurance than heretofore that the tourist will get what he expects. The grading which the Government is now bringing will be by star signs displayed in front of each establishment. Three-star markings will be the highest ratings, when the system is in full effect; only the first star is being given this year.

The Nut Shell

Although it goes against the grain with us to encourage competition, we must say a good word for The Nut Shell, the excellent paper which is being produced by the pupils of Prince of Wales School. The March issue, which we have at hand, is the best and brightest school paper that we have ever seen; we feel that we may speak with some authority, for we once edited a school paper and had plenty of experience in that difficult field. Not only is The Nut Shell nicely printed; it is also well and concisely written, and we were particularly impressed by a short essay by Karen Albarda, describing the school which she used to attend in Holland. We are also greatly taken with a piece which Bobby Stenson has written about his cat; we give it in full and in the capital letters which this hard-hitting young Hemingway thinks suitable to his prose style:

I LIKE TO PLAY WITH MY KITTEN. I LIKE HER. I LIKE TO GIVE HER MILK. I LIKE TO TIE A PAPER ON A STRING AND RUN WITH IT. I LIKE TO PAT HER. SHE LIKES ME.

A boy who can get down to essentials as quickly as that while in Grade Five ought to be a good reporter when he grows up.

Not long ago there was some public controversy about "frills" in education. Some people might call The Nut Shell a frill. But we would not be of their number. We consider this little paper a first-rate venture in the truest sort of education.

Cheesed Off?

Ontario cheese is caught in a trap. The British market has snapped shut on it; the United States market is not now available; Canadians themselves do not eat all their factories can produce, and they are being beguiled by private importers to eat cheaper New Zealand cheese. There are thirty million pounds of cheese in storage in Canada as this production year begins.

Ontario produces about three-quarters of Canada's cheese and accounts for almost all the export. Last year the Ontario producers organized their own marketing board, established a central warehouse at Belleville, and negotiated a contract with the United Kingdom for twenty million pounds of cheese for the British market. This year the United Kingdom will not buy any Canadian cheese at all; whatever she imports is being got from the sterling countries, chiefly New Zealand, which has a long-term contract.

So the Ontario cheese producers' marketing board is now sitting with its hands tied, ready to market thirty million pounds of cheese but without a market. At the same time, private trade in Canada is importing New Zealand cheese at lower prices, even over the top of a one-cent tariff barrier, than the Ontario producers will sell it. The corollary to this situation is that the cheese producers will go to Ottawa for help; to ask that a floor be put under their prices, and perhaps to get legislation making imports from New Zealand unprofitable.

We wonder if the British market could have been so easily closed to Canadian cheese if Britons had a passionate liking for our product? It is still possible to buy Danish, Swiss and Dutch cheese in England. But few Britons seem to mind if they cannot get Canadian cheese. The trouble is that for many years Canadian cheese was reputed in Britain to be the worst cheese anybody could buy. That condition has changed. We have lately been exporting our best cheeses, and marketing them carefully and attractively. But the old smell still lingers. The English still prefer their own, or Danish or Swiss or New Zealand cheeses; they feel no loss because Canadian cheese is being denied them by their own government.

Death Of An Aristocrat

Since the sudden death of Nicholas Ignatieff last Friday night we have thought of him many times, and of the unique and powerful position which he filled at the University of Toronto. As Warden of Hart House he met virtually all the men students, and it was inevitable that something of his taste, his character, and his way of living should communicate itself to them; upon many of them that influence was strong, for he was greatly admired by the undergraduates. What sometimes surprised and amused us was that groups of undergraduates would seriously discuss social problems in Hart House, and in the course of the discussion express the strongest distaste for what they called "the aristocratic tradition" of older countries; although they may have known it, they had for the time forgotten that Ignatieff, whom they admired and trusted, was himself a product of that tradition, and was only describable as an aristocrat.

Cheap books, cheap movies and cheap thinking have trained many Canadians to think of an aristocrat as a useless and offensive product of an outworn system. During the years which psychologists assure us are the formative ones, Nicholas Ignatieff lived the life of a Russian aristocrat of the old regime. Apparently that life made him what he was—an unassuming, genial, informal, liberal, extremely intelligent man. A better man to serve as a mentor and a model for undergraduates could hardly be found. And yet there is no getting away from the fact that the man was an aristocrat; perhaps his amused disregard for the social distinctions which occasionally obtrude themselves in university life sprang from that fact.

For the good of democracy we ought to revise our notions about aristocracy. At its worst, it is an exaggeration of faults which are inherent in most people; at its best, it produces men like Nicholas Ignatieff, whose privileges in early life were balanced by a deep sense of obligation. Canada, and the University of Toronto, have sustained a loss by his death which can never be fully made up. It is said that no man is indispensable, and certainly it is true that a man can always be found to do another man's work. But some people leave gaps which no other, however admirable in his own way, can fill up. Nicholas Ignatieff was such a man.

NOTES AND COMMENT

An agricultural item says that the country's hog population is about 20 per cent. greater than a year ago. And after all the trouble the Government has taken to even things between the hogs and the hog-nots!

A Chicago man has attracted attention because he refused to speak at a banquet on the plea that he had nothing to wear. The man we want to hear about is the man who made a similar refusal because he had nothing to say.

A Defence Of Advertising

By IVOR BROWN

THE DISPUTE (in Britain) over the merits and disadvantages of sponsored broadcasting has shown, at least in the columns of "The Times", a distrust for and even a loathing of advertisements which I find astonishing. "Promise, great promise, is the the soul of an advertisement", said Dr. Johnson, with the implication that the promises are sure to be broken. That is quite untrue of advertising today. Now most advertising is simply a statement of fact and opportunity, assisted by some brightness of illustration or typography. I have just been studying the advertisements in a London Tube carriage: they were nearly all designed to implant, by wit or decoration, the name of an article or commodity or firm. There were very few adjectives or promissory notes. There was more plain statement than special pleading.

THE ADVERTISEMENT COLUMNS of a newspaper are covered with valuable information about goods for sale, jobs vacant, houses on the market, entertainments to be viewed and books to be read. All this the reader gets thrown in for nothing on top of the news and features in the paper. The haters of advertisement would hardly dispute the utility of this. It is when the adjectives are added to the fact that they bristle with rage and cry out that the air shall not be sullied with these meretricious phrases.

Their behaviour in this is a little odd, since they do not refuse to buy "The Radio Times" (which publishes the B.B.C. programmes) on the ground that it is packed with advertisements. Nor do they pick up "The Times" with a pair of tongs as though it were a piece of untouchable filth owing to the presence of incitements to buy certain kinds of alcohol and tobacco or to purchase from one store rather than another. It is the idea of anyone calling attention to a soap before the performance of a symphony (which symphony the public will get free and which may be rendered by the best orchestra in the land) that maddens them. Yet all unperturbed they buy, before a performance of a classical play, a theatre programme in which the names of the cast are surrounded by the appealing names of restaurants and the dulcet announcements of chocolate manufacturers.

OF COURSE, the arts of advertisement can be abused, just as any good or useful thing can be defiled by the unscrupulous. But many of the wrongs have been put right and no reputable newspaper now accepts advertisements which publicise medicines and salves with bogus assurances of impossible cures; nor will they accept solicitations of the public which are obviously false or lewd. Moreover, the public on the whole are not impressed by idle promises: an advertisement, to be effective and remain effective, must be reasonably accurate. Admittedly there cannot be ten headache cures, all deserving the adjective "best"; but there can be ten reasonably and more or less equally good. If they are not good, the public with its headaches unrelieved, will abandon them.

◇ ◇ ◇

ADVERTISING supplies the public with a large amount of free entertainment. The hoarding has been called the poor man's picture gallery and it may contain some excellent drawing and colouring as well as some that is hideous. Hoardings in the countryside, whether set up along main roads or fixed upon the sides of houses in otherwise good-looking villages, are a pest and I recommend those members of the public, whose eyes are affronted by these things, to drop a card to the firm concerned saying that they will never buy goods thus advertised. But a hoarding set up in the country is wedged right into it whereas a preliminary statement that the ensuing play or concert is sponsored by a Toothpaste is not wedged into the music or the text. It can be as separate from these as an advertisement in "The Times" is separate from the leading article. Sponsors who push their radio advertising too far will not benefit themselves.

◇ ◇ ◇

NEWSPAPER advertising is often so well-written nowadays as to be worth reading for its own sake. The ingenuity of the copy-writers who are introducing new fabrics and fashions into the women's magazines is most entertaining; they know that a load of adjectives looks stale and is useless. They have to take a little theme and embroider it, and the result is as easily readable as anything in the magazine. The advertisements in illustrated periodicals of the glossy kind are probably more read than are the adjoining articles, and justly so. They are often crisper and better written.

◇ ◇ ◇

I AM NOT HERE discussing the pro's and cons of sponsored radio: but I must register a protest against the sneers and jeers so often propelled at the advertiser when this matter is debated. The complainants fail to realise how much newspaper advertising has altered (for the better, in my opinion) in our time. It is increasingly factual and informative. The little essays on the various jobs and personalities in a great industry are always good reading well presented. The advertisers are pioneers in typography and lay-out, and to pretend that the whole profession of advertising agents is made up of vulgarians and boosters without taste and scruple, as has been implied in some of the almost hysterical outbursts against advertising on the air, is absurd.

Cocktails Or Coal

(Halifax Chronicle-Herald)

Breaking the monotony of a dreary debate in the U.S. Senate some decades ago, the presiding officer, the vice-president, remarked: "What this country really needs is a good five-cent cigar."

But it is in no such spirit of ridicule that British bartenders "hope to come up with a perfect coronation cocktail."

Now, whether Britain needs a coronation cocktail as "desperately" as the U.S. used to need a good five-cent cigar must be left to individual judgements—but there are a lot of things Britain needs worse. Greater production of the essentials of existence, for instance. Say, more coal. It is reckoned that if absenteeism in the British coal industry could be reduced by 60 per cent, the country would have ample coal for its own needs, and an exportable surplus.

Perhaps a coronation coal target would help more than a coronation cocktail. It is, as we suggest, a matter of individual opinion.

Brantford Hospital Troubles

(BRANTFORD EXPOSITOR)

IT WAS with sincere regret that The Expositor last week found itself having to report that George P. Fox has resigned both the chairmanship and his membership in the Board of Governors of the Brantford General Hospital. His decision was expressive of protest against what he considered to be the inadequate provision made for the hospital in the civic budget brought down last Monday evening. Mr. Fox also indicated resentment of implied fault-finding with the business administration of the institution, although he made it plain that, for his part, no personalities entered into the matter.

According to the computation by hospital anaylsts, the appropriation allowed this year by the City Council is approximately $80,000 short of the institution's actual budgetary requirements. This being the case, in the absence of extra governmental grants or other extraordinary revenues, Mr. Fox saw only two alternatives: a larger operating deficit or the imposition of higher rates on paying patients.

It can well be argued that the latter choice would be almost intolerable. In a great many cases, due to circumstances, and not to any intentional fault or neglect on the part of the hospital staff, paying patients are not now getting what they are paying for and what they should be entitled to in the way of either services or accommodation. To assess them still more in the way of charges would therefore be compounding a fault . . .

Mr. Fox made a valedictory recommendation. In the light of the annually mounting costs, he said, the question of hospital financing, not only in Brantford, but throughout the province should be reviewed by competent analysts and remedial advice tendered. At the same time, the appropriate departments of government should also review the situation with a view to improving some rules of policy which, in the course of years, have become outmoded and serve now largely to handicap hospitals by imposing unbusinesslike procedures. The entirely inadequate rate of charge permitted for indigent patients is one case in point.

Social Welfare Not Party Matter

(WINDSOR STAR)

PRIME Minister Louis S. St. Laurent says improvements in social welfare will continue regardless of what political party is in power in Canada. He is speaking the truth, though some politicians even of his own party may dislike any implication these improvements would proceed with equal speed regardless of the political complexion of the government.

In a modern democracy, no government is likely to move far in advance of public opinion in social reforms. Nor is any government apt to lag too far behind public opinion. Either course would be dangerous, politically, for the party.

Thus we have social reforms moving ahead in Ontario under a Conservative regime; in British Columbia until recently under a coalition; in Albert under Social Credit rule; in Saskatchewan under a socialist C.C.F. administration, and in Manitoba under a Liberal government. In Quebec, under Union Nationale and in the Maritimes under Liberal Party, there is somewhat of a lag. But this is due to the attitude of the people, and economic factors, rather than primarily to the party which governs.

it Alberta, where the Indeed Social Cred government is of a conservative variety, is further advanced in some social reforms than socialist Saskatchewan. The administration in the latter province has slowed up somewhat because it feared it was getting too far ahead of public opinion. And in Conservative Ontario we are soon to have a system of pensions for totally disabled people, leading the way in this field.

Party policies are important, indeed. But in practical application the difference between what one party would do and what another would do is generally one of degree. Public opinion and other influences, such as economic considerations, really set the pace.

C.C.F. CONVERT

Mr. W. A. C. Bennett, who was converted to Social Credit, by an interesting coincidence just after he failed to secure the leadership of the Conservative Party, says his new party will sweep British Columbia in the June election.

The public can make its own judgement on this prediction. What it wants to know is how the Social Credit Party proposes to govern British Columbia if it is elected.

This the party refuses to say. It talks a great deal about the excellence of the Social Credit Government in Alberta (which struck oil) but little about the monetary theories which the Alberta Government long since abandoned. (Victoria Times)

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

Thus saith the Lord; Behold, I will raise up against Babylon, and against them that dwell in the midst of them that rise up against me, a destroying wind; and will send unto Babylon fanners, that shall fan her, and shall empty her land: for in the day of trouble they shall be against her round about . . . And I will render unto Babylon and to all the inhabitants of Chaldea all their evil that they have done in Zion in your sight, saith the Lord. (Jer. 51: 1, 2, 24.)

◇ ◇ ◇

For the Lord will have mercy on Jacob, and will yet choose Israel, and set them in their own land: and the strangers shall be joined with them, and they shall cleave to the house of Jacob . . . And it shall come to pass in the day that the Lord shall give thee rest from thy sorrow, and from thy fear, and from the hard bondage wherein thou wast made to serve, that thou shalt take up this proverb against the king of Babylon, and say, How hath the oppressor ceased! the golden city ceased!

The Lord hath broken the staff of the wicked, and the sceptre of the rulers. (Isa. 14: 1, 3-5.)

The Intricate Brain

(Royal Bank Letter)

Mental Health is still a major problem in Canada, but there are two bright recent developments. The Canadian people have almost ceased to look upon mental disease as something to be ashamed of and to cover up, and the Canadian governments are expanding provision for treating mental diseases adequately.

There is no stigma attached to mental ill-health. Patients are sick people. The idea that they are weak characters who could get over their disability if they would only pull themselves together is on its way out. The superstition that they are possessed by demons is being killed by education.

Mental illness is no more disgraceful to the sufferer or his family than a broken leg.

It is no wonder that there should be diseases of the mind as well as of the body. The human brain is the most complicated structural apparatus known to science.

A great neurologist says: "If all the equipment of the telegraph, telephone and radio of the North American continent could be squeezed into a half-gallon cup, it would be less intricate than the three pints of brains that fills your skull and mine."

Keeping Boys On Farm

(Owen Sound Sun-Times)

Everything possible should be done to encourage young farm people to remain on the farm. One of the main qualities needed for good farming is a love of the job. There is a great mass of information which a young farm boy picks up from his father and other adults as he grows up which would take a non-farmer months, perhaps years, to assimilate. It is unfortunate to see these young people throw away this knowledge to try their hand at city life, where a great many of them never find real happy living. Toward this end, the many advantages of the farm should be stressed, rather than a continual harping on the idea that the farmer is continually losing money—losing at a rate which would bankrupt any other business within a matter of months, perhaps weeks. By this we do not mean to gloss over the facts. Every type of work has its disadvantages. But let's not build up these problems to such tremendous proportions that they bury deep the vast number of advantages.

Say Trade Fair To Be Bigger Than Before

By FORBES RHUDE,
Canadian Press Business Editor

Items from here and there:

The Canadian International Trade Fair, with two months still to go, already has rented more space for exhibits than for last year's fair.

Exhibitors from 20 countries have so far booked nearly 145,000 square feet for products ranging from exotic foods to heavy machinery. Finland, Denmark, and Iran will show for the first time.

Canada, with 80,000 square feet, twice that of last year, will be the largest exhibitor, followed by Britain, Germany, France and the United States. Fair dates are June 2-13 at Toronto.

The International Bank for Reconstruction has made its first loan to Pakistan—$27,200,000, to be spent largely in dollars and French francs on the country's railways.

Wood, Gundy and Co., Ltd., reports that Canadian government, provincial and municipal financing in March totalled $71,843,392, compared with $137,658,785 in February and $54,067,188 in March, 1951. Corporation bond financing was $13,400,000.

Total bond financing for the first three months of the year, including corporation issues, was $347,856,925, compared with $198,153,188 in the corresponding period last year. Of the three-month total, $45,435,000 was corporation financing, compared with $82,550,000.

Steel Company of Canada, Ltd., in its current annual report, gives disposition of the company's sales dollar (the money it took in) for the five-year period 1947-51, as follows:

Sun Oil Company's refinery at Sarnia, with construction starting this spring, is expected to be completed in the early summer of 1953, says the company's annual report. Delays in obtaining materials set back the original March, 1953, completion date. The refinery, with 10,000 to 15,000 barrels capacity per day, will cost about $10,000,000.

Need Better Services

OTTAWA, April 2 (CP)—Canadian birds, animals and fish need a good public relations office, Dr. Harrison F. Lewis, retiring as chief of Canada's Wildlife Service, said in an interview Tuesday. He considers public relations services in connection with organized wildlife management "very inadequate." Sports magazines and some newspaper columnists were doing "excellent work" but nothing comparable to what was being done in the United States.

Peace River Country Booms As Oil Search Pushes North

PEACE RIVER, Alta. (CP) — Echoes of clanking bulldozers and the roar of their motors are heard over hundreds of square miles of bush and muskeg north of this frontier town in one of Canada's biggest oil searches.

Boom conditions prevail in Peace River, 350 miles northwest of Edmonton. Space for rent, for offices or for a night's sleep, is at a premium. Many strangers walk the streets, nearly all linked in a search for oil costing millions of dollars.

Hundreds of vehicles and hundreds of men pass continually through Peace River and Grimshaw, 17 miles west of here. Huge and powerful machines are followed by surveyors, seismograph and geophysical crews, preparing Alberta's northern hinterland for the invasion of drill rigs and the men who will operate them.

From Peace River and Grimshaw, the crews travel the Mackenzie highway to areas 300 miles to the north. Most major oil companies have construction crews, surveyors, seismic and geophysical outfits under contract.

Much of the work is done during the winter months when heavy machinery is more easily transported over muskeg, creeks and lakes, all tightly frozen. Permanent camps of seismic and geophysical crews operate during the summer.

Half-tracks will be used during the summer as only these vehicles are able to travel over the winding trails punched through the wilderness by bulldozers under guidance of the survey crews.

Truck owners keep large transports rolling over the Mackenzie highway as food and other supplies are shipped in to the camps. Oil tankers are seen everywhere as diesel fuel, oil and gasoline are moved in to keep the big machines operating.

As the field camps move northward through the bush, they are maintained by office staffs in Peace River.

Aircraft also play an important part in the search for oil. They fly supplies and personnel to remote camps and are used for bringing out injured workers needing hospital treatment. A well-planned radio communications system keeps base camps in touch.

So far oil discoveries in the area have been minor, but important enough to give encouragement in the search for major oilfields such as were discovered in the settled areas to the south after years of exploration and drilling.

Boy Isolated On Island Given Extra Homework

SUTTON, April 2—Harold McCue took his last walk across the ice of Lake Simcoe to tiny Snake Island Tuesday. The spring ice breakup has come, and for the next two weeks four adults and four children live in isolation on the island one and a quarter miles from the mainland.

Principal Neil Anderson of Roches Point Public School didn't forget to give 7-year-old Harvey McCue extra homework to do during his absence from classes.

Last weekend, Mr. McCue, who is caretaker of the 115 summer cottages on the island, loaded a sled with several bags of flour, potatoes and other staples for his family.

On the island are the McCues and their four children, the youngest a year old, and Stanley and Duncan Ashquab, who are employed as carpenters. Last year there was a shortage of food, and Mr. McCue and one of the Ashquab brothers had to make a dangerous trip to the mainland, rowing an old punt part way and pulling it the rest.

Predicts Canada's Exports Will Continue At High Level

WINNIPEG, April 2—(CP)—John A. Marsh, general manager of Canadian Exporters' Association, today predicted that sale of Canada's goods to other countries will continue at last year's high levels.

At the same time, he suggested "greater toughness" by the Canadian government in its trade negotiations, especially with the United States.

Addressing the Winnipeg Rotary Club, Mr. Marsh said that while import restrictions by the United Kingdom, Australia, New Zealand, and some other countries, would tend to lessen Canadian sales to the sterling area, "essential goods from Canada will continue to flow to those countries."

Also, he added, the end result sought by the sterling-area restrictions, is the "restoration of sterling towards convertibility of currency which, when achieved, will permit multilateral trade to be restored."

While this goal might not be attainable for several years "it is one to be strived for."

Mr. Marsh said that despite restrictions, Canada's exports are in demand throughout the world, "and the present export rate of approximately $300,000,000 a month will in all probability be maintained and probably increased." He looked for exports this year to reach $4,000,000,000, slightly higher than last year's $3,914,000,000, and well above 1950's $3,100,000,000.

In regard to the United States, Mr. Marsh said:

"Because of our great friendship with our southern neighbor, and the fact that year after year we continue to be each other's best customer, we are prone to 'turn the other cheek' when Uncle Sam clips us with a trade barrier.

"Embargoes or restrictions against Canadian cattle have been fairly common during the last several years, even before our cattle had foot-and-mouth troubles. We had established a comfortable market for cheese in the United States when restrictions came. We did a nice potato business when a Washington lobby blocked us. Now, U.S. fish lobbies are seeking to restrict our fish sales."

Unions Plan Greater Activity With C.C.F.

TORONTO, April 2 (CP). — A group of American Federation of Labor and Canadian Congress of Labor (ordinarily rival organizations) officials have initiated a move to promote greater activity within unions on behalf of the C.C.F., it was learned Tuesday night.

The emphasis on the closer co-operation with the political party came in advance of the Ontario C.C.F.'s annual convention opening here April 10.

Approximately 150 delegates, including Ontario C.C.F. leader E. B. Jolliffe, recently attended a meeting which set up a steering committee to draft a program aimed at promoting closer relations between the C.C.F. and the unions and developing organization and education in the union.

African Bank Holdup Said April Fool Joke

STELLENBOSCH, South Africa, April 2 (Reuters)—Four masked men entered a bank Tuesday, covered the staff with water pistols and told the teller: "This is a holdup. Hand over the cash."

A terrified woman clerk jumped out a window. The teller handed over the money, then the alarm went off.

The men tossed back the cash, shouted "April Fool" and escaped in a car.

New Occupants

Poor First Period Costly As Petes Lose, 6-3 To Give Clippers Another

Spotting the Clippers a 4-0 lead in the first period at Stouffville last night, the Petes fought back furiously to outscore the homesters 3-2 in the final two frames, but they still lost by a 6-3 count. It was their second straight setback in the best-of-seven O.H.A. senior "B" group playoff series, third game being here tomorrow night. A big crowd saw another fast-stepping contest between two well-matched clubs, rugged but fairly clean, with a few out-of-town fans tangling on the ice afterwards following the lively tilt.

A SWELL SOLO — Freddy Garvey came up with a dandy solo effort to score in the third period by Petes at Stouffville last night, but the visitors were slack in the first frame to give Clippers a 4-0 lead, and the latter won out 6-3.

Clippers led 4-0 in the first chukker, the Ellis men battled back for a 2-1 margin in the second to send it into the third period at 5-2 for Stouffville. The Petes had a big margin on play throughout the third but could get no breaks at all and had to settle for a 1-1 stanza. Each side drew three minor penalties, though there was plenty of stiff checking in the fast fray.

Slow Starting

It was a case of the Petes being unable to get untracked in the initial inning. They were outhustled throughout that chapter and only got going in the second. From there in they more than held their own and had the homesters and their large following plenty worried as they hemmed the Clippers back of their blue line and peppered the goalie. Ted Collins was an injured absentee—as is Mason yet—but Chum Fryia returned to action.

No player got more than one goal in the fast but close-checking tilt. The winners goals were by Petch, Bob and Nick Bangay, Joe Watson, Stevenson and Bell. Minton had a pair of assists, with singles going to J. Watson, Stark, B. Watson, Machin, Bell and Gibson. For the ePtes, Don Floyd, Freddy Garvey and Red Robinson tallied, as Earl Leonard and Arn Dugan got an assist apiece. Both goalies turned in a whale of an effort.

An Easy One

Machin went off early for tripping and the Petes ganged up. Then Petch stole the puck at his own blue line and broke fast and free to roar in on Harding and finish it off neatly for a goal. They caught fire then and really rolled, after all were back. A drive by Steele and Gus Leonard came close in fast travelling but Stouffville had a good edge on play. Bob Bangay made it 2-0 from J. Watson and Minton halfway through on a rebound from a hot angle shot in close. Steele got back from an elbowing penalty and Nick Bengay counted from Stark and B. Watson as they ganged up from a corner faceoff, the puck going in on a rebound with Ray sprawled. A minute late, J. Watson tallied another from Minton and Machin on a corner passout and slap shot at close range. West and Steele combined to test Stunden as the Petes started to drive in the final five minutes. But they were stymied a spell as Fryia put in a penalty for slashing.

Machin was over early in the second for high-sticking when Floyd scored after a fine rush by Earl Leonard. Floyd was slapping away at the rubber near the crease and it inched in off a defenceman's skate. Machin returned and Rose sat it out for hooking, with no damage done. Petes pressed hard most of this period with Stunden robbing West and Dugan in turn. Stewart got through for a nice try, and then Stevenson sank one from Bell on a hot shot with a passout inside. The Petes kept tearing in to hold most of the play and finally Robinson shoved home a rebound with the goalie out after stopping a side whistler by Dugan.

Had An Edge

The Petes pressed so hard from the faceoff in the third heat that Stouffville began icing the puck to relieve pressure. Wade got though with a dandy rush to miss the net, and the visitors pinned Clippers in around their own goal and whammed away at Goalie Stunden, who was brilliant on in-close saves. He seemed mighty lucky on some. Garvey finally wound up with a fine solo dash from back of centre to slip down the side fast and bullet an angle drive into the net corner. West came close right after that and, despite the odd retaliatory rush by the Clippers, the Petes kept pouring into enemy territory. Dugan almost got in and then Fryia, but it was called for a crease job. Clippers slowed down under the hot pace as both sides were throwing their bodies around and checking was close. Bell tallied one more for them from Gibson after a corner faceoff with a hot shot from the side. Earl Leonard returned from a holding penalty and the Petes were carrying the mail at the gong. Teams:

Petes: Goal, Harding; defence, Wade and Peters; centre, Garvey; wings, Floyd and Fryia; alternates, E. Leonard, Jopling, G. Leonard, Steele, West, Dugan, Robinson and Stewart.

Y-Jacks Rubbed Out By Penguins, 37-12

Showing a complete reversal of form over last week's performance, the Penguins waltzed to an easy 37-12 win Tuesday night over the Y-Jacks in the semi-finals of the Y.M.C.A. House League. This victory sent them into the final against Y-Knots.

After last week's final schedule game between the Jacks and Penguins, cage fans practically conceded the semi-final set to the Jacks. But the birds, using their height to advantage, were far too superior for Jacks when the chips were down.

From the opening whistle the Penguins were on top. Bogue and Canning employed their height in the first quarter and controlled the scoring, whipping in 15 points for Penguins. At the same time the Jacks could muster only seven points by Groves, Spragge and Whithard.

Close Checking

Both teams settled down to a close-checking duel in the second quarter with the result only four points were scored, one each to Bogue and Canning. That gave the Birds a 19-7 halftime score.

The Penguins continued to add to their score in the third on foul shots, scoring four for four, and adding a field basket for two more points. This time Jacks scored only one point, a foul shot by Spragge.

The Birds then finished off in a convincing manner when Outram, Canning and Bogue dropped in 12 more points in the final quarter. Again the Jacks' score was held low, two foul shots and a basket.

Bogue's height helped him to easily sweep scoring honors with 19 points, followed by teammate Canning with 13.

Lineups:

Penguins (37)—Outram 3, English 2, Motta, Canning 13, Bogue 19.

Y-Jacks (12) — Flowers 1, Groves 5, Spragge 4, Whithard 2, Brown.

'51 COBL Champions Won't Operate

BROCKVILLE, April 2 (CP)—Brockville Memos, last year's Central Ontario Baseball League champions, will not operate this year, club president Julius Smith said Tuesday.

An estimated loss of $4,500 last year and losses in preceding years as well as inability to obtain money for installation of lights at the ball park were the reasons for the decision.

Carter Retains World Title

LOS ANGELES, April 2 (AP)—Jimmy Carter retained his world's lightweight title Tuesday night by boxing his way to a unanimous decision over challenger Lauro Salas in a rousing 15-rounder.

Although piling up a good margin of victory with his sharp punching Tuesday night, the champion from New York never did solve the flailing style of the willing Lauro.

"He never did hurt me, but I couldn't figure him out," the champion said after the fight. He carried a little cut above his left eye, but otherwise wasn't noticeably marked.

In the final two rounds, the challenger, California's featherweight champion who hails from Monterrey, Tex., took the play away from Carter and had him down for a count of three in the 15th.

There was some dispute about how the champion went down. Salas' supporters said the champ was knocked there. Jimmy, in his dressing room later, said he was off balance and fell as Lauro swung.

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

By CEC. PERDUE, Sports Editor

One of the more popular summer sports is preparing the decks for action next week when the O.A.S.A. annual meeting is held Good Friday in London. The Peterborough men's league will be represented by Bob Batley, Harold Dormer and Frank Wood. No local nominations were made for the Ontario executive this year. Following the big meeting, the various loops will get down to business on their own re-organization plans and prepare for play which starts next month. Softball has many players in action each summer in the province and a big fan following. A good lively sports during the warmer months.

* * * * * *

O.A.S.A. registered no less than 35,156 players last year, an increase of 32,401 over 1950. There were 2,068 teams listed in the association last summer. As a member of the Ontario Sports Federation, the O.A.S.A. concurred in the O.H.A. suspensions last fall of a number of Kingston Nylons' hockeyists, players Patterson, Joyce, Udall, Harrison, Plumb, Murphy, Gerow, Partis, McKeown, Watts, Potts, Armstrong and Aiken. Therefore, they're not presently eligible to play softball this season. A raft of suggested changes in rules will be dealt with by a big delegation during the all-day session, and the election of officers will take place.

Resume Senior Series

Stouffvile Clippers and the Petes resume their O.H.A. senior "B" playoff series on local ice tomorrow night at 8:30. It's a Thursday night touch, instead of the usual Friday fray here, because the Clippers wanted a Saturday night home game this week. Then, if it goes the limit of seven games, the tilts next week will be Monday, Wednesday and Friday on alternate ices—starting Monday here. A hundred reserve seats have been requested tomorrow here by Stouffville fans, and we believe a local bus will take fans there Saturday night. This third clash at Civic should pack in another hefty crowd.

* * * * * *

Petes started slowly in Stouffville last night to trail 4-0 in the first frame. After that they outscored the Clippers 3-2 but you can't spot a speedy squad like that four goals and expect too much. Another nifty game with plenty of swell, streamlined hockey in every period, rugged but clean, and both goalies in top form. Freddy Garvey scored the best Petes' goal, but they all dug in the final two heats. So, they're on the w.k. spot now and must win here tomorrow or their chances of survival are almost as slim as those of Leafs of making the Stanley Cup final this semester. The Petes haven't had any breaks in their two games to date, and Thursday might see a swing in luck.

Wings Beat Down Leafs

Detroit Red Wings rubbed out Toronto Leafs handily in four straight, humbling the Maples the last two right on Toronto ice. Such a setback will have repercussions and there'll be some Leafian house-cleaning before another N.H.L. campaign gets underway. You can kiss the book on that. Boston Bruins kicked the old dope bucket another resounding thump last e'en as they edged Montreal Canadiens to square their semi-final sawoffs at two wins each. You've got to give the Patrick pack credit for a great showing against stiff opposition. Wouldn't it be something if they kept right on winning to meet Wings in the final for the cup?

The fans were much too free but not easy with it last p.m. as they tossed chairs and benches at villainous Hi Lee and Athol Layton. On account of that pair pulled a sneak win o'er popular Lu Kimm and Zorra in the main go. 'Twas a wild and woolly scene as grapplers and fans mixed furiously outside the ring after the session was called by Ref Joe Gollob. Police charged into it, too, and finally restored order with prelim grapplers also helping to get Lee and Layton away to safety. A "hey rube" for sure. Davis and Bobo drew in the semi-windup, while Clark won the prelim when Pitoscia was disqualified.

Mob Scene Follows Bout As Layton and Lee Win Over Zorra and Lu

A first class brawl between wrestlers and fans was touched off Tuesday night at the Brock St. arena immediately after the decision was announced in the night's main bout, a team match featuring Manchuria's Lu Kimm and France's Zorra meeting Lord Athol Layton and Sky Hi Lee. As referee Joe Gollob of Montreal raised Layton's and Lee's arms, signifying they had won, the irate fans started to toss the steel chairs into the ring, narrowly missing the wrestlers.

As the winners left the ring, the fans mobbed them, punching and stamping. Then the enthusiasts resorted to the steel chairs again; several flew through the air, one hitting Lee on the shoulders and head. The 292-pound wrestler charged into the mob to find his assailant.

But he was met by the defeated Zorro and the two began to punch and wrestle at the ringside. The fans also took the opportunity to throw punches.

Meanwhile six policemen charged through the mob and tried to keep back the aroused fans. Again two men tried to use chairs on Layton and Lee; the police chased these men who escaped into the crowd.

A "Hey Rube"

The fight continued from ringside along a 50-foot stretch; Layton dragging his partner Lee after him. Some one punched Lee and he tore into the fans. They pushed forward threatening him and he crashed a 15-foot bench into them, forcing them back.

After 15 minutes the crowd was finally separated from the wrestlers who had for a second time renewed their fight. The police broke up the scramble and the wrestlers went to the dressing room.

The signs of a possible brawl were evident after the first fall went to Layton and Lee in 17 minutes. Between them they had Lu Kimm unconscious on the canvas while Referee Gollob was forcing Zorro back to his corner. As Lee and Layton left the ring, the fans charged, throwing punches for the first time, but only one chair was thrown.

The highly popular Zorro and Lu Kimm took turns, according to the rules, and pounded Hi Lee into submission within seven minutes when action resumed. That fall went to them as Lee finally gave up to Lu Kimm.

Layton Interfered

Zorro and Kimm promptly started the same procedure when the third round started. Zorro was well on his way to defeating Lee when Layton cut him down; Lee fell on Zorro for the fall. Then Gollob announced the win and the brawl was on.

Wee Willie Davis, wrestler and movie actor, opened a massaging school in the semi-final with hero Bobo Brazil from St. Louis. He paid special attention to his pupil' s head and hands.

But Bobo rallied with massage tricks of his own, his special a coconut crack. This unfriendly gesture included rapping his head against Davis'.

Referee Gollob called the match a draw in 30 minutes with Bobo suffering bruised hands and Davis an aching head.

In the preliminary bout Lou Pitoscia of Toronto favored the taste of Ray Clark's toes and liked the softness of the New Zealander's neck. Employing these two infractions he had Clark draped on the ropes at the 19-minute mark when Gollob disqualified Pitoscia.

THE Calvert SPORTS COLUMN

by Elmer Ferguson

This is the second in a series of three columns dealing with lesser-known incidents in Stanley Cup history.

A popular belief persisting to this day, is that Lord Stanley of Preston, sixteenth Earl of Derby, while Governor-General of Canada, 1888-1893, became so intrigued with the speed and colour of Canadian hockey that in a burst of enthusiasm he offered the cup which now bears his name.

Much as we regret to shatter a sports illusion, such was not the case. Lord Stanley wasn't a great hockey fan. His interest in the game was academic and detached. He donated the cup around which there had been such colourful battling for well over half a century at the urging of Lord Kilcoursie, one of his staff and one of Lord Stanley's A.D.C.'s, and possibly too, because of the enthusiasm of his own son, Hon. Arthur Stanley, who not only admired hockey, but played it. And by the late P. D. Ross, Ottawa publisher, who had played for McGill.

The Stanley Cup was donated in 1892. At a banquet on March 18 of that year, celebrating the success of the Ottawa team of the era, responding to a toast to the Governor-General, Lord Kilcoursie read a letter from His Excellency which said: "I have for some time been thinking that it would be a good thing if there were a challenge cup which should be held from year to year by the champion hockey team in the Dominion. There does not appear to be any such outward and visible sign of championship at present, and considering the general interest which the matches now elicit, and the importance of having the game played fairly and under rules generally recognized, I am willing to give a cup which shall be held from year to year by the winning team."

Lord Kilcoursie stated that Capt. Colville, who was then in England, had been commissioned by the Governor-General to order the cup, to be held by the trustees until the end of the next season, and then presented to the champions.

The Governor-General appointed Sheriff Sweetland, of Ottawa, and P. D. Ross trustees of the cup.

That there was keen interest in hockey in Lord Stanley's immediate circles is, of course, obvious. Mr. Ross, with some Ottawa men, Lord Cavan and The Hon. Arthur Stanley, formed what was called the Rebel Hockey Club, whose members played in red shirts and engaged in exhibition matches with other teams. Lord Cavan, who was the tenth Earl of Cavan, commanded the British Forces in Italy during the First World War, and subsequently was Commander-in-Chief of the British Army in 1921. The Rebels played the best teams of their time, and the picturesque organization doubtless aided in spreading the gospel of hockey. And added, too, in securing the Stanley Cup, now the most prized of all hockey trophies.

Next week: Death Wasn't Alone.

Wings Knock Leafs Out Of Stanley Cup Race With Four Straight Losses

By JACK SULLIVAN

TORONTO, April 2. (CP)—Detroit Red Wings, whose role of sitting ducks has been a by-word in Stanley Cup finals over the years, today are in the happy position of entering the best-of-seven final round with no problems except probably an overdose of staleness. They roared into the finals Tuesday night with a 3-1 victory over Toronto Maple Leafs—their fourth straight—and now they'll take it easy until the Montreal-Boston semi-final feud ends sometime this week or early next. The Canadiens and Bruins now are tied at two games each.

By the time Montreal and Boston are finished the Wings will have a few days' rest for the series for the $50 cup donated by Lord Stanley 60 years ago. Their record since the trophy went into exclusive possession of the National Hockey League in 1926 now is 11 times in the finals and winners of only four.

And this record can be blamed, for the most part, on the physical beatings they've taken in the semi-finals.

But this latest series was one of their softest in history. They knocked over the defending cup champions by 3-0, 1-0, 6-2 and 3-1 scores and they were extended only in one game, the 1-0 battle at Detroit last Thursday.

Only One Injured

Only one player on the roster, defenceman Red Kelly, was on the injured list with a sprained arm but advice from the Red Wing camp is that he'll be ready to go at any time.

A Toronto crowd of 13,547 watched Tuesday night's game and they weren't impressed by their heroes who have managed only three goals in 240 minutes of playoff struggling. It was the first time in cup play that the Leafs have been defeated four straight.

Harry Watson, big Leaf left-winger, sent the home-town crowd into a roaring mass just two minutes and 56 seconds after the opening faceoff. But the glee turned to gloom when the Wings pumped in a pair before the period ended.

They made it 3-1 in the second period and that was curtains for the in-and-out Leafs who finished the regular 70-game schedule in third place, well behind the league champion Wings. They tried hard, battled all the way but were outclassed.

The Wings' first two goals were scored when the Leafs were shorthanded but even at that they were the far-superior club with plenty of depth from the goal out to the 16th man

Ted Lindsay got his second of the series at 4:35 on an assist from Vic Stasiuk while Leafs' Howie Meeker was serving a cross-checking penalty and Tony (The Pest) Leswick sent them ahead to stay at 9:43 while defenceman Gus Mortson sat out an interference penalty.

Smart Goal

Gordie Howe, one of hockey's great right-wingers, set up linemate Sid Abel for probably the niftiest goal of the series. Howe got the puck at the Toronto blue line and bulldozed his way down the boards with Leaf defenceman Fernie Flaman practically crawling up his back.

Howe switched his stick from his right to left hand and in the same motion passed to Abel in the clear. The veteran centre's sliding shot had goalkeeper Al Rollins beaten all the way.

With that cushion the Wings dropped back and allowed the Leafs to take the offensive. A close-checking forward wall and a hard-hitting defence held out the Leafs who tested goalkeeper Terry Sawchuk with 39 drives during the night, 12 of them in the last period.

Mackell Hero As Bruins Trip Montreal 3-2

BOSTON, April 2 (CP). — There's a fine line between being a goat and a hero in hockey and no one knows it better today than Fleming Mackell, 22-year-old Boston Bruins' right winger.

An apparently needless second period penalty put Mackell in the doghouse with most of the 11,065 fans at Boston Gardens Tuesday night until he redeemed himself with the winning goal in the Bruins' 3-2 National Hockey League playoff victory over Montreal Canadiens.

The win tied the best-of-seven series at two games apiece and sent the teams back to Montreal for the fifth game Thursday night. It also assured another appearance here Sunday night for the sixth game.

Mackell's ups and downs pretty well told the story of Tuesday night's game.

The Bruins outplayed the Canadiens by a wide margin until late in the second period. They had a 2-0 lead on goals by rookie Real Chevrefils and veteran Milt Schmidt when Mackell was banished for high-sticking.

Hit Stride

The Canadiens took their cue from the man advantage and suddenly regained the form that had brought them decisive 5-1 and 4-0 victories in the first two games of the series in Montreal.

They organized a five-man attack and Floyd Curry made it pay off when he tipped Paul Meger's forward pass behind Sugar Jim Henry.

The goal left the Bruins disorganized and the Canadiens appeared to be on their way when Curry scored again early in the third period to tie the score. It was Curry's fourth goal of the playoffs.

With less than six minutes to go, however, Mackell suddenly became a hero when he fired a 15-footer over Gerry McNeil's left shoulder into the Montreal net for the game-winning tally.

Defenceman Bill Quackenbush started the play by hooking a loose puck in the Boston zone and passing to Ed Sandford who fought his way around the Montreal net before setting Mackell up nicely.

Tuesday night's Boston win seemed to emphasize the importance of home ice in this particular series. The Canadiens won their two games in the Montreal Forum and the Bruins have taken both of the meetings here. They won the third game of the series Sunday 4-1.

If things continue, there's a good chance the series will go the full seven games, leaving a long wait for Detroit Red Wings who have eliminated Toronto in four straight.

In the second period, Don Heinbuch and Burdett added two goals to the Stratford score giving them a 3-1 lead. There were only five penalties handed out in this round, compared to eight in the hard-checking first.

Wally Zuke scored the opening goal in the third for Sault Ste. Marie but George Aitken and Jack White came back with two more for Stratford.

Reds Shade Cincinnati 3-2

By The Canadian Press.

Providence Reds have taken another step toward the American Hockey League final and a crack at the Calder Cup, emblematic of the league championship.

The Reds shaded Cincinnati Mohawks 3-2 at Providence Tuesday night to take a 2-0 lead in their best-of-five semi-final series.

Ray Powell, the league's leading scorer, notched the winning tally on a pass from Paul Gladu at 2:05 in the finale. The Mohawks twice bounced back to erase one-goal deficits.

Chick Webster tied it up for them late in the first period after defenceman Pat Egan had scored for the Reds on a 55-foot shot during the seventh minute while the Mohawks were shorthanded.

Powell regained the lead for Providence at 8:04 in the second period on a pass from Barry Sullivan. Then Gus Schwartz deflected Ed Harrison's shot into the cage for the equalizer at 19:47 while the Reds were shorthanded.

Radio-Telephone Links Seen For Rural Subscribers

TORONTO, April 2 — (CP) — Radio-telephone links may provide a reasonable alternative to building connecting lines over difficult terrain in order to serve isolated groups, Hon. G. H. Challies, vice-chairman of the Hydro Commission, told the Ontario Legislature Tuesday.

He was speaking during second reading to a bill aimed at furthering the government's program of improving rural telephone service. It would permit the Hydro-Electric Power Commission to lease its rural poles to independent telephone companies.

The bill was given second reading along with another important government measure which will provide for temporary civil servants to contribute to their retirement fund before they reach permanent status.

Asks Drastic Action

During consideration of Agriculture Department estimates, Opposition Leader Farquhar Oliver called on the government for "drastic action" to help farmers in what he termed the present period of collapsing farm prices.

He said the government is not conscious of its responsibility and there was no indication in the estimates why it would not pay for freight shipment of frost-damaged western grain to Ontario livestock growers.

Mr. Challies told the House that a radio-telephone experiment in Virginia is being watched closely by the rural telephone committee, set up to improve, extend and co-ordinate phone service in rural Ontario.

Its report will be submitted to the government not later than September this year and it seemed likely it would recommend assistance for improvement and expansion of rural phone service.

Adopt Some Features

Certain good features of the rural telephone program in the United States "will be included," he added. Amalgamation of small systems into larger units for greater effeciency and economy also was in the cards.

Mr. Oliver said the government should reinstitute its bonus on premium bacon. He predicted a shortage of hogs this fall because of the lack of profit of raising premium hogs.

The province had become dependent on food imports. He urged a special branch of the agriculture department to carry out a land-use program.

Agriculture Minister Kennedy, introducing his estimates, also referred to the province's food imports. He said it didn't produce enough beef, hogs, chickens or milk to feed its people. More farms, rather than more factories, were needed.

Provincial Secretary Welsh, speaking on the Civil Service Bill, said the average annual salary in the service increased from $2,452 to $2,598 between 1950 and 1951.

Resignation Percentages

Resignations last year were six per cent of the total permanent service, and slightly higher among temporary civil servants. The Provincial Police had 11 per cent of its force resign last year. Absenteeism cost the province $646,000.

The service was a cross-section of the people of Ontario, Col. Welsh said. There were some "drones" as well as those who did a good job.

W. J. Stewart (PC-Toronto Parkdale) urged opposition to any move to replace the teaching of British and Canadian history in schools.

There were "constant attempts to water down the potency of our British connections," he said. "Subversive influences" were trying to cut Canada's bonds with the Crown.

OSHAWA, April 2 — (CP) — Board of Education recently asked city council for $375,000 in debentures for two new schools. Council took no action. The board Tuesday night decided to try again—this time for $800,000 in debentures for four new schools.

Open Navigation In Many Centres

By The Canadian Press.

Fleets of ships were astir on the Great Lakes today in the first big movements of the newly-opened 1952 navigation season.

Opening of the Welland Canal Tuesday lent impetus to the reviving bustle at Great Lakes ports. Still held in winter's icy grip is much of Lake Superior, although five vessels are expected to reach Lakehead this week, probably by Thursday.

If they do, it will be one of the earliest openings at the Lakehead in history. Last year the first vessel reached Port Arthur on April 9.

Sixteen ships were on the move in the Welland Canal shortly after it was officially opened. Moving up the canal were five oil tankers, all light, and a freighter, the Autarde, with a cargo of paper.

Downbound were the tankers Imperial Sarnia, Imperial Windsor, Imperial Kingston, Imperial Cornwall, and the Imperial Cobourg, and the freighters Stadacona, Midland Prince, Gleneagles and Donnacona.

The freighter Royalton moved down the canal to Port Robinson and then turned upbound for Fort William.

The first ship through was the Imperial Redwater, which with her sister ship, the Imperial Leduc, is believed to be the largest fresh water tanker in the world. Mayor John Franklin of St. Catharines presented Capt. Harold MacLellan with the traditional top hat.

Plan Inquiry Into Newsprint

WASHINGTON, April 2 (AP). —Representative Emanuel Celler (Dem. N.Y.) Tuesday introduced legislation to open the way for the Justice Department to "renew its inquiries into the activities of newsprint concerns," particularly those with subsidiaries in Canada.

The measure, Celler said, would require that domestic corporations with subsidiaries abroad furnish all the books and records of such subsidiaries "pursuant to subpoena in anti-trust cases."

Another provision would order foreign corporations doing business in the United States to register with the Secretary of State "an agreement that it would furnish its records relating to business affecting the American market"—again pursuant to subpoena.

"Although designed to facilitate the enforcement of the anti-trust laws generally," Celler said in a statement, "it was introduced with the situation prevailing in the newsprint industry particularly in mind."

Crerar Protests Late Estimates

OTTAWA, April 2 (CP) — The chairman of the senate's finance committee Tuesday described as bad the governmental practice of seeking huge sums in supplementary estimates and said it "should be stopped."

Senator Thomas Crerar (L-Manitoba), 75, one-time cabinet minister, told his colleagues they had voted $200,000,000 in supplementary estimates at the end of the last session on top of main estimates topping $3,000,000,000. Now they were being asked to endorse another $246,000,000 in supplementaries.

"This is a bad practice in an administrative way," said Senator Crerar, who last session fathered a committee report urging government economies. "It makes officials tend to grow careless."

Too Tender

He believed the finance minister was "too tender" with government departments. They should be told to prepare their estimates early and not with the expectation of getting more later.

After a two-hour debate the Senate approved supplementary estimates totalling $246,540,813.

Later Mr. Justice Patrick Kerwin, representing the Governor-General, gave Royal assent to these outlays and to an interim supply bill embracing $526,696,879 to meet government expenditures for the next two months.

William Mellis, local National Employment office manager, said today that at the end of March the city's and district's employed drawing funds numbered 1,962. At the same time in February the people on claim were 2,088 and in January about 20 less than in February.

Return To Full Time

Mr. Mellis explained that better working conditions prevail now in the city and district. Several city factories have returned to full work weeks after a short period on four-day weeks. At the same time the arrival of spring in the district has helped absorb unemployed in the lumbering business.

But conditions were still worse than a year ago when only 1,357 men and women were drawing unemployment insurance.

In the city, the C.G.E., the Quaker Oats Company, the Western Clock Company and the Peterborough Lock Company have laid off a few men or are still working a four-day week in some departments.

The district unemployed account for the increase over March 1951. This year there are 984 on unemployment insurance as compared with 391 last year at the same time.

Mr. Mellis explained that a large number of the people who returned to their homes during the employment slumps in the large cities are still there waiting for better working conditions. These people are receiving money through the government.

Companies Slack

He also pointed out that there are more than 200 men and women on claim from Campbellford. There, four companies, the Campbellford Cloth, the G. and B. Shoe, the Toronto Carpet and the Gair Company are all slack.

Men and women in the city and district hunting for work numbered 2,182 at March 31, more than 700 than in 1951.

Job opportunities also increased in March but in most cases required experienced help for skilled positions. Last year there were 64 jobs available, 23 more than this year.

Spring Flood In District Starts At Just a Trickle

Fine spring weather today means the start of the freshet run-off to engineers of the Trent Canal System. The peak should be reached in a little more than three weeks' time if there are not too many heavy rains up until then. The high water mark of this decade reached an all-time peak on May 4, 1943, when 12,000 cubic feet of water per second poured through the Otonabee River outlet and the Trent and into the Bay of Quinte at Trenton.

Engineers report that there is still a great deal of snow in Haliburton and that it has moved very slowly. This may delay the run-off to some extent, they say, since the Gull and Burnt Rivers which drain Haliburton County supply the bulk of water.

Dam Keepers Back

All dam keepers went back on the government payroll on March 15 and since then have been busy at the various control points—Eel's, Jack's, Mississauga, Twelve-Mile, Horseshoe and a dozen other places—putting in stoplogs. This move retains spring thaw waters in the various storage basins which will be drawn off as required through the summer and fall months.

Flood waters from Yonge St., 35 miles north of Toronto, to Healey Falls, where the last trickle from North Hastings joins the trunk stream of the Trent, is the current concern of the Trent engineers in their Peterborough office. It is the largest drainage-storage control basin in Southern Ontario, they say.

Fog Wraps Up Highway Traffic

A heavy fog—one of the worst of the year—blanketed the district late Tuesday afternoon and evening. Drivers wanting to get to Toronto for the night found that they had to slow down to little more than a walk.

The heaviest stretch of fog was from Bewdley on to Toronto. And motor traffic on Highway 2, east of Toronto, was bumper to bumper in both laneways.

About 8 p.m. visibility improved.

During the afternoon there was an accident near Newtonville in which four people were injured and more than $5,000 property damage was caused. An eastbound driver failed to see an oncoming car when he turned out to pass the motor vehicle ahead.

Some of the motorists found the driving too tedious and gave up. They turned in for the night at tourist camps, motels and hotels—filling up transient accommodation along Highway 2. All hotels and motels in Peterborough were full.

Ashburnham School Ready For Tender

After more than three hours of struggling with plans and specifications for the new Ashburnham Public school, the accommodation committee of the Board of Education finally approved of the revised plans. Tenders will be called within a few days.

Study of the plans and specifications had been made by committee members for several days, and then on Tuesday night the members met with J. B. Parkin, the architect. In an effort to keep the cost of the building, a nine-room school with basement playroom, to $200,000 several changes estimated at $20,000 were made by the committee and the architect.

Cars Wrecked Four Hurt In Bad Fog

Beaverton Driver Faces Charge Of Reckless Driving

Four people received minor injuries but property damage is estimated at more than $5,000 after four motor vehicles collided in a fog Tuesday afternoon near Newtonville.

Injured were:

John Bate, 15, son of Lt.-Col Bate, a broken right thumb.

John Kampen, 52, of Port Colborne, a broken nose, facial cuts and bruises.

Mrs. Siemkie Kampen, his wife, a lacerated chin, cuts and bruises.

The accident occurred on Highway 2, a mile and a half west of Newtonville, during a heavy fog that cut visibility to about 50 feet

Faces Charge

Allen Hill of Beaverton faces a charge of careless driving as a result of the accident and is scheduled to appear in Bowmanville police court on or before April 15.

Provincial police say that Hill, driving a 1951 model coach east on the highway, attempted to pass an R.C.A.F. tractor-trailer going in the same direction. He speeded up to get around the slow-moving vehicle but because of the fog didn't see the oncoming car of Lt.-Col. Bate.

He struck the Bate car headon. The force of the impact drove the Bate car out of control and it had the whole left side torn away as it next sideswiped the R.C.A.F. tractor-trailer. It then continued west for some distance, travelling sideways, and was struck for the third time—this time by Kampen's car.

Unable To Stop

Kampen had been following Bate as they both drove west along the highway, but he was unable to stop and avoid an accident when the Bate vehicle was involved in its first two collisions.

Mr. and Mrs. Kampen were treated in Bowmanville hospital and discharged later in the day. Their car received $150 damage.

Lt.-Col. Bate continued on to Toronto in another car, despite his injured shoulder. His $4,000 car was completely wrecked.

Hill's car received about $1,000 damage. And the R.C.A.F. tractor trailer, driven by LAC Joseph Roy of Trenton, sustained only about $40 damage.

O.P.P. Constable Lorne Galbraith of Bowmanville investigated.

Holds Ticket Grand National

A Peterborough resident has a ticket on one of the starting horses in the Grand National Steeplechase being run at Aintree, England, Saturday.

Roger Maloney, 472 Murray St., received a telegram today, confirming that his ticket had been drawn. Mr. Maloney's name was not listed among the 57 Canadians who have tickets on starting horses announced by the Canadian representatives of the Irish Hospitals Trust in Montreal Monday night.

However, Mr. Maloney's ticket No. VB 25110, is not listed among those that have been scratched, and the telegram he received today, informed him he was eligible for a prize of £100 Sterling.

The telegram also stated that further confirmation would follow.

High Trade-Ins Criticized By Ont. Dealers

There'll be no more of the "$125 broom" or similar gimmicks if the Ontario Association of Radio and Appliance Dealers have its way.

The Association claims that some retailers pay an excessive trade-in-allowance on customers' useless articles. The purpose is to clear slow-moving stock.

Tom Cavanaugh of Peterborough was elected one of the directors of the Association at the annual meeting held Tuesday in Toronto. J. A. Pardie of Toronto is the new president, succeeding Joseph Cheshire of Hamilton.

Mr. Cheshire, before retiring as president, blamed the federal government's ban on retail price maintenance for the "havoc" in sales prices.

"Some manufacturers went all out to dump over-stocked inventories," he said. "It has become a contest to see who could give the biggest trade-in or discount.

Last Confidence

"It has become a contest of dollars," he said. "The result is lost consumer confidence, loss of profit, loss of inventory and loss of reputation. We created in the minds of consumers the impression that we are making our normal profit after we give that $250 on an old ice box or refrigerator, that we are a bunch of profiteers and should be outlawed, that we lied, we misrepresented the goods in our advertisements."

Mr. Cheshire asked the dealers to restore confidence in list prices. The principle should be a fair profit to the manufacturer and retailer and a fair price to the consumer, he said.

Fred Cavers of St. Catharines said that in prohibiting resale price maintenance the federal government has "thrown the customer to the wolves".

"With this price-cutting, the buyer may get a cheaper article but he gets no guarantee of service," said Mr. Cavers.

40 Inspectors Hold Conference

Approximately 40 men from Kingston to Oshawa are expected to attend the Regional Conference of Sanitary Inspectors to be held at the laboratory of the nurses residence at the Civic Hospital Thursday.

The conference will take the form of laboratory tests in milk analysis from the sanitary standpoint, and will be conducted by Murray Nixon, of the Provincial Department of Health Laboratory.

One of the guests at the conference will be Lyle E. Wells, director of the Munroe county Department of Health, Rochester, New York.

The inspectors will be guests of the Peterborough Board of Health at a dinner Thursday evening at the Club Aragon.

Noted Builder, Contractor Harold A. Morrow Dies After Lengthy Illness

One of Engineers Who Helped To Build Foundation of Ontario's Great Industrial Development

Harold Archibald Morrow, retired construction engineer, and grandson of one of the pioneer merchants of Peterborough, died at Civic Hospital Tuesday after a lengthy illness. His age was 85. As president of Morrow and Beatty Limited, general contractors for more than a quarter of a century until the 1930's, Mr. Morrow was one of the engineers who helped to build the foundation of the industrial development of Ontario. A modest and retiring man, Mr. Morrow was probably more widely and precisely known by reputation of achievement far from his home town.

For years, huge construction contracts engaged him throughout eastern Canada, and Peterborough saw little of him except on visits home between times.

Immense power developments such as Chats Falls on the Ottawa River, on the Abitibi in Northern Ontario and at Red Lake near the border of Manitoba and Ontario suggest the type of work successfully projected by Morrow & Beatty

Born In Peterborough

Harold A. Morrow was born in Peterborough, son of Robert Archibald Morrow and his wife, Josephine Gilchrist. He was a grandson of Oughtry Morrow who died here on April 29, 1848, and was referred to in the newspaper of that time as "one of our oldest and most respected merchants, who grew up with the town."

Oughtry Morrow was a general merchant at the northwest corner of George and Hunter Streets. That site is now occupied by the Royal Bank. The original Morrow grocery store, which stocked other lines of merchandise, disappeared long ago. Royal Bank bought the present building from the late Harold Morrow in 1916.

Although information is not complete as to the beginnings of the Morrow family in Peterborough it is obvious that Oughtry Morrow must have become established as a merchant on George St. in the pioneer stage of the early town.

Robert A. Morrow was born here in 1843 and died on Sunday April 19, 1930. He was president of the private waterworks company when the city acquired that system. He was especially interested in the agricultural life of this county, and it is related of him that he often gave financial assistance to the Agricultural Society, the forerunner of the Peterborough Exhibition.

R. A. Morrow Park

That attachment of R. A. Morrow to the development of the farming community of this district presumably inspired the gift by Harold A. Morrow of the Exhibition Park to the directors and member of the Exhibition for their use so long as it was confined to agricultural purposes.

That gift was made in 1938. Since then, the Exhibition Board have carried out the wishes of the Morrow Park Trust, and of Harold Morrow himself, in setting up over the main entrance, the memorial lettering: "R. A. Morrow Park."

Mr. Morrow received his Public School education in Peterborough and went on to Trinity College School, Port Hope, and Royal Military College Kingston, of which he was a graduate in engineering.

Customs Set New High Of $8 Millions

Volume and receipts for the customs fiscal year ending March 31, set new records at Peterborough, it was announced today.

The customs receipts for the 12-month period, totalled $7,992,332.13, more than $2,000,000 higher than the fiscal year of 1950-51 when the receipts amounted to $5,936,705.48.

A customs house official explained that the large increase during the year was accounted for in import duties and excise tax. Both exceeded the previous mark.

The largest monthly receipts were in January with $746,434.31 and in July 1951 with $724,146.81. Other monthly figures were: April 1951, $612,076.02; May, $709,658.11; June, $705,916.93; August, $693,545.20; September, $556,977.66; October, $560,913.71; November, $661,756.61; December, $637,308.31; February, $709,392.16 March, $674,206.30.

The record receipts are more than four times the customs receipts during the first year of the war when $1,725,681.41 was collected in 1939-40. Since then the annual receipts have not been under the $3,000,000 mark.

Summary of the fiscal year's totals for the past 12 years is:

1939-40	$1,725,681.41

Leave It In The Bottle

Dreaded Invasion Of Wildlife Expected Any Day Now

It won't be long now.

One of these days, there will appear through the door of the newsroom a hot little hand, clutching a bottle. In the bottle will be an insect. Attached to the hand will be an arm and the rest of a small child, topped by an inquiring look.

The little fellow, bless his trusting heart, will want to know what he has in the bottle. He will probably want to know, too, whether the creature walks on water, slithers under stones, or crawls head-down on tree trunks.

They bring these things into newsrooms because the schools are closed, or because somebody once told them that reporters know everything. That's not true. Reporters don't know everything. Not quite.

Become Experts

But by the end of a summer, they have gathered a fine bit of information about insects. They can spot a Dobson fly nymph at 100 paces, a giant water bug at 40 feet, and a praying mantis by the smile on the bearer's face.

It's probably a plot. There's very likely a man who doesn't like reporters and goes out to field and stream, gathering queer bugs. Then he gives them to little children and pays them a quarter to take the insect to a newspaper office and ask a reporter what it is.

It was probably that same fellow who brought a giant water beetle into the office in the middle of last winter. There was a shrewd stroke for you! He knew he'd catch us off base. No doubt he saved the thing all winter, waiting for the right day to spring his plot.

But to get back to the little fellow with the bug in a bottle. The bottle is all full of grass and twigs and bits of rock. Somewhere in this is an insect.

Hopefully the reporter will look through the glass, his face solemn and his mind a merry-go-round of nasty thoughts about insects. And he will say "Well, that's certainly a funny looking one, isn't it?"

Dogs And Foxes

Turning his face to the typewriter, the reporter will then start to rattle off a racy story about now being the time for all good men to come to the aid of their party, and the quick brown fox that jumped over the lazy dog.

It doesn't work. That innocent, inquiring face will stay where it was, right beside the desk. And a childish voice will ask "What is it, mister, huh? What is it?"

Having got the quick brown fox over the lazy dog, the lazy dog of a reporter will say: "Ah, yes. Insects," and pick up the dictionary, murmuring "insects, insects, insects . . . mumblemumblemumble . . . " What he's doing is looking up a word he saw in a magazine the night before.

When he turns his face from the dictionary, that innocent face is turned to him again.

"Well," the reporter will say, "if you go over to that fellow at the desk by the window, he can tell you all about it. I've forgotten for the moment just what that bug is called."

Old Hand

But the fellow at the desk by the window is too smart for him. He has hit hat on and whips out the door, crying "Taxi! Taxi!" The other reporters and any editors that may be around hide in cupboards and between filing cabinets.

If they're hard-pressed, they'll run out to the composing room, screaming "Stop the presses! Get out the big type!" or some such thing.

As was said before, there's no escape. The reporter is caught, alone in the newsroom with an inquiring face and a bottle full of beetle.

"Well, let's see that bug again," he tells the little fellow. "Uhuh . . . what have we here? . . . hummmm . . . yes . . . well . . . ummm . . . just a minute now . . . I think . . . yes . . . wait a second . . . oh, that black thing under the piece of twig? . . . ha ha ha . . . thought that piece of twig was the . . . it just shows you . . . well . . . mmmm-hmmmm . . .

"Now that I know what it . . . I mean, it's quite simple really. Knew it all the time. That is a common grillidus domesticus or house cricket. An excellent trout and bass bait and a comforting companion in the lonely hours of a night by the fireside.

"It is only a little different than the grillidus domesticus or field cricket. Now run along.

"Hey . . . take this bug with you!"

Canadian Farms Hard Hit By Labor Shortage, Migration Ban Delays Aid

By HAROLD MORRISON, Canadian Press Staff Writer

Thousands of Canadian farmers are preparing for spring seeding with prospects of facing the greatest scarcity in hired help since the end of the Second World War. Outbreak of foot-and-mouth disease and consequent slow-down of farm immigration, the loneliness of farm work and the more attractive pay in city defence plants contributed to the depletion in the pool of manpower essential to the production of foodstuffs. Though the lack of hired hands will place an added hardship on Canada's hard-working food producers, Federal officials feel that many of them will turn more and more to machinery this year to keep production as high as possible.

A Canadian Press survey shows that the shortage is almost general throughout the country. British Columbia reports the shortage is most acute on general farm and ranch work; Alberta, on sugar beet farms; Saskatchewan, in the dairy industry.

The dairy industry will feel the pinch in the east, too. Ontario, Quebec and Prince Edward Island report shortages in that essential industry; but Nova Scotia says the biggest demand for help is among apple growers.

New Brunswick and Manitoba feel that the manpower situation is not too acute. Manitoba reports that if there is any shortage it will come in mid-April. There was no report from Newfoundland. That island province gets most of its foodstuffs from the mainland.

But with suspicion that foot-and-mouth disease may have been brought to Canada by an immigrant, the Federal Government temporarily halted recruiting in Europe where the disease is prevalent until steps can be taken to disinfect all those who want to work on Canadian farms.

Federal officials estimate they have lost about three-weeks recruiting time because of the change in regulaions and many farmers promised hired help on a certain date likely will wait three or four weeks.

November Survey.

A Federal survey last November showed Canada's farm labor force at about 875,000, down about 100,000 from 974,0000, the previous year. The force grows during the spring and summer and reaches approximately 1,000,000. Canada's total labor force is estimated at 5,000,000 persons.

The survey showed, however, that the number of paid workers— the hired hands who are not members of the farmer's family —totalled about 90,000, down 12,000 from 102,000 in 1950. The number of unpaid workers —mostly members of the farmer's family —totalled about 200,000.

To meet all demands about 20,000 farm immigrants will be needed this year to cover the drift of farm hands to the cities.

Labor officials estimate that the shortage will be more acute this year than any in the post-war period. However, they suggest farmers can make life attractive on farms by offering more pay, cutting hours of work and enhancing farm sociail life.

This, of course, would mean higher prices for farm products and might cause reduction in sales. J. A. Carrol, assistant deputy Minister of Agriculture for Ontario, sizes up the situation neatly. There would be no shortage, he says ,if farmers could get prices that would permit them to offer wages as attractive as factories do.

"A shortage of labor until now has been the major factor limiting production," he adds.

Some farm immigrants find Canadian conditions as good or even better than in Europe. Others, such as those from the United Kingdom, mention that conditions are not as comfortable as at home. In Britain farm workers are organized, work an eight hour day, with extra pay for overtime and get certain fixed holidays. Similar conditions do not exist in Canada. The daily work day is about 10 hours or more.

The hired hand's pay has been climbing. But it still is short of the average city wage. The Bureau of Statistics estimates the monthly farm-labor rate at $86 with board, up $11 from $75 in 1951. The average industrial wage is a little more than $200.

Little Change

Ontario's demand for farm labor is expected to be about the same as last year. Greatest shortage is on livestock and mixed farms where men experienced at handling livestock and machinery are at the premium.

Major problem is immigrant labor. Last year some 10,000 worked on Ontario farms but at the end of their year's service, the majority leave.

Major unemployment in Ontario has been in cities and towns and the picture is reported to be steadily improving. But, at any time, the demand for farm labor receives small reply from the unemployed in cities.

Experienced immigrants receive $55 a month with room and board. This amount is raised monthly to $70 at which point the immigrant can ask for the prevailing wage.

Pay for single Canadians is from $75 to $120, including board and lodging. Married men make $90 to $150 a month.

Hours Vary

Hours of work vary, as do special privileges and both affect wages.

No definite comparisons are available but the general picture indicates wages are double or more than those paid in 1940.

Some immigrants criticize wages and conditions, even though wages compare favorably with those paid on European farms. Apparently the wage factor has little effect on an immigrant's desire to come to Canada.

J. A. Carroll, Ontario's Assistant Deputy Minister of Agriculture, says "a shortage of labor until now has been the major factor limiting (farm) production."

Wages also affect the labor shortage—if prices were higher, farmers could afford to get labor. Observers feel that there would be no shortage if farmers could get prices that would enable them to pay wages as attractive as industry offers.

Canadian Dines Siamese Style Finds Food Cheap And Good

By BILL BOSS,
Canadian Press Staff Writer

BANGKOK, Trailand, April 2—(CP)—The restaurant front was unpromising. Foreigners guided to eating places by neon signs, plate glass and chrome fittings would never venture there. The proprietor said I was his first foreign guest.

Plush American-style soda bars and dining-rooms abound on Bangkok's main street—and they charge western main-street prices. There are ritzy "native" (usually Chinese) restaurants that serve "what you want the way you want it"—American, Europeean, Chinese or Siamese—and have no specialities.

But for the sort of restaurant the ordinary Siamese frequent, take this unpainted eatng-house just around the corner from Wat Sudat, the Temple of the Giant Swing which is no longer used.

At the front is a work-a-day bar through which guests pass to reach the dining room at the rear. The clean oilcloth-covered tables are under a railed open-air portico overlooking a pleasant little garden. There are geese and a couple of monkeys in the garden. An electric fan by the table keeps the sultry air changing, and ice-cold beer comes from a modern United States regriferator.

Each meal is an occasion in Siam, and wolfing is taboo.

Tools are a large spoon, held in the right hand, and a fork, held in the left. The fork is for pushing food onto the spoon.

Soup, usually curried, is the invariable appetizer.

All-Important Rice

The main course centres around the bowl of rice, so cooked that the puffed white granules are warm, almost dry and not sticky.

Siamese like their food well seasoned, and that means hot. It is rivalled only by Korean Jimchi, whose blow-torch effect is becoming familiar to Canadians there.

Both curries and chillis are used for seasoning and the side dishes usualy are spiced vegetables and fish and meat curries. They are ladled as wanted onto a bit of rice, mixed with it, then eaten.

As with a Chinese meal, one helps oheself from the central dishes. Usually there are six.

Tastiest morsels to the western palate are mee krawh (fine rice noodles succulently fried in lard with pork and chicken) and koong--lohn (prawn crushed in coconut milk and heated with sugar and spice). Chillis are added just before serving.

For dessert there are pastries made with rice flour, coconut milk and sugar, or native fruit.

The Siamese must be the world's greatest fruit eaters. It is abundant and inexpensive. There are 20 varieties of banana alone, varying from finger-to arm-length and in color from green to red, orange and brown-black. There is a whole ranges of citrus fruit, mangos and coconuts.

The price for a relaxing 1½ hours for three persons in this tpye of restaurant? Service included—$1.40.

Legislation Opens Way For New Inquiry In US

WASHINGTON, April 2 (AP) —Representative Emanuel Celler (Dem., N.Y.) Tuesday introduced legislation to open the way for the Justice Department to "renew its inquiries into the activities of newsprint concerns," particularly those with subsidiaries in Canada.

The measure, Celler said, would require that domestic corporations with subsidiaries abroad furnish all the books and records of such subsidiaries.

Stalin And Malik Seem To Disagree

NEW YORK, April 2—(AP)—There appears to be a disagreement between Prime Minister Stalin and his Deputy Foreign Minister, Jacob A. Malik, about a third world war.

Stalin said Tuesday he does not believe war is closer than it was two or three years ago. But two months ago, in United Nations debate, Malik said:

"The third world war has in fact commenced—in Korea, Indo-China, Tunis and Morocco."

U.S. Senate Ratifies Pact With Canada

WASHINGTON, April 2 (AP)—The Senate Tuesday ratified a pact with Canada designed to permit prosecution of Canadians charged with selling worthless stock in the United States.

Senator John Sparkman (Dem., Ala.) explained the treaty broadens extradition so fraudulent stock operators may be brought to the U.S. for trial.

The list of extraditable crimes includes "obtaining of money under false pretences," Sparkman said. But he added that Canadian courts have held this did not cover some fraudulent stock operations.

The Securities and Exchange Commission estimated that "from $10,000,000 to $50,000,000 a year" has been taken from U.S. investors in fraudulent sales by promoters operating from Canada.

Trap Rebel Soldiers

SAIGON, Indo-China, April 2 (AP)—French Union forces said Tuesday they have pocketed a big force of Communist-led Vietminh soldiers 60 miles southeast of Hanoi in their drive to clear the Red river delta of the enemy. A communique said reduction of the pocket is "progressing favorably." About 3,000 men are believed trapped in that region. They form part of a five-battalion force rooted from fortified villages near the Red river in an offensive started last Thursday. Others were pushed to the shore of the Gulf of Tonkin under bombing and naval shelling.

Old-Style Horror Needed On TV Chaney Believes

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD, April 2—(AP)—What television needs, says Lon Chaney, is more old-fashioned horror and less blood and guts for the children viewers.

That sounds like an odd statement, coming from a father and grandfather. But Chaney backs it up with this reasoning:

"I don't mean that you should scare young people on TV. I mean TV could put on the kind of horror things that my father did and that I have tried to do on the screen, although the studios seldom let me. My father may have looked like a monster, on the screen, but he was never a menace. He played a simple fellow who was victimized by others; the only violence came with the retribution at the end of the picture.

"I think such stories would be much better for children than the stuff they are getting from TV now. The Westerns and other pictures are full of shootings and beatings.

"I know from my own experience what an effect it has on youngsters. Three times I have broken up really rugged fights among the children in my neighborhood. Once a boy had another child down and was hitting him over the head with his toy pistol. They had learned about such things on TV."

Has Own Ideas

Chaney is against pure horror, and he said he has turned down numerous TV offers because of his beliefs. But he's not knocking the business of being a boogeyman.

"I've made more money from it than any other man," he remarked.

More than his father, the horror king of silent films?

"Sure," he replied. "This present picture ('The Black Castle') in my 187th. My dad only made 50 or 60.

"And I'm still going strong. I've been in show business for 47 years. I've got two grandchildren and another on the way. But I'm still able to do all the physical stuff in pictures. I'm the only horror man left who can."

Charge Workers Do Baby-Sitting

NEW YORK, April 2 (AP) — A complaint that skilled workers were asked to baby-sit for an army colonel at time-and-one half pay on a big North African air base has been received by Senate investigators.

The complaint is a further item in the "Case of the Colonel's Lady" —being investigated by the Senate in a hunt for waste and mismanagement at the multi-million dollar project near Casablanca, French Morocco.

The complaint is about Lt.-Col. Leonard Haseman of the Army Engineers.

Haseman's wife was credited in official Senate records with being the "Colonel's Lady" who halted a crew of workmen on pre-fabricated houses at the base, arranging for them to begin all over and build the houses further apart—at tremendous added expense for the government.

Asks If Gov't Checks On Loans

OTTAWA, April 2 — (CP) — Senator W. Rupert Davies (L., Ontario) asked in the Senate Tuesday how the government keeps track of immigrants coming to Canada so it can obtain repayment of financial assistance it lends to them.

Senator Davies was making his first appearance in the Senate after spending a year at the Welsh county of Montgomeryshire where he was High Sheriff. He noted a $6,000,000 item in the supplementary estimates for immigration. He asked if this was for the assisted passage plan and how the government manages to get its money back.

Senator Wishart Robertson, government leader, said the item was in addition to $3,000,000 voted last year to assist immigrants. He supposed collection must be done through the various labor organizations which keep tab on the immigrants. He did not think much had been repaid.

PREVENTED LOG JAM — Spring is the time for log drives and on many of Canada's northern rivers scenes such as this soon will be commonplace. Competent river drives prevent log jams by skilfully using pike-poles to keep logs moving smoothly down the waterways. White Chute on Nipigon River, about 150 miles north of Port Arthur, is one of the places where jams are likely to occur, mainly because of the fast-flowing water. Emory Matchett, left, and Charles Allison are the drivers working to free the logs.

Takes Exception To Statement

OTTAWA, April 2 — (CP). — Gordon Higgins (PC- St. John's East) said Tuesday night in the Commons that Col. Robert McCormick, publisher of the Chicago Tribune, recently "slandered the people of Newfoundland in a most disgusting fashion."

When his plane was delayed for 4½ hours at Gander, Col. McCormick had placed the blame on "moronic customs officers and torpid baggage handlers."

Mr. Higgins said he wished to take exception to the slander.

He made his remarks during a foreign affairs debate and had not completed his speech when he was called to order.

Appeal Court Rules Tax Data Secret

MONTREAL, April 2 (CP). — Quebec Court of Appeals ruled on Tuesday that information obtained by employees of the Income Tax Department in the course of their duties is secret.

The court held that if any question as to disclosure arises, the Minister of National Revenue has final authority and no judge is entitled to overrule the minister's decision.

The point arose in a case in which Arthur W. Gilmour and Dominic Vincelli, employees of the Income Tax Department, were summoned to bankruptcy court to give evidence.

They declined to testify on the ground that the wanted information came into their possession in the course of their official duties, and that the Income Tax Act prevented its disclosure.

For refusal to testify they were declared in contempt of court by Mr. Justice Louis Boyer. The decision was appealed by the minister and the two employees.

Different Viewpoint

In giving judgment, Mr. Justice Paul Casey said:

"The learned trial judge took the position that he alone had the right to decide whether a matter of public policy was concerned in the present instance. But from other decisions, it appears that it is only the head of a department of state who has the right to decide whether the disclosure will be against public interest and the further proposition that no court has the right to go behind the decision, in this case, of the Minister of National Revenue.

"This view of the matter gives to the minister far-reaching powers and certainly makes possible situations in which the individual may suffer.

"But the argument that the information sought is of no conceivable importance to any one save the persons concerned cannot destroy the broader principle that 'a private inconvenience should be submitted to rather than introduce a public mischief.'"

Expect Manitoba Legislature To Prorogue On Thursday

By The Canadian Press.

Manitoba's Legislature, which opened Feb. 5, probably will prorogue Thursday.

Premier Douglas Campbell said Tuesday night the work of several committees now holding hearings must be cleaned up before prorogation. Six uncontroversial bills remain to be introduced.

At Halifax the Federal and Provincial governments were accused of "buck-passing, academic argument and shadow-boxing" in the matter of aiding fishermen, hit by winter storms.

At one point W. H. Brown (P.C.-Yarmouth) referred to Resources Minister Winters "who is supposed to be representing Nova Scotia in the Federal cabinet." Mr. Winters approved federal aid to western farmers suffering losses because of foot-and-mouth disease but said further study was required on storm-damaged fisheries.

Living Standard Up

The cost of living occupied the Newfoundland Legislature where Supply Minister Forsey said the standard of living also has improved. Defending the Liberal government against opposition charges that nothing has been done on keeping prices down, Mr. Forsey said the government could do little.

But it had done much to create employment and raise living standards.

Premier McNair expressed hope for a great industrial program in New Brunswick from power development of the St. John River. He told the Fredericton House that a forthcoming report from International Joint Commission might show the way to major developments in the river's power potential.

Another river—the South Saskatchewan—occupied the attention of the Regina House. Opposition leader Walter Tucker said Prime Minister St. Laurent has been told that the engineering phases of the river dam involve "a number of very disturbing features and obvious risks."

Speaking during discussion of a resolution urging quick construction of the dam and irrigations project, Mr. Tucker was quoting from a letter written by G. A. Gaherty to Mr. St. Laurent. Mr. Gaherty is a member of the Royal commission investigating the proposed project. The letter spoke of the extremely "high costs" and added irrigation benefits would not be realized for eight to 10 years.

The resolution later was passed unanimously.

Geiger Counter Now Used To Test Grain Experiment

REGINA —(CP)—Saskatchewan research with radioactive isotopes may help increase crops.

Dr. A. M. Kristjanson, assistant professor of chemistry at Regina College, said in a lecture here that the major use of the process at the University of Saskatchewan has been to determine the rate at which grain absorbs different kinds of food under different conditions.

Grain was planted in special plots in which some of the rows were spread with radioactive fertilizer. Tests at certain stages of growth determined, by means of a Geiger counter, the amount of radioactive substance in the plant and therefore the amount of the fertilizer food it had absorbed.

The grain plots were sown in various parts of the province in a variety of soils and weather conditions.

Dr. Kristjanson said that if best crops could be improved even a little by this study of the kinds of food grain absorbed it would be well worth while because of the millions of acres over which this improvement could be spread.

He also said that by activating substances and feeding them to cattle it is possible, by means of the Geiger counter, to trace everything the animal eats and say what happens to it.

An example in this field concerned the search for forms of iodine, copper and iron which had a balance of solubility for inclusion in salt blocks. Various forms of these substances were fed to cattle and traced by Geiger.

Thus it was possible to find just which chemical forms were most easily absorbed by the cattle and would be most suitable for inclusion in the salt blocks.

Communists Seek To Secure Japan Missionary Says

MARMORA, April 2—(ENS)—A picture of the Japan of today and the open door there for the preaching of the gospel was presented at St. Andrew's United Church on Monday by Miss Luella Rorke missionary of the United Church on furlough from that country. Miss Rorke held the attention of the fair sized meeting as she unfolded her story. "Japan" she said "is not one of the hot spots of he Orient today as Korea is but it is one of the most critical centres of the East". She referred to words of Dr. Walmsley, keen student of Communism as it affects the East, that Communists look upon Japan as an essential unit in their plans for world domination. The question is whether or not Japan will be able to withstand Communism. The struggle is going on between ideas and ideals.

The end of the war left Japan like spiritual vacuum. Now there are competitors with Christ for the hearts of the Japanese people. While the present strength of Communism in the country is difficult to measure, it is none the less most important. Fascist leaders will likely start to play their part too. The Shinto religion is still existent and Buddhism is showing activity. So it may be said that Japan is an arena and not a vacuum. Never has the missionary task been more urgent in that country than now. The Japanese are great listeners today and they are looking also to the Christians in their country to see what are the fruits of the Christian way of life. They have discovered some through the army of occupation but not by force of arms will they see the fruits. The United Church of Japan has increased its membership 14 per cent since the close of the war.

The speaker was introduced by Mrs. G. D. Young and thanked by Mrs. E. C. Prentice.

Prior to the address the meeting under the auspices of the W.M.S. was opened with a call to worship by Mrs. L. McGinnis. Scripture reading was taken by Mrs. H. Vanstone, prayer by Mrs. Hogarth Sabine, with readings by Mesdames B. McKenzie and L. McGinnis. Following the address Mrs. R. Long sang "The Lord is My Shepherd" with Mrs. A. F. Fraser as accompanist. Miss Rorke closed the meeting with prayer and at the social and refreshment period, which followed in St. Andrew's Hall, passed round a series of snapshots connected with the work she is engaged in. A collection was taken for the Missions of the Church.

Groomsman was Vernon Lane and the ushers were Robert Pogue ad Herbert Finley, brothers of the bride and groom.

Wedding music was played by organist Mr. Charles Allen and Mr. A. M. Wheldon was soloist.

The reception was held at the bride's home, her mother receiving in a navy gown and grey straw hat and wearing a corsage of talisman roses. The groom's mother was dressed in mauve crepe and wore a black straw hat and corsage of yellow roses.

When leaving later for New York the bride wore a navy suit and powder blue accessories and corsage of red roses.

Mr. and Mrs. Finley will live at 673 Curtis Road.

McGregor-Meechen

The marriage took place quietly at St. Andrew's Church Saturday afternoon with the Rev. Henry Cotton officiating, of Joyce, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Meechen of Indian River, to Alexander McGregor, son of Mr. and Mrs. David McGregor of Peterborough.

The bride wore a blue taffeta dress in street length and a white veil caught to her head in halo effect and her corsage was of red rosebuds. Miss Joan Monks as bridesmaid chose a mauve dress and wore white accessories and a corsage of talisman rosebuds.

The grooms' attendant was his brother, Jack McGregor.

A reception was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Morgan, 144 Rubidge St., where the bride's mother received in a navy dress with white accessories and wearing a pink rosebud corsage.

Mr. and Mrs. McGregor will live at 190 Reid St.

Group May Start Badminton Club

The Mr. and Mrs. Club of Trinity United Church met in the church parlors Friday.

The meeting opened with a solo by Lois Toby accompanied by Mrs. W. Evans.

The scripture from Mark, chapter 14, was read by Eileen Macdonald. In keeping with the Easter theme, Verna Tanney read the passage, "In the Garden of Gethsemane." Gwen Cutmore led in prayer.

President Reuben Macdonald, conducted the business period. The treasurer's report showed a very favorable balance following the rummage sale held on March 21.

A discussion followed concerning a play which might be produced by the club in the autumn. A committee was appointed to investigate the possibilities of proceeding with this venture.

Several delegates were appointed to approach the stewards of the church regarding the formation of a badminton club in the early autumn.

Mr. William Fanjoy showed two very interesting and educational films, namely: "The Gaspe Peninsula," and "Newfoundland."

Mr. Cutmore thanked Mr. Fanjoy and all others who participated in the program.

Refreshments were served by Eileen and Reuben Macdonald and members of their group.

Members were then given an opportunity to see the new church hall.

Ten Toes Take A Peek!

Lucite bands, cob-web straps of colored leather, open heels, toes uncovered way past the point where they become one with the foot—these are the new shoes — bare minimums and a treat to the eye.

Pedicures are not difficult. In fact, the bending and twisting you have to do to work on your toes is good waistline exercise. You follow the very same method that you use for your finger-nails. Except that when you file your toe-nails, do them straight across. Push back the cuticle with an orangewood stick wrapped in cotton. Remember that toes as well as fingers like the benediction of oil around the cuticle. And don't forget to dry your toes thoroughly, in between, also, before you apply lacquer.

Your toes, in these new shoes, are going to be out in a world of hard knocks. So, more than ever, choose a long-lasting lacquer, and don't forget that now, if ever, is time for a twin coat of colorless base, on the bottom and on the top of your lacquer. Two coats of lacquer are necessary, finishing off with the second of your base twin coats.

Be sure that before you start brushing on your lacquer you separate each toe with a little wad of absorbent cotton. Toes have a way of wanting to run together and the cotton keeps them separate and unsmudged.

What shade lacquer? Match your finger-nails, or use a slightly darker harmonizing tone. Sea shell and pink sapphire are two lovely, soft pinkish tones. Take a cue from the recent Paris collections in which trimmings of real coral were used to accent beige and whites. Deck your toes with next best to real coral—a lovely coral fan shade — particularly good the moment your legs and feet begin to take on the golden glow of summer sun.

Labor-Saving Devices For Home Server

Most smart women who like to sew their own clothes start working on their spring-into-summer things right now, so they will be ready to relax in the pleasant warm weather. With your spring sewing in mind, here are some of the newer labor-saving devices available.

There is a little wrist pin-cushion in gay colors which will fit over either your wrist or the machine head. There is a pressing kit especially designed for all pile fabrics, especially velvets and corduroy.

So that your belts will have a professional "finish" there is a new stiffening to which you simply stitch your dress material (it will wash and dry clean). There are buckles to go with it made of plastic into which you insert dress material to match the belt.

So that the home seamstress can be as high-fashioned as she likes, there is bone belting for use in the very new empire waist bands, and Mohair braid for making new full skirts a stand-out.

Free instruction can be had on the new decorative fashion stitches which can be done on the sewing machine without the use of attachments.

Mr., Mrs. Herbert Lang Married 50 Years Ago

As they receive the congratulations and best wishes of relatives and friends today, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert T. Lang will be looking back on a half century of marriage.

The Langs have led a quiet life since they were married on April 2, 1902, and they are not planning on an elaborate celebration to mark their golden wedding anniversary.

"I'm looking forward to a holiday," said Mrs. Lang, as she explained that they would be holding open house during the afternoon and evening in their comfortable farm home on the Chemong Road.

Family Dinner

To make the holiday complete, Mrs. Lang will not have to worry about cooking dinner. She and Mr. Lang will be guests of honor at a family dinner party at the Y.W.C.A.

Mr. Lang was born south of Omemee and began farming in 1901 on the farm now owned by Melville Stuart, a short distance from his present farm, where he and Mrs. Lang moved in 1922.

A farmer all his life, Mr. Lang retired about five years ago and Roy Sanderson now works his farm on shares. Although he is 81, Mr. Lang enjoys good health and still does odd jobs around the farm "for exercise."

Tractors Now

Farming today is much different from a few years ago, and Mr. Lang recalls that the big change was just starting when he was retiring. Tractors were just becoming common. Now when a youngster is eight years old, you see him driving a tractor, Mr. Lang commented and, added that he is afraid that in a few years, "no one will be able to drive horses. I used to think there was no better fun than breaking in a colt when I was young."

Mr. Lang carried on mixed farming but he thinks that machinery has made farming a lot easier. "There is not the work now that there used to be, they're doing everything with machinery."

Back in 1890, Mr. Lang recalled that he and his brother hewed all the timbers and erected a barn 50 by 30 feet that would cost well over $1,000 today for only $100. It cost $50 to build the 10-foot stone wall and another $50 to frame and shingle the barn.

Mrs. Lang is also in excellent health and is looking forward to her 73rd birthday soon. A piano in the Lang living room prompted the question, did Mrs. Lang play, and she admitted she used to but does not play it very often any more.

No Honeymoon

There are few holidays on the farm, and Herbert Lang and Margaret Switzer didn't even take time out for a honeymoon after they were married at the home of her father, J. T. Switzer in Emily township. They went to Mr. Lang's farm, a short distance down the highway from their present home and they have lived on the Chemong Road ever since.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Lang attend George St. United Church, but Mrs. Lang says she has not taken a very active part in church affairs recently because it's a bit too far to get in often.

The Langs have one daughter, Mrs. Allan Milburn, who lives in the second house on the opposite side of the highway and they have four grandchildren, all boys.

Of Interest to Women

DOROTHY DIX

Numerous Relatives Are Hard On Couple's Purse

DEAR MISS DIX: My husband and I are people of small means, owning a small house and considerably beset with doctor's bills.

We are godparents to five children, and would like to know to what extent we are obligated for presents to these youngsters There are three generations in our family, and we have made it a practice to give gifts, or money, on all birthdays, weddings, communions, confirmations and graduations, as well as at Christmas and Easter. With the family growing in numbers so rapidly, it is becoming quite a burden to maintain this custom, much as we would like to. Many, if not most, of the nieces and nephews are better off than we are.

MARIE

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: It certainly should not be expected that you give presents beyond your means, or to an extent that means financial sacrifice for you. Your impulses are naturally generous, but as families spread from one generation to the other, the burden can be terrific. Of course everyone, especially children, likes to be remembered on the important occasions of life, but an appropriate greeting card can carry your thoughtfulness as well as a gift. Our greeting card companies do such a wonderful job of printing handsome, cheery cards that you need feel no apology in sending them. If your means permit, continue to remember your godchildren with gifts, at least until they reach teen-age, but the presents need not be costly or elaborate. Youngsters are pleased with very simple things, and to give a small gift that has been chosen with the child's tastes in mind is a better remembrance than a gift of money you cannot afford.

Parents Will Understand

Don't be embarrassed to let the parents of these children, as well as the other members of your family, know that your financial condition will not permit numerous or expensive gifts. Everyone realizes what the cost of living is today, and especially what the cost of illness is. If your family is as understanding as you are, they will be very happy to see you curtail the gift list.

One of the best-loved relatives I know is unable to manage even a small outlay of money for gifts; she remembers all the important occasions in her family by composing a poem for each one. These little verses are treasured by all recipients, who wouldn't trade them for any amount of cash.

If you have a talent, why not turn it to use this way? If you are not artistic, you can write a fine letter, so let a note, or the aforementioned greeting card, convey your thoughts for the day. The important thing is — don't ever forget a festive occasion. Remembering is the thing that counts, and this is not necessarily done with a present.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: I am troubled with two girls. They want me to be friends with them, but they are not friends with each other. Their mothers aren't friendly, either. If I go out with one girl, the other one gets mad and so does her mother. I'd like to be friendly with them both, but it doesn't seem possible.

BEVERLY.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: It has always been my contention that only people with very small souls cannot get along with their fellow men. When you run into a double situation of this sort, with both daughters and mothers at swords' points, I think the best course for you is to drop both girls. You have a friendly disposition, and the constant strain of trying to please two antagonistic girls is too much for you. Gather a congenial group around you, girls who admire and respect each other as well as you. Don't let yourself become a part of pettiness and spite. Tell these young ladies frankly and firmly that you will not go out with either of them unless they can get along together. Of course, the source of all the difficulties lies in the mothers, who should be old enough to know better. They're acting more childishly than their daughters.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: How can one tell when a man loves you enough to marry you? He is kind and considerate, and treats me better than I've ever been treated. We have gone together for four years, but he does occasionally go out with other girls. He says he loves me.

JEAN.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: The acid test of a man's love is whether or not he asks you to marry him. Until the question is popped, you're entitled to some doubt on the subject. Fidelity is also another accurate indication. If he constantly dates other girls, better not count on the wedding ring. Four years is quite a while to know each other, and you both should be sure of your feelings by now. If he does propose, and shows his sincerity by dating only you, go ahead and plan the wedding. His other qualities sound fine.

Men Prefer Tan Luggage

Smooth tan leather luggage is still tops for male buyers. Women like lizard trimmed bags, pale-colored vanity cases and tweed-finished suitcases. But smooth and tan is the male demand.

Most popular are the Gladstone single-suiter and two-suiter bags. For overseas travel a man will take a Gladstone two-suiter and a smaller bag. But if he goes with his wife he may share a wardrobe trunk. If he takes his own trunk it is a small one, carried like a suitcase.

There are three types of cases men carry for business papers, according to a leading leather goods authority. Legal attache cases are requested by lawyers (they are large enough to hold the 18-inch briefs without getting dog-eared); insurance men want the regular briefcases and other professional men ask for the flat zippered cases called paper cases. Again tan is the color in demand.

A useful leather product for the travelling man is a clothing brush with a zippered leather back. In this back is an oilskin-lined manicure set and comb. It is practical, and takes only the room of a clothing brush in a suitcase.

A handy item for the office desk drawer is a flat cowhide case, in tan, containing file, comb, nail clippers and nickel-plated mirror.

Wonderful as a groom's gift to his ushers are the cuff link boxes in pigskin. They are lined with beige suede, with a small suede pillow.

For those interested in liquid refreshment with a leather flair there are a great variety of cocktail or drinking sets. In a tan cowhide case are four nickel-plated cups; another tan cowhide case, lined with plaid, holds two flasks; more highbrow is the case containing two flasks, four nickel cups, a spoon and a bottle-opener. And for the grand finale is a tan zippered case which will hold a 26-ounce bottle. This case is lined with either quilted plastic or rayon.

Most durable (and most expensive) billfold on the market comes in pin seal. One reason for its expense is that baby seal, from which pin seal skin is taken, were not caught during the war. As the number on the market are limited, the price is high. A pin seal billfold is recognizable by its finely grained finish.

When it comes to the unusual in wallets, the prize goes to the ostrich. Ostrich wallets are rare, and distinguishable by their pock-marked finish. Light beige in color, they are dotted with brown spots. These marks are where the feathers were plucked from the astrich skin. The man who flashes this number from his breast pocket will not be forgotten.

MARY MOORE SAYS:

Fresh Pork Curry Special Menu

This is for "H.B."

Pineapple Juice or Fruit Cup
Fresh Pork Curry
Fluffy Boiled Long Grain Rice
Generous Chef's Salad
Butter Tarts (the syrupy type)
Danish Blue Cheese Coffee

Directions

The recipe "H.B." asked for is "butter rts that are syrupy when cold," so I worked them into today's special menu, but the Curry is the special I want you to try. It is so good you will want it for your permanent files.

Fresh Pork Curry

One pound lean fresh pork (or veal or lamb) will serve four. Cut the meat into 1-inch cubes and roll in salted flour. Melt 2 tablespoons butter or fat and in them colorlessly fry 2 thinly sliced onions on low heat. Add the meat and saute until golden brown. Add 2 tablespoons flour or rice flour, 2 or three teaspoons curry powder, ½ to 1 teaspoon salt, ⅛ teaspoon pepper, and stir in 2 cups hot water. (For those who are familiar with curry you know you may use cocoanut milk or milk as part of this liquid content.) When thick add 1 or 2 tablespoons finely chopped parsley and simmer over very low heat, covered, until meat is tender—about 1 to 1½ hours. You may need to add a little water as it evaporates. Serve in hot platter in centre of ring of rice.

Fluffy Rice

Method 1.—In top of double boiler put 1 cup washed long grain rice. Add 1 teaspoon salt, 1½ cups boiling water and 2 teaspoons butter or margarine. Cover and cook over boiling water 30 minutes. This does not require stirring.

Method 2—Combine in heavy pan 1 cup washed rice and salt, boiling water and butter as above. Cover tightly, bring to brisk boil, turn off heat for 5 minutes, then turn on heat as low as possible for 25 minutes without removing lid. Rice will be in distinct kernels, but will stick to pan. Do not use stainless steel, for rice burns in it. Remove from heat, cover with cloth, then lid and let stand for 5 minutes before serving. Rice which clings to bottom will soak off in a little cold water and may be added to the soup pot.

Butter Tarts (syrupy type)

One cup sugar, ¼ cup butter, 2 eggs, 1 cup washed and dried currants or chopped seeded raisins, 2 tablespoons lemon juice, ¼ cup corn syrup. Cream the butter and cream the sugar into it. Add beaten eggs and fruit and flavoring. Have ready tart tins lined with your best thinly rolled out pastry. Fill two-thirds full with the mixture. Bake at 450 deg. Fahr. for about 7 minutes, then reduce heat to 400 deg. Fahr. until tarts are biscuit-colored on the bottom.

Tart Filling No. 2

One-half cup washed and chopped raisins, ½ cup sugar, 1½ tablespoons fine cracker crumbs, 1 egg yolk, ½ tablespoon melted butter, shake of salt, 1 tablespoon lemon juice, 1 teaspoon grated lemon rind, 2 tablespoons chopped walnuts. Make same as butter tarts above.

Gay Colors Featured In Shirting

Spring and summer shirts will feature fabric and color. Previously it was difficult to tell the difference between a fall shirt and a spring shirt. This year it's been said that "It would take a one-eyed buyer with a weak mind to confuse spring and fall shirts."

Fabrics will range from voiles, meshes and batiste to almost sheer chambrays. Semi-sport shirts in linen weaves will be important. They will have shantung effects, twills, herringbone twills and pebble weaves. Lightweight broadcloths will be shown also.

Not in the last 15 years have dark tones received such interest from retail buyers for their spring sales. Many shades are so dark they have to be classed as semi-sport shirts. Most deep tones are worked in madrases and chambrays and are variously named peasant tones, Indian sheens and tropic tones.

Strong patterns are represented by miniature glen plaids, checks and gingham effects, as well as in some pronounced stripings.

In the luxury grade shirtings it is noted that the stripings must be very neat. Some of these fine hairlines, sharkskins and miniature candy strips, give the appearance of a solid color when not closely examined.

A color that is reported to have a future is a nameless shade that can best be described as taupe with a lavender cast.

The vanishing band collar, introduced a few seasons back, is becoming most popular. Now it is shown in almost all lines in regular spread and button-down styles. Most makers have done tricks with collar lining to give the much-desired roll effect.

A top fashion has gone all out and produced a business shirt bandless collar.

Button downs continue to gain by leaps and bounds. Shown in practically everything other than fused fabrics, the button down, according to some houses, has cut into the sale of widespread models. However, moderate spreads are still popular.

Round points to be pinned down also are reported gaining favor and their acceptance has spread from the big cities to the smaller towns.

Fused collars are still the biggest single volume item.

A real novelty is the "Bow Tie Shirt." It has a blind stitched collar, very wide centre box-pleat and oversize plastic buttons to match.

6—In Memoriam

GRAHAM—In loving memory of our dear brother-in-law, Vernon Graham, who passed into eternal life two years ago today, April 3, 1950.
It's not the words, they are but few,
It's the memories Vern we have of you,
You left us quickly, your thoughts unknown,
But a beautiful memory all our own.
—Ever remembered by Robert and Gladys Fulton.

LA FAVE, June Lillian Oakley, who died April 2nd, 1948.
The blow was great, the shock severe,
We little thought the end was near,
It is only those who have lost can tell,
The sorrow of parting without farewell.
—Deeply and sadly missed by her father.

LA FAVE—In loving memory of June Oakley La Fave, who passed away four years ago today.
More and more each day we miss her,
Friends may think the wound is healed,
But they little know the sorrow,
Lies within our hearts concealed.
—Always remembered by Bruce and Myrtle.

LA FAVE—In loving memory of my dear wife, June La Fave, who passed away on April 2, 1948.
You left me beautiful memories,
Often silent tears,
But you will always be with me,
As I journey through the years.
You are always in my mind June,
No matter what I do,
All the time within my heart
There is a thought of you.
Never for a moment are you very far away,
Absent, yet near you seem,
But dearer every day.
—Sadly missed by her husband, Maurice La Fave.

But never the one in my heart that lies.
—Very sadly missed by her mother and family.

McMILLAN—In loving memory of our dear mother, Mary A. McMillan, who passed away April 2, 1948.

Labor Urging More Conservation

TORONTO, April 2 (CP)—The Ontario Provincial Federation of Labor (A.F.L.-T.L.C.) today urged the Ontario government to conserve such natural resources as forests and minerals for the development and maintenance of industry, as well as for creating new industries.

In its annual brief to Premier Frost and his cabinet, it said Canadians are being deprived of jobs because there is not enough industrial expansion and because of what it considers "too much" exporting of raw materials and semi-processed products.

The delegation headed by A. F. MacArthur claimed to represent 200,000 workers. It's 11,000-word brief covered 44 items including labor legislation, unemployment, immigration, social security, health, housing and public safety.

It recommended establishment of a steel industry at the Lakehead to take full advantage of the output of the Steep Rock Iron Mine, rather than have most of the ore shipped to United States steel mills.

He is survived by four sisters, Sister Mary Inez; Mrs. Morris O'Leary (Frances) and Mrs. E. H. White (Mary) of Peterborough, and Mrs. Cornelius Quinlan (Theresa) of Indian River, and three brothers, Michael of Peterborough, John of Asphodel and Joseph of Lebret, Saskatchewan.

Pioneer Passes

WILDWOOD, Alta. —(CP)—Mrs. Ida Estella Bruner, who came here in 1909 from Ohio, died recently at the age of 91. Born just before the outbreak of the American Civil War, she is survived by four children, 20 grandchildren and 46 great-grandchildren.

Noted Builder

He began his active career as a rodman in the building of the Saulte Ste. Marie Canal, 1889 to 1894; and was Divisional Engineer on the Trent Canal from 1894 to 1899.

From 1889 to 1906 he was assistant manager for the contractor on the Hillsboro Bridge, Charlottetown, P. E. I.

In 1908 he became associated with James A. Beatty of Toronto, organizing the firm of Morrow and Beatty, construction engineers.

Impressive Story

The record of Morrow and Beatty for the next quarter of century is an impressive story of achievement of the completion of many huge electrical and industrial developments in Northern Ontario, Quebec and New Brunswick. The work of this firm whose office as general contractors was here in Peterborough at the northeast corner of Brock and George Streets was in the extremely difficult harnessing of potential power sites.

They completed in 1915 the huge pulp and paper mill of the Abitibi Power and Paper Company, one of the largest mills of its kind on this continent. That contract included the building of a concrete power dam 700 feet long, with adjoining power house, at Iroquois Falls in northern Ontario.

Two years later they finished a similar work at the Smooth Rock Falls, pulp mill and hydro-electric development of the Mattagani Pulp and Paper Company. The hydro-electric power development of the Southern Canada Power Company at Drummondville, Que., was another Morrow and Beatty job, and at Bathurst, N.B., they built the hydro-electric development at Grand Falls on the Nepisquit River, for Bathurst Company Limited.

The harnessing of Twin Falls on the Abitibi River for Abitibi Power and Paper Company was another important contract.

Coming to southern Ontario in 1925, Morrow and Beatty constructed the hydro-electric plant on the Trent River at Frankford for the Quinte & Trent Valley Power Co.

A hydro-electric plant was built by the firm in 1933 for Spruce Falls Company on the Kapuskasing river, 70 miles west of Cochrane.

That is a partial list of the contribution of Morrow and Beatty to the electrical development of Ontario and other sections of eastern Canada. It is an interesting fact that the electrical engineering of many of the power sites built by Morrow and Beatty was carried out by the Canadian General Electric Company in providing generating units and other equipment.

Most of Mr. Morrow's work was done remote from Peterborough and virtually in the wilderness, and record of the firm is perpetuated in the series of tremendous developments of electric power sites and industrial properties which have contributed incalculable wealth to this nation.

Mr. Morrow was a member of Corinthian Lodge A.F. & A.M., Peterborough for 57 years. He was the second oldest member of that Lodge, exceeded in that affiliation only by former Chief Justice R. M. Dennistoun of Winnipeg, Man.

Mr. Morrow became a member of Keystone Lodge No. 412, A.F. & A.M., Sault Ste Marie, in 1890, and of Algonquin Chapter, R.A.M., at Sault Ste Marie, in 1891. His connection with Corinthian Lodge, Peterborough, of which he was a life member, dates from 1895, and with Corinthian Chapter since 1894. He was also a life member of the chapter which presented him with a fifty year jewel in 1941.

Mr. Morrow was twice married. His first wife who died in 1917 was

Urges Church Extend Work

TORONTO, April 2 —(CP)—The United Church may extend its work into the many new communities of Canada, the Rev. J. I. MacKay told the annual meeting of the church's Board of Home Missions. He called for "speedy action" on the part of the church to move into these new developments, some of which often have as many as 1,000 children.

Dr. McKay, superintendent of Home Missions for Quebec and Eastern Ontario, said industrial development around Montreal, Ottawa, Kingston, Belleville, Brockville and Cornwall, is "nothing short of amazing."

Alex Maclaren, director of the church's immigration section, told the meeting that an offer from the British Y.M.C.A. to send 10 'teenage boys to Canada this spring has been accepted.

Dr. W. S. Godfrey, superintendent of missions for the Maritime conference, said there is a shortage of ministerial power in the Maritimes, with 42 vacancies in eastern pulpits. Some of the churches were being supplied by laymen, students and superannuated ministers.

Constance Fitzgerald, daughter of the late Mr. Justice Fitzgerald of Charlottetown, P.E.I.; and in 1927 he married Dora M. Mulholland, who in 1941 also predeceased him. He was stepfather of Pete Mulholland, Ottawa, Mrs. H. W. (Mary) Welch, Toronto; and Mrs. Elizabeth Falkner, Peterborough. He also leaves six grandchildren. A brother R. A. Morrow, Jr., who went to New Mexico, U.S.A., died some years ago.

Mr. Morrow's mother, Josephine Gilchrist, was the youngest daughter of Dr. Matthew Gilchrist of Colborne.

Honorary Colonel

He was Adjutant of the 57th Battalion from 1894 to 1899, and was first Honorary Colonel of Prince of Wales Rangers after it became a composite about 1937 of three local units, the 57th Peterborough Rangers, Prince of Wales Dragoons and the 3rd Machine Gun Company.

Mr. Morrow was a member of the Engineers' Club and the Royal Military College Club, Toronto. He was a member of St. John's Anglican Church, and in politics was a Conservative.

The report of the funeral of his grandfather 104 years ago mentions that St. John's Church was filled to capacity, that many persons could not gain admittance, and that business closed its doors for most of the afternoon.

The funeral of Mr. Morrow will take place Thursday at 2.30 p.m. from his late residence "Clonsilla" 694 Sherbrooke St. Archdeacon W.P. Robertson, rector of St. John's Church, will conduct the service. Interment will be at Little Lake Cemetery.

Land Bought In 1818

The local history of Clonsilla goes back to 1818 when the land was obtained from the Crown by one Augustus Baldwin. It was sold by him in 1833 to John Hall, and quickly changed hands in that year to John W. Love. It was then purchased by Stafford F. Kirkpatrick who apparently was the first owner of Clonsilla, and had the house built for his residence. It was then in North Monaghan township overlooking the town from the Sherbrooke St. hill. The late R. A. Morrow acquired that property in 1875 for $5,000 from Mr. Kirkpatrick.

Mr. Morrow also bought adjoining land to the north from Phillip Giles.

So, Harold A. Morrow is the last of his line. He was a boy when his parents moved into Clonsilla. It was his home for 77 years. The Morrow family, marked by longevity, have been associated with the life of Peterborough from its beginning as a rude and scrambling backwoods town to its present development as a modern industrial city.

Ike's Report Well Received By British Press

LONDON, April 2 (Reuters) — Gen. Eisenhower's report on the progress of western defence was well received in today's British press.

The Times (independent) said the report would be studied with special care because it would be regarded as the last report of the commander of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization and the first declaration of a United States presidential candidate.

The Times said that during the short time since Eisenhower took over his present post "miracles could not be expected."

"But," it continued, "it is a measure of Gen. Eisenhower's achievement that the nations of Western Europe have almost forgotten the sense of helplessness and despair which then afflicted them."

Must Make Effort

The Daily Telegraph (Conservative) warned that Europe must make a full effort, pointing to the general's statement that "it could be fautuous to assume that the taxpayers of America will continue to pour money and resources into Europe unless encouraged by steady progress."

The Liberal Manchester Guardian also referred to the possibility of Eisenhower being elected president.

"The prodding in the supreme commander's report," said The Guardian, "is very gentle; the prodding from the White House might be rather sharper. But, bearing in mind all that has been achieved in the past year under his leadership, we can listen to criticism from him more readily than from anyone else."

Believe Stalin Speech Signals Campaign For German Unity

By WILLIAM L. RYAN.
Associated Press Foreign News Analyst

HELSINKI, Finland, April 2 — (AP)—Prime Minister Stalin's latest statement may signal an all-out drive by the Communists to picture the Soviet Union as the only champion of a unified Germany.

Stalin said he considers the present moment opportune for unification of Germany. He said it at a time the western powers are planning to sign a peace contract with West Germany, in belief that no final decision is possible in making peace with Germany as whole.

Britain, the United States and France have been unable to find an approach toward such unification that is acceptable both to east and west. The Soviet Union, for one thing, has refused to do business with a United Nations Commission designated to find out if all-German elections can be held fairly and honestly.

But the unity theme has a great appeal to Germans, including many in the areas occupied by the three western powers. Thus the Stalin statement, coming on top of Soviet approval of the idea of rearming a unified Germany, may serve as the starting point for a concerted attack on the West German government of Chancellor Konrad Adenauer.

Would Create Vacuum

A Germany unified on Moscow terms would create a vacuum in Central Europe despite Soviet claims to the contrary. The Soviet Union, of course, would like to neutralize western Europe and bog down its building of defence works.

Stalin made his statement on Germany in response to questions sent by a group of U.S. newspaper and radio men on March 24. Four days later Adenauer announced that the British, U.S. and French foreign ministers would meet with him in May to sign a peace contract—a way of life with Western Germany. The signing of such a peace contract would formalize the east-west split in Germany, and perhaps prove a permanent block to Soviet plans for Europe. Thus there is a feeling of urgency in Moscow about Germany, and that is probably one reason Stalin decided to answer the questionnaire.

Stalin also said he considers a third world war no nearer than it was two or three years ago. That is a "welcome" mat for the international economic conference opening in Moscow Thursday. This conference is intended to build a fire under western governments to turn them away from U.S. leadership and toward the east, for business. It offers the bait of money to be given by turning to a vast market in the east. To increase this lure the U.S.S.R. must try to convince western businessmen that war is not inevitable or even likely—and that capitalism and communism can exist peacefully side by side.

French-Led Troops Meet Stiff Resistance

SAIGON, Indo-China, April 2 —(AP)—French-led troops were running into stiffening resistance today in efforts to wipe out three rebel Vietminh battalions pocketed in the Red river delta 50 miles southeast of Hanoi.

However, the high command said French forces, supported by heavy artillery and aerial Napalm bombing, were continuing to make progress and were wiping out the Communist-led enemy pinned against the Gulf of Tonkin.

Dispatches from Hanoi said "Opperation Mercury," aimed at destroying a total of five Vietminh battalions, was nearing its end.

Britain To Speed Up Building Of New Homes

By ALAN HARVEY

LONDON, April 2 — (CP) — British architects have borrowed a couple of ideas from Canada in a bid to build "houses for people" faster and more cheaply than ever before.

In a departure from the policy of early post-war years, housing minister Harold MacMillan has given the go-ahead sign for a series of "people's houses" which seek to save space without sacrificing general standards of comfort.

By reducing passage and storage space and by lowering ceilings from eight feet to seven feet, six inches, the Conservative government hopes to save about 10 per cent in main building materials. The plan is just in the starting stage, but a government pamphlet already out claims that one local council has built the new type of houses for just under £1,000 compared with £1,400 normally.

Canadian Inspiration

Two "people's houses" went on display at a recent exhibition in London. Architects are also working on other models which save space and materials by virtually eliminating hallways and by having the staircase rise from the living room.

A spokesman for the housing ministry said the architects drew their inspiration for these houses from British Columbia and the Maritime provinces.

Post-war housing originally was the responsibility of Aneurin Bevan, health minister in the early years of the 1945-50 labor government. Bevan insisted on keeping housing standards high, even if it slowed up the building program. When socialist Hugh Dalton took over from Bevan, the emphasis was changed.

Now, with a Conservative government in office, the accent still is on speed, but the size of the houses will remain the same.

Handful Built

So far there has been no perceptible public reaction to the new program. For one thing, few of the "people's houses" will be lived in until more local councils start applying the ideas suggested by the minister. Only a handful have been built so far, but ministry informants think another year will make a considerable difference.

The ministry does not try to impose any uniform design, but merely advises local councils of the new ideas for saving space and materials. The same applies for houses built by private enterprise.

In the two models recently shown in London, the living room of the three-bedroom house was nearly 21 feet long and about 11 feet wide. The living room of the two-bedroom house was 19½ feet long, and 10½ feet wide.

Toronto Newsdealer Watches Daughter Star In N.Y. Debut

TORONTO — (CP)—A dream came true recently for a Toronto newsdealer whose main ambition for years has been to see his pianist daughter make her debut at Carnegie Hall in New York.

Oscar Albert, who has sold newspapers and magazines for 35 years in front of the Canadian Pacific Railway building at King and Yonge Streets in downtown Toronto watched with his wife from a box in the famous concert hall while 20-year-old Muriel Albert played before 1,200 persons.

The audience called her back for three encores. The critics were enthusiastic.

Among the bouquets backstage was one sent from Toronto by the Newsboy's Association, together with a telegram of congratulations.

There were other wires as well. They came from many of the persons who work in the C.P.R. building and who often stop to ask Oscar Albert about his daughter's musical career. On the Big Night, they added their good wishes.

Had Absolute Pitch

The Alberts first recognized Muriel's gifts soon after she was three years old and teachers told them she had a sense of absolute pitch. Their decision to give her her training in piano meant years of sacrifice and self-discipline on their part to further their only child's musical development.

In 1949 when she made her Toronto debut, Oscar Albert turned up at the downtown auditorium without his shirt studs. When her next big concert came along, a laundry sent him the wrong collars for his dress shirt.

For her Carnegie Hall debut, the father played it safe.

"I'll wear my navy blue suit and white shirt," he told Mrs. Albert. And he did.

Wrong Charge Laid Will Try Again

Lyle Elmer Whitney, of Havelock was granted a week's adjournment when he appeared before Magistrate W. R. Philp today, charged with having possession of an offensive weapon.

Whitney is charged with having a 30-30 rifle with intent to injure John Fitzpatrick, also of Havelock.

After Magistrate Philp read the charge he pointed out to crown attorney John A. Bradshaw that the section of the Criminal Code Whitney is charged under had been repealed. On examination of the code, Mr. Bradshaw agreed and said the accused was entitled to a dismissal.

Then Mr. Bradshaw suggested an adjournment for one week, on the understanding that a new charge will be laid under the appropriate section. Trevor Clarke who represented Whitney, agreed.

On Monday, Peter sappeared on a vagrancy charge and was remanded on bail of $200 while further investigations in connection with the alleged shop-lifting were being carried out by city detectives.

He has been held in the county jail since he was arrested. Trevor Clarke appeared for Peters when he was arraigned on the theft charge today. The vagrancy charge was adjourned until April 9 also.

Strikers Plan Consider Terms

ST. THOMAS, April 2 (CP) — Propsed settlement terms in a strike at Timken Roller Bearing Company will be considered Saturday at a meeting of the striking workers.

It had been expected that ratification would be given Tuesday by the union members. But such approval of the terms worked out Tuesday between the management and representatives of the workers was not forthcoming.

Charles Roy, president of local 749, International Association of Machinists (A.F.L.-T.L.C.), said lack of a full attendance prevented ratification. Labor Minister Daley and chief conciliation officer Louis Fine returned to Toronto last night after a five-hour meeting with union and company heads during which the terms were worked out.

Meanwhile pickets continued their parading before the Timken plant. The workers went on strike March 13 in protest against dismissal of seven workers. Union members said the men refused to work on more than one machine and charged a "speed-up" by the company.

Suggest Canada Send Surplus Food To Britain

OTTAWA, April 3. (CP)—A C.C.F. member suggested Wednesday in the Commons that Canada distribute $300,000,000 worth of surplus food among the United Kingdom, Europe and Asia. Hazen Argue, farmer-member for the Saskatchewan constituency of Assiniboia, said Canada could and should give other countries 100,000,000 bushels of wheat, 100,000,000 pounds of pork, 200,000 head of cattle and 25,000,000 pounds of cheese. Breaking down the contributions in terms of money, he said this country could give away $200,000,000 worth of wheat, $40,000,000 worth of cattle and $10,000,000 worth of cheese.

He spoke before the Commons concluded a four-day debate on foreign affairs by voting 172 to 21 against a C.C.F. motion calling for formal censure of the government's handling of economic aid to the countries of the North Atlantic Pact.

Today, the Commons will launch a debate on defence.

First Split In Years

The C.C.F. motion, marking the first split in years in the views of the Commons on foreign policies, was opposed by the Liberals and Progressive Conservatives. It was supported by the C.C.F and Social Credit members and by two Quebec Independents, Dr. Raoul Poulin (Beauce) and P. E. Gagnon (Chicoutimi).

In the concluding stages of the debate, John Diefenbaker (PC-Lake Centre) urged the government to convene a Commonwealth conference on raw materials and trade with the twin aims of strengthening the Commonwealth and bolstering defences against Communist infiltration.

John Blackmore (SC-Lethbridge) called for establishment of a committee to study proper methods of distributing the world's goods and services.

Mr. Argue said Canada is in a good position to make gifts of foodstuffs to needy countries. The money which the countries saved on food purchases could be used for developments needed to bolster war-shattered economies.

Mr. Diefenbaker suggested that Canada divert some of its orders for defence materials from the United States to the United Kingdom and, by way of payment, make badly-needed Canadian food supplies available to the British people.

Chance For Inventory

A conference such as he envisaged, he said, would give the Commonwealth a chance to take an inventory of raw materials, some of which were running out in parts of the world.

It might also revive the normal channels of Commonwealth trade and give Canada markets for primary products.

In the cold war of today and the hot war that might follow, victory would depend not only on the mobilization of manpower, but also on the mobilization of vast undeveloped resources.

"Resources undeveloped will constitute a small barrier to Communism if the Communists ever march," he said.

US Telegraphers Strike; 31,000 Idle

WASHINGTON, April 3 (CP).—Thirty-one thousand Western Union Telegraph workers went on strike today and their union claimed that telegraph service in the United States was "cut to a dribble."

The Western Union walkout started at one minute after midnight and except for San Antonio, Tex., where the strike was postponed for 24 hours, and in New York where employees are not involved in the dispute, there is no report that any of the company's 3,000 larger offices failed to heed the strike call.

The Commercial Telegraphers Union (A.F.L.) called the strike to support demands for benefits which would cost an estimated 50 cents an hour for each worker. The company has made no offer.

It was not clear immediately what services would and would not be affected.

A Western Union spokesman said the strike soon could mean that no one could send telegrams or money orders to or from cities in the United States.

Service Normal

A company announcement said service was normal to Metropolitan New York and on all international and overseas messages from there, including Canada and Mexico. It added that it expected to restore limited service to other points in the United States shortly.

Western Union has about 42,000 employees. Some 11,000— including supervisory employees and those in New York City—are not involved in the walkout. The New York employees are members of another union.

While telegraphers went on strike, Federal mediators managed to stall walkouts of telephone employees in three states. There is no connection between the two disputes.

The telephone situation eased early this morning with the postponement until Monday of walkouts by 40,000 C.I.O. communications workers in Michigan, Ohio, and Northern California. Union officials said they postponed the strike to give Federal mediators more time to work out settlement terms. The telephone workers are reported asking wage demands of about $16 a week. Company offers of $3 to $5 have been rejected.

Another 16,000 telephone workers—installation and sales department employees of Western Electric, part of the Bell Telephone system in the U.S. — have also scheduled a walkout for Monday. That strike would also have country-wide repercussions.

Armed Peasants Attacking Reds

HONG KONG, April 3—(Reuters)—Bands of peasants armed only with swords and clubs are rising against Communist authorities in China, Communist news reports admitted today.

An official newspaper reaching here from the mainland said one band of 300 peasant swordsmen clashed with Communist troops recently in two days of bloody fighting in Hupeh province, Central China.

The report said the Communist troops mowed down the rebelling farmers after desperate hand-to-hand fighting. All were killed except 23 taken prisoner, the newspaper said.

There have been frequent reports of peasant revolts against the Communists filtering across the border to Hong Kong, but they are rarely mentioned in the party press organs.

The newspaper, the Chang Chiang Daily News, said the rebels were members of peasant secret societies calling themselves the "anti-Communist army", the "Big Sword Society" and the "Monarchist Legion."

Pitcher's Child Killed

CLEVELAND, Tenn., April 3—(AP)—Pitcher Art Houtteman's seven-month-old daughter, Cheryl, was killed and his wife and mother injured today in an auto accident near here.

The Detroit Tigers' player, who was critically injured in an auto accident two years ago, was not with his family who were returning home from Florida.

He was notified at Lakeland, Fla., where the team was training and left immediately.

Find Canadians Have Better Vocabulary

TORONTO, April 3 (CP)—Canadians are better at vocabulary and arithmetic than Americans, an officials of a large United States-owned insurance company said today.

Over a three-month period 582 Canadian applicants for clerical jobs with the company compiled a 29.2 average out of a possible 40 in vocabulary tests. In the U.S., 522 job seekers averaged 25.

In figures the Canadians averaged 12.4 out of 20. Their counterparts south had 8.7.

"Since more women than men apply for clerical positions the inference is obvious," said a company spokesman. "Canadian women spelled the margin of triumph—they know their figures."

Corruption Sleuth Morris Fired

McGrath Publishes Brief Letter Terminating Services

WASHINGTON, April 3. — (AP) — Attorney-General J. Howard McGrath today fired Newbold Morris as the administration's corruption sleuth.

The attorney - general made public a curt letter to the New York Republican notifying him of the immediate termination of his services.

McGrath personally handed copies of the letter to reporters at the Justice Department, but declined to answer any questions as to whether President Truman had formally approved the action.

Follows Talks

The firing followed a series of McGrath-Truman talks Wednesday including an apparently-heated argument at National Airport while the two were waiting to greet Queen Juliana of the Netherlands.

There had been some speculation that McGrath himself might be let out in the row over a financial questionnaire Morris posed for government officials.

McGrath himself on Feb. 1 appointed the 50-year-old Morris, former president of the New York city council, to ferret out corruption in the government.

Montreal Enjoys Massey Visit

MONTREAL, April 3—(CP)—Montreal—proud to be publicly termed an inspiration to the rest of the country—today took advantage of three occasions to welcome Governor-General Vincent Massey on his first official visit here.

At the city hall where he was welcomed by City Councillor J. O. Asselin of the executive committee, the Governor-General, impeccable in morning clothes and obviously delighted with his reception, had words of highest praise for the role Montreal plays in Canada's fight for a distinct and original spirit.

Mr. Massey entered the Hall of Honor to meet civic, religious, military and business leaders.

Mr. Asselin as official host told him "the administration and the people of the city of Montreal . . . extend to you a most hearty welcome."

Mayor Camillien Houde had previously announced he would not be present because of other commitments.

Unity Reality

"If the unity of our national sentiment is something to strive for, and every day we find the proof that this unity is more and more a reality, it is surely your city which teaches the importance of unity," Mr. Massey said.

He added:

"It is surely your city which inspires us. Here French-speaking Canadians and English-speaking Canadians learn to know each other, to value each others' co-operation every day in the office, factory, workshop, and centres of all kinds and to work for the common good . . . ."

There was spontaneous ovation when the Governor-General concluded his speech, given in both French and English.

The city's Hall of Honor was bedecked with bunting and flags to welcome the Queen's representative.

Interesting Experiment

Gov't School For Lazy Men Sets Commons Wondering

LONDON, April 3—(AP)—A government school for lazy men—it teaches Britain's habitual unemployed how to work and like it—set the House of Commons wondering today.

Gerald Nabarro, a manufacturer and Conservative member of parliament, asked the government to explain what it's all about. He called for a report to the House next Monday.

The school is situated in the pleasant hills of Worcestershire. Its head man is a Scotsman, Hamilton Douglas, who told newspapermen the nine-month-old project is designed to prod lazy men off relief.

Douglas said the men all volunteered—after their local relief boards suggested they'd better learn to work or face prosecution.

"We have 20 at the moment—all individualists who for various reasons have been out of work so long they've lost the desire to start again," Douglas said. "It's our job to give them back that desire."

He said the school has been getting good results through constant, but subtle, prodding. But it doesn't plunge the lazy deep into work all at once. They learn in easy stages—first domestic chores around the school, then gardening and finally a job in a nearby factory.

The first pay cheque is the diploma.

BRIDGE SWEPT AWAY—Turbulent waters of Ross Creek swept away this bridge during its rampage in the Medicine Hat area of southern Alberta. The bridge was weakened during dynamiting of river ice in an effort to clear a channel. When the creek waters rose in spring flood fury the bridge collapsed. Many of the more than 1,000 persons made homeless in the district now are returning due to the lessening of the flood dangers.

Legal Torpedo Shocks British Topers

LONDON, April 3 — (AP) — The old British custom of cruising for a boozing reeled from a legal torpedo today.

A judge in Liverpool has held that drinking hours afloat must conform with those of saloons ashore. He says this applies to all craft in coastal or island waters.

As the black news spread, shaken topers throughout the United Kingdom asked each other nervously: "Can he do this to us?"

Most legal authorities agreed that he could, unless a higher court comes to the rescue.

Thus a tot on a yacht, a Sherry on a ferry or a snort in port is now outlawed, except for a piddling three and a half hours in midday and five hours at night. It's usually 11.30 a.m. to 3 p.m. and 6 p.m. to 11 p.m.

For fifteen and a half hours daily it will be a misdemeanor to hold a brawl on a yawl or even sniff a sauterne on the Severn.

A spokesman for the state-owned railway said the ruling might even cover the bars on trains. These now serve liquor as long as they are in motion.

"The tourist trade isn't going to like this," he warned. "We are taking legal advice on our position."

The decision which roughened the waters was handed down Wednesday by Magistrate A. J. McFarland. He fined two stewards on a cruise vessel £40 for serving drinks in the harbor outside pub opening hours. The ship owners said they would take an appeal—a quick one.

A river cruise in the morning or late afternoon has been the standard refuge of British drinkers who consider such restrictions uncivilized.

Object With Fiery Tale Seen In Texas Sky

FORT WORTH, April 3 (AP)—Noiseless, fast-moving sky object with a fiery tail stirred curiosity in widely scattered sections of Texas Wednesday night.

Reports from Fort Worth, Dallas, Houston, Austin, Longview and Wichita Falls said the object flashed across the sky in a southwest to northeast direction on an apparent flat trajectory.

Two Convair Aircraft engineers agreed that it couldn't be a plane because of its silence.

An amateur astronomer, E. B. Street of Graham, Tex., didn't think it was a meteor because of its flat course.

Grand River Level Drops Two Feet

BRANTFORD, April 3 (CP).—The level of the Grand river here dropped nearly two feet during the night.

The level was five feet, six inches above normal on Wednesday.

Barring heavy rains, the flood danger this year is "practically nil," officials said.

The drop in the level caused water overflow in the Birkett's Lane-Mohawk road area to recede considerably during the night.

Have Conclusive Evidence Germ War Charge False

NEW YORK, April 3 (AP)—The New York Times today published what it called conclusive evidence of the falsity of Communist photo charges that the United States is waging germ warfare in North Korea and China. The evidence consisted of statements by American experts on pictures which the Chinese Reds originally printed in the Peiping People's Daily March 15 as proof of the charges against the U.S.

These American experts said the pictures, identified in the Chinese captions as those of deadly bugs dropped by U.S. invaders, were actually photos of harmless insects incapable of carrying disease, The Times said.

The U.S. Army, furthermore, identified a bomb which the Chinese claimed was a germ carrier as an M1621 used for spreading psychological warfare leaflets, The Times said.

The Times gave this account of its findings:

The experts consulted about the pictures were Dr. C. H. Curran, chief curator of insects and spiders at the American Museum of Natural History; Dr. Rene Dubos, bacteriologist of the Rockefeller Institute, and army spokesman.

The Chinese labelled one picture "poisonous insects which could fly, crawl and swim dropped on Chinese territory by U.S. invaders." Dr. Curran said the picture actually shows several stone flies in a petri shell, a glass commonly used in laboratories.

"These perfectly harmless creatures are often found in large numbers within varying distances from water, in which the larvae live. Their flight is slow and because they are poor fliers they would be extremely poor at disseminating disease even if they could be inoculated."

Dr. Curran added that it would take "millions of people to inoculate sufficient insects to carry out a germ war even if a germ war of this type should be possible. There is no proof that it is and the evidence points to the fact that it is not."

Dr. Dubos called the pictures an almost amateurish attempt at scientific fakery. He said that none of the bacteria were what the Chinese said they were. None of the bacteria they were alleged to be could be carried by insects, he added.

Down 40 Jets In Three Days

SEOUL, Korea, April 3 (AP)—American Sabre pilots destroyed or damaged eight Communist jets today running their box score to 40 for the first three days of April.

Today's toll was taken in three battles over Northwest Korea, including history's longest jet fight. It lasted 45 minutes. Eighteen F-86 Sabre jets tangled with 60 Russian type jets in that battle, fought as the sun was setting.

April Allied losses have not been announced. They are reported weekly.

TO PROBATE WILL

TORONTO, April 3 (CP). — Application was made today for probate of the $1,350,000 will of Frederick J. Neale of Toronto. The prominent industrialist died Feb. 10 after 50 years with major Canadian steel and railway interests.

10 Arrested In Outbreak

MONTREAL, April 3 (CP)—Ten persons, including three juveniles, were arrested early today on charges of disturbing the peace outside the machine shop of Mercantile Mills of Dominion Textile Company where employees are on strike for increased wages.

About 15 windows were smashed in the shop and the adjacent employment office but police reinforcements ended the disturbance in a few minutes with nobody hurt.

Altogether some 6,000 workers are on strike at plants here and in Valleyfield, Que.

A statement from the United Textile Workers of America (A.F.L.) said the union was not responsible for the window-breaking Wednesday night, that all picket captains had orders to maintain the strictest discipline.

Seven of the 10 men arrested appeared before recorder E. J. McManamy. They pleaded not guilty and were released on $15 bail each until April 7.

Queen Plans To Keep Mother At Palace

LONDON, April 2—(AP)—The Queen today broke with royal tradition and arranged for her mother and sister to live with her at Buckingham palace. Elizabeth will move in shortly after Easter.

In the past a widowed queen has moved out when the new monarch took over. Queen Mary, for instance, moved to Marlborough House after King George V died.

The new queen will take over Queen Mother Elizabeth's suite and the queen mother will move upstairs to the quarters occupied by Elizabeth before she was married.

Princess Margaret will keep the rooms she now occupies.

Buckingham palace has 690 rooms.

Officials Optimistic At Conclusion Of Ottawa Parley

OTTAWA, April 3. (CP)—Provincial agriculture ministers completed talks with Agriculture Minister Gardiner today and officials forecast that the Provincial embargoes on livestock and meats will be brought to an end early next week. The basis of initial agreement to remove the restrictions imposed after the Saskatchewan outbreak of foot-and-mouth disease was that the Federal government will agree to extend price support for beef and take control of the unsalable surplus for disposal in some foreign market, officials said.

Provincial ministers now will return to their governments to report on the two-day conference. It was considered possible that removal of the restrictions may be announced by the provinces by Monday.

Second Step

The Federal plan to place a floor under beef prices and buy up surplus meat will go into operation only after the restrictions are removed, officials said.

Provincial ministers, leaving the meeting, were reluctant to comment on the discussions, but David Ure, Alberta's Agriculture Minister, said "the outlook is hopeful and encouraging."

Alberta has been hit by the British Columbia embargo on Alberta meats and on livestock from the southern half of the province. Manitoba bans imports of Saskatchewan cattle.

In the East, Quebec has import control over livestock and meats from all provinces. Quebec was represented by its Deputy Minister of Agriculture Rene Trepanier.

Has Worked Hard

Informants who were at the meeting said Mr. Gardiner strove hard to clear the restrictions as quickly as possible.

The provinces clamped on restrictions following Federal announcement February 25 last that an outbreak of foot-and-mouth disease had been uncovered in the Regina area.

Restrictions were sparked both by fear of the disease spreading and the threat of a pile-up of surplus meats from other provinces in local markets.

Mr. Gardiner, it was learned, has obtained the approval of Cabinet to offer a beef support price to stabilize meat prices at approximately current levels. The exact figure had been left open for discussion at the conference.

Take Baby To Toronto On Fast Mercy Trip

TORONTO, April 3 (CP) — Four-month-old Bonnie Cheryl Kizell of Kemptville, was brought to Hospital for Sick Children here early today after she was taken ill at Trenton during an automobile trip with her parents.

The 110-mile trip from Trenton was made by ambulance in less than two hours. The Kizells had stopped at a Trenton motel for the night when the baby took sick. She is suffering from congenital heart trouble and was stricken with bronchial pneumonia. Her condition is critical.

Explosion On Tanker

SUEZ, Egypt, April 3 (Reuters)—The Swedish tanker Trykon limped into port today after an explosion which almost ripped her apart, started five raging fires and killed three of the crew. The 8,000-ton ship was steaming south down the Red Sea Monday when it was rocked by the explosion—believed due to oil fumes sparked by a blazing sun.

Juliana Begins Strenuous U.S. Itinerary

WASHINGTON, April 3 (AP).—Queen Juliana of the Netherlands today urged the United States not to imitate Iron Curtain countries which place so much emphasis on defence that economic, social and cultural wil-being suffer.

She also said in a speech prepared for delivery before a joint session of Congress that her country, with the help of America, is able to "stand once more on our own feet economically. She expressed thanks for the aid given.

Major emphasis of the Queen's address, delivered in English, was on technical assistance. She said her country is helping to the best of its ability by exporting skills and experts to less developed countries.

Avoid Mistake

"The circle of countries around the North Atlantic Ocean should avoid imitating the example set by the countries behind the Iron Curtain, which have focussed their minds so much on their defence, that they forget to focus as much attention on their economic, social and cultural well-being."

The speech was part of a fast-paced program that includes shaking thousands of hands at three receptions and donning a diamond tiara tonight for a formal dinner party.

The Queen and her husband, Prince Bernhard, are the first guests in the newly-rebuilt White House. The President and Mrs. Truman moved back in only last Thursday after having lived across Pennsylvania Avenue at Blair House for three years.

There was a last minute rush to get the place ready for the Royal visitors. A small but formal luncheon will be given in the redecorated State dining room. But the White House staff, which includes many newcomers, was not considered ready to tackle the rigors of a formal state dinner Wednesday night, so it was held at the Carlton Hotel.

Dressed In Grey

About 50 guests were invited to the dinner, given by the President and Mrs. Truman. For this event both Mrs. Truman and the Queen wore grey evening gowns.

Have Sold Guns To Seven Lands

OTTAWA, April 3 — (CP), — Canada has sold machine-guns to seven foreign countries since the war, a Commons reply Wednesday informed G. K. Fraser (PC-Peterborough West).

They are: Holland, Dominica, Siam, Nicaragua, Pakistan, Israel, and Nationalist China.

In addition machine-guns or sub-machine-guns were sold to the city of Montreal and the R.C.M.P.

12 Of Plane Crew Parachute To Safety

VERMILLION, Kas., April 3.—(AP) — Two United States Air Force men lost their lives in the crash of a B-29 early today, but 12 other members of the crew parachuted to safety.

The body of an air force colonel was found near the wreckage 11 miles from here. Searchers also found the body of a corporal whose parachute had failed to open about four miles south of here.

Eyewitnesses said the plane roared low over the countryside and crashed in a pasture. Six cattle were killed.

The plane was one based at Forbes air force base at Topeka, Kas.

Oshawa Widow Disappointed

Searches London Suburbs Can't Find Old Sweetheart

LONDON, April 3 — (AP) — Sadie Brooks, a sprightly, 74-year-old widow from Canada, today gave up her search for the boy friend of her youth and hoped her 12 children don't hear too many tales about her hunt for an old romance.

Sadie searched in vain through her old neighborhood in the London suburb of Ealing and in Birmingham. She knocked on doors, asking people if they knew Tom Mitchell. No one did.

Tom was her sweetheart at the turn of the century. But Sadie left for Canada, married and raised a family in Oshawa, Ont.

"I have 12 children, I guess," she said. "Some are mine and the rest are adopted. It wouldn't do for them to hear what I've been up to in England."

Sadie said her idea to hunt up her girlhood heart-throb came on the spur of the moment. She flew over—with two trunks and several shopping bags full of presents for Tom and old friends.

"But it's no use," she sighed. "The whole place has changed."

The only Londoner who thought he remembered Tom believed he died two years ago.

Sadie said she's ready to go back home.

"Never mind," she said. "I feel much better now I've been back. It's been fun."

Expect Near-Record Decline Of Two Points In Cost-Of-Living Index

OTTAWA, April 3. (CP)—Trade Minister Howe has dropped the hint and Friday the Bureau of Statistics is expected to make it official—a possible near-record decline of about two points in the cost-of-living index for February. This will be the second consecutive monthly decline in the prices barometer which skyrocketed to peak proportions late last year, boosted partly by unprecedented prices for meats. Mr. Howe has predicted that still another drop will be disclosed when the index for March is completed and made public in about a month's time.

Both the index to come out Friday and the one a month from now likely will show that meats, which helped boost the index, have produced major price drops.

With the outbreak of foot-and-mouth disease in South Saskatchewan and with the variety of marketing restrictions imposed in the last week of February, meat prices have slipped enough to offset rises in some other prices. There will be other price changes shown in the index survey, but the outstanding one will be meats.

Near Record

In the near two-point decline comes about, it will be just short of the 2.3-point decline during April, 1932, the biggest in the last 25 years. Experts say there may be larger ones, possibly in the period after the First World War, but so far no research has been undertaken to pinpoint these other drops.

During January the index, based on 1935-39 prices equalling 100, declined seven-tenths of a point to 190.8 from the peak 191.5.

Among the sub-groups, food slipped to 248.1 from the near peak of 250.0, while clothing eased to 213.0 from 215.3 and home furnishings and services to 200.1 from 201.1.

These offset price climbs in fuel and lighting which climbed to a peak 151.3 from 151.2 and the miscellaneous column, covering such things as health, personal care and transportation, which climbed to a record 146.5 from 145.7.

Rents were not surveyed and remained at the peak 144.8. The first survey in about five months likely will be included in tomorrow's report. Rents usually are surveyed on a quarterly basis, but are less frequent during the winter when rough weather makes house-to-house checks difficult.

Lower Rates For Annuities

OTTAWA, April 3. (CP)—Persons who bought individual government annuities in the last four years will be able to take advantage of lower premium rates put into effect by the government April 1.

Reduction of the premium rates was accomplished by increasing to 3½ per cent the interest on purchasers' payments. Since April of 1948, this had been three per cent.

Labor Department officials explained today an annuitant can get the benefits of the new rates simply by entering a new contract for the remaining period of his annuity and stopping payment on the old contract when the new one is written. The amount he already has paid in will continue bearing interest at the old rates until maturity.

Arrangements can be made to have both contracts mature at the same time.

This system applies only to individual annuities. Officials said the question of making any similar shifts in group annuities, such as those taken out jointly by companies and their employees, has not yet been settled.

The Queen's gown was strapless but she wore with it a bolero of pearl grey Chantilly lace. Her jewels included a diamond tiara and brilliant diamond brooch.

Truman told his guests that "we have with us what I like to refer to as the Fairy Queen. We had the Fairy Princess with us the time before—before she became Queen of England."

The President expressed the hope and belief that some day the whole world would be set up on the basis of powerful nations living at peace with their neighbors as does the United States now with neighbors to the north and south "who are not afraid of us."

In reply Juliana told her host "you head a great country of very human and kind-hearted people, who gave us invaluable support during and after the war. They even liberated a part of our country.

"The graves of your soldiers there are shrines for us. Your government and your people have put us on the arduous path to prosperity again. We are full of gratitude to the American people."

The menu included salmon, consomme, guinea hen, string beans, wild rice, asparagus salad. Reisling wine was served with the fish, sherry with the consomme, burgundy with the entree, and champagne with a fancy vanilla pudding.

Duke Of Edinburgh Tours Coal Mine

MOSLEY COMMON, England, April 3 (AP)—The Duke of Edinburgh dropped 3,000 feet in a bucket today for a two-hour tour of a local coal mine.

The Queen's husband wore a blue Royal Navy work suit, carried a miner's electric flashlight and wore a pit helmet.

Dead-pan mine security men frisked him for contraband — matches or a cigarette lighter — before helping him into the bucket for the underground descent.

Later he joined the outgoing shift in a canteen lunch costing one shilling and four pence.

Headon Crash Kills Girl 12

BEAVERTON, April 3—(CP)—A 12-year-old girl was killed and seven other persons were injured in a headon collision of two automobiles about 12 miles south of here Wednesday night.

Donna May McIntosh of Orillia died in the front seat of a new car bought earlier in the day in Oshawa. Her father, Russell McIntosh, is in Orillia hospital with critical injuries. Ethyl McIntosh, 32, aunt of the dead girl, is also severely injured.

Less seriously injured were the girl's mother, Berta, William McConnell, 24, of Orillia, driver of the car, and R. J. Erwood, Toronto, Roger Woodward, 20, of Cannington and Denton Jennings of Parry Sound.

McConnell said the McIntosh family was driving back to Orillia from Oshawa where McConnell bought a new car. Police said Erwood was the driver of the other car.

Steel Firms Face Seizure By U.S. Gov't

Must Avert Strike Officials Told, Kaiser Capitulates

WASHINGTON, April 3. — (AP)—Price Stabilizer Ellis Arnall and Benjamin Fairless, president of U.S. Steel Corp., today broke off talks about a price increase for steel.

Chances of averting a strike looked poor. In New York President Philip Murray of the C.I.O. said the deadline is 12:01 a.m. on Wednesday.

Arnall said, "I don't see where anything further can be gained by additional talks with Mr. Fairless on the steel-price situation."

The conference was the fourth Arnall has held with Fairless in three days.

Fairless was understood to have insisted that a steel-price increase is necessary to offset proposed wage boosts and prevent a strike.

May Be Seized

There remains the possibility of government seizure of the mills to continue operation.

The effect of the seizure threat —whether or not it is carried out —was to increase pressure on the industry to grant government-suggested wage boosts to Philip Murray's United Steelworkers of America (C.I.O.).

About 700,000 of the nation's 1,000,000 are ready for a walkout in the United States basic steel industry at midnight April 8. The other workers, mainly in steel fabricating plants, are ineligible to strike at the moment.

Steelmakers have said they cannot afford to give Murray the 17½ cent hourly pay boost, plus union shop and other benefits, without getting government permission to raise prices. The government apparently was standing firm against increase in prices, contending it would cause more inflation.

The seizure threat brought a heated reaction from Congress. Senator Robert Taft said it would be "very high-handed and arbitrary" and, to his mind, illegal.

Not Too Sure

Even government lawyers, instructed by John R. Steelman, acting defence mobilization boss, to "consider all eventualities," seemed none too sure of the legal basis for seizure.

Chairman James Murray ordered the Senate labor committee staff to draft legislation spelling out seizure powers in more detail, including authority for the government to keep part of a seized industry's profits and to pay out wage boosts.

It was known that the steel industry long has feared government operation of its facilities, as has come about in so many foreign countries. Steel firms were reported to have instructed their lawyers to be ready to fight any government move in that direction.

Long - delayed company-union negotiations again were scheduled to start in New York today but there was no indication of a break from either side.

Henry J. Kaiser announced Wednesday night that he had reached an agreement with the steelworkers based on the government's proposals covering more than 5,000 workers at Kaiser's Fontana plant in southern California. This was the union's biggest settlement so far, but Kaiser is a relatively small producer.

Kaiser said he had given in to keep steel production going "during the crucial defence period" and was relying on the government to "grant the necessary and equitable steel price adjustment" later.

Won't Be Movie Star Yappy Dies Suddenly

TURKEY POINT, April 3 (CP) —Yappy, a wild white whistling swan, won't be a movie star. The bird, caught in a muskrat trap on his annual flight to the Arctic Circle, died Wednesday.

Yappy was found by Trapper Len Pretty and when released was too weak to fly away. Pretty turned Yappy over to a game preserve at Long Point Monday.

It was planned that once Yappy had gained in strength he would appear in a National Film Board movie and then be released to continue his northward migration.

Refused Wedding In Church Because Groom Bartender

KEREMEOS, B.C., April 3 — (CP). — A United Church of Canada minister here refused to perform a church wedding for a couple because the groom is a part-time bartender.

The Rev. W. M. Cameron had agreed to marry the couple, now Mr. and Mrs. Eddie Trouce, until he saw on the marriage licence Mr. Trouce's occupation.

Mrs. Trouce is a divorcee.

"That she was a divorcee was purely a matter of conscience, and the bartender factor decided my refusal to allow a church wedding," Mr. Cameron said.

He said he was willing to compromise and marry the couple in the manse next door to the church.

However, the principals refused and they and their wedding party drove 40 miles to Princeton and were wed in a United Church there Saturday.

"My chief concern was to uphold the spiritual prestige and dignity of the church; I acknowledge I should never have consented to the wedding," Mr. Cameron said.

The Beverage Dispensers Union (TLC) said it will make a full investigation of the afafir.

Bob Deddome, business agent for the union, said: "A bartender must have the qualities of patience, sense of humor, sympathy, and an understanding of human foibles. Surely that must qualify him as a good Christian and a good husband."

The Rev. J. R. Mutchmor, director of the Board of Evangelism and Social Services of the United Church, refused to comment on the grounds that the story could not be accurate. "There are no bars in B.C." he said, "so how could the man be a bartender?"

Youth Jailed Assault Charge

Norman Rendell, 22, 107 Aylmer St., was sentenced to four months definite and one month indefinite in reformatory when he pleaded guilty to an indecent assault charge in police court today.

Rendell was arraigned on the charge on March 28. He did not enter a plea and was remanded until today on bail of $2,000.

A Harvey township mother testified that Rendell and another man picked her and her small daughter up in Peterborough on March 21 and agreed to take them home. They started for Burleigh Falls she said but took the "wrong road" and the car stopped on a sideroad.

Then she said, Rendell dragged her out of the car and in a scuffle along the side of the road which followed, the woman received several bruises and scrapes on her body. Dr. Herbert N. Young who examined the woman the next morning gave evidence as to the extent and nature of her injuries.

Help From Car

When a car came along, the woman said Rendell fled towards the woods and she and her daughter hailed the passing motorist to get away from the scene.

Rendell has a record of convictions for theft, housebreaking and breaking and entering offences for which he has served reformatory sentences. The record was produced in court, but Magistrate W. R. Philp said in passing sentence that while the offences were serious, they were not of the same nature as the indecent assault charge.

Major Harry Everitt of the Salvation Army urged Magistrate Philp to be lenient in sentencing Rendell who he said was a good worker but had been addicted to drink all his life. "He gets into trouble when he goes on these drinking parties," Major Everitt said.

Sea-Going Fish Plants Forecast By Magnate

LONDON, April 3—(Reuters)—Sea-going fish factories which will enable processed and deep-frozen fish to be transported direct from the sea to the home were forecast today by a prominent shipping magnate.

Sir Wilfred Ayre, in a paper read to the Institute of Naval Architects, predicted that progress in the processing and deep-freezing of fish will stimulate demand for sea-going fish factories, which would be fed by trawlers and drifters in the same way as big whaling ships are fed by whale-catchers.

Oil Stocks Boom In Market Dealings

TORONTO, April 3. (CP) — Moderate mid-session profit taking today skimmed strong early western oil gains in heavy stock market trading.

Oil stocks stormed upward in opening dealings with gains ranging from pennies to the $2.25 jump of Pacific Petroleum. Heavy buying followed approval Wednesday by the Alberta Conservation Board for gas export from the Peace River district to the west coast. Within the first hour the exchange's index jumped more than 4½ points but eased as the session progressed.

Oil speculation dominated exchange dealings and swelled volume for the first three hours to 4,267,000 shares.

Among western oils to show large gains were: Canadian Williston, Calvan Consolidated, Gas Explorations, Charter Oil, Jupiter, New British Dominions, Northern Canada, Trans Empire and Pacific Petroleum.

Industrials made little headway. Refining oils, steels, papers and manufacturing companies edged upward but utilities and constructions eased. Base metals edged upward.

Senior golds were steady as Giant Yellowknife, Kerr Addison and Lake Shore added fractions. Secondary issues showed little trend.

Announce Plan To Split Servicemen's Pay, Wives To Receive Less

OTTAWA, April 3. (CP)—The Defence Department came up with a watered-down version of its controversial plan to split a married serviceman's pay in two and give one of the cheques to his wife. The wife, under the new system, will still get her own cheque, but generally speaking, it will be considerably less than under the proposed system which caused such grumbling that it finally was called off. Reaction to the new scheme is reported much better.

The wives of married servicemen below officer rank now will get monthly cheques of $60. The wives of officers will get $80 a month. The husbands will get the rest.

This is a considerably simpler scheme than the one which was dropped. Under that scheme, the amount the wife would receive varied according to whether they had children and whether they lived in quarters provided by the forces. Cheques for officers' wives would have run beyond $100.

Previous Systems

Under the previous system, as as example, a co.poral or private who is married and living in quarters provided by the forces would assign $62 a month to his wife; if in such quarters and having no children, $47; if not living in housing provided by the forces and with children $113; if not living in forces' housing and without children $98.

A compulsory assignment system was in effect in the war years. Versions of it already apply to men of all forces serving overseas and the navy has its own system.

The assignments by men abroad in Germany and Korea will continue as at present. The navy will accept the new $60-$80 rates along with the army and air force at home.

The system is designed to ensure that all wives have some minimum income in case their husbands leave them. It also is designed to prevent servicemen from claiming married status and married allowances when they aren't actually qualified for them.

The catch is that the $60 or $80 includes the marriage allowance and a similar sum is docked from the serviceman's own pay.

Brands Charge On Lobbying As Malicious

TORONTO, April 3—(CP)— G. C. Wardrop (PC—Porth Arthur) today branded as "malicious, deliberate and political publicity-seeking" the charge by W. G. Grummett, C.C.F. leader in the Ontario Legislature, that the Ontario Forest Industries Association lobbied against the government's new Crown Timber Act.

Reviving the argument that sparked Wednesday's meet... the Legislature's lands and forests committee, Mr. Wardrop demanded the resignation of Mr. Grummett from the committee.

His demand was ruled out of order and was not considered.

"I cannot co-operate with a man who uses tactics like that," Mr. Wardrop said.

The Port Arthur member said Mr. Grummett's statement was "a malicious, deliberate lie, and the person who said it knows it."

Mr. Grummet replied that he still stood behind his statement.

The Forest Industries Association intended "to torpedo the provisions of this bill," he said. It would have been different if the association had approached himself or Albert Wren (Lib.-Lab.-Kenora), a second opposition member of the committee.

Illinois Draws Spotlight In Primaries

WASHINGTON, April 3 (CP)—The U.S. political spotlight swung today to Illinois, where an April 8 primary will provide the next popularity sounding board for presidential hopefuls.

Senator Robert Taft, of Ohio, whose victories in Winsconsin and Nebraska primaries this week brought a new surge of hope to his followers, appeared headed for a new triumph.

Illinois will be the fifth of 16 states which hold primaries in election years to give voters a chance to express preference for the various presidential aspirants.

The Republican and Democratic parties each will choose 60 delegates to represent Illinois at the national nominating conventions in Chicago in July.

A survey of Illinois newspapers and correspondents indicates that Taft is a definite favorite to win the Illinois primary and most of the delegates, although Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower is expected to receive strong support. Eisenhower's name is not entered on the ballot and supporters will have to write his name in.

In the Democratic primary, Senator Estes Kefauver is unopposed on the ballot although a write-in campaign is under way for Illinois Governor Adlai Stevenson.

The final vote in the Nebraska primary was still incomplete today but it appeared Taft would get 15 out of the 18 Republican delegates and Eisenhower one.

In the Winsconsin primary, Taft won 24 of the 30 Republican delegates. Governor Earl Warren, of California, got the other six with Harold Stassen blanked out. Eisenhower was not on the ballot and write-in votes were not allowed.

Kefauver was a Wisconsin shoo-in, polling about 85 per cent of the popular vote on the Democratic ticket and winning all 28 convention delegates.

In Nebraska Kefauver ran more than 15,000 votes ahead of Senator Robert Kerr, of Oklahoma but, with the ballots still being counted, he appeared to have fewer delegates pledged to support him. He had four delegates compared with five for Senator Kerr.

Boosts Income Tax

DUBLIN, April 3 (AP)—Finance Minister Sean Macentee boosted income taxes and sliced into the food subsidy—a feature of Ireland's modified welfare state — in presenting the largest budget in history Wednesday night. The budget called for spending £97,761,000. It raised the standard rate of income tax by one shilling in the pound to seven shillings six pence. Macentee abolished the subsidy on tea, butter and sugar and cut in on bread and flour.

U.S. Armed Forces

WASHINGTON, April 3 (AP)—About 1,200,000 more men will enter the armed services in the United States during the fiscal year starting next July 1. But the size of the armed forces will be increased only 110,000 during that period. Mrs. Anna M. Rosenberg, defence manpower boss, told the House of Representatives Appropriations Committee Wednesday the U.S. is "going through a period of demobilization at the same time we are attempting to build up our military strength."

Cut Down Broadcasts

LONDON, April 3 (Reuters). — The necessity for economy is forcing Britain to trim its overseas information broadcasts but radio programs beamed at Russia and her satellites have not been reduced. Foreign Under-Secretary Anthony Nutting told the House of Commons Wednesday night that despite cuts, extra money is being found outside existing appropriations to step up the battle against Communist radio jamming.

Flynn Buys Hotel

KINGSTON, Jamaica, April 3 —(AP).—Errol Flynn bought the Titchfield Hotel at Port Antonio Wednesday for an undisclosed sum. The inn is one of the oldest in Jamaica. Flynn came here after winning £5,000 damages in the Nassau, Bahamas trial from Canadian millionaire Duncan McMartin whom he accused of slapping him and causing recurrence of an old back injury.

Requests Amnesty

BONN, Germany, April 3 (AP) —The head of Germany's biggest war veterans' organization has appealed to Gen. Eisenhower to promote a general amnesty for certain types of German war criminals. Admiral Gottfried Hansen, head of the Deutscher Soldatenbund (German Soldiers' Federation), asked that the amnesty be given all those imprisoned for offences committed while carrying out orders of their superiors.

Fine Textile Firm

BUENOS AIRES, April 3 (AP) —The Argentine Central Bank Wednesday ordered a textile firm fined 150,000,000 pesos ($10,000,000) for currency exchange violations. The firm, Sociedad Industrial Commercial Barracas and Despositos, was charged with bypassing the official exchange market with large sums of foreign currency obtained through wool sales abroad.

Campbellford Hospital Open For Inspection

CAMPBELLFORD, April 3 — (ENS)—The Campbellford Memorial hospital will be open for public inspection from 3 to 5 p.m. on Saturday, April 5, when the board hopes the citizens of the surrounding country, as well as those of the town itself, will avail themselves of the opportunity to inspect the new structure.

A drive for funds to complete the building is underway, and it is hoped that the hospital will be in operation by this fall.

Employee Held

PADUCAH, Ky., April 3 (AP) —An employee at the Paducah atomic energy plant was accused Wednesday of leaving his job after reporting each morning and returning just in time to check out at the end of his work shift. Wallace Ramsey Muir, a sheet metal worker supervisor, was held to a federal grand jury under $500 bond on a charge of defrauding the government.

4 Die In Fire

CHICAGO, April 3 (AP) — Four persons, including a six-month-old baby, died Wednesday in a $50,000 fire which swept through a 12-family apartment house of Chicago's northwest side. Several firemen were overcome by smoke and suffered minor injuries as they aided some 30 tenants from the building.

David Johnston Rawdon Native

CAMPBELLFORD, April 3 — (ENS).—The funeral for David Johnston, 77, a native of Rawdon township, who died Saturday at the home of his sister, Mrs. Thos. Brennan, after a short illness, was held Tuesday in St. Mary's Roman Catholic Church.

Mr. Johnston was the son of the late Alexander Johnston and Mary Summers. A carpenter by trade, he came to Campbellford more than 40 years ago. He was a member of St. Mary's Church.

Surviving are three brothers, George of Cushing, Oklahoma, William of Foxboro, and Alex of Wellman's Corners; four sisters, Mrs. William Forestell (Susan), of Norwood; Mrs. Peter Ryan (Fanny), of Belleville; Mrs. Charles Pounder (Nellie), of Foxboro, and Mrs. Thomas Brennan (Catherine) of Campbellford.

Requiem mass was celebrated by the Rev. J. C. Moloney.

Pallbearers and flower bearers were all nephews of the deceased. Pallbearers were Murray and Donald Johnston, William Forrestell Jr., Harry Cassidy, Charles Mahoney and Vincent Brennan. Flower bearers were Stanley Keller and Lindsay Johnston. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery, Campbellford.

Two New Industries Looking For Sites In Campbellford

CAMPBELLFORD, April 3 — (ENS)—There was a large attendance on Tuesday evening when the Campbellford Citizens' Association met at Edgewater Park Pavilion.

W. C. Tatham, chairman of the industrial committee reported that one and possibly two new industries were seriously considering locating in Campbellford. One industry would employ about 60 men, but no details on the other industry were available.

Mrs. W. C. Latham reported on the work of the welfare committee, saying considerable work had been done during the winter months, and that with the co-operation of the Home and School Association, a number of school children had been provided with warm clothing.

Purchase Vacant Lot

Mrs. Vera Newman reported for the education committee and emphasized the need for parks and playgrounds in the town. She further suggested that the public school board would be well advised to consider the purchase of a vacant lot across from the public school, for future use as a school playground. Another suggestion made by Mrs. Newman was that the town council should secure the facilities of the Department of Planning in laying out parks and playgrounds and other areas might be required in the future. The taxpayers are now paying for these services and receiving no benefit.

There was considerabl discussion on ways and means of raising funds to complete the Campbellford Memorial Hospital. A fact finding committee was appointed consisting of L. Watson as chairman, Percy White and Mrs. W. F. Scott.

The question of the high cost of milk in Campbellford, and what should be done about it, came up for discussion. It was decided to investigate the question fully, to try to find some way of lowering the price to the consumer. Milk in Campbellford now sells for 21 cents per quart, or 22 for homogenized.

The meeting adjourned until Monday, April 21.

C.C.F. Scrutiny Of Divorce

We commend the C.C.F. members in the House of Commons, and Mr. Stanley Knowles in particular, for the trouble and inconvenience which they are causing by refusing to permit bills of divorce to be pushed through the House without scrutiny. If they have the stamina to stick to their policy they will at last compel a reform which is long overdue —the transfer of divorce to the Exchequer Court in the provinces which lack divorce courts at present. We wish them well, and we are sure that a large body of liberal opinion which is not normally in sympathy with the C.C.F. is with them on this matter.

* * *

Divorce by parliamentary bill is a farce. It is too expensive for people in modest circumstances, and that is an injustice. The evidence is heard by a committee of senators who are well aware that there is collusion in a majority of the cases brought before them; but as they are senators, and not judges, they see no reason why they should waste their time in washing other people's dirty linen; it may safely be said that they do not like the work thrust upon them, do not think themselves the proper persons to do it, and would be glad to be rid of it. After the committee has considered the evidence and recommended divorce, the bills are quickly run through both houses, in bundles, and passed without question. It is this latter process in which the C.C.F. has interfered.

* * *

Quebec and Newfoundland are the provinces which have no divorce courts; Prince Edward Island now has such a court. Out of the total number of divorces sought in Canada in a year, these two provinces provide a little less than a tenth, and in numbers this might run from 300 to 400 every year. It cannot be argued that the absence of proper courts discourages divorce in these provinces among those who have the means to seek them; nor can it be argued that shifting this work to Parliament is a fair or proper procedure. Certainly the way in which divorces are handled in Parliament does little to elevate the proceedings; the divorce bills are nuisances and are treated as such.

* * *

Divorce is a part of modern life. Those who object to it are under no obligation to make use of it, but they cannot withhold it from those whose opinion is different. Those who regard divorce as an evil do nothing but harm by insisting that a system be maintained which permits divorces to be obtained by collusion; it cannot be said that they take divorce seriously; it is simply that they wish to ignore it and pretend, so far as possible, that it does not exist. But the much larger part of the population which does take divorce seriously, and does not want unjustifiable divorces to be obtainable by cheating, resents the dishonest attitude of Quebec. If the C.C.F. can force a change, by tactics of obstruction and by insisting on their parliamentary right to examine every bill, they will have done a good job for the country.

Unfair To Commercial Broadcasting

A revision has been made in the rates that Canadian broadcasting stations will pay to the Composers, Authors and Publishers Association of Canada (CAPAC) during 1952. The amount to be paid will be divided, on a basis of revenue, between the commercial broadcasters and the C.B.C. But there is one very important difference between these two groups; everything that the commercial broadcasters make is revenue, but the Federal grants made to the C.B.C. are not counted as revenue. In consequence, the commercial broadcasters will pay $350,000 to CAPAC this year, and the C.B.C. will pay $169,000. Last year both commercial broadcasters and C.B.C. paid $153,000 each.

This appears to us as an injustice to the commercial broadcasters. They have no subsidies, and they hold their licenses at the pleasure of the subsidized C.B.C. The commercial broadcasters are under constant warning from the C.B.C. that they must do something to present and develop Canadian talent, and in most cases they sincerely do so. (It may be noted here that when a commercial station has developed a really good broadcaster, the C.B.C. usually makes him a better offer than the commercial station can afford.) The commercial stations operate in direct rivalry with the C.B.C., but the government holds all the aces. Now, in this latest instance, the commercial broadcasters are struck a heavy financial blow, and the C.B.C. is asked for a mere $16,000 extra—not a large sum to be paid out of the large C.B.C. subsidies.

We like the idea of a national, government-owned broadcasting system; we have no objection to commercial broadcasting. But we do not like a system which, like the C.B.C., wants the best of both worlds, and wants to squeeze commercial competition by using its preferred place and the taxpayers' money to do so. The moral principle lying behind the C.B.C. is about as crooked as anything to be found in our wonderfully self-deceiving country.

End Of Inflation?

Mr. C. D. Howe, Minister of Trade, was reasonable in his belief that the cost of living in Canada has been brought under control. The index figures for the six last months have indicated this; the wholesale price index at present suggests that the cost of living may drop off several points. The Government's policy of securing control without adopting a cumbersome, expensive price and wage control system has been justified. The United States has a control system which has proved neither workable nor successful. Canada has gained control without it.

Mr. Howe's prediction assumes that no serious disruptive situations develop within or without Canada. "It is within the power of organized labour to upset the applecart," he said. That is the critical phrase: within the power. It implies that labour rather than Government and Parliament has the responsibility, should another inflationary spiral start. Labour conditions outside Canada are influential, too. If the United States steel workers impose their wage demands so that the price of steel is hoisted higher than ever, this will certainly affect the cost of living in Canada, because of our steel imports from the United States—imports which touch every Canadian's purse, whether the steel is for household appliances, machines or national construction.

"I think prices will continue to be stable and perhaps return to what we used to consider normal," Mr. Howe said. Does this mean that he thinks, barring extraordinary wage increases, that prices will return to their pre-war level? This is highly improbable. Mr. Howe was probably referring to the static level of prices which held for a year, from September 1948. The price index then hovered around 160. If the price levels recede gradually during this year to 160 it would be absolute confirmation of Mr. Howe's prediction that inflation is beaten. Such lower price levels would have a profound influence on the domestic economy of Canadians. A sudden drop to them would be chaotic.

H. A. Morrow

Reared as a responsible person of property, disciplined at the Royal Military College, and trained as an engineer, the late H. A. Morrow bore the imprint of these influences throughout his long and honourable life. He eschewed public acclaim and office, and conducted himself and his business affairs with integrity and reserve. His aloofness could not hide, however, his achievements as a construction engineer, his military enthusiasm, the generosity of his kindness to associates, employees and tested friends, and his devotion to his native city and its countryside.

Mr. Morrow's engineering firm of Morrow and Beatty undertook power developments in eastern and northern Ontario and Manitoba and in the Maritimes —at the Abitibi pulp mills and Iroquois Falls, for instance. He was an officer in the local regiment before the turn of the century and became its first honorary colonel in 1937. Although most of his middle years were spent away from Peterborough, the family home "Clonsilla" (after which the street is named) was his focal point, and he maintained an office in the city. He continued his father's support of and interest in the farming life of the community, and deeded the large Exhibition Ground to the directors of the agricultural exhibition, as a memorial to his father R. A. Morrow.

Harold A. Morrow's death yesterday at the age of eighty-five, after a long illness, ends the direct line of a family whose name has been important in Peterborough for more than a hundred years. Few of the close friends with whom he hunted, golfed and tramped the countryside are left to pay their personal tribute, but there are many acquaintances and other citizens who know that this modest gentleman of special abilities and distinguished character leaves a reputation and name which is an honour to Peterborough.

A physician says that it is quite possible for a cold to be brought on by a fit of anger. Could that be the "cold anger" which used to seize the hero of a Western, when he saw the villain spitting tobacco juice on the beautiful schoolma'am?

Slavic Genius Of British Drama

By LANGSTON DAY

FEW ENGLISH actors or playwrights have been so praised and berated by the critics as Peter Ustinov. Perhaps success in half a dozen directions is too much for some people to endure. This astonishing young man of 30 who looks like an amiable bear is not only a star of stage and screen but the author of more than half a dozen plays and a couple of striking novels. At the age of 24 he was directing an important film. He speaks seven languages and delivers learned lectures at universities. He is a brilliant conversationalist and a marvellous mimic.

Dramatic reviewers, unaccustomed to such versatility, dipped their pens in vitriol. Ustinov, always witty, replied, "I am amazed that one can be slated so consistently in bad grammar. It is imperative for me to go on writing up to the public and not down to the critics."

THIS WAS in 1948 after he had been presented with poisoned ivy, instead of a laurel wreath for his work in Eric Linklater's Private Angelo which he had adapted for the screen. He also directed the film and himself played the lead with an almost Chaplinesque tenderness. Earlier that year there had been three first nights for Ustinov plays within a fortnight, so that possibly some people imagined he was winning more success than was good for him. But in fact he is the last man to have his head turned in this way. "I don't want to be very successful," he said. "Success can be dangerous. You are liable to rest on your laurels." And defending his dual role of actor and playwright: "It does a playwright good to act because it prevents him writing for effect."

He wrote his first play as a schoolboy of 14 when he should have been studying Latin. It was a crude melodrama, and after hearing the headmaster's remarks about it, he said, he wrote no more for five years. According to him, his schooldays proved that he was no good at anything, so he decided to go on the stage. The theatre was in his blood, for his mother is Nadia Benois, niece of Alexandre Benois of Russian Ballet fame and herself an artist and stage designer.

LEAVING SCHOOL, he studied under Michel St. Denis the distinguished French producer and on the eve of the Second World War made his London debut in revue sketches which he wrote himself. Herbert Farjeon put him in his revue, Diversion, and again he made people laugh with his delightfully satirical performance of an ageing prima donna forever making her last appearance. But in his dressing-room between his acts he was writing a full-length play, The House of Regrets, which was strongly reminiscent of Tchekhov. He showed it to Farjeon, who showed it to the well-known critic James Agate, who without even seeing it acted wrote a whole column about it in "The London Times" (London), hailing Ustinov as a new dramatist. The London "Daily Mail" described it as the best play of the war. By the time the Arts Theatre produced it in the following year Ustinov was in the Army, and he had to get leave to attend his own first night.

In between squad drills he wrote more plays, successful and unsuccessful. The House of Regrets was acknowledged as a great achievement for a boy under twenty, but his next play, Blow Your Own Trumpet, was a resounding failure and ran less than a week. His third effort, The Banbury Nose, established him as a playwright. "This play may be full of sedition, false doctrine, heresy and schism," wrote Agate. "That doesn't matter. I find it entrancing to listen to for the reason that Mr. Ustinov is probably the greatest master of stage-craft now writing in this country."

IT SOON became clear that like Bernard Shaw, of whom it is said that he never wrote a bad acting role, Ustinov writes plays for actors. Yet he does not like writing parts for himself. As an actor he finds his own writing unexciting because there is no mystery about it. For him the fun of acting is to sense and interpret parts which others have imagined, discovering subtle points of characterisation from clues in the dialogue. And so he prefers to hand over his dramatic puzzles to brother actors, though he does enjoy directing his own plays. Meanwhile Ustinov the actor, attacking his roles with Slavonic drive and a subtle gift for characterisation, scored a tour de force as the cunning police chief in Crime and Punishment, and in 1948 he followed this up with a truly astonishing performance as the sadistic schoolmaster in the stage version of Frenzy —adapted from the Swedish film of that name. In complete contrast to this was his sentimental, moronic G.I. convict in Eric Linklater's sparkling comedy, Love in Albania, which Ustinov produced himself. Several London managers has hesitated over this unusual play because of the difficulty of casting the central character. It was Linklater himself who suggested Ustinov after seeing him direct, produce and play the lead in his (Ustinov's) adaptation of his Private Angelo.

By this time Ustinov was well-known in the film word, playing in half a dozen movies. During the war he had been released from the Army to help write, direct and produce Top Secret, the important film about radar. He also directed Vice Versa, which he adapted from Anstey's classic.

MORE RECENTLY he played the hotel owner in Hotel Sahara and Nero in M.G.M.'s Quo Vadis. Far from wishing to play Nero he would like to give his own interpretation of Lear. Meanwhile he has written The Moment of Truth which combines the story of Petain and Laval with the Lear theme. This and his other play, The Love of Four Colonels, in which he plays a leading part himself, have been running in London despite the rather unkind comments of the critics, especially on the former play. He was uncertain whether to classify it as a tragedy or a comedy, but decided to call it a tragedy after the first night!

But Ustinov has by now passed the stage where he gets up early after a first night and anxiously scans the morning papers; he has the confidence to say "I'm right and the critics are wrong." He even peeps from behind the curtain and draws caricatures of the critics sitting sourly in the front row. And he chats familiarly with his audiences. "I always wear the same dress suit," he confided in one first-night speech. "I hire it from the same people, and they always have it in stock for me."

GENTLE, slow-spoken, rather shy, he is extremely good company, with a fund of little-known lore, including all the national anthems of Europe which he sometimes sings in an unbroken series, and an extraordinary gift of mimicry which keeps a roomful of his friends convulsed for hours.

Yet beneath this comedian's mask is a serious and solid intelligence. He has a philosophy, on non-interference and of the importance of individual conviction from experience, which he touches upon in his two novels, The Secret Sky and Flight into Fiction—the latter not yet published. He mistrusts those who live according to rigid theories, and in his latest play Death for Beginners he satirises existentialism. He likes writing both books and plays in his Chelsea home with a background accompaniment of radio and hooting Thames barges. Sometimes he writes all day without bothering to eat.

The Garbled And The Plain

(KINGSTON WHIG-STANDARD)

A NEW word has been coined for the jargon that many bureaucrats and pompous dignitaries dote on using "bafflegab." It is a pleasing and descriptive word, and its aptness is well illustrated by the following excerpt from Time Magazine:

"We are peaking our program philosophically, but it is naive to assume the allotment program is an equity program unless the allotments are so abysmally low that they permit the agency to relax and allow market determination as a percentage of base period, sidetracking military return with adjustments.

"This is based on use levels proportionately and is in the market test sense. We now have a quantitative framework with marginal qualitative allocations to formalize the procedure for further refining and implementing of our objectives."

It is a great pleasure, after reading tripe like the foregoing, to go through a few excerpts from a speech made by a man who uses plain English and uses it exceeding well. His name is Max Freedman, and the excerpts are from a speech he made recently before an Ottawa audience. We are indebted to The Ottawa Journal for culling and printing the following:

"The supreme fact of this century is that the United States has reluctantly, but with good conscience, accepted a measure of responsibility proportionate with her power and strength. This is particularly arresting when you consider that not so long ago their foreign policy could be summed up in 10 words — 'In Asia, co-operation, in Latin-America, predominance; and in Europe, abstention'."

"Senator Tafts' chief hobby is collecting old and discredited echoes."

"Senator McCarthy's mind is one of the great undeveloped areas of the country."

"In spite of these noisy influences no one should forget that the landmark of the American character is its constancy and its love of freedom . . . If there is a safe bet in the world today it is that the American people have solidly ratified their alliance with the free world, and from that commitment there will be no turning back — only a splendid achievement."

"No one knows what the outcome (in Germany) will be. There is a risk and danger at stake, but hatred is an evil counsellor, and revenge a short-sighted friend."

"The only reason why the passionate note of courage to Europe by Churchill is rarely alive on his lips today is that he is compelled to concentrate on Britain's economic survival . . . No one can believe that this greatest man of our times has spoken his last word on this subject."

"By helping to give restraint to our American friends, and hope to our European friends, we may yet walk together to a world of justice in which the weak can be safe because the strong have learned to be righteous."

We need far more of the plain and no more of the garbled. We fear, however, that as long as pretentiousness remains in humans, there will be bafflegab.

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

A violent man enticeth his neighbour, and leadeth him into the way that is not good. (Prov. 16: 29.)

✧ ✧ ✧

O Lord, how long shall I cry, and thou wilt not hear! even cry out unto thee of violence, and thou wilt not save! Why dost thou shew me iniquity, and cause me to behold grievance? for spoiling and violence are before me: and there are that raise up strife and contention. Therefore the law is slacked, and judgement doth never go forth: for the wicked doth compass about the righteous; therefore wrong judgement proceedeth. (Hab. 1: 2-4.)

✧ ✧ ✧

Woe unto them that call evil good, and good evil; that put darkness for light, and light for darkness; that put bitter for sweet, and sweet for bitter! Woe unto them that are wise in their own eyes, and prudent in their own sight! (Isa. 5: 20, 21.)

✧ ✧ ✧

But speak thou the things which become sound doctrine . . . In all things shewing thyself a pattern of good works: in doctrine shewing uncorruptness, gravity, sincerity, sound speech, that cannot be condemned; that he that is of the contrary part may be ashamed, having no evil thing to say of you. (Titus 2: 1, 7, 8.)

✧ ✧ ✧

Be ye therefore perfect, even as your Father which is in heaven is perfect. (Matt. 5: 48.)

Letters To The Editor

COURT ACTION AGAINST LINDSAY?

Sir: Thousands of people, resort owners and cottagers, are suffering as a result of an abnormal amount of green algae in the Kawartha waters.

Government experts have admitted that this abnormal condition is probably caused by ove. fertilization of the waters which could be caused by dumping sewage, treated or untreated, into the stream.

Lindsay, and other settlements, are known to be dumping sewage, as above, contrary to law.

Many of us would like to see a published statement by the government to the effect that the government intends to enforce the law, and that the dumping will cease by some definite date.

If it is impossible to get Government action I intend to invite a group of those interested to join me in a court action against Lindsay and the other offenders.

Yours very truly,
R. K. SLATER.
Lakefield.

P.S.—The writer has the honor to be commodore of the Stony Lake Yacht Club, and a director of the Cottagers Association. However I have not yet asked the directors of either organization for authority to commit them to a possible court action. At the moment I am writing in my personal capacity.—R.K.S.

COAL PRICES

Sir: When Canadian dollar was at a 10% discount, coal was $27.50 a ton. The price is still same with dollar at par or better. Have freight rates increased $2.75 a ton?

Making Precious Stones

(B.B.C. Bulletin)

Alchemists have never yet succeeded in turning lead into gold but modern science can make sapphires artificially, as Bertram Mycock, saw recently. The making of sapphires was well known to European watchmakers long before the last war and the way in which the technique was introduced into Britain around the time of Dunkirk is one of the romances of wartime industry. One small piece of equipment and a few jars of aluminium oxide powder, which is the raw material of the job, were brought to England just before the British Isles were cut off from Europe by the German invasion and from this tiny beginning a new British industry was built up in a big research laboratory at Wembley.

Mycock described the simple process by which sapphires are made. Aluminium oxide powder is slowly fed through an oxy-hydrogen flame, which causes the powder to fuse and become solid. It then builds up very slowly, like a stalagmite, until it has made a single crystal about the shape and size of a thumb. This is pure sapphire, which is then cut into thousands of tiny bearings which are used in large numbers in the instruments of aircraft and fighting vehicles and in many highly technical processes. They are used, for instance, to make sapphire needles to play the BBC's recorded programmes. Slicing up the thumb-sized crystal is a wasteful and difficult process and a time-saving method has now been found. This is a new process of making the sapphire in a long thin rod, which needs far fewer slicing and chopping processes before it is made into the small industrial sapphires that are needed. It is a paradox that this perfect and pure artificially-made sapphire, while less valuable than the imperfect natural jewel, is infinitely better for industrial purposes because of its purity. Research technicians have also amused themselves by producing various red and blue stones which, expertly cut, would deceive most people into believing them to be real gems.

42-Mill Rate Increased Six Set For Cobourg

COBOURG, April 3 (ENS).—A six-mill hike in the tax rate was made when Town Council met last night at a special session to go over the estimates and strike the rate. The tax rate for Public school supporters in 1952 was struck at 42 mills as compared with 36 mills last year. Separate school supporters will pay 40 mills as compared with 35½ in 1951.

Uncollected taxes wiped out a small surplus for 1951, Mayor Jack Burnet declared and the jump in the rate is explained by an operational increase of three mills in the Public school. One mill increase in the High school, one mill for increased wages, another mill for added fire fighting equipment, plus a supplementary half mill in connection with the new factory bridge.

Uncontrollable expenditures estimated for this year were $225,554.32 as compared with $193,390.26. Total controllable expenses estimated for this year were $207,200.81 as compared with $175,765.47 last year. Accordingly the total amount to be raised this year is estimated at $432,755.13, while the total last year was $369,155.73. The estimates were up in the case of every committee, and the only decrease noted was in the grants and this saving was affected by a reduction in the grant to the Recreation Commission, the over all decrease amounting to $400.

However, while the ratepayers will be sorry to see the tax rate go up, they can still feel better than Port Hope where the mill rate jumped 15 mills this week.

Abolish Office Vice Principal

LINDSAY, April 3. (ENS)—The Lindsay Public School Board is taking no further action on a request by teachers for a salary increase. This was decided at a special meeting of the Board.

Two teachers' federations had asked the Board to consider salary increases. The trustees reached no decision at the regular meeting when the teachers' representatives were heard; so a special meeting was called.

Other Lindsay educational items:

Miss Aileen Lee of the North Ward public school will be one of a group of educationalists who will interview prospective Normal School students at the L.C.I. Their purpose is to advise students who wish to go to Normal School after graduation.

The office of assistant principal has been abolished in Lindsay public schools. All schools now have full-time principals, and the trustees felt the assistant principals are no longer necessary.

The Public School Board are considering appointing a supervisor of public schools. But before making a decision the Board are checking with the Department of Education and other school boards on the duties and qualifications of a supervisor.

Hunters Kill Doe Carrying Triplets

SAULT STE MARIE, April 3—(CP—Men hunting out of season and using illegal jacklights have killed a doe which was carrying triplets, game wardens here said today.

Twins are common to deer but the birth of triplets is unusual. The three animals would have been born in about seven weeks.

Deer are reported plentiful this spring in the Batchawana district some 50 miles north of here and easy prey to hunters who use a bright light at night to hold them rigid while they are shot.

Open Investigation Into Store Blaze

APRIL, April 3 — (CP) — An investigation into a recent fire which destroyed a general store owned by William Deakin causing $70,000 damage opened here Wednesday under P. S. Harding of the Ontario Fire Marshal's staff.

Cause of the blaze, which also destroyed a cold storage plant in this village near Galt, is not known. Damages of $18,000 were done to the same building by fire in 1940.

B. Arsenault, M.P., Moves Abolish N.H.L. Slave Market

OTTAWA, April 3 (CP) — A Liberal member of the Commons today moved to abolish what he described as the National Hockey League's "slave market in young hockey players."

Bona Arsenault, member for the Quebec constituency of Bonaventure, placed on the order paper of the Commons a bill that would limit the control of N.H.L. and other clubs over promising young hockey players.

In an interview, Mr. Arsenault said the N.H.L. now can tell young hockey players when and where they will play hockey. It can prevent them from playing hockey if they do not follow the league's directives.

"The N.H.L. conducts a real slave market," he said.

The bill, due to be given first reading Friday, would provide for amendments to the Criminal Code and to the Combines Investigation Act.

Under the Criminal Code change it would be an indictable offence for an individual, sports association or league to:

1. Unduly restrict the freedom of players to play with the club of their choice;

2. Force a player of amateur standing to sign with a club or clubs not of his choice under penalty of losing his amateur standing or of being banned from a club, league or association of his choice.

3. Force a player to sign as a professional against his will.

4. Force a player of amateur standing who has already signed a contract with a club of amateur standing to play as a professional with a club of professional standing against his will.

Suggest Big Fine

An individual guilty of the offence would be subject to a fine of between $500 and $2,000. A club or league would be subject to a fine of between $2,000 and $5,000.

The change to the Combines Investigation Act would allow the combines commissioner to make an investigation into the operations of hockey teams. If the commissioner found that the teams were unfairly controlling players he could report his finding to the Attorney General of the province for possible legal action.

Bills sponsored by the private members seldom become law, but Mr. Arsenault said he is confident that his measure will receive the support of the majority of the members. It must receive three readings in the Commons and three in Senate before at can become law.

He said he wished to congratulate Hon. Gerald Martineau and Mark Drouin, two well-known sportsmen in Quebec and Dan Parker, New York sports columnist for the fight that they have carried on against the N.H.L. practices.

The N.H.L. has its own rules covering its negotiation list. A club can indicate to the league an amateur player with which it would like to deal. The league then places that player on the club's negotiation list, providing he is not already on the list of some other club. Each club is limited to four players on its negotiation list.

Clubs can get amateurs to sign "Option C" agreements. The option usually provides for a bonus when the player signs a standard contract.

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

By CEC. PERDUE, Sports Editor

Stanley Cup semi-finals series swings back to Montreal tonight with the sixth game at Boston on Sunday. If a seventh is necessary, it'll be Canadiens home game next Tuesday. Meantime, Detroit Red Wings will have a good rest before taking on the survivor in Stanley Cup finals. A break for them in creating puck history by knocking Toronto Leafs out in four straight. That extra rest—with regular practices, of course—should give the Wings an edge against either Canadiens or Bruins in the big round. The Bruins certainly can't be written off yet after their fine comeback to win the last two games. We'd sure like to see them reach the final set.

* * * * * *

Playoff hockey usually features outstanding goaltending — though the Leafs didn't prove it this season. Still, Rollins and Broda didn't get too much help. Wings, Bruins and Canadiens are getting some ace netminding so far. Dave Kerr of this city — and former star in the cage for N.Y. Rangers — holds the playoff shutout record, with Frank McCool, once of Leafs. Kerr had four shutouts in the 1937 series, and McCool did likewise in 1945. Terry Sawchuk has two so far and may get more in the final. Toronto won the cup four straight in '49, but Wings squared that by ousting them in four this semi-final series. Maple Leaf Gardens will lose a lot of money because of that.

For Schools City Titles

Walter Smillie has arranged something new: elementary schools' city hockey titles this season. Three sudden-death playoff games at Civic Arena tomorrow night, starting at seven. Champs of the Public School League against winners of the Separate School League. First fray has Queen Mary juniors vs. St. Peter's, followed by Prince of Wales vs. Sacred Heart intermediates, and then King Edward vs. Sacred Heart seniors. It should prove an interesting evening for the young pucksters and their followers. The arena is rapidly running out of hockey, unless the senior Petes stay in the race.

Stouffville Clippers clash at high speed with the Petes at 8.30 here this e'en in the third tilt of their best-of-seven O.H.A. senior "B" playoff series. As Clippers took the first two Petes must win this one on home ice or they may reach trail's end in Stouffville Saturday after supper. First joust here saw Clippers edge 'em in overtime, while Tuesday in Stouffville the Toronto huskies blazed to a 4-0 first period lead but were hanging on the ropes as the Ellis men outscored them 3-2 in the final two frames. Another streamlined dandy assured this evening with the homesters shooting the works in a do-or-die attempt against stiff opposition. It should pack the place for sure.

Soccer Chaps Get Ready

U.E.W. football club is getting set for another busy season. A meeting of players and others interested will be held Saturday aft at three in Morrow Park. Newcomers welcome, we're told. Tommy Craig is president again, with G. W. Cantello secretary. Bill Garbutt is the new manager and hopes to round out another strong squad. This team won league honors last year and the Eastern Ontario Cup, as well as being provincial intermediate champions. The soccer chaps have their sights set on the Canadian crown this year. Port Hope is expected to field a club in the Eastern League, which should make for more city and district interest, too.

A couple of unsigned letters—attacking folks—to hand, and we cannot publish same. Writers of such missives should have the courage to sign their names, even if they don't want the names used. A fellow, discussing T.V.L. playoffs, brings out an interesting point—asking what is wrong with a team using imports. Says nearly every club does from minor amateur teams right up to the N.H.L. Of course, few N.H.L. clubs have more than a player or two in their lineups born in their cities. That is the way with pro sports. And it's certainly true today that most amateur squads bolster with imports from other centres. Nor can we see any harm in it if local players of equal ability aren't squeezed out.

Williams Ends Baseball Career

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., April 3 (AP).—Ted Williams, one of baseball's greatest sluggers, indicated today his diamond career will come to an end May 2 when he returns to active duty as a captain in the Marine Corps.

The slender Boston star virtually swapped his Red Sox uniform for a green suit of khaki Wednesday when, after a two-hour physical examination, he was found fit for duty together with Gerry Coleman, star second baseman of the New York Yankees.

Williams is baseball's highest salaried performer at $100,000. A Marine captain's salary is $5,000 a year.

"This is it," Ted said.

"I guess this finishes me. I don't see how I can come back. I'll be past 35 when I get out. That's old, feller. It's awfully hard to come back at that age. Heck, it's getting harder for me all the time—even now."

A. Pilling Rolls 857

A. Pilling hit a nifty 857 threesome this week in the Major Bowling League at Playfair, as H. Killen took high single with 355. Crowley's topped teams with 3424 and Stud. Champs led teams in games with 1294. Darling's took six from Selkirk, U.E.W. six from Bickell, and 4-2 wins went respectively to B & E, Revenoors, McLeod, Examiner, Clapper's, Plazas, Crowley's, Stud Champs, Cherney's and Wood over Sun Life, Kingsmen, Kawartha, Wonder, Brewers, Lillian's, Campbell, Lowry, Odeon and Herb's.

Good scores included: E. Downer 827, H. Correll 816, E. Reynolds 755, H. Legrow 748, V. Ferguson (314) 773, D. Brown (306) 739, C. Signorotti 741, W. Irvine (303) 724, C. Downer 719, H. Killen 718, J. Barnes 718, P. Pryde 714, O. Lunn 701, and singles of A. Sanderson 309 and A. Pilling 302.

THIS WEEK'S SUGAR DERBY in the Laurentian hills, where spring skiing is now at its best, brought some strange costumes to the snow covered slopes. Among prize winners were Betty Silkey, above, and her son, Randy, of St. Margaret's, who winged over the course to catch the fancy of the derby judges.

Blackburn Loses

Newcastle United Wednesday reached the English soccer finals, defeating Blackburn Rovers 2-1 at London. Arsenal and Chelsea are the other semi-finalists. The cup final will be played May 3 at Wembley Stadium.

Flyers Leading Marmora In T.V.L. Finals

BELLEVILLE, April 3—Trenton Flyers grabbed a 2-1 lead in the best-of-five Trent Valley Hockey League finals here Wednesday night, defeating Marmora Milionaires 8-5 before 1,083 fans. The fourth game of the series will be played here Friday night.

It was fast, close-checking, thrilling hockey all through with Marmora fighting a desperate uphill battle after being on the short end of a 4-1 first period score. The village crew had a decided edge in territorial play in the last two periods but a packed Flyer defence and an outstanding effort by Goalie Scott staved off the village bids for victory.

The Millionaires outplayed and outscored the Flyers 2-1 in the second period to make the count 5-3 and drew within a goal after two minutes in the third heat. They passed up a splendid chance to grab the nod in this period when Parnall drew a minor and a misconduct penalty. They hit the hemp twice and it was anybody's game with a goal difference until the last three minutes when Attrill fired the insurance marker and Pumple locked the door with 66 seconds to go.

It was a hard checking but cleanly played game with Referees Dick Fitzpatrick and Buzz Cane handing out nine penalties, five to the Flyers. Two of the Flyer goals were scored when the village crew were short handed.

The teams:

Marmora: Goal, Killian; defence, Grace, Maynes; centre, Forestell; wings, Lavender, Trumble; subs, Stewart, Jones, Mantle, Smith, Kerr, Brown, Doyle, Darrah, Drummond.

Flyers: Goal, Scott; defence, Bruce, Faulkner; centre, Parnall; wings, Macdonald, O'Meara; subs, Pumple, Hampton, Beatch, Bowman, Attrill, Roberge, Dickson, McLean, Bridgman.

Referees Dick Fitzpatrick, Belleville and Buzz Cane, Cobourg.

Fourth Liners Prove Best

MILLBROOK, April 3(ENS)—The big hockey show is over. The Gray Cup remains with the defending champions from Fourth Line after a thrilling series. The game bunch from Mount Pleasant relinquished their grip on the silver mug after a fast, furious but clean photo finish. It went overtime in Peterborough's Civic Arena. After 173 minutes of series play, the teams were still even on goals for a Bush League record.

Fourth Line's two platoon system handled the situation perfectly in the payoff tilt. First there's the production platoon of Allan Hutchinson, McDowell and Walling, backed by Agnew and Earl Hutchinson. They keep the red light blinking. Then, the defensive platoon of Ed and Herb Fallis with Greenly—backed by Olan and Ed Hutchinson—had the job of holding down the opposition, and they emerged as heroes of the game.

The Fallis brothers tossed in an extra by combining for an important goal in the second period. Hockey-wise Ed Hutchinson stood out by being in the right spot at the right time to halt quick thrusts. For Mount Pleasant, the Crawford brothers and Dracup registered all six goals and were highly dangerous. Only close checking kept them from running wild. Evans and Hubbeard in goal looked after everything that didn't have a "no chance" tag attached.

Took A Lead

Mounts got three in the first period of the windup game, R. Crawford getting one and Don Crawford two, an assist each going to K. Bryans and Dracup. Walling from McDowell kept the Line lads in the hunt. Fourth Line roared back for five in the second, as Dracup got Mounts' only tally from D. Crawford. Al Hutchinson, Earl Hutchinson, H. Fallis, Walling and McDowell were the snipers, Walling aiding on a pair, and E. Fallis and McDowell one each. Dracup got two next heat from R. Crawford to sew it up. Then McDowell banged in two in overtime.

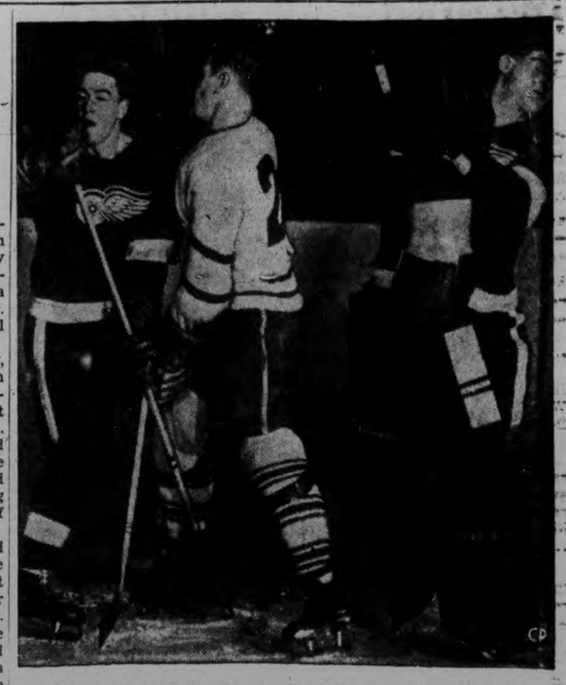
Fourth Line had nearly 700 fans cheering them at the end. Dr. J. Wright and Perc Hamilton looked after the cup presentation. Some league managers talk of packing their squads next year but the executive will probably stop that and give more local boys a chance. Some all-star selections and the leading scorers will be announced next week. The finalists:

Mt. Pleasant— B. Evans, J. Evans, D. Crawford, R. Crawford, Dracup, K. Bryans, Jamieson, Parker, Mitchell, Craig, J. Bryans, Handley.

Fourth Line — Hubbeard, F. Hutchinson, Agnew, McDowell, A. Hutchinson, Walling, Olan, E. Hutchinson, H. Fallis, E. Fallis, Greenly.

MOST VALUABLE PLAYER

Lucien Dechene, New Westminster Royal goalkeeper, Wednesday night at Seattle was named most valuable player in the Pacific Coast Hockey League this season. He was chosen by a panel of sports writers and radio announcers.



STOPS HOT ONE—Detroit Red Wings goalie, Terry Sawchuk, winces as he stops a blistering shot with his shoulder in the fourth and final game of the best-of-seven Stanley Cup semi-final series with Toronto Maple Leafs. Detroit won all four games. Sawchuk permitted only three goals in the four games and shut out the Leafs twice. Detroit won the final game 3-1 and will meet the winners of the Montreal Canadiens-Boston Bruins best-of-seven series, now tied at two games each. Detroit's Marcel Pronovost keeps Toronto's Sid Smith occupied during Sawchuk's save.

Montreal and Boston Back Where They Started In NHL

MONTREAL, April 3. (CP)—Boston Bruins and Montreal Canadiens today are back where they started their National Hockey League semi-final playoff—both as to locale and as to standing. It was in Montreal that the first two games of the best-of-seven series were held and victories in those games sent Canadiens' stock soaring. The series then shifted to Boston for the next two games and the optimism faded. The Bruins came through with 4-1 and 3-2 decisions.

Today, they're back where they started.

Before the series began, the Habs were 13-5 favorites but on Wednesday night, before they left Boston, they were no better than even money.

As Canadiens' coach Dick Irvin said: "The series is even and three games are left with two in Montreal." Irvin said there lies a Montreal advantage.

Got Breaks

The Montrealers got the breaks in the first two games in Montreal but things went the other way in Boston.

Irvin thought the "big break" in Tuesday's game in Boston came when Billy Reay and Paul Meger bumped into each other in the Bruins' defence zone.

"The puck rolled free. Quackenbush grabbed it and broke away to set up the winning goal."

Irvin summed up the two Boston losses this way "If three or four of our players had not suffered a letdown, we would have won four straight."

Boston coach Lynn Patrick put it this way: "Now that we have found ourselves don't count us out. We have to win two of the next three games."

Chicago Black Hawks smashed their way to the Stanley Cup finals 14 years ago tonight by beating New York Americans 3-2 in the deciding game of a best-of-three semifinal at New York. Hawks, who edged out Detroit in the stretch drive, went on to win their second Stanley Cup by beating Toronto Maple Leafs in the final, three games to one.

Indians Humble Greyhounds 5-2 To Enter Finals

STRATFORD, April 3 (CP). — Stratford Indians' hopes for the Allan Cup were high today as thet eam prepared to enter the Eastern Canada finals against the survivors of the Pembroke Lumber Kings-Jonquiere Aces series.

The Indians knocked off the vaunted Sault Ste. Marie Greyhounds 5-2 here Wednesday night to complete a four-game route of the Northern Ontario Hockey Association Senior A champions and emerge virtually unscathed from their best-of-seven Eastern Canada Allan Cup semi-finals.

The teams tied the opener 2-2 at Sault Ste. Marie and then Stratford took the next game on northern ice. The next three were easy at home.

The Indians—Ontario Hockey Association Senior A titleholders—scored their first goal Wednesday night after but 40 seconds of play and although they were tied 1-1 at the end of the first period, pulled into a 3-1 lead by the finish of the middle session. Outscoring the Greyhounds 2-1 in the final 20 minutes gave them their 5-2 final.

Bruce Burdett led the Stratford crew with a pair of goals while linemates Jackie White and Ron Aitken supplied singletons. Terry Biocchi and Roy Heximer scored for the losers.

Stratford played Wednesday night's game minus the services of centre Mickey Roth who suffered a separated shoulder in Tuesday's clash. Denny Flanagan replaced him at centre on a line flanked by Larry Lemenchick and Bill Flick.

Both goaltenders played terrific hockey. Boofy Casola turned away 39 pucks from the Sault Ste. Marie net while Bruce Dale handled 32 in the Stratford goal.

Conn Smythe Takes Blame For Leafs Playoff Flop

TORONTO, April 3 (CP). — Managing director Conn Smythe of Toronto Maple Leafs conducted a post-mortem of his club Wednesday and said that results over the National Hockey League season "are my fault."

"I have no one to blame but myself," he told a press conference just one day after the defending Stanley Cup champions were knocked over four straight by the league champion Detroit Red Wings in the best-of-seven cup semi-finals.

"I have nothing to say about the team. They put us in the playoffs and did very well. The same goes to the coach Joe Primeau who did a remarkable job in getting them into third place with the material he had.

"The results are my fault. . . The signs were shown last year, against Montreal Canadiens in the Stanley Cup finals, and something should have been done then. It was up to me to do something then."

There will be personnel changes in the club next year—four on the forward line and one and possibly two on defence. But Smythe said there would be no "grab-bag deals or rummage sales."

Smythe said there was some truth in rumors that he is interested in Harry Lumley, Chicago Black Hawks goalkeeper, as a possible replacement for the Leafs' Al Rollins, but that Hawk president Bill Tobin was "too demanding."

Guelph Crushes Porcupine 5-2 In Semi-Final

TIMMINS, April 3 (CP). — Guelph Biltmores flew back home Wednesday night and it was just about as easy as their high-flying 5-2 victory earlier in the evening over Porcupine Combines. The win gave them a 1-0 lead in their best-of-three Eastern Canada Memorial Cup semi-finals.

The Bilts are set to wind it up at home Friday and earn the right to move against the survivors of the Eastview St. Charles-Montreal Canadiens playoff in an Eastern Canada final. The Montreal club leads that best-of-three series 1-0.

Guelph took little urging Wednesday and rushed into a 4-0 first period lead before skating through a scoreless middle session. Even though the Porkies outscored them 2-1 in the final period, the game was Biltmore's all the way.

Andy Bathgate led the Guelph attack with a pair of goals while Ron Murphy, Chuck Henderson and Ron Stewart added singletons. Ross Kelly and Rick Albert came up with two Porcupine markers.

3 Ball Teams Receive Severe Jolts

By RALPH RODEN.

NEW YORK, April 3 (AP). — The 1952 world series opponents may have been determined on April 2—two weeks before the official opening of the season.

Three teams, New York Giants, Boston Red Sox and New York Yankees received severe jolts in their pennant ambitions Wednesday while the hopes of a fourth, Philadelphia Phillies, were boosted.

Here's what happened:

1. Monte Irvin, left fielder of the champion Giants and National League runs-batted-in king of 1951, broke his right ankle in an exhibition game against Cleveland at Denver, Colo. Irvin will miss at least half of the campaign and possibly the entire season.

2. Ted Williams, Boston left fielder, passed his physical examination at Jacksonville, Fla., and will report for active duty with the Marine Air Corps May 2.

3. Jerry Coleman, infielder of the Yanks, also passed his physical and will return to duty with the Marine Air Corps the same date.

4. Curt Simmons, crack left-handed pitcher of the Phillies, will be discharged as a sergeant of the 28th Infantry Division. He will return to the United States from Germany within 10 days.

Comes As Shock

The recall of Williams and Coleman to the colors was expected but the loss of Irvin came as a shock and cast gloom over the Giant camp.

Irvin was injured in the second inning in a game Cleveland won 5-0. He walked to lead off the frame and zipped around second as Willie Mays singled to right field.

Cleveland shortstop Ray Boone cut off the throw from the outfield and hung Mays up between first and second but Irvin slid into third anyway. He suffered a compound fracture of his right ankle.

Irvin batted .312 last year and led the league in runs batted in with 121. He also starred in the world series against the Yanks, batting .458.

Irvin's loss probably means that Bob Thomson will forsake third base for his first love, the outfield. Hank Thompson, a disappointment last year, figures to return to third.

Williams, highest salaried player in the game, and Coleman, will also miss the 1953 season. They are in for 17 months.

Red Sox manager Lou Boudreau indicated in Houston, Tex., that Don Lenhardt and Clyde Vollmer probably will alternate the left field job.

BILL QUACKENBUSH, Boston rearguard, fronts Canadiens' Paul Meger in solid fashion when the Habitant wheels in on Sugar Jim Henry. Henry is making a save on one of Boom Boom Geoffrion's whistlers. Harvey was after the rebound but had his plans altered in the first period action of Tuesday night's Stanley Cup semi-final game in Boston which Bruins won, 3-2.

Here and There In Sport

All National Boxing Association medical officers are being asked to attend the 33rd convention of the fistic body at Montreal next September. Information on general safety in boxing will be exchanged.

The Soviet Union has been accepted as a member of the International Ice Hockey Federation, president Fritz Kraatz, president of the Federation, announced on Wednesday at Zurich, Switzerland.

Johnny Lujack, 27, star quarterback of the professional Chicago Bears, announced Wednesday he is hanging up his cleats. A salary squabble is causing him to eye an assistant coaching job at his alma mater, Notre Dame.

Toronto Maple Leafs baseball team plugged two gaps Wednesday with the purchase of a first baseman and a pitcher from Cleveland Indians. President Jack Kent Cooke of the International League team announced he had paid $25,000 for first-sacker Ed Stevens and right-hander Gerald (Red) Fahr.

The Massachusetts Senate Wednesday at Boston rejected a bill to forbid the drinking of beer at sports events. One Senator said spectators at ball games are fed up with having beer spilled over them. He was opposed by Senator Charles I. Taylor who asked: "What are they going to do at football games to keep warm?"

Seaman Injured Aboard Freighter

PORT COLBORNE, April 3 — (CP)—Jack Merkley, a 26-year-old Great Lakes seaman from Prescott, is in hospital suffering from a broken left thigh and a possible fracture of the right thigh after being struck by the revolving crankshaft of the freighter James Stewart.

Merkley, a member of the Upper Lakes and St. Lawrence Transportation Company ship's crew, was working around the engines as the craft was being prepared for the 1952 navigation season. The engines were started and he was hit across the thighs by the revolving shaft.

Government Preparing To Test Air Raid Warning System Soon

OTTAWA, April 3 (CP)—Canada has virtually completed work on a basic air raid warning system and it will be ready for tests almost immediately, the government disclosed Wednesday.

It is designed to be sabotage-proof and to give instantaneous warnings to key areas in the event of attack.

A reply tabled in the Commons for Donald Brown (L., Essex West) gave a description of the system which will be one of the great bulwarks of Canada's whole civil defense program.

It will consist of communication facilities and operating techniques which, when integrated with supplementary municipal facilities and such warning devices as sirens, will ensure:

1. Transmitting warnings of attack from air defense control centres (run by the R.C.A.F.) to key points (generally in so-called target areas, that is major cities or industrial areas); to the civil defense authorities, wardens' organizations, fire departments, police, hospitals, key industries, siren centre control locations; to other municipalities, and to the civilian population in general.
2. Transmitting the warnings without a time interval, which will permit effective defensive action.
3. Effective guarantees against false warnings which might be the result of intentional sabotage, action of pranksters or carelessness.
4. Certainty that the warnings will be recognized as test alerts or true warnings of impending attack.

The federal government is responsible for getting the warnings to certain main key points from air defense centres. The provinces and cities are responsible for passing the warnings from there to subordinate places such as wardens, organizations and hospitals.

Truman, McGrath Have Airport Argument

WASHINGTON, April 3 (AP)—President Truman and his Attorney-General, J. Howard McGrath, engaged in what looked like an angry argument while they waited to greet Queen Juliana of the Netherlands at the national airport Wednesday.

There have been reports that McGrath may resign.

Truman and McGrath engaged in a heated discussion for about five minutes. Their words could not be overheard.

But Truman was pale and his lips formed a thin line. McGrath was flushed and looked indignant.

William R. Nicholas was named chairman of the civic committee, and will sponsor a spring "clean-up" campaign. He chose George Braham, William Holmes, Bert Taylor and Charles Wickness as his committee.

"THE MONSTER"

"By 'Monster' I mean a private corporation for gain which has . . . effective control in any major or important field of business . . . . These corporations are monsters in the sense of enormous, sprawling size with the human qualities necessarily submerged. The brutal elements tend to become controlling through impersonality, and the monsters themselves are heartless gigantic machines driving on relentlessly and regardless, to narrow, materialistic objectives."

"There is no such thing as a 'good' monster," contrary to handiwork of the skilled public relations experts, hired expressly to make black appear to be white."

"The Company (GE) regularly engaged in practices of which I could not approve."

The author of these statements is T. K. Quinn, a former Vice-President of General Electric Company who resigned from that Company in 1936. The excerpts are from his writings of 1948 under the heading: "I Quit Monster Business."

C.G.E. Victimization To Put Over Wage Cuts

The Welders' Case

In December, 1951, the bulk of the Welders in the Structural Steel Department refused to accept a cut in wages and an attack on their skilled classifications.

Susbsequently 16 welders were fired by CGE in the hope that other workers elsewhere in CGE who were also facing speed up and wage cuts would, in fear of being also fired, accept these attacks on their standards without a fight.

On March 26th, a majority report of the Arbitration Board on the firings of these welders, was released, recommending reinstatement of these welders.

The majority report was signed by His Honor, Judge J. C. Anderson, and the CGE representative, Mr. Macaulay Dillon, Q.C.

On March 28th, at 8:30 p.m., the Company called in the Union representatives and said: "We will not abide by the recommendations of the Arbitration Board and reinstate the welders. — They are all fired."

That is to be the lot of CGE workers who resist wage cutting—speed up—contract violations—of this giant Corporation.

At least that is what CGE would like to have its workers accept.

Is this a new position for CGE?

NO!

The Company cut the wages of the Welders by 12-14c per hour on a job that had been priced for over 3 years. THE DEPARTMENTAL OFFICIALS ADMITTED THE PRICE WAS WRONGFULLY CUT. THEY AGREED WITH THE WELDERS TO HAVE THE WAGE CUT CANCELLED — BUT TOP COMPANY OFFICIALS OVERRULED AND INSISTED ON THE WAGE CUT.

THIS TYPE OF WAGE CUT, IF PERMITTED, WOULD REDUCE THE EARNINGS OF THE WELDERS ON 90% OF ALL FUTURE WORK.

Previous Histories

GE has refused to implement arbitration awards before now, even though their contract with UE says that an award by arbitration is final and binding.

GE, in fact, ignores the grievance procedure in the contract and forces virtually every grievance to long drawn out and costly arbitration, even though the principle is clear in the agreement and in previous arbitration decisions.

There are literally hundreds of unsuccessful but legitimate grievances every year in GE — far worse than in any other Company.

Yet GE piously calls on workers to slavishly follow the very procedure which GE violates or ignores.

One of the many examples of the Company violating the union agreement and arbitration awards is to be found in their refusal to implement an award in the Induction Motors Dept.

There the Company cut the prices and wages of a number of their workers, and in spite of a ruling from an Arbitration Board, the Company still refuses to pay the employees the thousands of dollars owing as a result of these wage and price cuts.

Wage slashing and speed up is taking place in virtually every department in GE plants in Peterborough, Toronto, etc., and workers are laid off thereby while GE profits hit ever new highs.

There is a total lack of acceptance of public and employee welfare responsibility by this American Company whose super exploitation of its Canadian employees takes millions per year out of Canada.

GE supports phoney "labour" leaders in attempts at disruption of the unity of its organized workers.

These issues are of vital concern to every Peterborough citizen.

C.G.E. PROFITS CONTINUES TO FLOW FROM THESE ATTACKS ON WORKERS' WAGES AND CONDITIONS

The Company has a profit of $7,846,272.00 for the year 1951. This is 10% higher than the previous year, and more than 50% over 1949, yet the Company is determined to take more and more out of the workers and the community.

U.E. says GE must be made to recognize the recommendation of the Arbitration Board award and reinstate these Welders whose total service with GE represents well over 100 years, and whose families are important andd hard working citizen of Peterborough.

U.E. On behalf of the GE workers, asks your support to secure justice for these Welders whose only "crime" is that they fought against a wage cut.

The future welfare of all GE workers, and therefore of all Peterborough citizens, will be materially affected by the outcome of this Welder issue which basically is: SHALL GE WORKERS DOCILELY ACCEPT WAGE CUTS WHILE GE AMASSES EVER INCREASING PROFITS?

You can help reinstate these Welders! You can help put a stop to wage cuts! Join in the protest against this anti-public action.

Mexico Willing Free Priest If Fare Paid

MEXICO CITY, April 3 (Reuters).— Jean Marc Methot, a Canadian who is serving a five-year term in Torrid Penitentiary at Port Acapulco, may be released by Mexican authorities if he can find someone to pay the costs of his repatriation to Canada, it was learned Wednesday.

Methot, who describes himself as a Roman Catholic priest, was sentenced in October, 1951, following a fight with a Mexican parish priest in Acapulco.

At the trial, Methot said the priest had refused to permit him to officiate at mass. The Mexican priest suffered head injuries and a broken arm, which police said were inflicted by Methot with a hammer.

Methot said he had studied for the priesthood in Montreal, but did not complete his studies there He said he was ordained in the diocese of El Paso, Texas.

The Canadian Embassy here confirmed Wednesday that Methot is a Canadian citizen. An Embassy spokesman said it appeared that Mexico would agree to his release if his immediate departure could guaranteed. He gave his birthplace as Ste. Elizabeth de Warwick, Que.

Neither Blarney Nor Money Can Buy Famous Stone

CORK, Republic of Ireland, April 3—(Reuters)—All the blarney in the world couldn't get the age-old Blarney stone away from the Emerald Isle now.

The grey, triangular boulder, said to give persuasive eloquence to those who kiss it, is tied down in Ireland by the will, published Wednesday of Sir George Oliver Colthurst, a baronet and patriot.

Sir George a year ago left the 16th century Blarney Castle, and its legendary stone, to his niece, Mrs. Penelope Hamilton. The stone is perched high on the castle battlements. Leprechauns and fairies have danced by it in moonlight since 1602, laughing at the unbelieving English who once tried to take it. In that year, during one of the periodic battles between the Irish and English, the owner of the castle, Cormack Macarthy, signed an armistice with Carew, the English Lord President, surrendering his fortress.

But all Carew got was soft speeches and cajolery until he became the laughing stock of Elizabeth the First's minister and the dupe of the Lord of Blarney.

Nowadays the stone brings in a mint of money each year in fees from tourists who pay one shilling and sixpence to kiss it and get the gift of the gab.

Fabulous offers to buy the stone were turned down by Colthurst. In 1932 a group of Americans offered him £100,000. They wanted to take it through the U.S. and Canada, selling kisses at $1.

Lascelles Served Four Sovereigns

By ALAN HARVEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, April 3 (CP)—Among the men behind the scenes at Britain's court, few exercise a greater influence than Sir Alan Lascelles, liaison man between the Crown and the government of the day.

Sir Alan, six feet tall with a grandee moustache, is private secretary to the Queen and the only member of the Queen's household so far appointed. As such he works long hours in a high-ceilinged room in Buckingham Palace, acting as link between the throne and 10 Downing Street, the prime minister's official residence.

A relative of the late King and a veteran of 32 years in Royal service, the 64-year-old Lascelles has acted as private secretary for Elizabeth's father, her grandfather and her uncle. Thus he now serves his fourth sovereign.

His duties are not clearly defined but some are well known. He receives most diplomats and visiting dignitaries before they "go upstairs" to visit the Queen in the state rooms of the palace. He is believed to hold the key which opens government dispatch boxes and sees all state papers, including communications from the governors-general and prime ministers.

Educated at Marlborough and Trinity College, Oxford, Sir Alan is known as a cultivated man with an encyclopaedic knowledge of 19th-century social history and literature. Before the First World War, he formed part of a particularly brilliant circle. He has a reputation still for Edwardian grace and dry humor.

Although he does not grant interviews and discourages inquiries of a personal nature, Sir Alan is dogged by one anecdote. As the story goes, an American reporter asked him whether he was related to Lord Harewood, whose family name is Lascelles. Sir Alan answered in the affirmative, and the reporter asked how. "Quite legitimately," replied Sir Alan.

He knows Canada well, having served there from 1931 to 1935 as secretary to the Earl of Bessborough, then governor-general. He accompanied the King and Queen on the Royal Tour in 1939 and was knighted by the King on a train speeding between Washington and Niagara Falls, Ont.

He is one of the few persons to have received the accolade outside the United Kingdom. Another was Sir Arthur Currie, famous Canadian general of the First World War who kneeled on a cushion in France to receive his award.

PURR-PLEXING PROBLEM—Cats, lots of 'em. Two jaguar babies, a leopard infant, and a slightly wistful tiger cub, are cluttering up the office of the Cleveland, Ohio, zoo. It's the only place for zoo babies before they can fend for thmselves. Janet Sommer, left, and Mrs. L. H. Bernhardt say business is business, and kittens are going too fur. The babies must move out.

Mr. And Mrs. R. F. Thorn Feted On Golden Wedding

OMEMEE, April 3 (ENS) — Mr. and Mrs. Robert F. Thorn of Ops township were honored in Reaboro Community Hall on the occasion of their 50th wedding anniversary.

Mr. and Mrs. Thorn were both born in Cavan township in the vicinty of Millbrook. Mr. Thorn is a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. George Thorn; and Mrs. Thorn, the former Lina May Strong is a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Strong of Carmel.

They were married March 26, 1902 at the home of the bride, the ceremony being performed by the late Rev. L. H. Wight, B.A. then pastor of the Millbrook Methodist Church. They were attended by Miss Eva Trew of Elizabethville and the late Ellsworth Jones of Carmel. The late Miss Meta Pickup of Elizabethville played the wedding march.

Mr. Thorn brought his bride to his Ops township farm home one-half mile south of Reaboro, where they still reside. The family consisted of one son and one daughter, Kenneth on an adjoining farm, and Meta, (Mrs. Clifton Moore) of Oshawa, Mr. and Mrs. Thorn have always been active in church and community life.

About 250 friends and relatives attended the celebration, including guests from Toronto, Oshawa, Cobourg, Norwood, Pefferlaw, Cannington, Peterborough, Elizabethville, Garden Hill, Millbrook, Omemee, Lindsay and Cameron.

Mr. Wilbert Thorn of Ops township was chairman for the program which included musical numbers, pictures, speeches and a presentation. Rev. Chas. Richmond of Christ Anglican Church, Omemee, showed pictures relating to his work when a missionary in Kenya, East Africa. With Mr. Keith Morden as accompanist the Misses Shirley and Beverly Moore of Cam ay sang two duets, Mr. John Moore of Reaboro a solo and little Rollin and David Richmond a duet in an East African dialect. Selections on the xylophone were played by Miss Nancy Brandon of Cannington. Speeches were made by T. H. Reeds of Reaboro, Reeve Sherman Moore of Cambray, James Naylor of Pefferlaw, Richard Smith of Lindsay, Walter Reeds of Ops township and Mr. Richmond. Mrs. Kenneth Thorn read a clipping from the Millbrook Mirror of 50 years ago—an account of the Thorn-Strong wedding.

An address signed by the committee—Delbert Hickson, Wilbert Thorn and Rhoda Thorn—on behalf of the community, was then read by Mrs. Delbert Hickson to Mr. and Mrs. Thorn and the presentation made.

The gift from the community was a radio and gramaphone. From Mr. and Mrs. Clifton Moore of Oshawa they received a lazy boy chair and from Mr. and Mrs. Frank Train of Oshawa a beautiful cushion. Bouquets were received from the Reaboro Women's Institue and from Coronation Chapter 218 Order Eastern Star, Lindsay, both of which Mrs. Thorn is a member, and from the Past Matrons Club of the O.E.S. Oshawa, of which her daughter is a member. Mr. Thorn made a suitable reply on behalf of himself and Mrs. Thorn.

Lunch was topped off with a beautiful three storey wedding cake.

Non-Whites Plan Protest Against Group Areas Law

JOHANNESBURG, April 2 — (CP)—Leaders of South Africa's non-white population are pushing plans for a campaign of passive resistance later this month against the government's policy of racial segregation.

Although Prime Minister Daniel Malan has warned that the government "will deal adequately with those responsible for inciting subversive activities," leaders of the Africans, Indians and people of mixed races plan to protest "against 300 years of white oppression."

Most active section of the movement appears to be crystallizing around the defence of homes, business and places of worship which the resisters believe are threatened by the government's plans for separating the various races—Africans, Indians, Malays, colored people and white people.

Out of a total population of 11,500,000 in South Africa, more than 9,000,000 are non-European, most of them of the Bantu or native race.

Malan's National party government intends to carry out this residential and business separation under the powers which they have taken under the Group Areas Act. This act is one of the major pieces of apartheid or color-bar legislation adopted by the South African parliament in the last four years.

Malan already has announced his intention to upset a March 21 ruling of the Supreme Court, setting aside an act placing colored voters on a special electoral register. He has said he will introduce legislation to prevent the testing of acts of parliament before the courts.

The resistance movement is to be touched off with a "People's Protest Day" April 6. This day was chosen to clash with the official South African celebrations of the 300th anniversary of the arrival of the first white settlers.

While all races are officially invited to celebrate that day as one of thanksgiving, the resisters are organizing mass protest meetings.

Eventually, a joint meeting of the national executives of the African and Indian Congresses will fix the date for the beginning of the passive resistance campaign and draw up detailed plans.

Under present plans, volunteers will be called upon to defy apartheid laws.

The campaign will require the volunteers to live in areas set aside for white people, and to use bridges, trains, buses, libraries and other public places set aside for the use of whites.

Driving force behind the African wing of the movement is wealthy, Glasgow-educated Dr. J. S. Moroka, president general of the African National Congress. He is a champion of unity among the African people, at present divided tribally into many different groupings.

The other big figure behind the movement is Dr. Yusuf Dadoo, also a Glasgow-trained doctor of medicine. Dr. Dadoo was a member of the South African Communist Party until the party dissolved two years ago. He is president of the South African Indian Congress.

In a letter from Malan's private secretary, campaign leaders were told:

"Should you adhere to your expressed intention of embarking on a campaign of defiance and disobedience to the government . . . the government will make full use of the machinery at its disposal to quell any disturbances . . ."

Two of the most active Indian leaders, the brothers Yusuf and Ismail Cachalia, say that many African, Indian and colored communities in the Transvaal are alarmed at the government's plans.

Yusuf Cachalia, secretary of the African Indian Congress, said that many towns intend to use the act to move their African, Indian and colored communities from their present homes and businesses to other areas. For the Indians, this amounts to genocide, he said. Separated into purely Indian areas, remote from the areas occupied by other races, Indians would not be able to carry on their traditional commercial activities and there are no alternative means of livelihood for them.

Toy Industry Grows Rapidly

MONTREAL—(CP)—The Canadian toy industry has increased tenfold in the last decade and a half until today it is worth more than $30,000,000.

Manufacturers and buyers agree on one thing—the Canadian toy industry has attained a maturity and strength that make future growth a foregone conclusion.

More than 115 manufacturers displayed their toys for some 900 buyers at a recent show in Montreal. Buyers came from all parts of Canada, the United States, the United Kingdom, Sweden, South Africa, Venezuela, Cuba and British West Indies.

The Canadian-made toys included everything from blocks to balloons and from dolls to Hopalong Cassidy outfits.

All merchandise displayed at the show as Canadian-made, indicative of the development of Canadian toy manufacture in the last 15 years. In 1936 there were six manufacturers of toys in Canada while today there are more than 115.

Need Salesmanship

TORONTO, April 3 (CP) — Joseph A. Pardiff, newly-elected president of the Ontario Asociation of Radio and Appliance Dealers, said Wednesday that salesmanship, not production, built up the appliance industry into a $300,000,000-a-year business. He cautioned dealers at the closing meeting of the organization's annual convention to avoid costly price wars, unethical sales tactics and "fantastic" premiums.

Nothing Dull In Life Aboard Cayuga

ON BOARD H.M.C.S. CAYUGA IN THE FAR EAST, April 3 (CP). —Cayuga became a jack-of-all-trades on her most recent two-week patrol along the western coast of Korea.

Her crew saved lives, performed operations while the guns roared, fixed a landing craft and blew up an aircraft, carried mail and rice, and got in some skirmishing with the enemy in the meantime.

The destroyer was leading a task unit and was required to coordinate the ships in her own area and restrict the secret movements of enemy junks. She was kept busy at this, but still had time for the sidelines.

On one occasion, Cayuga provided a party to blow up a friendly aircraft forced down on the beaches of the island.

Three times she answered calls for medical aid for acute appendicitis cases. Medical calls also resulted in the treatment of Korean wounded, both afloat and ashore.

Two seriously wounded Koreans were evacuated to the ship one afternoon, one with a bullet wound through the chest and the other a bullet wound through the abdomen.

Immediate surgery was required for one and Surgeon-Lieut. D. V. Willoughby of Toronto performed the operation, with the assistance of Lieut. Del Lascoe, U.S.N., who had come over on request from a landing ship.

Never Dull Moment

The anesthetist was Ordnance Lieut. Frank Boyle of Ottawa who did a first-rate job on the briefest of preliminary instruction. He had never witnessed an operation before.

Just as the makeshift operating theatre in the captain's day cabin was starting its long night's work, the ship was called to give assistance to forces on a friendly island.

This complicated matters as the ship had to provide gunfire support. All steps were taken to provide the doctor with as much cooperation as possible but after more than three hours of exacting efforts the Korean died.

The next day the doctor accompanied by an armed party, went ashore to answer two calls. One Korean, with a sliver in his eye, needed to be taken to the ship for attention. This young lad was landed further down the coast after treatment. Plans were then made to transport the remaining seriously wounded Koreans to hospital in Japan.

Meanwhile, the navigation department was making 25 large tracings of a defended area for shore authorities and the ship was called on to repair a landing craft which served U.S. military personnel as their principal water transport.

CPO F. Wright of Victoria and PO G. Sutherland of Medicine Hat, Alta., were landed and in six hours of steady work completed the job. They were treated to a steak dinner by their American compatriots.

During the patrol, Cayuga carried mail, stores—including five tons of rice—and military personnel as well as providing sanctuary for the area air-sea rescue launch on one occasion.

Hire Other Trucks

HAMILTON, April 3 (CP) — City Engineer W. L. McFaul said Wednesday the city will hire other trucks to replace 50 members of the Hamilton Dump Truck Association who quit work on a project Tuesday when the city refused demands for an extra 25 cents an hour. The truckers seek $3 and $3.75 when mechanical loaders are used.

Report On Housing

TORONTO, April 3 (CP)—The National House Builders Association said Wednesday that one Canadian family in every seven now lives in a post-war house. The association added in a pamphlet, however, an estimated 500,000 families were without homes of their own at the beginning of this year.

Suffers Burns

GUELPH, April 3 (CP)—Jack Gill joined his wife in hospital Wednesday after suffering severe burns to his hands and back when their small home was destroyed by fire. Mrs. Gill had been in hospital for several days.

Special Funeral

TORONTO, April 3 (CP)—Tiny Big Canoe was buried Wednesday. Owned by Mr. and Mrs. Big-Canoe Ojibway Indian couple, Tiny was laid out in a white cloth-covered coffin, adorned with flowers and ribbons. At 19, the white French poodle was old for a dog—equivalent to about 133 in a human being.

Alberta Gas Plan Favored Legislature Told

TORONTO, April 3 (CP)—Alberta natural gas piped to Ontario may cost more than other fuels but is preferable to an uncertain supply from the United States, Mines Minister Gemmell told the Ontario Legislature on Wednesday.

The question was raised by opposition leader Farquhar Oliver, who said present evidence was that natural gas from the w could not compete with other fuels.

The Mines Minister, who spoke during passage of his department's budget estimates, said Alberta's gas would find a ready market in Ontario even without an industrial market.

His statement paralleled recent speeches in which he supported the project of a natural gas pipeline from Alberta to Eastern Canada. The Federal Board of Transport Commissioners now is studying pipeline applications.

Ontario's only alternate source of additional gas, Mr. Gemmell said, is the pipeline running from Texas to Michigan and there was no indication the United States would grant an export permit for a permanent supply to Ontario.

Although Alberta gas might be costlier, it could be supplied on a firm basis, preferable to an uncertain supply from the United States.

An announcement by acting Highways Minister Dunbar that the province will build a $2,455,000 bridge over the Humber river to break a traffic bottleneck at Toronto's western entrance brought praise from government members. But it opened the door for opposition criticism.

Arthur Reaume (L.-Essex North) and J. B. Salzberg (Lab.-Prof.-Toronto St. Andrew) criticized the system of highway grants to municipalities.

Mr. Reaume, Mayor of Windsor, said his city paid $150,000 a year in provincial gasoline taxes and motor licences to operate city-owned vehicles on city streets.

"You give us grants with one hand and take it away with another," he said.

Mr. Salzberg said the "gift" of the Humber river bridge would not help the tax problems of Toronto. He urged a division among municipalities of the province's income from gasoline taxes.

Mr. Dunbar also announced that the province will return to issuing steel licence plates for motor vehicles in 1953 after issuing windshield stickers this year because of the steel shortage.

In reply to a question by W. L. Houck (L.-Niagara Falls), Mr. Dunbar said the insignia of the crown will also return to licence plates after an absence of two years.

Premier Frost said $300,000 is to be provided in the coming year toward the unsatisfied judgments fund because the amount of money in the fund was running a "little behind" after a heavy run of claims against it. If the trend continues, he said, the 50 cents paid annually by each driver may have to be increased to $1 to make the fund actuarily sound.

The Unsatisfied Judgment Fund pays damage claims where the driver at fault has insufficient funds or cannot be found.

Mr. Houck urged action on two highway "bottlenecks" in the Niagara district—a bridge for the Burlington Beach section of the Queen Elizabeth Way and completion of the four-lane highway between Niagara Falls and Fort Erie.

Mr. Dunbar agreed that the Burlington Beach road is "the worst bottleneck in the province" but said a shortage of steel delayed building a bridge over the canal leading to Hamilton harbor. The four-lane highway between Niagara Falls and Fort Erie would not be completed at present, however, because the amount of traffic did not justify it.

Mr. Frost told the Legislature he is "hopeful" that the Federal government will agree to pay the province five per cent of the income tax collected in Ontario.

Ontario has the right to collect from taxpayers the five-per-cent share of the tax, the Premier said, but did not want to collect it.

However, the Federal government collected $20,000,000 which belong by right to the province, and had been asked "many times" to turn over Ontario's share in the form of a cheque.

"I'm satisfied that the measure of justice which is due to us will be put into effect," he said.

He spoke during introduction of a routine annual bill which suspends the operation of an existing statute requiring the province to collect an income tax.

The long-talked-of subject of a steel industry at Port Arthur and Fort William was raised by Mr. Salsberg, who urged creation of steel mills there to use iron ore from Steep Rock mines. He charged that control of Steep Rock production is in United States hands. Premier Frost denied this.

Mr. Frost said he expects a steel industry will develop at the lakehead, but said it is not yet warranted by the population density in the area. It would have to wait for further development of iron ore.

Mr. Gemmell said Ontario should not "shut the door" on iron-ore exports to the United States. Steep Rock Mines had an estimated reserve of 1,500,000,000 tons and Canada could not provide a market for all of it.

KILLER CAPTURED—Melville Wilkie, 42, who escaped from the Penetanguishene, Ont., Hospital for the Criminally Insane in 1950, was captured in Vancouver. He and his common-law wife, Shirley McBeth, 19, had lived quietly in the west coast city for the last year. As Andy McBeth he operated a small garage. Wilkie, who killed his wife and baby in Ontario 20 years ago, was returned under heavy escort to Toronto.

WHEAT IS PROMISING

Firemen were called out twice Wednesday night. At 6:12 p.m. they went to the home of Joseph Monteith, 505 Aylmer St., where there was a flooded oil burner. In mid-afternoon there was a false alarm turned in from the box at Brock and George Sts.

No Rapid Growth Planned For CGE

By JIM ENGLISH

TORONTO, April 3—Rumors that Peterborough's C.G.E. plant would grow within six or seven years to one employing about 9,000 were discounted today by officials of C.G.E.'s head office. Among the officials who scotched the rumor was Ian F. McRae, former Peterborough works manager, and now assistant to Kirk J. Corkery, vice-president in charge of planning and service.

Mr. McRae said that the C.G.E. had no desire to become "an economic club" in Peterborough.

"We don't want to upset the fine balance of diversity that the city has now," he said.

At the same time, Mr. McRae and others intimated that if Peterborough were to continue its stable growth, there is a possibility that the C.G.E. plant there would grow with the city.

At present, said Mr. McRae, the company controls as large an economic slice of the city as it wants to.

"We don't want to see Peterborough become another Oshawa or Windsor," he said. C.G.E. was interested in seeing that the company will never become the controlling industry in any community where it operates a plant.

As for rumors that the company had purchased the estate of Mayor Hugh F. Waddell, Mr. McRae said: "You'd better ask Mr. Waddell about that."

Fred Brant Now Recovered Destination House Refuge?

A new chapter in the tragic story of Fred Brant will begin in a few days. If he had a home to go to, he would probably have been released from hospital already. However, he is being kept on at Civic Hospital for another week or so until he is fully recovered from the effects of having part of both feet amputated as the result of frostbite.

The story of Brant's misfortune has touched off a public inquiry into the circumstances of his arrest and treatment by city police. The inquiry which was to have started April 1 has been postponed and will begin April 17, with Judge F. J. McRae of Whitby presiding.

No Special Shoes

Dr. Leslie Calvert who is attending Brant reports that he is coming along fine and will be able to walk without having to have special shoes. After the operations were performed on Brant's feet, removing all his toes, Dr. Calvert said that he would only require padding in the toes of ordinary shoes. Now, Dr. Calvert says that this will not be absolutely necessary but will enable him to walk better and will prevent the empty toes from turning up.

However, Brant's progress toward recovery brings up the question of what will happen to him when he is released?

Unless another home can be found for him, it looks as if Brant will have to return to the Victoria County Home for the Aged in Lindsay.

He was placed there once before, and worked for a time as a laborer on the farm, but ran away on March 30, 1950.

Major Harry Everitt of the Salcation Army who visits Brant regularly and will be administering the money collected by the Examiner through the Fred Brant Fund, is doing the best he can to find some place where Brant can be taken care of so he will not have to return to the old peoples' home. "I'm still looking around, hoping to find some place other than the House of Refuge," Major Everitt said today. I'm giving it a good try," he added, "but I have not located anything yet."

Only Place

Hon. W. A. Goodfellow, Minister of Welfare, said in a telephone interview from his Toronto office Tuesday, that the only place he knew of where Brant could be accommodated would be the House of Refuge.

Since no charge can be laid against Brant, and it is doubtful if he could be certified as mentally incompetent, Mr. Goodfellow said he cannot be committed to a provincial reform or mental institution. Mr. Goodfellow said it would appear that the House of Refuge would be "the proper place" for Brant "who is one of those unfortunate individuals who is likely to be a public charge all his life."

Under the Homes for the Aged Act as amended a couple of years ago, anyone such as Brant who is under 65, can only be committed by coming before a magistrate.

Unemployables such as Brant are the responsibility of the municipality where they have resided for the previous 12 months, Mr Goodfellow pointed out, so it is likely that Brant will be re-admitted to the Victoria County Home in Lindsay.

Limited Help

Brant appears to be a victim of the times as well as unfortunate circumstances. Around the farm at the old peoples' home, he will be able to do odd jobs and make himself useful. A few years ago, before farming became mechanized, Brant would have been a useful farm hand even though he is handicapped. Nowadays, with mechanical equipment, tractors, hay balers and milking machines in use on most farms, Mr. Goodfellow, himself a farmer near Codrington, commented that Brant would not be much use to a farmer.

Since last Tuesday, the Fred Brant Fund has grown by another $25 and now stands at $284.50. The $100 donated by D. A. McGillis is still the largest single donation to date, and The Examiner will be matching Mr. McGillis contribution by another $100 just before the fund is closed.

Contributions acknowledged up until March 25 totalled $259.50. Since then, the following contributions have been received.

OVERLAID

The prize egg of 1952 was brought into the Examiner newsroom today. It was a five-ouncer laid by a pullet owned by Lorne Hillis, a Smith township poultryman. An ordinary egg weighs about two ounces and a pullet usually lays a smaller egg than a full-grown hen. But the giant shell of this one measured 8¾ inches one way and 6¾ inches in circumference. Inside was a normal pullet egg. The pullet is reported resting—though not so comfortably.

Boy Hit By Car Thrown 50 Feet

A three-year-old boy, had a close brush with death Wednesday noon, when he was struck by a car on Monaghan Rd., near Patterson St.

Wesley Boucher, 564 Patterson St., is said to have dashed across Monaghan Rd., into the path of a southbound car. The driver stopped in time to avoid hitting him, but as the youngster continued across, he was hit by a car travelling north, driven by Miss Jean Young, 684 St. Mary's St.

Joseph McWilliams, the driver of the southbound car which narrowly missed the child, told police the boy was thrown between 50 and 75 feet after being struck.

Mr. McWilliams picked up the injured boy and took him to Civic Hospital. He was unconscious until today when his condition was described as much improved by hospital authorities. He is recovering from a severe concussion, but x-rays have failed to disclose any evidence of a skull fracture.

Miss Young, driver of the car which hit the boy said she was watching a boy riding on a bicycle ahead of her, and did not see the child until he ran in front of her car, just after she had passed the boy on the bicycle.

Mrs. P. J. Doris

Pallbearers at the funeral early today of Mrs. Patrick J. Doris of 280 King St. were Gerald Davis, Jack McCarney, Jack McDonald, John Casey, Stanley Richardson and Robert McDonald.

Mrs. Doris, a lifelong resident of Peterborough, died Monday night after a sudden heart attack. The funeral was from the Lane Funeral Home to St. Peter's Cathedral where requiem mass was celebrated by the Rev. J. F. McGuire. Father McGuire also said the graveside prayers.

Burial was in St. Peter's cemetery.

By-Pass Highway Planned Belleville To Kingston

Work will begin this year on a highway to by-pass the cities of Belleville and Kingston and thus eliminate the traffic bottlenecks there. Acting Highways Minister George Dunbar made this announcement on Wednesday, during the passage of the estimates in the legislature.

The divided highway, also known as the four-lane highway, will eventually link up Windsor and Montreal.

Work will start at Trenton and the highway will be constructed north of the present Highway 2. The route will generally follow that surveyed several years ago when the Toronto-to-Quebec boundary four-lane highway was planned.

The new highway should intersect Highway 14, about a mile north of Belleville, and it will continue east and join the present No. 2 at Gananoque.

There is a stretch of four-lane highway running east from Belleville for about five miles but this will not be utilized.

Peterborough drivers going to Toronto have the benefit of the improved highway only on the 33-mile stretch between Oshawa and Toronto.

Departmental officials say they have no word on paving of the stretch between Oshawa and Newcastle, now under construction. Grading has progressed as far as Curve Inn.

The layout of the route between Port Hope and Brighton is not yet settled. But it will probably be south of the present highway.

March Colder Snow, Rain Less

Despite the beliefs of some Peterborough citizens that March was warmer this year than last, weather recorder Jim Harrison reported today that the average temperature this year was 3.2 degrees lower than March 1951.

Mr. Harrison said today that the average mercury reading during March was 28.2 degrees, as compared with 31.4 last year.

The warm days during the last week of March, which ended in the month's high of 62 degrees on the 31st, probably led people to believe March warmer. Last year's high was 56 degrees on the 30th.

Winter's last snowfall and spring's first rain were both less this year than in 1951. Mr. Harrison reports a total precipitation of 1.79 inches, more than a half-inch less than last year.

The snow measured eight inches while spring's rain amounted to .99 inches. Last year there was 13.25 inches of snow and 1.09 inches of rain.

Building Permits Double Year Ago

Peterborough's building permits for the first quarter of this year amounted to $556,560, as compared with $244,582 for the first three months of last year. The increase is $311,978.

March permits totalled $253,380 of new construction values as against $95,030 in March 1951.

The new addition to Outboard Marine and Manufacturing Co plant accounted for $160,000, the biggest item in the March list Contractor is the Eastwood Construction Co.

Summary of the permits last month was: three garages, $1,250; five dwellings, $40,300; and 30 miscellaneous permits for $211,830. Total value $253,380.

Corresponding figures for March a year ago were: three garages, $900; five dwellings, $44,900 and 26 miscellaneous permits, $49,230. Total, $95,030.

At the end of March, Eastwood Construction Co. was awarded a $25,000 job of finishing the third floor of the nurses' residence at St. Joseph's Hospital.

CGE Reorganizes Company Five Divisions Created In Decentralization Move

James E. Girven Heads All Manufacturing Of Apparatus Division; J. L. McKeever Directs Enginering; Bogle Works Manager

By JIM ENGLISH

TORONTO, April 3. (Staff)—Broad decentralization of the Canadian General Electric Co. was announced here today on the eve of the company's 60th anniversary. The effect of this re-organization will be to split the company's operations into five divisions, each acting, so to speak, as a subsidiary company of the C.G.E. Briefly, each division will be under a general manager who will be in control of sales, distribution, production and labor problems in the plants under his jurisdiction.

The Peterborough plant, largest in the C.G.E. national chain of factories, will come under the managership of A. M. Doyle. He will be general manager of the apparatus division and will be responsible for the Davenport (Toronto) works, and the Quebec City factory as well.

James E. Girven, manager of the Peterborough works, has been named manager of the Apparatus division's manufacturing department, under Mr. Doyle.

Roy T. Bogle, assistant works manager at Peterborough, will be works manager in Peterborough.

Peterborough plant engineer, J. L. McKeever, has been promoted to manager of the engineering department of the Apparatus division. He will be responsible for directing all engineering functions of the Peterborough, Davenport and Quebec works.

This change in the top management of the Peterborough plant will make little difference in the number of people employed. Mr. Mr. Doyle said that perhaps within a year about 100 more would be added to handle the new divisional duties of sales distribution.

The long-term effect of this decentralization will show, C.G.E. president H. M. Turner expects, in greater flexibility for the company. Previously decisions on operations had required a meeting with a works manager present and representatives of the sales and apparatus departments of head office.

Such decisions will be made now by one man, the division general manager—without the delay that sometimes characterized previous decisions.

The five divisions and their general managers are like generals of separate armies in the field during a war. Each of the five divisions is like a large separate company which has to make a financial statement of its own and is responsible for policy and results. Every man from the general manager down is responsible for some part of success.

The five new generals are: A. M. Doyle, apparatus; J. S. Keenan, industrial products; E. H. Lindsay, lamps; R. M. Robinson, appliances; J: H. Smith, wholesale.

The four vice-presidents, with Mr. Turner, will act as a policy setting board and providers of mutual services to the five operating divisions. The vice-presidents are in charge of these services: planning (K. J. Corkery), law and corporation affairs (J. C. MacFarlane); public relations (C. A. Morrison); and accounting and finance (C. E. Hipp).

Speaking in parliamentary terms, the general managers constitute the party in power, while the vice-presidents are in effect the opposition. The vice-presidents scrutinize everything that is done and make suggestions, but

Harold A. Morrow Last Original Member Of Park Trust

At his death Tuesday, Harold A. Morrow was the last surviving member of the original trustees of the R. A. Morrow Memorial Park, the property on Lansdowne St., that chiefly serves as the site of Peterborough Exhibition.

Preceding him in death were: Roland Maxwell Glover, Roland Denne, William J. Thompson, and Frank Lindsay Bradburn.

Mr. Morrow remained a trustee, although latterly inactive, and with him by appointment are T. J. Carley, Q.C. and Herbert [illegible] Monday [illegible] lifetime and [illegible] surviving or continuing trustees after the decease of the Grantor shall appoint a successor to such trustees . . . every such new appointment to be made by deed, and thereupon such new trustee shall with the surviving and continuing trustees be a trustee of the said lands and premises upon the terms and trusts herein set out."

By the authority of that clause Mr. Bradburn and Mr. Carley were appointed trustees. They alone are left in charge of the trust.

Purpose of Bequest

The purpose of the late Mr. Morrow in granting use of the 30-acre park to the Exhibition appears in the first clause. It says that "whereas Robert Archibald Morrow (father of H. A. Morrow) leased to the Peterborough Industrial and Agricultural Society [illegible] that so long as the Peterborough Industrial Society continued in existence as such Agricultural Society and required the said lands for the purposes of such or similar annual exhibitions . . . that the said Peterborough Industrial Society should have the continued use of the said lands for the said purposes . . ."

An affecting filial spirit is noticed in the next clause: . . .

"And whereas the Grantor is a son of the late Robert Archibald Morrow and is the present owner of the said lands, and desires to comply with the intention of his father, and in order to carry out the same, has decided to convey the said lands to the Grantees (trustees) to be held by them and the survivors of them appointed as hereinafter provided upon the trusts hereinafter set forth . . ."

Maintained En Bloc

H. A. Morrow released the property to the trustees according to explicit conditions. The lands were to be known as the R. A. Morrow Memorial Park, and were to be maintained en bloc, that is as one undivided whole.

Another clause provides that if the Exhibition Society ceases to exist and does not use the property for the agricultural purposes [illegible] their use [illegible] for the benefit of the inhabitants of the city of Peterborough or such others as the council of the city may think proper.

If this option is not accepted by the city council, the trustees are directed to "hold the said lands upon trust for the Grantor, his heirs, executors, administrators and assigns."

The deed also provides for the use of any revenues for the maintenance of buildings and also the use of any insurance funds for rebuilding buildings that may be destroyed by fire.

'And the said trustees are hereby empowered with the approval of the Grantor during his lifetime and afterwards at their own discretion to make such rules and regulations and provisions for the control and management of the said lands as may be deemed advisable, but no such rule or regulation shall in any wise alter or invalidate the terms of the trusts herein contained."

Howe Statement Angers Unions

TORONTO, April 3 — (CP) — Representatives of organized labor Wednesday criticized a statement by Trade Minister Howe that Canada appears to have inflation under control but that demands of organized labor might "upset the applecart."

C. H. Millard, Canadian director of the United Steeworkers of America (C.I.O.-C.C.L.) said the Howe statement, made Tuesday, was a declaration of war against the steelworkers.

In an open letter to Mr. Howe, he said he would recommend that the union's committee reconsider its demands if the government would guarantee to roll back steel prices to the level of April, 1950.

George Burt, Canadian director of the United Auto Workers (C.I.O.-C.C.L.), said Mr. Howe's remarks placed the government squarely on the side of management.

John Langlett, research director of the United Packinghouse Workers (C.I.O.-C.C.L.), said it was not fair to expect labor to carry the whole blame for price increases. Labor made wage demands in 1950 but prices soared because industry reached for a high profit during the Korean war-inspired boom.

Nova Scotia Wants More Attention Paid To Fish

By The Canadian Press

The Nova Scotia legislature was told Wednesday that the federal government does not pay enough attention to fish.

J. E. Rutledge (L-Halifax), speaking in a debate on whether the federal government will help fishermen who suffered heavy storm damage this year, said: "The Dominion has never given fish the attention it should have."

He said there was "some sense" in a suggestion by C.C.F. leader Russell Cunningham that the province would be better off if it left fisheries administration entirely up to the federal government.

Industry Minister Wilfred Dauphinee said there is "nothing final" on possible federal aid.

Aid to fishermen was reported in the Newfoundland legislature. Welfare Minister H. L. Pottle said that able-bodied relief has dropped from more than $4,000,000 in 1949-50 to $753,000 in the first 10 months of 1951-52. Per capita payments were much larger in fishing districts than in industrial areas, he said.

In the Manitoba legislature both C.C.F. and Progressive Conservative leaders charged the government with trickery in introducing an "in offensive" amendment to sidetrack a resolution upon which it did not wish to vote.

A resolution requesting a Red River Valley emergency flood fund for future disasters was passed after an amendment deleted all mention of a flood fund.

QUEEN JULIANA of the Netherlands, and her husband, Prince Bernhard, wave farewell before entering their plane at Amsterdam yesterday for their trip to the United States and Canada. The Queen arrived in Washington Wednesday afternoon after an overnight stop at Gander Airport, Newfoundland.

London Critics Enthusiastic About New Play

LONDON, April 3 — (AP) — London critics gave an enthusiastic welcome today to a new play, "The Young Elizabeth," a drama dealing with Elizabeth I.

There were seven curtain calls after the play's opening at the New Theatre Wednesday night, and The Daily Herald called it "one of the year's most memorable first nights."

"American authors Jeanette Dowling and Francis Letton, husband and wife, have given London an overdue return of noble period drama in the best historical play since 'Richard of Bordeaux'," the Herald said.

"Elizabeth I is a hit in 1952," The Daily Graphic said. The Daily Telegraph called it a "solidly good play." The Times described it as a "deft piece of work."

The News Chronicle said, "That this is the work of two Americans is all to the good. It was, after all, an Englishman called Drinkwater who wrote the very best play ever written about Abraham Lincoln."

Lone dissent came from The Daily Express. Its critic complained the authors had Elizabeth reciting copybook phrases—"but the girl never talks. In every crisis a history-book phrase leaps to her lips."

Too Many Foreigners

LONDON, April 3—(AP)—A woman member of parliament said Wednesday foreigners in alarming numbers are coming to Britain for free false teeth, wigs and glasses issued under the national health program. Conservative Irene Ward said she would propose an amendment to stop give-aways to non-Britons. She was especially indignant about posters in seaports inviting tourists to come ashore and collect free false teeth.

Report Deficit

OTTAWA, April 3 (CP) — A deficit of $194,656 on 1951 operations was reported Wednesday by the National Harbors Board. The 1950 deficit was $787,650.

Long Engagement

PIKETBERG, South Africa — (CP)—After an engagement which lasted 40 years Willem Grobbelaar and Miss Hannie Smith finally got married. The farmer, now in his 60s, had promised his mother that he would not marry during her lifetime and she died only recently.

Mayor Charlotte Whitton Ruffled By Lamport Charge

OTTAWA, April 3—(CP)—Angered by charges that she treated Canada's new Governor-General shabbily, Ottawa's petite mayor Wednesday heaved a verbal broad axe at the big-shouldered chief magistrate of Toronto and bluntly told him to stay out of Ottawa's affairs.

Ottawa, Miss Whitton told Mayor Allan Lamport coolly, is anxious to show Rt. Hon. Vincent Massey, the Governor-General, all the respect that is due him as the Queen's representative, but it will be done only "in proper season."

That proper season, she added in a statement replying to criticism by Toronto's first citizen, is when the official period of mourning for the late King George VI ends—and not before.

The feud between the mayors was brewed by Mayor Lamport's statement in Toronto, charging that Mayor Whitton and Mayor Camillion Houde of Montreal have been "most remiss" in not showing courtesy to Mr. Massey since his elevation to high office.

"Toronto," he said in the Queen City, "was above that sort of thing."

"We are going to give the Governor-General a rousing reception Friday—not like Montreal and Ottawa, where he was treated most rudely by the mayors."

"We will show our loyalty to the symbol which the Governor-General represents," he added, "and leave all the political and individual prejudices out of it."

That stirred Mayor Whitton's fighting blood.

"The mayor of Ottawa," she said, "feels that it is as unnecessary for the mayor of Toronto to comment on any matter of Ottawa's municipal government as it would appear to be unseemly for the mayor of the capital to discuss Toronto business."

Then she went on to say a few more things.

The statement by the Toronto mayor was an "apparent disregard of the ordinary courtesies which should obtain between cities," and it was more regrettable, since "the honor and conduct of the mayor criticized appears to be under question."

Miss Whitton, an ardent Progressive Conservative, has been outspoken against the choice of a Canadian as a governor-general before Mr. Massey was appointed.

New Rhine Canal To Speed Shipping To The Ocean

THE HAGUE, The Netherlands —(Reuters)—The Rhine, age-old European waterway, will enter a new phase in its history May 21 when the new 45-mile-long Amsterdam-Rhine Canal is opened to traffic.

Built at a cost of $23,800,000, the canal will give the Rhine a fresh outlet at Amsterdam, enabling the heavy river traffic of inland Europe to link up with the North Sea and the oceans of the world more speedily than ever before.

The work now nearing completion includes what is claimed to be the world's largest inland lock, at Tiel, where the canal joins the upper Rhine. The lock is 1,170 feet long with spacious entrances and the 190-ton vertrical lock-gate can be raised in a few minutes, giving unusually-rapid clearance for vessels.

By eliminating the present tiresome journey through smaller canals, shipping time between Amsterdam and the Rhine proper will be reduced by half to about 20 hours. Vessels of up to 4,000 tons will be able to pass and overtake each other without risk.

The canal will make the Rhine navigable for large vessels up to Basle, Switzerland, 500 miles from Amsterdam. It will give Austria, Switzerland, Germany, Czechoslovakia, France, Belgium, Luxembourg and Hungary a shorter and more direct water route to the ocean.

The present link between Amsterdam and the sea is the 15-mile North Sea canal, finished in 1876, and ending at Ijmuiden in the world's largest sea-locks. That canal now is being widened to meet the expected increase of traffic created by the new Rhine link.

During 1951, about 100,000 inland ships of a total tonnage of 23,000,000 passed through the old canal near Amsterdam. When the new canal is in operation, this is expected to increase to more than 50,000,000 tons.

Suggest Piping Alberta Gas To Vancouver

EDMONTON, April 3—(CP)—Natural gas, the providential fuel that springs from the Alberta earth to heat homes cheaply and fire the furnaces of new factories, may soon be piped to Vancouver and the northwestern United States.

The Alberta Conservation board's eagerly-awaited report on six applications for export permits Wednesday recommended Westcoast Transmission Company Limited be permitted to pipe gas from Northern Alberta's Peace River region to the Pacific coast.

But the board rejected five other applications to tap for export the great gas fields of central and southern Alberta. It said all these will be needed to ensure cheap fuel for the province's large cities and their surrounding territories.

The provincial government is not bound by the board's recommendations. Premier E. C. Manning in tabling the report in the legislature gave no indication of the government's attitude but announced the House would have an opportunity to debate the report during the session expected to end a week from today.

Hitherto the government has frowned on any general export of gas until proven reserves are adequate to take care of Alberta's own needs during the second half of the century.

Must Have Market

The main argument for export has been that unless a market is found for available gas the huge exploration and development program in oil and gas will be slowed. Opponents of export argue that cheap fuel will bring more and more industry to the province.

The board, reporting after more than two years of study and hearings on which hopeful exporters spent an estimated $1,500,000 in assembling evidence, found that the only surplus at present available is 300,000,000,000 cubic feet in the Peace River district, a rich grain-farming area about 240 air miles northwest of Edmonton.

"No other gas now is estimated as surplus to the 1952-1981 requirements of the province," the board said tersely in turning down applications for permits to pipe gas eastward to other Canadian provinces and due south to the United States.

Westcoast Transmission plans to build a gas line from just east of the Alberta-B.C. border in the Peace River area.

It will cut down through the interior of British Columbia to a point near the B.C.-Washington boundary. There a spur will shoot gas into Vancouver, the main line continuing south into the United States.

Changes Possible In Queen's Oath

LONDON— (CP).— The Prime Ministers of all the Commonwealth countries are reported to have been consulted about possible changes in the oath to be administered to Queen Elizabeth II. at her coronation next year.

In the traditional coronation rubric the Queen is asked by the Archbishop of Canterbury: "Will you swear to govern the people of Great Britain, Ireland, and the Dominions thereto belonging, according to the statutes in Parliament agreed to?"

Constitutional authorities say some members of the Commonwealth may take objection to the phrase "the Dominions thereto belonging." They believe that if general agreement is reached to delete the phrase the Dominions may be referred to as "Realms," the style used in the Queen's proclamation.

Winnipeg Actress Plays Child Role In London Debut

LONDON, April 3 —(CP)—One girl's misfortune is another's bright opportunity — especially in show business.

So thought Winnipeg's Janet Reid when she stepped on stage at London's Criterion Theatre in place of 13-year-old Janette Scott, juvenile film star of "No Highway" and "No Place for Jennifer."

Under-study Janet moved right in when Janette, knocked down by a motor-driven wheel-chair, went to bed for a week, nursing a black eye and sundry bruises.

Miss Reid, an ash-blonde 21-year-old, changed blithely into short clothes to play the 12-year-old daughter in "Third Person," an American play on a post-war marriage crisis. The menace to married bliss in this emotional family play is provided by a wartime friend who comes to live with the family and is, for the daughter, the elder brother she never had.

Four-foot-eleven Janet, who weighs only 95 pounds, and is four inches shorter than Janet, habitually plays parts aged from 12 to 17 years, so the youthful role didn't prove too hard for her.

"I look so young I just can't play older roles," she said in an interview.

No Stranger To Role

With her hair in plaits finished by big bows, Janet was thrilled by her west end debut—but it held no terrors. She had already played the part on five successive Sundays, when the play opened at London's Arts Theatre with leading stars Roger Livesay and Ursula Jeans. Juvenile Janette was not allowed, under law to play on Sunday.

Since then the play has moved to the Criterion, a larger theatre in Piccadilly Circus. The only cast change involved the leading man. Livesey's part has been taken by Sebastian Shaw, an actor well known in Britain and the United States.

Miss Reid came to London with her mother four years ago to study at the Royal Academy of Dramatic Art. She has since spent one year in repertory, made two provincial tours and may well play the West End until its closes April 5.

After that? Janet hopes this lucky break will tell in her favor next time she's on the look-out for a job. "But I'm determined to be free most of May," she said. Her father, Leonard Reid of (214 Hertford Boulevard) Winnipeg, will be over then on holiday.

Janet's mother, who is English, now has a house in the Chelsea district, which Janet visits often.

PLAYS YOUNG GIRL — Janet Reid, 21-year-old Winnipegger, got her opportunity for a leading role in the successful London play, "No Place for Jennifer," when 13-year-old Janette Scott was injured. Miss Reid, four feet eleven and weighing only 95 pounds, had no difficulty playing the role of a young girl of 12.

The diminutive Canadian, however, prefers her own bachelor flat nearer town, which she shares with two other girls.

Easter Program Westwood W.M.S.

WESTWOOD, April 3 (ENS)—An Easter program; the theme "Easter gave us the Bible" was enjoyed on Wednesday afternoon by members of St. Andrew's Woman's Missionary Society. The meeting, held at the home of Mrs. Rendle Dickson, was well attended.

Mrs. William Breckenridge was the leader of program composed of scripture passages, Easter hymns and a commentary by the leader. Those assisting were Mrs. Rendle Dickson, Mrs. Clayton Brackenridge, Mrs. E. W. Sargent and Rev. N. Cole. A poem "As You Are" from Roy Lobb's (a former Asphodel resident) book "Where Are You Going?" was a fitting number, read by the leader.

During the business discussion it was announced by the president Mrs. C. Brackenridge, that Mrs. Wood of Toronto would be guest speaker at the Sunday afternoon service on April 27, in the interests of the new United Church Training School.

Mrs. Dickson served lunch and a social time was enjoyed.

Exchange Teachers Pleased With Life In Britain

LONDON—(CP) — Canadians were among the 69 exchange teachers from all parts of the Commonwealth who recently attended a reception here given by the League of the British Commonwealth and Empire.

The teachers have been working in British schools for the last year and all said they want to take some part of this country back home with them.

"If I could take something back to Canada it would be the English spring," said Elsie Beauchamp of Ottawa. She also confessed she had her eye on "an English tailor-made suit and your lovely woollens and cashmeres."

Florence Deacon of Winnipeg, said she was most impressed with the graciousness of the British way of life.

"How you do it under the physical discomforts beats me," said Miss Deacon. "You are perfect hosts and are 100 per cent more friendly than you are represented abroad."

Margaret Salkeld of British Columbia described the British educational system as "simply magnificent." She found British children more docile and less demanding than Canadian children.

Noise Easy To Take

However, Margaret Carlyle of Ottawa said that she had learned to endure all kinds of noise from children "and like it."

Miss Laura Wilkie of Ottawa, had discovered that some British children thought Canada was peopled by bears. At her school at Keighley, Yorkshire, she found she couldn't make the schoolchildren believe that the racoon coat she wears wasn't a bear she had shot.

Blue-eyed Jean MacKenzie of Halifax, has found since living in Britain that Canadians are the most clannish people on earth. She recently visited Greenock where Scottis settlers started out to build a new life in her home town of Pictou, N.S.

Anne Frazer of Toronto, who is teaching at Turf Academy, Aberdeenshire, said that since she has been in Britain she has learned to talk Scottish. Her only fear is that she might lose her Canadian accent.

Cashmere sweaters and Scottish tweeds are the chief things she wants to take back to Canada.

DOROTHY DIX

Let Mother Alone To Shop Wherever She Pleases

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: Although she is the best in the world, my mother-in-law presents a problem. My husband and I live with her and we are all very happy. This is the trouble. Although we (including mother) have charge accounts at the best stores in town, she likes to go shopping in the cheaper stores. There the clerks call her "mom" and it is very embarrassing to me when I'm with her. We never even call her "mom" at home; she's always been "mother" to my husband and me.

Am I right in trying to persuade her to shop in the better stores where she is treated with respect, or should I let her patronize the places she likes, where she is addressed so familiarly? I had a particularly annoying experience this morning while in a store with her, which is why I simply had to write this letter. My mother-in-law has been kinder to me than anyone in my own family and I wouldn't want to hurt her for the world, yet I feel she is doing herself an injustice by not expecting more courtesy when she is shopping.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: While I can readily understand how upsetting this situation is to a young, dignified bride, I cannot recommend your changing it. Your mother-in-law is entitled to shop where and how she likes, under the circumstances given. You'd have more cause for complaint if she patronized the ultra-expensive shops in town and sent the charge account bills sky-rocketing.

Likes Informality

Perhaps it is the very warmth and informality of the treatment she receives in her favorite stores that appeals to her. She may be tired of being treated with the formality accorded her at home, and the shopping tours provide a welcome change. Do you give her the warm affection that she craves? Respect and admiration she has aplenty, I can see that, but perhaps she wants something more. Why not stop addressing her stiffly as "mother" and use the warmer "mom"?

You so obviously want to please this woman who has been so kind and good to you that I have no hesitation in urging you to leave her alone in this one oddity, and let her shop where she pleases. There may be many things in her mind that are more satisfied in a simple store atmosphere than in an elegant salon. The aloofness of super-trained saleslades simply doesn't appeal to her nature, and it's foolish to force it on her. If you are embarrassed by being with her on a shopping trip, why not let her go alone? If you must go, don't take it too seriously. Look for bargains yourself, and if a salesman addresses you informally, pass it off with a gracious smile. Perhaps your kindness may lighten the salesman's day just as his cheeriness lightens your mother-in-law's.

Don't upset a pleasant household by continuing to worry over this matter. It's really a trifling situation and is best left alone. You're lucky to have a good mother-in-law and she's fortunate to have so fine a daughter-in-law. You just need a little more understanding, and that, of course, comes best with passing years.

DEAR MISS DIX: I'd like you to print this as a word of encouragement to other young women. I'm 31 years old, with a son 14 by my first marriage. After my first husband and I separated, I did lots of things I shouldn't have done. Instead of someone trying to help me, everyone talked about me until I began to hate everyone. I started to go with a nice man, but someone told him things about me that were true—and some that weren't—so we broke off. Then I met another man, and before anyone else had a chance to say something, I told him everything I had done. A month later we were married. Now I am a good mother and wife, with a husband who is trying to help me get my good name back. He is wonderful to me.

MRS. M. B.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Bravo to you both! Your youthful mistakes were certainly not altogether your own fault. With the proper home atmosphere and family life, you wouldn't have made them in the first place. A firm resolve to overcome the handicap of a tragic youth, and the aid of your fine husband, will soon erase from your mind, and from the minds of others, all memory of the past. Look to the future and, with the lessons you have learned, give your husband and children the advantages of a happy home that you so sorely missed.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: I am a freshman in high school and have a crush on a boy in my class. He's very good looking, but extremely conceited. I'm considered pretty and am told I have a good personality. While he is the serious type, I'm somewhat silly. I have lots of other dates but like this boy more than any other. How can I make him take more notice of me?

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Why bother with a boy who is so conceited he thinks he's conferring a favor on a girl to look at her? Since you have lots of other boy friends, find one who'll be more suited to your own personality. A boy who's too serious will soon bore you, while he'll find your silliness most irritating. Don't waste time mooning over so unsuitable — and unattainable — a prospect.

Women Needed In Public Affairs – Cote

OTTAWA, April 3 — (CP). — Postmaster-General Cote, the rookie of the Cabinet, told the National Federation of Liberal Women Wednesday that a well-governed country is like a well-kept house—"it requires the active colaboration of women in the settlement of public affairs."

Women, he said, have "an innate right to take a hand, according to their abilities, in the administration of this world."

Collaboration of man and woman in the political field "is bound to lead to a more human and flexible concept of society."

But though all women should take an interest in public affairs, "it must be admited that as yet very few of them are prepared to make the sacrifices required by a more active participation in the study of political questions."

Mr. Cote cited Queen Elizabeth as an inspiring example of a woman combining family and public duty.

FRIENDS AND RELATIVES of Mr. and Mrs. Robert F. Thorn of Ops township recently honored them on the occasion of their 50th wedding anniversary. Mr. and Mrs. Thorn, who before her marriage was Lina May Strong, were both born in Cavan township. They have taken a keen interest in community affairs and have always been prominent in the work of the church.—(See Story Page 12).

A brief on the Lucy Morrison memorial fund for education was read by the regent. She also announced the Provincial Chapter convention at Hamilton.

A sewing meeting is to be held at Mrs. D. E. Bell's home, 505 King St., on Monday, April 7th.

MAJOR BENNETT CHAPTER

After the bringing forth of the flag of Major Bennett Chapter I.O.D.E., by Miss Louise Spriggs, standard bearer, Tuesday night in the green room of the Y.W.C.A., Mrs. Donald Murray, regent, declared the meeting open for transaction of business.

Mrs. T. Gaskel, convener of services at home and abroad, reported 10 food boxes sent overseas. A sewing meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Jack Skitch, 478 Albertus St., on April 21st.

Miss Spriggs gave an excellent report on the Municipal Chapter annual meeting. Mrs. Ken Gibson, co-convener for the recent interior decorating display thanked all her assistants.

Mrs. H. Hamley, convener of the chapter's raffle tickets on a floor polisher, reported it will be drawn for at the chapter party in May. Mrs. R. Clark, co-convener of the party reported plans well under way. Mrs. D. Clarke, who is convener of the fall tea to be held October 18th at the Y.W.C.A. ... plans alre... taking ... present the ... at the provincial annual meeting in Hamilton on April 23, 24 and 25, 1952.

In absence of Mrs. H. Fallis, world affairs convener, Mrs. Jack Skitch read an interesting paper on "Canada has a new Governor General,' prepared by Mrs. Margaret McGuire of Janette Scott Chapter.

The chapter scrap book was on display for members to view prior to it being sent to Hamilton to be judged with scrap books sent in by I.O.D.E. Chapters of Ontario. The book was compiled by Mrs. Harry James, and Miss June N Fraser, and showed they had spent many hours gathering material on I.O.D.E. work as well as in arranging it in chronological order.

Mrs. Frank Patterson and her social committee served tea and little cakes.

Miss M. Haddow Speaks To Mark St. W.A.

Mark St. Church W. A. meeting in the parlor Tuesday evening was opened with prayer by president Mrs. F. Edworthy, followed with singing of "When I Survey the Wondrous Cross."

Miss Mary Haddow, missionary nurse to Bolivia now on furlough, told the ladies of her work on the field, where, under most difficult and primitive conditions, the missionaries relieve troubles of body and soul for the enslaved and unchristian races under their care. She made a definite plea for more prayer by the people at home that the work may continue to bear fruit.

Mrs. A. Dixon who introduced the speaker was also in charge of the worship period. Scripture was read by Mrs. E. Lillico. Mrs. S. Mitchell sang two solo selections with Mrs. E. DeNure accompanying at the piano.

Mrs. F. Samis reported on the national executive meeting of the United Church Training School campaign this week, giving some of the ways and means plans of other cities in this coast to coast enterprise. Mrs. Edworthy reminded of the W. A. Presbyterial to be held in Wesley Church on May 8th and dealt with numerous other business items.

CONFEDERATION SCHOOL

The fathers of Confederation School celebrated their annual "father's night" Tuesday at the school, proving once again what can be accomplished through community spirit. They received, entertained and served the mothers and were completely responsible for a very enjoyable evening.

President Mrs. L. Monk opened the program with words of welcome and secretary Mrs. C. Porter read minutes and called the roll. Dut to date being April 1st, a new twist was added and the attendance prize given to the class with the lowest representation of parents, Mr. J. Nicholls' class was winner. In absence of the treasurer Mrs. E. Kiff, the report was read by Mrs. H. Sutton.

Master of ceremonies for the evening was Mr. Wm. McFarlane and he established an atmosphere of informality which lasted throughout.

The Rev. H. D. McCormack was guest speaker and gave an address that was both humorous and thought provoking. He emphasized the necessity of having the "double tracks" of religious and scholastic education running paralell.

A sing song led by the MC, with Mr. J. Abraham at the piano, gave the parents a chance to hear and take part in songs their children learn at camp.

A quartette under the direction of Mr. J. Branson sang "All through the night," "Long, long ago" and "When you wore a tulip". Those taking part were Messrs. E. Poole, J. Branson, J. Murphy and M. McLarnon. Mr. Poole and Mr. Murphy were soloists of the evening, Mr. Poole singing "Rose of Tralie" and Mr. Murphy, "Asleep in the deep".

Some of the mothers were starred in an unusual version of a spelling bee. Several very amusing impromptu skits were organized by Mr. McFarlane.

An "enchanting" display of fall hats, last fall, modelled by the men was presented with Mr. J. Wineburg judged the "model of the moment." A quizz contest with Mr. Clarence Porter as sole contestant, without a chance, was another enjoyable bit of nonsense.

Mr. George Cobb concluded the program, with his renditions of the ever popular "Albert and the Lion" and "The Battle of Trafalgar". He was then requested to do "The Battle of Hastings."

Mr. Bert Pitchford thanked the guest speaker and the artists.

After the meeting had been reluctantly adjourned, refreshments were served by the fathers—each wearing an attractive apron, borrowed of course from his wife. The food was donated by the mothers of grades one and five and the morning kindergarten and arranged by Mrs. J. Waldie, social convener, assisted by Mrs. D. Abraham and Mrs. E. Carl.

King George Easter Tea Attracts Crowd 300 Ladies

The Easter Tea of the King George Home and School Association on Wednesday afternoon drew a crowd estimated at more than 300 ladies. They were received by the president Mrs. Carlyle Ferguson and Mrs. F. Darwin and Mrs. H. Morrison, and during the tea hours pupils of Grade 8 entertained with piano music.

Tea room decoration was in the Easter colors with a crystal basket of mauve stocks and yellow daffodils centring the lovely hand-crocheted cloth, and mauve and yellow candles in the flanking candalabrae.

Bazaar tables were arranged in the first floor hall and presented a variety of goods for sale. A "white elephant" and gift selection was first to catch the eye and Mrs. C. English and Mrs. W. Baggs were in charge. Next was a table of second hand books where interesting titles enticed buyers. Mrs. A. Townsend and Mrs. F. Ford made the sales.

The bake table was very nicely stocked and it was in charge of Mrs. D. Smith, Mrs. M. McKeiver, Mrs. A. Aitchison, Mrs. H. Walsh, Mrs. W. H. Powell and Mrs. Albert Steen. The home-made candy was for sale by Mrs. Garnet Davis, Mrs. E. Bradshaw, Mrs. Cecil Campbell and Mrs. Jack Rogers.

Mrs. K. Armstrong, general convener of the tea, had invited as tea pourers Mrs. Paige Rowell and Mrs. Blake Bell, members of the Board of Education, and Mrs. P. D. Windrim and Mrs. D. Munro representing the inspection and teaching staff.

The servers were Mrs. W. Ward, Mrs. E. Morgan, Mrs. Roy Sanderson, Mrs. E. S. Humphrey, Mrs. B. Duder, Mrs. A. Pilley, Mrs. G. F. Neillands, Mrs. Muriel Cox, Mrs. George Nokes, Mrs. Harold Milburn, Mrs. Arthur Ebbs and Mrs. Ralph Howland.

Mrs. A. Roberts was in charge of fixing the plates and making the tea with Mrs. E. J. Bentley, Mrs. Robert Hayden and Mrs. F. Hollings assisting.

Treasurer of the association, Mrs. D. Worboy, was taking the tickets.

Mrs. Clarence Payne, program convener, took charge of the devotional period. The topic was "Christian living in the church." The scripture lesson was read by Mrs. Harold Payne. The roll call was answered by a verse containing the words "Seek ye." It was decided to purchase an Easter lily for Easter Sunday. Mrs. Harold Ray gave a reading. The meeting closed with hymn and the benediction. A delicious lunch was served by Mrs. Ida Darling, Mrs. Arthur Payne and Mrs. Roland Payne.

MARY MOORE SAYS:

Stout Heart Required To Leave Ties

In such a mild and gently smiling way she told us how they had come finally to their decision to emigrate to Canada.

An English widow with one unmarried daughter who is her only companion, they had come to Canada twice before but had to return because of trouble and death in the families still left "over home." But now there was nothing to keep them from finding a new life in Canada—"but it does take a stout heart, you know, to leave all of your old ties."

A stout heart indeed!

I asked her what she wanted to do most when she was settled. She said "As soon as the stove is wired I'm going to have a roast of lamb, even if there's just Jacquie and me."

I was so glad she wasn't going to have the shock of paying $1.35 per pound for it, which was what it was costing the folks who could afford it last spring. I see it is being quoted around 85 cents per pound this week.

Since lamb has come down to within reaching distance of "us peasants" wouldn't it be a good idea to run over the method of roasting it to perfection? My new little English friend wants these instructions too, for she claims she won't "be able to cope right off with the new electric stove they have hire-purchased." If I deal with roast lamb this week I will be free to give you my favorite Glazed Ham method next week about this time—just before Easter.

The Perfect Roast Leg of Lamb

Trust your butcher to select the lamb leg. Don't shy away from one with a little excess fat — it must have a good layer of fat to be choice.

Wipe it with a damp cloth — don't wash it. Have mixed ½ cup flour, 2 teaspoons salt and ½ teaspoon each pepper and paprika. Pat this into all of the surfaces of the meat. Do it over a piece of wax paper so you may scoop up any that falls off and pat it in again. Place skin side down, cut side up on rack in open roasting pan. Roast at 325 deg. Fahr. throughout — allowing 35 minutes per pound for "medium done" which means 3 hours less 5 minutes for a 5-pound leg. If you want it well done allow 40 minutes per pound. This dries the lamb out too much for most people who like it moist when it is sliced and cold.

Do not add water, do not cover, do not sear at high temperature—just roast it steadily, unbasted, at 325 deg. Fahr. It will be perfectly golden and beautiful and roasted right to the bone.

NOTE—If readers would like the rather tricky instructions for Crown roast of lamb all they have to do is write to me asking for it.

Marinated Lamb Shoulder Chops

(These you can afford). Buy 6 shoulder lamb chops preferably 1 inch or more thick. Shred 1 carrot, chop 1 onion, crumple 1 bay leaf, and to them add ½ teaspoon pepper, ¼ cup olive oil or other salad oil, ¼ cup vinegar, the juice of ½ lemon. Mix all these and spread in bottom of flat dish. Place the chops over them pushing them down into this "marinade." Turn them over every half hour for 3 hours, being careful that much of the oil and vinegar lies on them when they are turned. Remove from marinade, wipe them dry, slash fat edge, dust with salt and pepper and rub with oil. Sear on both sides under extremely hot broiler, then decrease heat and broil about 3 inches from burner for ½ hour. Place in hot dish with cover, dot each chop with butter and place in oven, covered, for ½ hour at 300. Heat through and strain marinade and pass in small pitcher.

Trained Leaders Needed For Expanding Industry

MONTREAL (CP).—Canadian industry is suffering from a serious lack of trained leaders, says Mrs. Alma Carbonneau, one of the few Canadian women business organizers and trainers of personnel.

"Industry is developing at such a pace that we are faced with a shortage of qualified leaders to train the mass of workers," she says.

Training programs, she says, would result in an increased national output but only a few of the bigger Canadian firms have established them for their personnel.

"Training is not preaching or criticizing, or trying to regulate or change anyone," says Mrs. Carbonneau. "Rather, it is a means of increasing production and quality of work, as well as improving human relations and decreasing operation costs in industry."

Mrs. Carbonneau entered the business organization field last year with 20 years of experience behind her. Professionally she is known as a "business analyst and counsellor."

Her job consists of "moving in" on the firm, uncovering the source of trouble, talking with employers and employees, and then making recommendations.

Training is one of Mrs. Carbonneau's favorite topics. She sees it as a solution to many ailments in present-day industry.

"Training is re-orienting peoples' thinking. It is urging people to learn more, so more can be created, accomplished and produced," she says.

BROWN—In loving memory of my dear husband, Leonard C. Brown, who passed away April 3rd, 1951.
Loving and kind in all his ways,
Upright and just to the end of his days,
Sincere and kind in heart and mind,
What a beautiful memory he left behind.
—Ever remembered by his wife Isabella.

GRAHAM — In loving memory of a dear husband and father, Vernon Graham, who passed away two years ago, April3, 1950.
God called him home it was his will,
But in our hearts we love him still
His memory is as dear today
As in the hour he passed away.
We often sit and think of him
When we are all alone,
For memory is the only thing
That grief can call its own.
Some day we hope to meet again
Some day we know not when
To clasp his hand in the better land
Never to part again.
—Ever remembered by his loving wife Minnie and family.

PEARCY—In loving memory of our son Robert, who passed away one year ago, April 3.
God knew that he was suffering,
That the hills were hard to climb,
So He closed his weay eyelids
And whispered: "Peace be thine."
Away in the beautiful hills of God,
By the valley of rest so fair,
Some time, some day, we know not when,
We will meet our loved one there.
—Ever remembered by mother, father, Dougie and Patsy.

6—In Memoriam

WARREN—In loving memory of my dear husband, Fred, who passed away suddenly April 3, 1950.
The month of April is here again,
To me the saddest of all the year.
The blow was hard, the shock severe,
To part with one I loved so dear.
Beautiful memories are all I have left
Of a wonderful husband I shall never forget.

U.S. Steel Strike Affects Canada

OTTAWA, April 3.— (CP) — A segment of the expanding Canadian economy may be suddenly cut off from steel supplies if the threatening United States steel strike goes into effect, Defence Production officials said today.

They disclosed that the U.S. has agreed to allocate to Canada some 500,000 tons of steel, including manufactured components, in the three-month April-June period, and said that part of this allocation may be jeopardized by a U.S. steel strike.

"The steel situation in Canada has been improving," said one official; "but there will be a tighter steel situation if the strike goes through."

Canada normally depends on the U.S. for about 1,000,000 ingot tons of steel, in addition to tons of manufactured component parts, to augment her own production.

They were commenting on a Washington dispatch which said that about 700,000 U.S. steel workers are ready for a walkout April 9, if requested pay boosts are not obtained by them. The U.S. government has threatened the steel industry if the strike is not averted.

Earl Dies At 68 Illness Short

OAKHAM, Rutland, England, April 3—(AP)—The Ninth Earl Fitzwilliam, whose title was the prize in one of the costliest court actions in England's history, died today after a short illness.

The 68-year-old peer's title and a fortune of about £1,000,000 go—as a result of the trial a year ago—to his 47-year-old second cousin, Capt. W. T. G. W. (Tom) Fitzwilliam.

George J. (Toby) Fitzwilliam, brother of Tom, and plaintiff in the lawsuit, gets nothing.

Toby brought the suit an an attempt to prove that his mother and father were married before his birth in 1888. This would have made him their legitimate son and hence heir to the title and fortune.

The court ruled that while there was evidence his mother and father lived together before Toby was born, they did not get married until after he came.

The father of the two brothers was George Fitzwilliam, blue-blooded member of the Royal Horse Guards. Their mother was an actress, Evelyn Lister. The court said the marriage was delayed because the liaison was frowned upon by Fitzwilliam's father.

Company In Itself

Each division will be like a company in itself. It may sell products that are not produced in its own plants, but to do this will rent space in the factory of another division where such a product is made.

For example, wire and cable will continue to be manufactured in Peterborough, but it will be sold by the industrial products division. The same holds true for small motors.

Each of the four producing divisions will have its own engineering, production, marketing, accounting, and other functions, and each will be self-sustaining. The whole division, too, is self-sustaining with a nationwide distributing organization for the company's products.

Mr. Doyle was born in Manitoba and educated at the University of Manitoba, graduating with a B.Sc. in electrical engineering. He took the company's test course in Peterborough, held a number of appointments in apparatus field, and was named manager of the apparatus division, Toronto district, in 1947, becoming manager of the apparatus department in 1949. He will continue to make his home in Toronto, he expects.

As manager of manufacturing, Mr. Girven will be responsible for all manufacturing activities in the three plants of the apparatus group — Peterborough, Davenport and Quebec.

It was 29 years ago that Mr. Girven was indentured as a materials laboratory technician apprentice.

Graduated In 1927

Mr. Girven graduated from his apprenticeship in 1927, and soon became interested in wire production. He became secretary of the Wire and Cable Committee while still in the materials laboratory, and later developed into the plant's principal wire and cable engineer.

In 1930, he transferred to the general engineering section of the engineering department as wire and cable engineer. Eight years later, the wire department was reorganized and Mr. Girven was promoted to engineer in charge of that department in October, 1938.

Because of his capable supervision of the wire department, Mr. Girven

25,000 Letters Bearing Easter Seals

Approximately 25,000 letters containing Easter Seals will be mailed by Saturday to residents of Peterborough city and county.

Graham Ferguson, chairman of the Easter Seal committee of the Rotary Club said today that the campaign objective has been set at $12,000.

These envelopes contain a sheet of 100 seals, a campaign letter explaining what the money will be used for and a return envelope.

Wednesday night about 75 Rotarians and Rotary-Anns held an "enveloping bee" and prepared all these Easter seal letters for mailing.

The money received in the campaign will be used to give aid to crippled children in the city and county. This aid includes medical treatment, braces, artificial limbs, and other appliances as well as physical, occupational and speech therapies, transportation to educational and medical centres. The aim of the Rotary Club is that each of these children in the county will have the opportunity to live as normal lives as possible.

Mr. Ferguson said that the campaign will officially end Easter Sunday.

The remaining members of the Easter Seal committee are: Ford Warren, treasurer; Jim Thompson, Clare Collins, Al Clarks, Arnold Steele, Tom Lillico, Bill Browne, W. A. McEvoy and J. K. Hughes.

Finds Suspicions.

The C. C. F. member said he had never seen a group approach government members before they considered a bill. Another thing that made him "suspicious" was that a brief from the O. F. I. A. had been addressed to Ray Myers (PC-Waterloo South) as chairman of the committee several days before the committee had elected him chairman.

"All of that is suspicious," Mr. Grummett said.

Land Minister Scott said the association likely presumed Mr. Myers was chairman because he had been asked to study the bill before hand as the only government member lawyer on the committee, and was present when the O. F. I. A. presented its brief to the minister.

"I feel very heatedly about this," Mr. Wardrope said; continuing his objection. "Mr. Grummett's statement was a political sounding board for the C. C. F. leader."

Mr. Grummett said he had meant no reflection on the Lands and Forest Department. He was backing up the minister in the bill. "When I saw attempts to torpedo the committee, I was angry."

Mr. Wardrope said that Northern Ontario members were quite rightly interested in the bill, which consolidates eight present statutes dealing with forest operations.

Vital Industry

"The forest industry is the economic life of our community," he said. Northern members were only acting properly in trying to get all the information possible on the bill.

Mr. Wardrope was supported by Clare Maple-Doram (P.C.—Fort William) who said the committee should not be held responsible for Mr. Grummett's charge.

The O.F.I.A. had often presented briefs to the government, h said, and nothing should be said which would cause the association to stop giving help and advice.

Mr. Scott agreed that the O.F.I.A. had been "very co-operative."

The heated discussion was calmed somewhat by O. F. Villeneuve (P.C.—Glengarry), who said "let's not act like school children."

W. G. Noden (P.C.—Rainy River) said the bill was important, and on the whole a good bill. "If something is not right, we can amend it next year."

Says Moscow Parley More Propaganda

LONDON, April 3 —(Reuters)—Morgan Phillips, secretary of the British Labor party today told Socialist leaders from 15 countries including Canada, that the International Economic Conference in Moscow is just "another outlet for Cominform propaganda."

"As such it can make no real contribution to better international understanding," he said in an address to the opening session of a three-day meeting of the Socialist international executive council.

"Experience has shown us that it would be a mistake for any of us in the free work to take Soviet intentions on their face value."

More than 500 businessmen and women and economists from most countries in the world are attending the Moscow conference which opened today. Announced aim of the meeting is to break down trade barriers between Communist and non-Communist countries.

Searchers Find Boot Of Missing Trapper

WALKERTON, April 3 (CP)—Searchers Wednesday found a rubber boot similar to footwear worn by Alvin Hetzler, 41-year-old trapper missing from his home at Cargill since early Tuesday.

He is feared drowned in the flood-swollen waters of the Teeswater river at Cargill, seven miles north of here.

About 30 men searched until dark Wednesday night, split into two parties that dragged the river and tramped the banks.

Hetzler is believed to have fallen into the river when he attempted to cross the Cargill dam catwalk while going to collect his muskrat traps.

The rubber boot was found about half a mile downstream from the dam. The search is continuing today.

Fighting Costs 5 Billion

WASHINGTON, April 3 (CP)—The war in Korea will cost the United States more than $5,000,000,000 in the next three months if the fighting continues at the present rate. The Defence Department Wednesday told a Congressional committee studying the new budget that the army's part will cost $4,376,697,000; the navy $375,000,000 and the air force $305,000,000.

Liable For Damages

FRANKFURT, Germany, April 3 (AP)—A U.S. high commission court ruled Wednesday that West German states are liable for damages to confiscated Jewish property while they were under control of the Nazi party. Julius Schoenman, whose building in Frankfurt was turned into a Nazi political headquarters, was ordered compensated for its burning by the Nazis just before the city's occupation by American troops.

Socialists Protest Peers In Cabinet

LONDON, April 3 — (AP) — Socialists protested in the Commons Wednesday that there are too many blue-bloods in Prime Minister Churchill's cabinet.

"The Prime Minister's emphasis on a peerage government might well explain Britain's missing meat," quipped Socialist Geoffrey De Freitas. "Might there be a secret order by the Prime Minis- that he will consider only a 'baron of beef' in his cabinet?"

A baron of beef is an English term used to describe a particular cut of meat.

The House rejected De Freitas' bill requiring that at least two-thirds of the cabinet posts be filled by members of the Commons. The vote was 246 to 208.

Ten Commons members now hold posts in Churchill's 17-member Conservative cabinet. The other seven are peers.

There were only three peers in former Prime Minister Attlee's cabinet.

M.P.'s Very Much Worried At McCormick Criticism

OTTAWA, April 3 — (CP). — Gordon Higgins (PC-St. John's East) said Wednesday that Col. Robert McCormick, publisher of the Chicago Tribune, obtains his newsprint from Canada and "then proceeds to slander Canada, Great Britain and the United Nations."

Mr. Higgins spoke in the Commons during a foreign-affairs debate, completing a speech interrupted Tuesday night.

He said Col. McCormick recently described Newfoundlanders as half-wits because they were so inbred. The attack came after Col. McCormick's plane was held up for 4 [illegible] at Gander, Nfld., for customs inspection.

Mr. Higgins said Canadians should not be asked to put up with such attacks simply because Col. McCormick has great holdings at Thorold, Ont., and Baie Comeau, Que.

Mr. Higgins said:

"I deal with this person McCormick because the papers he owns have a wide circulation, and he has access to a radio program which he uses regularly."

His Own Fault

"Merely because this Mr. McCormick has to put up with an inconvenience resulting from his own failure to take proper precautions at the airport at which he was to arrive, we have to put up with this diatribe against the citizens of our newest province."

"I agree with the statement made some time ago by the Minister of Trade and Commerce C. D. Howe . . . that Canadians must not be hewers of wood and drawers of water for any foreign power."

J. L. Gibson (Ind.-Comox-Alberni): "Not from that ape, anyway."

George Murray (L.-Caribou): "You are giving him some very good free advertising."

Mr. Higgins: "If he wants this kind of advertising, he can have it."

"His holdings now in Casada consist, I believe, of some 7,000 square miles, an area equal to the States of Connecticut and Delaware. His two mills have a newsprint capacity of 950 tons a day."

Julian Ferguson (PC-Simcoe North): "We would be better off if it was six feet by two."

Mr. Murray: "I consider that this is free advertising for McCormick. I do not think this is interesting."

Mr. Higgins: "I am sorry I cannot agree with the honorable member; he probably has not been insulted, but we have . . he said during the war that Canada would not repay the United States for lend-lease equipment. He forgot to add, of course, that Canada had never accepted lend-lease equipment."

"Feeling" History

MONTREAL—(CP)—A group of citizens "felt" their way back through Canadian history to Indian times in a visit to the Redpath Museum at McGill. Cases of Indian relics and other historic material were opened so the 28 members of the Montreal Association for Blind could feel the objects.

Basic Wardrobe Helps Star To Win Honors

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD, April 3—(AP)—How does a gal get on the best-dressed lists? Irene Dunne offers a few hints.

The film queen was recently named one of the best-dressed women in the United States and has won similar honors in the past.

How does she do it?

"Frankly, I'm not sure," she said. "I don't think my press agent has enough pull to get me on the lists, so it couldn't be because of influence. But I don't spend a fortune on clothes and I don't go in for all the latest styles.

"Perhaps it is because of the way I buy clothes. I don't buy many, but what I do buy are of the best. When I look for an outfit, I don't want one that will merely last for a season. I make sure the clothes are well made and I generally pick things along classic lines. It's not unusual for my things to last six or eight years.

Nothing Extreme

"If styles change and hems go up, I buy a dress that fits the current style. But I still have a basic wardrobe which can be worn in any year, regardless of the change of style.

"I think you'll find that the women who consistently make the best-dressed lists do not follow the latest styles. For instance, I'm sure you would never find the Duchess of Windsor and Mrs. William Paley buying the same dress."

Miss Dunne pointed out that she brought only three dresses back from a recent trip to Paris, whereas some clothes horses might return with trunks full. She believes American designers have a better understanding of the clothing needs for U.S. women. On the other hand, she admires the Parisian enthusiasm for dress design.

"It's exciting to be in Paris when the style showings are going on," she remarked. "The French have a verve for new fashions that is lacking here."

BETHANY, April 3—(ENS)—The funeral service of the late Mrs. Alfred Driver, who died in Phoenix, Arizona, was held in Bethany on Tuesday from the home of her son, Leonard Driver. The Rev. James Hampson, of the United Church, of which Mrs. Driver had been a particularly active member, had charge of the service. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery.

Eight grandchildren, Maurice and Robert Driver, Mrs. Verne Mulligan, all of Bethany; Catharine Dawkins, Phoenix, Ariz., Donald and Gordon Driver, New Toronto; Miss Gladys Driver and Mrs. Douglas Bruce, Toronto; and one great - granddaughter, Dianne Mulligan, Bethany.

Her husband predeceased her three years ago.

Approve New School

ACTON, April 3 (CP) — Town council Tuesday night approved the building of a new high school at an approximate cost of $418,000. Acton is in North Halton high school district, and the building is part of a plan which, if approved by four of five municipalities, would give a similar school at Georgetown and an $80,000 gymnasium addition to Milton.

Turn Down Offer

SARNIA, April 3 (CP)— City council Wednesday night turned down an offer from Polymer Corporation for $100,000 in lieu of taxes and decided to ask for $150,000. Last year Polymer paid $45,000 in lieu of taxes. Council based its request for $150,000 on taxes paid by Imperial Oil Company to that amount.

Fears Western Unity

MONTREAL, April 3 (CP) — External Affairs Minister Pearson Wednesday said Russia fears the unity of the western powers more than it does their strength. Addressing the Women's Canadian Club, Mr. Pearson said Russia has displayed this fear by trying to undermine the efforts of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

Britain's Electors Not Too Interested, Vote On 62 County Councils

By ALAN HARVEY,
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, April 3 —(CP)—Britain opens a new round of local elections this week against the usual background of professional anxiety and public indifference.

Polling starts today in 62 county councils across Britain and although the analysts will look closely at the results, the number of voters actually taking part may suggest that the electors don't really care what party heads the local town hall.

The most interesting contest is in London, where 2,500,000 ratepayers are eligible to elect 129 councillors to the largest local government authority in the world. The local County Council rules 117 of the 700 square miles of greater London, spends approximately £60,000,000 a year, has a staff of 64,000, is in the housing and education business in a big way and in general broods anonymously over the daily life of Londoners.

Despite all these activities—its 400,000 children at school, its fire brigade, its rent roll of nearly £6,000,000—the council conducts its elections every three years without much public excitement. The total poll in 1949 was only 40.7 per cent., and that was the second highest since before the First World War.

The fact is that except for a few zealots, there seems to be a dreary dullness about local politics which persists despite all efforts to represent these elections as miniature of the national struggle between Conservatives and Labor. The only people really interested seem to be the would-be councillors which is surprising since the job is unpaid.

Long Labor Rule

Socialists have ruled the L.C.C. since 1934. The issue was closest in 1949 when a near-dead heat resulted. A Conservative candidate named Joan Haggie lost a seat in Fulham West by 22 votes and with it went her party's chances of gaining control at county hall.

Miss Haggie, a diamond sorter, is running again this year in the same riding.

Although local issues such as housing and education will probably prove decisive, a clear-cut victory for Labor would probably be regarded as a sign of resentment against the Conservative government's recent "incentive" budget, which Labor is portraying as bearing heavily on the working classes.

On the other hand, a Conservative triumph would not only hearten the party but would provide a more sympathetic climate for the housing drive launched by the national government. It is the local councils which carry out the directives of the Ministry of Housing.

Of the 61 other councils across Britain, all but eight are Conservative-controlled. Some 1,700 councillors have been returned unopposed, most of them Conservatives, and about 6,000 candidates are contesting the remaining seats.

Wealthy Bachelors

CAPETOWN —(CP)—A current report by the income tax office shows South Africa has 57 bachelors and spinsters earning £10,000 or more yearly in taxable income. Seven unmarried persons were listed with more than £30,000 a year. This was after payment of taxes, which take roughly two-thirds of the income at high levels.

$175,000 FIRE IN CHARLOTTE ST. BLOCK

Six Children Perish In N.B. Fire

Old Converted Barn Flaming Pyre As Family Asleep

CAMPBELLTON, N.B., April 4. (CP)—Six children were burned to death early today when a converted barn erupted in flames in this small lumbering town on the New Brunswick north shore.

The mother and a small son fled just before the building went up in flames.

The fire started about 8 a.m. E.S.T. while the family was sleeping. It was destroyed before firefighting equipment could reach the scene.

The dead, children of Mr. and Mrs. Odina Lavoie, are:

Georgette, 18; Eveline, 15; Odina, Jr., 11; Patricia, 9; Rosaline, 7; and Gisele, 3.

Early reports said the mother was awakened by her son Raymond as the blaze was gaining headway.

As she threw open the door, a sudden blast of air turned the building into a funeral pyre

Searing flames prevented her from returning into the house to rescue the other children. The father was at work in a lumber mill at the time.

Suffering Shock

Mrs. Lavoie was taken to hospital in this town of some 5,000 residents. She was suffering severe shock and cuts and burns.

Raymond, 17, suffered only minor injuries and shock. However, because of his condition, he was unable to tell police or fire officials a coherent story of the tragedy.

The home was located in Hillside street, a slum area in the northern section of Campbellton.

The family lived in two small rooms, whose walls were covered with old newspapers against the cold. The mother was sleeping with the six younger children in one of the rooms when the blaze broke out.

Burning coal from the stove, which set fire to the newspapers, is believed to have caused the blaze.

The dwelling was badly gutted but still stood after the blaze. The bodies were not badly charred, indicating the victims died from gases.

EIGHT APARTMENTS were destroyed by flames and two stores below in the Braund building on Charlotte St. were damaged by smoke and water in a fire Thursday night that reminded downtown spectators of the George St. fire of last May 19 in which three firemen and one volunteer lost their lives. When this night picture was taken showing the general street scene in front of the smouldering building, firemen had just about quelled the flames with 12 lines of hose.—(Examiner Staff Photo, by Nick Nickels)

20 People Left Homeless As 2nd Floor Apartments Destroyed In Braund Building

By DAVE WHITE

A $175,000 fire that started late Thursday afternoon on Charlotte St. for more than four hours stubbornly balked the efforts of firefighters to bring it under control. By 8:30 p.m., when the firefighters finally got the upper hand, the flames had completely gutted the rear of the Braund block that contained the Hollywood Cafe and the Buehler Bros. groceteria. Eight second-storey apartments were destroyed and the 20 occupants made homeless. Nobody was injured though seven people who were occupying apartments when the fire broke out had to evacuate hurriedly. Few of them were able to save any of their possessions.

Apartment dwellers in the Braund block now homeless are: Mr. and Mrs. Mike Ivanov and their three daughters, Ann, 9, and Joan and Jean, both 23 months; Mrs. L. Barringer; Mr. and Mrs. John Nisbett and their six-weeks-old daughter, Deborah; Mr. and Mrs. Ted Everett and their son, Ted, Jr., 6; Mr. and Mrs. Harry Fry; Mr. and Mrs. Bob Murray; Mr. and Mrs. Bob McCallum and their daughter, Carole; and Madame May Merriam who has a hairdressing establishment further up Charlotte St.

Driven Out

Acrid smoke and heat drove two other families from the Anthony Block. They were Mr. and Mrs. George Novotny and their five-year-old son and Mr. and Mrs. S. W. Burrows and their four-year-old daughter.

Both the Novotnys and the Burrows were guests of the McGillis Hotel overnight. Their apartments are only slightly smoke damaged.

Altogether 26 people had to find other overnight accommodation.

The only casualty during the 5½-hour fire was Mrs. Frances McCoy of 218½ Charlotte St. Mrs. McCoy, a 44-year-old saleslady in the Lady Ellis Shop, next door to the Hollywood Cafe, fainted from the excitement and was taken to St. Joseph's Hospital where she was given a sedative. She was released early today.

The cause of the fire has not been determined.

Mrs. John Nisbett, who occupied the apartment directly above the back kitchen of the Hollywood said the flames sprang up the outside of the building, from a wooden garbage chute that is suspended just under her second-storey balcony.

Henry Yee, a Hollywood cook, felt the heat as he was working in the kitchen about the same time as he was warned of the fire by Joe McGuire who was bringing in some dirty dishes from the nearby Modern Recreation Centre.

"I guess I was the first to see it," said Mr. McGuire. "I told them about it in the cafe and pointed out the flames to Henry when I came into the kitchen."

Mr. Yee said the flames seemed to be flowing down from the upstairs balcony. And they were sucked rapidly into the back

20 PEOPLE (Continued on Page 2)

Woman On Bus Drops Dead On Way Home

Mrs. Foster Eggleston, 64, of R.R. 5 Peterborough, died instantly from a heart seizure after boarding a bus to return to her home at Springville Thursday evening.

The bus was being loaded at the Colonial Coach Lines terminal and was due to pull out at 5:15. Mrs. Eggleston, who had been shopping during the afternoon, took her seat a few minutes ahead of time.

A passenger saw her stand up, as if to leave, then she slumped forward, striking her head as she fell.

The bus driver, John O'Brien, was upstairs at the time, and the passenger who saw Mrs. Eggleston collapse rushed into the terminal to obtain assistance. Dr Ralph Clark was called and he pronounced Mrs. Eggleston dead.

At that time, she had still not been identified, and she was taken to Nisbett's Funeral Home. Constables Douglas Farthing and Arthur Beardsmore of the city police were called, and Mrs. Eggleston's identity was learned from identification papers in her purse.

Coroner Dr. Herbert N. Young said she died from a heart attack and that no inquest will be necessary. Mrs. Eggleston is said to have suffered from a chronic heart condition for several years.

Ex-Cavan Resident

A resident of Cavan township until she moved to Springville eight years ago, Mrs. Eggleston's husband died seven years ago.

She was born in Emily township and before her marriage was the former Elizabeth Windrem, daughter of the late George Windrem and Margaret Fitch.

Mrs. Eggleston is survived by three sons and two daughters: Mrs. David Tully (Genevieve) of Peterborough; Mrs. T. M. Dale (Elizabeth) of Cooksville; Foster Eggleston of North Monaghan, Ivan Eggleston of Cavan and Arthur of Smith township.

Also surviving are one sister, Mrs. Lewis Burns (Annie) of Breckin and three brothers: Gilbert and Elmer Windrem of Peterborough; Walter of Cavan, William of Omeme and Albert of Moose Jaw, Saskatchewan.

She was a member of Springville United Church.

Funeral services will be held from the Nesbitt funeral home on Saturday at 2 p.m. with the Rev. A. E. Larke of Springville United Church officiating.

Interment will be in Mount Pleasant cemetery.

Cabinet Willing To Give Sask. More Seats

OTTAWA, April 4 (CP)—The cabinet indicated today it would be willing to accept a measure which would cut Saskatchewan's impending loss of commons' seats to three from five.

It would also accept increase to two from one in the number of seats for the Yukon and Northwest Territories. The two steps would raise the total number of Commons seats to 265 from 262.

Under teh suggested measure, Nova Scotia would still lose one seat and Manitoba two.

Prime Minister St. Laurent indicated the government would be willing to accept the addition of the three seats in placing on the order paper notice of a resolution to establish a 37-man committee to study redistribution of Commons' seats in the light of the 1951 census figures.

Cabinet Will Agree

In effect he said if the committee recommends them the cabinet will concur.

The notice appeared to be a partial triumph for Saskatchewan members who have been battling the prospect of losing five of their 20 seats.

The way it would be done is by putting a qualified floor under existing numbers of seats. No province would be allowed to lose more than 15 per cent of its seats at any one of the 10-year redistributions.

This is the way the order put it:

The committee will consider "whether the said readjustment should be made in strict accord with the rules presently set out in the British North America Acts 1867 to 1951."

Dollar Reserves Hit New Crisis

LONDON, April 4 (AP)—Britain disclosed today the gold and dollar reserves which pay for her life-giving trade have sunk below crisis level with a loss of $635,000,000 in the first three months of this year.

Since the war Britain has considered a $2,000,000,000 reserve rock bottom for financial safety. Today, Chancellor of the Exchequer R. A. Butler told the House of Commons, the reserves are down to $1,700,000,000.

That's the lowest level since a similar crisis forced a 30-per-cent devaluation of the pound on Sept. 18, 1949. The rapid decline of the reserves has cut them by more than half since they stood at $3,800,000,000 nine months ago.

Butler found some grounds for hope, however, that the crisis is beginning to ease. He told of a turning tide in March and said "toward the end of the month our reserves actually rose."

He did not disclose what low mark they reached before the rise began.

The slump of the gold and dollar reserves—which finances the world trade of the entire sterling area—coincided with a severe slump in British exports.

Since the Conservative party won power last October, Butler has imposed three sets of import cuts totalling $1,680,000,000 a year in an effort to make purchases abroad fit Britain's slendering purse by the end of this year.

The effect of the cuts "is now being felt and should be felt as the weeks and months go by," Butler said, but added:

"The position remains serious. A great mistake would be made if it were thought that we had got through to safe ground."

Labor Party Hands Churchill Big Setback In UK Elections

LONDON, April 4. (AP)—The Labor party handed Prime Minister Churchill's Conservatives a sharp setback in the triennial English county council elections, returns showed today. Worst drubbing suffered by the Conservatives in Thursday's voting came in London county, where Labor won 92 out of the 129 seats and Churchill's followers only 37. In the old council they held 64 apiece. The odd man was a Liberal.

Conservative leaders described the vote as an inevitable reaction from Churchill's victory in the national election last October.

"Our opponents have exploited the difficulties of the nation for which they themselves are largely responsible," said Henry Brooke, leader of the London Council Conservatives.

Herbert Morrison, former Foreign Minister, who directed the Labor party's campaign, was delighted.

"Undoubtedly the national political situation has contributed," he said. "The Conservatives at the general election made a lot of false promises and implications—red meat, more food and lower prices."

Labor won 11 seats in Buckinghamshire and gained 10 others in Middlesex. Both countries lie near London. In Cumberland, far to the north, Labor gained four, and in Northamptonshire, centre of the shoe-making industry, Labor gained 14 seats.

The results of the last county elections three years ago showed a decided Conservative swing. The Labor party, which has controlled the London County Counvil for 18 years, finished in a 64-64 tie wi ththe Conservatives them. A Liberal held the only other seat.

This year Labor won the Liberal seat and gnawed deep into the Conservative holdings.

Communists also suffered in Thursday's voting. The Red stronghold in London's South Hackney district polled only 3,910 Communist votes, compared with 10,212 in 1949.

Asks U.S. Dollar Taken At Par

OTTAWA, April 4 (CP)—Senator Gordon Isnor (L., Nova Scotia) urged in the Senate Thursday Canadian Government assurances that U.S. tourists visiting Canada this summer will have their dollars accepted at par.

Senator W. D. Euler (L., Ontario) said "no government could do that." Senator Isnor was suggesting that Canadian business take the loss, which would increase if the premium on the Canadian dollar increased still more over the U.S. dollar.

Senator Isnor said the rise of the Canadian dollar to a premium of 2 per cent over the U.S. dollar had been cited as a threat to Canada's U.S. tourist trade which hit $286,000,000 last year. The government should give immediate attention to the matter.

Senator Euler said he was opposed to Senator Isnor's suggestion. Canadians had to pay a premium on the U.S. dollar previously. Now that the U.S. dollar was at a discount, Americans should be prepared to take the consequences.

Truman Praises Work Of NATO

WASHINGTON, April 4—(AP)—President Truman said today the North Atlantic Treaty is "steadily increasing our chances of preventing another World War."

He struck this optimistic note at ceremonies commemorating the third anniversary of the signing of the pact by the original 12 countries, Greece and Turkey have since joined the organization.

"If we can continue the hard, sustained effort we have begun, we can clearly foresee the time when our common military defences will be strong enough to defend us against any attack," Truman said.

His talks followed one by Queen Juliana of the Netherlands, now paying a state visit here with her husband, Prince Bernhard.

"The North Atlantic treaty is an instrument of peace," Truman said in obvious reply to Soviet propaganda against the organization.

He continued:

"In the past, many of the North Atlantic treaty countries at one time or another have tried to find peace through neutrality and isolation. It didn't work. It never will work."

During the three years the N.A.T.O. countries had begun to develop "sizeable defence forces, trained and equipped to spring into action against aggression."

At the same time the countries were working to build "solid social and economic foundations."

"Our aim is to remove the threat of war and thus set free the forces of human progress and advancement," he said.

Reinforcements Arrive For Canadian Troops

TOKYO, April 4 (CP)—Reinforcements for Canada's troops in Korea arrived at Yokohama today.

The new arrivals, who left Seattle March 19, include elements of the Royal Canadian Regiment and of the Royal 22nd Regiment, which will go directly to Korea.

Other troops aboard will be held in reserve in Japan to await a call for Korean duty.

Two Trains Collide

HAVRE, Mont., April 4 (AP)—A pair of Great Northern mail trains smashed together on the single track mainline east of here early today and at least three persons died when the engines "exploded together."

Officials here reported three crew members were killed, two others and a supervisory employee were injured.

An official said 14-car eastbound train No. 28 "drifted" out of a siding onto the mainline at the east end of Fort Belknap 36 miles east of here, and was struck headon by westbound No. 27, an 18-car train rolling along on a straight stretch of track.

Five Communists Sent To Prison

BALTIMORE, Md., April 4 —(AP)—Five Communists and a party lawyer today were sentenced to prison terms of two to five years and each fined $1,000 for conspiring to advocate violent overthrow of the United States government.

Philip Frankfeld, Moscow-trained district party leader, received the maximum penal sentence of five years.

Other sentences:

Regina Frankfeld, Frankfeld's wife, two years; George A. Meyers, former textile worker and Frankfeld's successor as district chairman, four years; Leroy H. Wood, party chairman of the District of Columbia, Maurice L. Braverman and Mrs. Dorothy Rose Blumberg, three years each.

The maximum sentence is five years in prison and $10,000 fine.

The defendants contended they were innocent of the conspiracy charge. Each except Braverman reaffirmed his faith in the Communist party and expressed belief the conviction will be upset "either by higher courts or by the final judge, the people."

They were the first party "second teamers" to be convicted under the Smith Act, the same law under which the top 11 Communist leaders in the U.S. were sent to prison after a long trial in New York.

Report Boyd Giving Police Full Confession

TORONTO, April 4 (CP)—Edwin Alonzo Boyd, alleged to be the master-mind of a Toronto bank robbery gang, was reported today to be giving police full confessions in an effort to save himself from a long prison term.

Some confessions were said to be so long and involved that police will need months to check the details.

Bancroft Lad, 3 Drowns In Lake

BANCROFT, April 4 (ENS). — Reginald Wallace Cooney, three-and-a-half, was drowned in Gunter Lake about 25 miles southeast of Bancroft on Thursday afternoon. He fell through the thin ice while playing and drowned in water about six feet deep.

About 12:45 p.m. he was seen around the house. A short time later his mother could not locate him.

Two members of a search party who combed the immediately locality, Harry Ham and Charles Trimble, thought they recognized the body at the bottom of the lake.

About 2:30 p.m. Constable J. C. Hawkins of Bancroft Detachment O.P.P. and a neighbor, Charles Mallory, recovered his body, using grappling irons. Coroner Dr. O. W. Anderson was present at the scene.

Reginald was the son of Mr. and Mrs. P. R. Cooney. No inquest will be held.

Judge Excuses Jury Foreman

NEW YORK, April 4 (AP) — The foreman of the jury trying gambler Frank Costello for contempt of the Senate said today, after she was abruptly excused from service, that she had been accused of agreeing to accept a payoff.

"It is ridiculous," said Mrs. Helen Louise Mason, the jury foreman.

Shortly after court opened today Judge Sylvester Ryan announced that two jurors had been removed from the jury. He gave no explanation.

But Mrs. Mason, a Negro, said later that she was called into the judge's chambers, and that the judge told her he had been informed she "had been approached" and had agreed to accept money.

Agree To Cut Cheese Exports

OTTAWA, April 4 —(AP)—New Zealand, the world's greatest dairy exporter, has agreed to a drastic reduction in cheese exports to Canada in a move to help the Canadian producers fight a shrinking market for cheddar, it was learned today.

New Zealand had firm contracts to ship about 3,600,000 pounds of cheese to Canadian importers in the next few weeks. But only about 800,000 pounds will be shipped, on voluntary agreement by New Zealand and the importers.

Canadian cheese producers have been hit by Britain's decision not to buy cheese from Canada this year because of a lack of dollars and by United States import controls which allow only a trickling of Canadian cheese into the American market.

Action on New Zealand cheese followed vigorous protests by the Canadian producers that the New Zealand product was coming into Canada at a price lower than Canadian cheese and undermining the Canadian market.

Child Goes To Sleep Blind Wakes Up, Can See Again

VANCOUVER, April 4 (CP).—When two-year-old Cora DeZwarts took her afternoon nap a few days ago she was blind, apparently for life.

When she awakened, two hours later, she could see again.

Cora's story was told Thursday by her guardian, Mrs. Sid Hardy of Chilliwack, B. C., and confirmed by the child's doctor.

The girl lost her sight in a train-car crash Feb. 23 which killed her Dutch-immigrant parents and two brothers.

Cora was taken to hospital where she lingered in a coma for four weeks. Doctors found she had been blinded. They suspected a skull fracture had either cut or pinched the optic nerve.

A short time ago she returned to the farm where her father had worked to be cared for by Mrs. Hardy.

Then, as Mrs. Hardy tells it:

"I put Cora to bed as usual just after her lunch Friday. She was no different than she had been ever since she came home from hospital.

"She showed no signs of recognizing anything. . .

"She woke up two hours later, sat up and looked around and said 'Hardy,' which is the name she called me by when the family lived on our farm."

The Hardys plan to adopt Cora and her surviving brother and sister, Peter 9, and 13-year-old Anja.

Dr. Frank Turnbull, one of three specialists who treated her, confirmed that the child had regained her sight, but said: "I wouldn't want to say anything on the case until I examine the girl again."

4 Die, 100 Hurt In Explosion

DUSSELDORF, Germany, April 4 (Reuters)—Four persons were killed and about 100 injured when a chlorine gas container exploded in a cellulose plant at Walsum, in the Ruhr, during the night.

Many of the injured were reported on the danger list, most of them poisoned by chlorine gas.

The explosion occurred at 2 a.m. (local time). Police and firemen wearing gas masks rushed to the factory. Police warned the 22,000 population of Walsum of "acute danger from chlorine gas," but gave an all clear at 5:20 a.m.

Cause of the explosion was not immediately determined. The gas was used to bleach cellulose for the production of paper, one of the staple industries of the town.

Truman Fires McGrath In Clean-Up Explosion

WASHINGTON, April 4 (AP)—The Truman administration's we-can - clean - up-the- government - ourselves program — organized two months ago—has blown sky high.

A federal judge from Philadelphia, 56-year-old James P. McGranary, was called in today to serve as U.S. Attorney-General and try to pick up the pieces of the anti-corruption drive.

McGranary—if confirmed by the Senate, and it looks as if he will be—comes to Washington in the slippery aftermath of the biggest governmental explosion to rock the capital since President Truman's middle-of-the-night dismissal of Gen. MacArthur.

The known casualties:

J. Howard McGrath, attorney-general. McGrath plummeted out of the cabinet of his old friend Harry Truman yesterday with a few tears, a statement that he was paying "the penalty" for doing his duty as he saw it, and a tip to his successor: "Bring asbestos pants with you."

Newbold Morris, Republican "Cleanup Chief" for the administration. McGrath fired Morris with rare abruptness just before going onto the greased skids himself. Morris fed pigeons from a park bench for a while, then averred he was fired because he wouldn't turn his corruption-in-government investigation into a whitewash.

The man at the top, Harry Truman, announced the "resignation" of McGrath, his 1948 campaign manager, at a turbulent press conference. Truman said McGranary would take over the clean-up-the - government program.

Truman said McGrath resigned voluntarily. But this turned out to be a polite gesture toward a longtime political ally.

McGrath himself made it plain he'd been forced out for disagreeing with Truman over the conduct of Morris' cleanup campaign.

New Steel Talks Under Way

Last-Minute Effort Made To Avert Threatened Strike

NEW YORK, April 4—(AP)—The government succeeded in obtaining new steel wage talks today in a desperate attempt to stave off a strike formally set for Wednesday by 700,000 steelworkers.

Negotiators for the "big six" steel firms and the United Steelworkers Union (C.I.O.) agreed to an appeal by John R. Steelman, acting mobilization director, to stand by in New York for a new try toward a settlement.

Steelman said he is sending Nathan Feinsinger, chairman of the Wage Stabilization Board, to New York immediately.

A conference between the management and union negotiators collapsed Thursday and the union followed it up by mailing strike notices to the steel firms and union locals.

Put In Mail

The union insisted the industry comply with the wage and other proposals by the Wage Stabilization Board. The industry balked on the ground that the government refused to authorize steel-price increases sufficient to meet increased labor costs entailed in the W.S.B. recommendations.

In Cleveland, Walter Reuther's 1,000,000 United Auto Workers (C.I.O.) pledged "100-per-cent support" to the steelworkers. Reuther did not elaborate.

It appeared that only a government seizure or a presidential order for a Taft-Hartley law injunction could stave off a strike in mills that produce 95 per cent of the country's steel.

The industry said it would resist a seizure. The union said it would fight any move for an injunction. The Taft-Hartley law provides for an 80-day, no-strike injunction under national emergency provisions.

Cooling Furnaces

Wage negotiations between the industry and the union collapsed Thursday promptly an industry spokesman, John A. Stephens of U.S. Steel, said companies would begin "cooling their furnaces" today.

And union president Philip Murray said late Thursday night that a strike notice already had been drafted, ready to be mailed this morning to the companies and union locals. He said he thought a strike would "definitely take place."

Under an agreement with wage stabilization board chairman Nathan P. Feinsinger, the union is committed to give a 96-hour notice to the industry before a strike.

This period gives mills time to cool furnaces and guard against permanent damage to equipment.

The wage talks fell through after the union turned down a company offer to boost wages nine cents an hour and provide fringe benefits.

Market Prices Dip On Toronto Exchange

TORONTO, April 4 — (CP). — Support weakened steadily today as early afternoon stock market prices dipped.

Western oils opened slightly higher after yesterday's gain, but sharp selling within the first hour depressed a broad list of issues. Losses, however, were mostly moderate.

Total volume for the first three hours 3,164,000 shares.

Western oil losses ranged from pennies to the ⅞ dip of Canada Southern, Harman, Fargo, Del Rio, Anglo-Canadian, Britalta, Central-Leduc, and Royalite were among issues lower.

Refining oils and manufacturing companies led industrials downward with a scattered list of fractional declines. Agricultures and papers also weakened while constructions and retail stores held gains and losses in balance.

Base Metals drifted lower as Consolidated Smelters, Hudson Bay, Noranda, Quebec Copper, Steep Rock, and United Asbestos eased. Barvue and Normetal edged upward.

Senior golds made little headway. Secondary issues— Campbell, East Malartic, and Conwest —slipped steadily.

Mrs. C. Mahoney

Requiem mass for Mrs. Catherine Mahoney, who died Tuesday, was said Thursday by the Rev. Leo Cleary at Immaculate Conception church.

In the sanctuary were Msgr. J. V. McAuley, the Rev. James Greenan, and the Rev. Joseph O'Sullivan.

Pallbearers were: Leo Whibbs, Thomas Whibbs, Charles Coughlin, Fred Cleary, Leo Shaughnessy, and Gus O'Shea. Graveside prayers were said by the Rev. J. J. Garvey at Our Lady of Mount Carmel Cemetery, Hastings.

kitchen of the cafe that had only recently been painted.

One man reported that he had seen a couple of boys playing in behind the building with firecrackers, 15 minutes before the blaze was discovered.

Fire Chief George Smith and Inspector Ray Simmons, who just happened to be in town, are investigating.

Ceilings Hinder Firemen

False ceilings and the maze of apartment rooms in the Braund block hindered firemen in their attempt to localize the blaze.

There was a false ceiling between the two floors and two false ceilings had been constructed under the roof. These allowed the flames to run swiftly through the partitions, unseen by the firemen. Time after time the blaze would seem damped down only to break out again after gathering strength behind the false ceilings.

Shortly before 6 p.m. the aerial ladder was raised and the firemen attacked the heart of the flames from four directions: south (Charlotte St.) by aerial ladder and hoseline; north by hand ladders and hoseline; west by hoselines played from the roof of Plaza Billiards; and east from the roof of the Anthony block. At one time 12 hoselines were streaming water on the blaze.

Firemen arrived shortly before 4:30 p.m. and brought the flames under control four hours later. By 9:15 p.m. the back of the fire was broken and the weary men were rolling up hose preparing to go back to the fire hall by 10 p.m.

Buildings Worth $200,000

Value of the buildings alone in the Braund block—plus the Lady Ellis Shop store in the Anthony block—is estimated at $200,000. Contents are extra.

Neither the interior of the modern Buehler store nor the Hollywood Cafe was touched by flames. Overhead the apartments were gutted as was the rear sections of the Hollywood Cafe.

The roof is caved in and an appraiser will have to decide how much of the upper floor is safe for use without rebuilding. Both the store proper and the cafe proper received heavy water and smoke damage, though firemen prevented direct fire damage.

An unofficial tally of the loss of contents is as follows: $15,000 worth of stock in Buehler's (labelled canned goods can probably be salvaged and about $5,000 worth of meat in a locker at the rear kept out both smoke and fire; $10,000 loss on equipment and foodstuffs in the Hollywood Cafe; and an estimated $20,000 in personal possessions owned by the occupants in the eight Braund block apartments.

Today the apartment rooms are a soggy mass of charred wood, plaster, clothing and household utensils battered about and broken by the pressure of the firemen's hoses. In most places the roof is burned through and the remains have fallen down into the living quarters.

Search Ruins

Early today the tenants began to look through the ruins to see if there was anything at all they could salvage. Mr. Nisbett thought his regfrigerator could be repaired and others found similar odds and ends.

Also poking about forlornly in today's ruins was a mother cat who lost her kittens in the fire. She walked down debris-filled corridors, carefully avoiding the puddles of water that still remain on the second floor, mewing softly for her kittens.

Chief George Smith, though busy investigating the cause of the fire and getting things cleaned up, spared a couple of minutes to pour the bewildered animal a saucerful of milk from an abandoned bottle.

"Tough luck, kitty," he said.

Downstairs

At the height of the blaze water was running down store fronts in cascades, and it rolled down the apartment stairs as though everybody in the second storey had left his taps full on.

Heavy smoke and water damage was also suffered in the Lady Ellis Shop. The office at the rear was partly destroyed by fire that spread from the Hollywood. The store will be closed until next week when a fire-sale will be held.

Smoke Damage

Smoke damage was also caused to other tenants in the Anthony building: Modern Tailors who have a store at 166 Charlotte and a workroom at 168½; Modern Smoke Shop at 168, and two families occupying apartments — Mr. and Mrs. S. W. Burrows, and Mr. and Mrs. George Novotny and their five-year-old son.

Plaza Billiards was also heavily smoked up.

Brick fire walls on either side of the Braund block prevented the flames from spreading. Had they once leaped the fire wall of the Anthony block the flames would have swept through to George St.

Seven people were known to have been in the Braund block apartments when the fire broke out. And one mother and her 23-month-old daughter were nearly trapped in the smoke-filled corridors.

Mrs. Mike Ivanov slipped out of her apartment for a few minutes to do some shopping. She rushed back in when the fire trucks pulled up outside and she fought her way upstairs through dense smoke, to the crib of her daughter, Jane.

Confused By Smoke

She became frightened and confused in the smoke and couldn't find the stairway as she tried to get out. Her sister, Mrs. Ray Foster of Louis St., called out to her to try and direct her but they had difficulty finding each other.

Mrs. Ivanov was finally led to safety by Floyd Murray of Gilchrist St. who came upstairs to help save some belongings of his son and daughter-in-law who live in one of the other apartments. Mr. Murray took the baby from the arms of the semi-hysterical woman and carried it down the stairs.

Wendy Edwards, a baby-sitter, followed out the instructions previously given her by Ted Everett, father of six-year-old Ted Jr., her charge for the afternoon. Mr Everett had warned her to get out of the apartment immediately with Ted if there was any indication of fire.

Ever since he had lived there he considered the place "a fire trap."

Save Few Articles

Three others—Mrs. John Nisbett her six-weeks-old daughter, and Mrs. Ted Williams of McDonnel St., an afternoon visitor—ran from the building after saving only a few articles of clothing. They could see flames licking at the apartment windows.

Firemen who were not on duty came in to help out their colleagues and the police force spared every possible man to keep the crowds in check and direct traffic.

A traffic block was established soon after the fire broke out and was not taken off till nearly 10 p.m. At the height of the fire at least 2,000 people were lined up on the south side of Charlotte St. watching the firemen in action. Others looked on from the parking space at the rear.

A line of hose was kept under pressure all night long ready for use should dormant sparks suddenly burst into flame. A picket of police and firemen kept watch, relieved every few hours.

Second Big Fire

It was Peterborough's second major fire in less than a year. Last May 19 three firemen and one volunteer were killed and 11 were injured fighting a fire which gutted the Zacks building, also in the downtown business centre.

The city's 45 firemen, volunteers and the police force of 37 were all on duty during the fire.

Poor Housing Main Cause Home Problems

TORONTO, April 4— (CP).— Dorothy Jackson, superintendent of the Children's Aid Society in Barrie, Midland and Orillia, today attributed 'teen-age problems mainly to lack of suitable housing and proper recreational facilities.

Addressing the opening session of the society's two-day annual convention, she said some children must live with seven other people in two rooms.

Under such conditions, she said young persons can't do their homework properly or bring friends home.

Miss Jackson told the more than 400 delegates there is a lack on the part of communities as a whole to provide places where 'teen-agers can spend their leisure time constructively.

"Teen-agers now were no worse than those of five, 10 or 15 years ago.

"They just have more ways by which to draw attention to themselves."

War Caused Disruption

Another major cause of 'teen-age problems was the Second World War which resulted in parents being separated from their children for as long as five and six years.

Also addressing the delegates representing 53 societies in the province will be Reforms Minister John Foote of Ontario.

Mrs. Elsie Purcell of Guelph has organized six panel discussions on problems common to children's aid societies.

B. Beaumont, director of child welfare for the Ontario Department of public welfare, said some of the keenest minds and first-rate citizens are behind children's aid work.

"In Ontario we are working to give the children the very best that they deserve," he said.

Mrs. Agnes Wharry

Mrs. Agnes Wharry of Peterborough, first vice-president of the Ontario association, told the convention:

"We cannot stress too much the fact that both the professional and the layman have a contribution to make and each should be respected for his original contribution."

She said decisions made by the boards of societies and the policies they decided upon inevitably determined the kind of child welfare the province will have, "so long as we continue under private auspices."

No Changes Yet In Grant System

TORONTO, April 4 (CP).—The Ontario government does not intend to make any change in its system of grants to municipalities until it receives a report from the provincial - municipal committee now studying the problem, Municipal Affairs Minister Dunbar told the Legislature Thursday.

Mr. Dunbar spoke in reply to J. B. Salsberg (Lab.-Prog.-Toronto St. Andrew) who said the Ontario Mayors and Reeves Association had requested that municipalities be relieved of paying for indirect services such as welfare and health.

Mr. Dunbar reiterated his stand that some form of unification of services, failing amalgamation of Toronto and its suburbs, must go through.

Questioned by William Houck (L.-Niagara Falls) on how the amalgamation report is coming along, Mr. Dunbar said he did not know.

Life Of TB Victim In Hospital Told At Meeting

Sensations of a patient in an Ontario tuberculosis hospital were described Thursday afternoon at the annual meeting of the Peterborough County Tuberculosis Association.

Speaker was Dr. C. A. Wicks, superintendent of the T.B. hospital at Weston. The meeting was held at the Y.W.C.A.

Dr. Wicks, terming his address an informal talk, slanted his remarks in an attempt to give his audience an idea of the patient's reactions and sensations while being treated for tuberculosis.

His story began with admission to the hospital, the tests taken during the first few days, and the thorough briefing a patient is given on the treatment he will undergo, and on the rules he must follow if he is to get well.

Elected President

J. M. Heffernan was re-elected as president of the Peterborough County Tuberculosis Association at the annual meeting of the association held in the Y.W.C.A. Thursday afternoon.

"This is a precedent for this organization," C. H. Elliot, vice-president, said speaking on behalf of the members of the organization in appreciation for Mr. Heffernan's work during the past year. "After all he has done, we couldn't see him leave after serving as president for only one year."

The remaining members of the executive elected were: Herbert Martin, honorary president; Mayor Waddell and Warden R. R. Stewart, honorary vice-presidents; L. H. Ingram, past president; C. H. Elliott and Mrs. M. J. Swanston, vice presidents; R. B. Arnold, treasurer and members of the council, Mrs. R. C. Honey, Mrs. G. H. Pammett, Mrs. Wallace Shearer, D. J. Fitzgerald, C. J. Ray, W. E. Foley, Donald G. Smith, John W. Madden, H. J. Tudhope, F. R. Revoy, I. H. Keefer.

The report of the nominating committee was read by Mrs. Honey.

"Rest is the best treatment known for tuberculosis today," Dr. Wicks said. "True, drugs are used in certain cases and sometimes operations are performed, but your job as a patient is to rest, 24 hours a day with your head on the pillow. We can only help to cure you. Actually, you (the patient) have to cure yourself by rest."

Rest with the head flat on the pillow is necessary because this is the only position in which the lungs are relaxed.

The speaker explained that the patients are given what is known at the hospitals as exercise categories. These exercise categories specify the amount of exercise each patient may have a day. As the patient progresses these categories are broadened to include increased activities.

More To Do

"At a certain time you are allowed to go to the dining-room for one meal a day," Dr. Wicks said. Later you may be able to go for two and then three. As your condition improves you may attend the movies and concerts that are presented at the hospital for the patients." As a patient you are entitled to the rehabilitation services provided by the hospital."

Dr. Wicks outlined these services as including a social worker, occupational therapists and teachers. The social worker helps solve

Partial Service Despite Strike

NEW YORK, April 4—(AP)—Western Union announced telegraph and money order service was resumed today among 40 major cities, despite a strike the union claims is nearly 100-per-cent effective.

A spokesman said the company hopes to extend its service to additional points later today.

Some 31,000 workers, members of the Commercial Telegraphers Union (A.F.L.), struck Thursday in the first country-wide telegraph strike in the United States since 1919.

A separate threat of a telephone strike set for Monday by 40,000 workers in Michigan, Ohio, and Northern California threatens to further snarl the country's communication systems.

The initial impact of fthe telegraph walkout, over a wage dispute, cut the usual wire message flood to a trickle. But later in the day the company announced its "key city" message circuit plan because "employees are disregarding the strike call."

The company explains its "key-city" set-up this way:

"The public at any one of 40 large cities throughout the country can send telegrams and money orders to any one of the other 39 cities."

In Washington Thursday night, however, Adolph Brungs, national president of C.T.U.'s Western Union division, said:

"On the basis of a late check, the strike looks exceptionally good. Western Union is sending practically no business."

Penalizes Husbands

LONDON, April 4—(Reuters)—Dr. Edith Summerskill, one of Britain's 17 women Parliament members, favors prison sentences for husbands who refuse to give their wives enough housekeeping money. The energetic former national insurance minister in the late Labor Government introduced a bill in the House of Commons Thursday which would permit a wife to haul her husband into court and sue him for more cash to buy groceries and keep up the home.

Armed Forces Said Doubled

OTTAWA, April 4 (CP) —Defence Minister Claxton, reporting on the state of Canada's defence preparedness, told the Commons Thursday that the Canadian forces have doubled their strength in the 20 months since the outbreak of the Korean war.

The forces had 95,300 men at the end of March compared to 47,000 when fighting started. The army had the bulk of the manpower with 49,200 officers and men. The R.C.A.F. had 32,600 and the navy 13,500.

Launching the session's first major debate on defence, Mr. Claxton said Canada has the men and equipment needed to fill 952 commitments to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization. He predicted that Canada's military construction and equipment program should hit its full stride about the end of this year.

His statement did not win unanimous approval.

The official opposition's military spokesman—Maj.-Gen G. R. Pearkes V.C. (P.C.—Nanaimo)—said that Canada's 27th Brigade in Germany is ill-equipped to play the role assigned to it and suggested that the army may be organized along out-dated lines.

M. J. Coldwell, C.C.F. leader, suggested Canada could make her best contribution in the air, as demonstrated in the Second World War.

Asks For Plan

Ray Thomas (S.C., Wetaskiwin), a navy veteran of the Second World War, said a federal-provincial plan should be prepared to deal with bactereological warfare. The recent outbreak of foot-and-mouth disease had demonstrated the confusion which could result from a contagious disease among livestock.

Mr. Claxton, possibly in anticipation of criticism, concluded his speech by criticizing the "cautious tribe of yes-but" men who, he said, are starting to qualify their approval of Canada's overseas efforts by all sorts of hindsight decision.

The Atlantic-pact insurance premium had bought three years of peace—today is the third anniversary of the treaty signing—but as the West gained time people became less inclined to pay the price.

Canada's commitments to be Atlantic Pact this year are 24 naval ships, the 27th Brigade and four fighter squadrons. The brigade is in Germany. The ships are ready and the only thing that would delay the air commitment is shortage of airfields.

Since Korea started, he said, the navy has commissioned nine ships and launtched six, has 27 more on order and 40 awaiting refitting; the army has built up two new brigades and reinforcements for them; the air force has increased the number of squadrons to 24 and is heading for 40 by 1954. Nearly 500 aircraft and 1,300 air crew have been added to the air force.

U.S. Dollar Down

MONTREAL, April 4 (CP) — The United States dollar was at a discount of 1 15/16 in terms of Canadian funds, the Bank of Canada reported at noon today, EST. Thursday's noon rate was $0.98 1/16.

The pound sterling was $2.74¾, against $2.75 7/16 Thursday.

Ban Livestock From Britain

Ottawa, April 4 (CP). — The Federal Government today banned all livestock imports from England and Scotland as an extra precaution against the possible spread of foot-and-mouth disease.

The agriculture department in a statement said "This additional barricade was to keep the virus of foot-and-mouth disease out of Canada."

Previously, Canada allowed livestock from the United Kingdom to be imported under permit control. No more permits will be issued until further notice, the department said.

The U.K. now is in the process of trying to control a new outbreak of the scourge which British experts believe was carried to Britain by migrating birds from continental Europe.

Britain is a source of purebred livestock for Canadian sheep, cattle and horse breeders. Imports last year totalled about $300,000.

The department added that the disease in South Saskatchewan is under control. No new cases have been reported since March 8.

CNR Reports Surplus, Still In Red

Company Request Commons Adopt Commission Report

OTTAWA, April 4 — (CP) — Once more in the red ink, the Canadian National Railways is looking to parliament to put it in the black.

The government-owned company has come up with its customary debt-enforced deficit despite a big operating surplus, and it wants parliament to legislate it into a business-like status.

The vital statistics: The C.N.R. had the biggest operating revenue in history, $624,834,000, or $71,000,000 higher than 1950. It had an operating surplus of $44,683,000. But it wound up with a deficit of $15,031,000.

The deficit, despite a 12-per-cent increase in freight rates during 1951, was up from $3,261,000 the previous year.

Hope For New Deal

To beat the recurrent deficits, the company expressed the hope in its report, tabled in the Commons, that parliament this year will implement the report of the royal commission on transportation calling for a new deal in its debt-burdened financial structure. That, on unofficial estimates, would have transformed the 1951 deficit into a surplus of around $8,000,000.

The deficit was the sixth in a row for the C.N.R., which always has earned its way on an operating basis but has found itself hamstrung by the interest payments on its big debt. The government-held loans alone amount to $750,000,000, which costs the company about $23,000,000 a year in interest.

"It is expected," the report said, "that the measures of relief recommended by the commission will be made available to the railway in 1952."

Record Figures

Most of the National line's figures this year—outside of the deficit—were record ones. The gross revenue figure of $624,834,000 largely based on record freight traffic that yielded $499,000,000. The freight-traffic volume was a record 89,600,000 tons. There was also a peak total of 36,400,000,000 revenue ton-miles carried over the 24,000-mile system.

Passenger traffic was up, and so was the railway's big hotel business and that of its communications system.

The revenue of the Canadian National (West Indies) steamships went up. The operating loss for that company in 1951 was $31,576, compared with $601,432 a year earlier.

Counties Councillors Split On Outside Hospital Grants

COBOURG, April 4 (ENS). — Grants to hospitals outside the counties were the subject of considerable discussion by the finance committee at the session of the Northumberland and Durham Counties Council.

Earlier, Port Perry Hospital Board spokesmen asked for a grant of $2,000 for the building fund of this hospital, pointing out that patients from the nearby district were treated there although Port Perry was outside Northumberland and Durham Counties.

Reeve Elmer Scott of Hope township suggested that council rule that no grants be paid to outside hospitals as there was enough to be done in assisting hospitals which were inside the two counties. Reeve W. Roche of Port Hope declared, that his municipality made a grant to its local hospital and he asked whether residents of municipalities using outside hospitals contributed to the upkeep of these institutions. On motion it was laid over to the next session.

E. F. Marsten, district highways department engineer, complimented the council on the co-operation afforded the department of highways in keeping road expenditures at the limits set. While there was a six per cent increase last year in road expenditures, it was to be expected in view of the increase in overhead. He said there was nothing official yet, but things appeared favorable for approval of the counties road expenditures for 1952.

The 1951 road subsidy to the counties with $181,263; townships' subsidies amounted to $332,723 and urban municipalities received $79,579 in subsidies, for a total of $593,556. Estimated subsidy for 1952 was $630,000. In addition to the $79,570 for the urban municipalities there was a 25 per cent contribution by the counties plus $12,000 more for connecting links, for a total of $92,000 for urban centres. Prior to 1949, the urban municipalities didn't get these subsidies.

On the wall behind the warden's chair, hangs a picture of his late Majesty and the Queen Mother. Council decided to see about a picture of Queen Elizabeth to hang in the council chamber.

Ken Symons, who took on the job of counties clerk-and-treasurer last January, asked council for an assistant as he found his duties too burdensome to carry out without extra help. Council decided to advertise for applicants and a decision will be made at the June session.

Report of the family court asked for a grant of $6,050 to meet their budget for 1952. Asked for in 1951, a mental health clinic is now in operation, sponsored by the counties health unit. Non-support payments increased in 1951, mainly because the functions of the family court in this regard were becoming better known.

The road and bridge committee recommended that Campbellford be allowed to change its county road connecting link from Ranney Street to Front Street. The committee also endorsed the recommendation of Peterborough County Council that the department take over the Emily boundary road as a development road.

A resolution from Ontario county which asked for standardization of assessments of industrial buildings, was not endorsed. The special county property committee recommended renovations at the counties jail and the registry offices at Cobourg, Colborne and Bowmanville.

The finance committee recommended payment of the usual grants but deferred hospital grants until the next session. A request from the county assessor for an increase in salary was turned down.

The county property committee took no action on the recommendation of the fire marshal's office for an automatic fire alarm and special water reservoir at the counties home for the aged. It was pointed out that one letter from the Fire Marshal's office said that conditions were satisfactory at the counties home.

Canadian Priest In Hong Kong

HONG KONG, April 4 (CP)—The Rev. Henry Plamondon, a ragged but cheerful French-Canadian priest from Montreal, is among more than two dozen Roman Catholics to arrive in Hong Kong from Red China in two days.

Father Plamondon, who arrived Thursday, made light of his experience which included three years under house arrest at Suchow, 150 miles from Shanghai.

"It's been so long since I've seen anyone but Chinese," he said, "that I now have much trouble speaking either French or English."

Another of the arrivals was Archbishop Petronio Lacchio, 51-year-old Italian prelate, who walked across the border from Red China today and immediately collapsed. He was taken to hospital where attendants said he was "seriously exhausted". The archbishop was expelled from China almost a year after Communists jailed him for opposing their regime. His diocese was at Changsha, in central China's rice bowl.

Pinay Scores Budget Victory

PARIS, April 4 (Reuters) — Premier Antoine Pinay today scored another victory in the budget debate when the National Assembly defeated a Socialist amendment calling for increased taxation of company profits. Voting was 406 to 206.

Pinay told the assembly beforehand he considered it a confidence vote.

The government suffered a minor setback later when the assebly rejected by 318 votes to 295 a proposed increase in automobile registration fees.

The assembly Thursday passed Pinay's main economy measure, authorizing the government to make cuts of $308,000,000 in civil expenditure and the reconstruction and investment program.

It also agreed that another key clause freezing a further $280,000,000 of reconstruction and investment credits should be decided by a confidence vote next Thursday. This made it almost certain it will be adopted.

Brighter World?

General Eisenhower as Supreme NATO Commander for Europe has reported that "the tide has begun to flow our way and the situation of the free world is brighter than it was a year ago." Former Prime Minister Attlee told a Philadelphia audience on Monday night that time is on the side of the democracies and that if a third world war can be prevented they will win out over Communism. Premier Stalin has answered questions put to him by American editors and said that a third world war is no closer now than it was two or three years ago. So the international situation seems to be better and brighter than it has been.

* * *

Was it a reflection of that brightness that at the same time these statements were being issued, another brightness came out of the heartland of the United States: twenty "fingers of fire" from a new test explosion of an atomic bomb in Nevada?

Foot In The Mouth

The hullabaloo about foot and mouth disease in western Canada has subsided. The disease seems to have been brought under complete control. The pay-off now begins: $311,449 to Saskatchewan farmers for 1,061 head of cattle slaughtered, 127 swine, 97 sheep, one goat, 1,666 hens and 13,272 eggs destroyed. The disease got farther out of control in publicity than it did infectiously, and the blame for this does not rest entirely with press and radio.

The delays in diagnosing and announcing foot-and-mouth disease allowed rumour to mount. The Federal Department of Agriculture bumbled into startling statements which merely served to sharpen reporters' scents and alarm the public and their governments. The outbreak comes into proper perspective when one realizes that during the same time (foot and mouth disease in Saskatchewan was present since last November, but not diagnosed) an outbreak in East Sussex and scattered other parts of England has been much more severe. Since last November more than 15,000 affected farm animals have been slaughtered there. The Canadian outbreak has made necessary the destruction of only 1,286 animals.

The incidence of the disease in England has been greater than in Canada (it is possible that it spread to this country from England), yet there has been comparatively little shouting about it there. In making a big noise about it in Canada, press, radio and governments were acting in a typical Canadian way: we like to shout ruin from the housetops at the drop of a bug or dollar reserve; we enjoy wallowing in miseries, because we have so few compared with our good fortunes. To make a national calamity out of 1,061 head of cattle, 127 swine, 97 sheep and one goat indicates a vigorous national aptitude for alarms. Canadians can make a big noise, whether they have their foot in the mouth or not.

"Mr. President"

Mr. Mackenzie King permitted republication of his study Industry and Humanity: discreet selections of the speeches of the late Prime Minister, of Mr. Massey and of one or two other Canadian public figures have been published in the last thirty years; biographies of Canadian generals in the First Great War have appeared. The rest is silence—except an odd political puff in booklet form for electioneering purposes, like the unremembered thing on G. Howard Ferguson, former premier of Ontario.

South of the border politicians, statesmen and generals do not consider silence to be golden. Dozens of them have gone into print in the last dozen years, from Wendell Willkie to General Eisenhower. The latest is the President of the United States. True, Mr. Truman did not write Mr. President, but he was in fact its author.

Such intimate revelations as this remarkable book contains would be embarrassing to Canadians, had they come, say, from Prime Minister St. Laurent. But Canadians can read the record of the President in his office and capital mansion without blushing for their intimacy. The United States is a weird and wonderful nation. Its Chief Executive is a wonderful and astounding man.

There is this entry in his personal diary for November 1, 1949:

"Had dinner by myself tonight. Worked in the office until dinner-time. The butler came in very formally and said 'Mr. President, dinner is served'. I walk in to the dining room. Barnett in tails and white tie pulls out my chair and pushes me up to the table. John in white tie and tails brings me a fruit cup. Barnett takes away the empty cup. John brings me a plate, Barnett brings me a tenderloin. John brings me asparagus, Barnett brings me carrots and beets. I have to eat alone and in silence in the candle-lit room . . . Barnett brings me some chocolate custard. John brings me a demitasse (at home a little cup of coffee—about two good gulps) and my dinner is over. I go back to work. What a life!"

What a life! Indeed, what a man! Fancy Mr. St. Laurent (or Mr. King or Mr. Bennett before him) making such an entry in his diary! If Mr. St. Laurent had thought anything about such a meal worth remarking at all, we might expect to read—thirty years hence if such a document were ever made public—"Nov. 1: Dined alone."

Americans have a gusto for knowing how other people in the public eye live. Mr. Truman is such an American and his gusto in finding out how the President moves and has his being in Washington is as lively as the interest of any of his American readers.

One is tempted to wonder what Mr. Churchill's entry would have been—Mr. Churchill is not as close-mouthed as his Canadian counterparts. Ah! but Mr. C. would never have dined alone. And what would Disraeli, the other great Conservative publicist have written? Disraeli would not have been properly served by only a Barnett and a John in tails and white ties. And what indeed would President Roosevelt have written about such a dinner? Nothing at all. It would have been unremarkable to a man like the late President.

The Crown Goes Back

We made a fuss in these columns when the Department of Highways took the Crown off the Ontario motor license plate; we said rude and unkind things about those responsible for the move. Not that we regret what we said; we fully meant to be rude and unkind. But now we read that not only the Crown, but the armorial bearings of Ontario, are to be on the 1953 plates, and we rejoice accordingly. We compliment the Department. We laud its wisdom and taste. When we get our 1953 license we shall display it with pride.

The trappings of monarchy and heraldry are part of our Canadian heritage, and if we do not make use of them we are being silly. Our neighbours to the south admire our display of crowns, and of authentic coats-of-arms; they have romantic hearts, and they respond to these accoutrements of romance. We respond to them too, when we permit ourselves to display such symbols. Next year the Crown will be back on the license, and we hope to see it remain there.

In The Spring A Censor's Fancy—

In the spring a livelier iris changes on the burnished dove;
In the spring a censor's fancy cooks up schemes to put down love.

Thus wrote the great Alfred, Lord Tennyson, but at the special request of Queen Victoria he substituted the now familiar line—

In the spring a young man's fancy lightly turns to thoughts of love.

Nevertheless, the first thought of the Laureate was true. Every newspaper editor has noticed that the coming of spring, which rouses the life in nature, and makes human beings think about love, rouses the Old Nick in censors and reformers, and makes them think of nasty ways to thwart man's interest in sex.

Ottawa, if we may judge from the correspondence columns of its newspapers, is at present suffering from a police censorship of certain magazines and books displayed for sale on news stands. We do not suppose that the police have acted in this matter without prompting; undoubtedly they have been set on by people who like to interfere with what other people read.

As we have said a dozen times in these columns, censorship of books is a dangerous sport for the do-gooders. So many of the world's greatest books—including the Bible—contain passages which are offensive to people who are chronically resentful that there is such a thing as sex in the world. Their argument that such books are not suitable for children is a weak one; if we are to be confined in our reading to what smutty-minded reformers think is suitable for children, we shall soon become a nation of half-wits.

The book-banners and reformers have a hard row to hoe. They don't trust mankind, and God has complicated their work for them by giving mankind an inescapably carnal nature. It is in spring that this nature most markedly asserts itself, and it is in spring that the book-banners utter their most anguished battle-cries.

Notes And Queries

By ALPHA

Questions are solicited for this column particularly those relating to local lore and tradition.

DEAR ALPHA: I was interested in your piece last week about cigar store Indians. The effigy which appeared in the window of Mr. Fisk's shop when he went out of business was not a true cigar store Indian, but a plaster bust, reputedly of "Hiawatha"; such busts were common enough in Canada sixty or seventy years ago. It was at that time usual for vendors of statuary—sometimes called "Italian image men"—to peddle their wares around the countryside. Favourite items in their stock were statuary groups cast in durable plaster from the works of the celebrated American sculptor, Hiram Powers. These were of homely scenes, a popular one being a group in a country doctor's dispensary, and another (which I remember well) a boy sitting on a sawhorse, pulling a sliver out of his foot.

Powers first rose to fame when his "Greek Slave" was exhibited at the Great Exhibition of 1851; it was a prettily modelled female nude, and excited disapprobation among many Americans who felt that their country should not be represented abroad by such a shameless object. Some of Powers' less controversial work was reproduced in plaster and widely sold in this country; his women suited the ideal of beauty current among our grandfathers. He was an artist of great ability, but his imagination never quite threw off the shackles of his Vermont upbringing. Many a well-to-do Upper Canada parlour boasted a Powers group or two.

The Italian image men also carried a very popular line of busts and small figures of Napoleon. Why the Corsican Ogre should have been so popular in North America nobody seems able to explain, any more than they can explain the considerable popularity of images of Garibaldi—a revolutionary who would have scared the Canadian Tories stiff if they had encountered him in their own country.

Keep up your admirable resurrection work on our country's past. It gives weekly pleasure to at least one.

RESPONSE: Thank you for the interesting information and your complimentary injunction.

ALPHA: Have there been stage lights as long as there have been stages?

ANSWER: Not in classical times and not in Shakespeare—performances were by daylight. I cannot say when tapers, oil and gas lamps were first used for stage lighting. The first to use electric lights was Richard D'Oyly Carte, producer of Gilbert and Sullivan, an essential third creator in that partnership of genius. It was in 1881, in 'Patience' at the Savoy Theatre, London. "If it works", Carte said in his announcement, "it will enable us to secure effects hitherto impossible", It did work; the impossible effects were gradually achieved . . . I recently saw the excellent film "Streetcar Named Desire" (Vivien Leigh, Marlon Brando, and other notables), a faithful and powerful rendition of that emotional play. I remarked afterwards to an expert in stagecraft that the film did not give the impression of sultry heat of the New Orleans' slums which the New York version on the stage had done. He replied: "Stage lighting did it; lighting for cameras cannot".

SIR: You said that the jars of coloured liquid in Lynch's drug store window were red (or purple) and green. They are amber and green.

ANSWER: Alpha must confess to being colour-blind. Incidentally Payne's drug store at the north-east corner of Simcoe and George also has two carboys. These are in the back of the store; and also quite handsome.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR SIR: I see an English paper has run a contest for new verses to "God Save the Queen", on the assumption that some of the present verses are not appropriate in this day and age. I suppose the verse that they would leave out is the one about "Frustrate their knavish tricks". I have forgotten it. Can you please quote?

ANSWER: God Save the King, as originally written by an anonymous writer, and published in The Gentleman's Magazine October, 1745, had four verses. (The earliest version known was printed in Harmonia Anglicana, 1742.) It did not begin as we know it, but: "God save Great George our King", and continued in today's version. The second verse was:

O Lord our God arise
Scatter his Enemies
And make them fall:
Confound their Politicks,
Frustrate their Knavish Tricks,
On him our hopes we fix,
God save us All.

The third verse is now sung as the usual second: "Thy choicest Gifts in Store, On him be pleas'd to pour", etc. There was a fourth verse, now forgotten in the mists which cover tempers and feuds of other years. Here it is (and some Scots had better bow their heads!)

Lord grant that Marshal Wade
May by thy Mighty Aid
Victory bring.
May he Sedition hush,
And like a Torrent rush,
Rebellious Scots to crush,
God save the King.

The anthem became popular during the Jacobite troubles of 1745 (of the Scots and French supporting the pretensions of The Young Pretender, Bonnie Prince Charlie; and the other Scots and the English who supported the Hanoverian Georges.)

Marshal Wade (1673-1748) was an Irishman who rose to be field-marshal; as so many Irishmen have done from that day to this day of Field Marshals Alexander and Montgomery. He was commander-in-chief in England in 1745, but was superseded for failing to stop the advance of Prince Charles Edward. He had been sent to the Highlands in 1724, where he was celebrated for the military roads that he constructed. There is a famous distich:

"Had you seen these roads before they were made,
You'd hold up your hands and bless
General Wade"

It seems like a typical Inshism to talk of seeing roads before they were made; but 'made' here means engineered and surfaced. Our Canadian forbears to the poll tax, a tax which was originally paid in lieu of doing statutory road work, would not be confused by this use of "made" roads.

FOR THE RECORD: Coffee has been selling locally for about a dollar a pound for the last year. This and increased other costs, have almost abolished the five-cent cup of coffee in restaurants and at lunch counters. There are about two places in Peterborough where coffee can still be had for a nickle, and I believe one drug store sells it at seven cents the cup; elsewhere the price is ten cents. Hamburgs and even hot dogs have also felt inflation. An ordinary price for the lowly hot dog now is fifteen cents. Long since gone is the nickle wiener.

Plastic Aircraft

(Wall Street Journal)

Will tomorrow's airplane be made of plastic?

Perhaps as soon as this September, a plastic wing now being built by British scientists will be hooked to a jet fighter's metal body and put through flight tests. Then the world's first all-plastic plane will be constructed. Scientists working on the project here at Britain's biggest air research centre, the government-owed Royal Aircraft Establishment, expect to get this plastic plane into the sky in about three years.

"Within five or ten years plastic planes ought to be coming off production lines in quantity", predicts one of England's leading aircraft manufacturers. Plastic gliders may be in common use much sooner.

No one predicts plastic's over-night conquest of the aircraft industry. But eventualy, say Farnborough's experts, it could chase aluminum clear out of the heavens. They claim plastic will whack 50% off the cost of making bodies and wings for fighters and bombers. Piper Cubs and giant transports. They say plastic will step up the speed of plane-making by four times the present pace.

THEY DO?

"The pig, children, is a most useful animal," said the teacher. "We use its head for brawn, its legs for ham, its bristles for brushes. Now what else do we use from the pig?"

"Please miss," said one small child, "we use its name when we want to be rude."

A River For This Bridge

(Detroit Free Press)

Mark Twain's lore about rivers never gave him a better yarn to garnish than one Nebraska is offering. It has a bridge, built by Burt County for $1,970,000, which has no water to go under it and never has had.

The span crosses what used to be the Missouri's bed. Because Army engineers assured Nebraskans that the stream would come back there, they seized the opportunity to build it. They figured $4,000,000 could be saved by not having to fuss around with running water during construction.

Now pressure has been put on to release a Federal $4,000,000 said to have been earmarked for bringing the Missouri back if it didn't return without urging. But the engineers say that since the money was set aside the cost has gone to $7,900,000.

We suppose that reflects the impact of inflation on moving rivers. Anyhow, the Army people seem to have thrown up their hands. "It's meandering all over," says the district engineer. "We'd like to get it back, but we can't."

In P.E.I. Too!

(Charlottetown Guardian)

Even in this little province we are beginning to budget in such astronomical figures that annual debt increases of a million dollars or more are being taken for granted. Last year the debt increase was almost $400,000 over the million-dollar mark, as shown by the Public Accounts tabled by Hon. Mr. Darby in the Legislature. Our total expenditures ran into nine and one-third millions, our total liabilities, as of March 31, 1931, were over fifteen and one-half million dollars and our gross funded debt, less sinking fund assets, was thirteen and three quarter millions. Nor does there seem to be much relief in sight.

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

I will sing of mercy and judgement: unto thee, O Lord, will I sing. I will behave myself wisely in a perfect way. O when wilt thou come unto me I will walk within my house with a perfect heart.

I will set no wicked thing before mine eyes: I hate the work of them that turn aside; it shall not cleave to me. A forward heart shall depart from me: I will not know a wicked person. (Ps. 101: 1-4.)

✧ ✧ ✧

Because sentence against an evil work is not executed speedily, therefore the heart of the sons of men is fully set in them to do evil. Though a sinner do evil an hundred times, and his days be prolonged, yet surely I know that it shall be well with them that fear God, which fear before him:

But it shall not be well with the wicked, neither shall he prolong his days, which are as a shadow; because he feareth not before God. (Eccl. 8: 11-13.)

✧ ✧ ✧

But now thus saith the Lord that created thee, O Jacob, and he that formed thee, O Israel, Fear not: for I have redeemed thee, I have called thee by thy name; thou art mine. . . . .

I, even I, am he that blotteth out thy transgressions for mine own sake, and will not remember thy sins. (Isa. 43: 1, 25.)

Unconsidered Trifles

After the service one Sunday morning the vicar was approached by an old lady who expressed appreciation of his sermon. "Why, Vicar," she said, "you can never know what your sermon meant to me. It was just like water to a drowning man."

✧ ✧ ✧

Ed: "Why did you give up that nice room you had on the sunny side of the street?"

Tom: "I couldn't stand the landlady, she was so curious."

Ed: "How was that?"

Tom: "She was always wanting to know when I was going to pay my rent."

✧ ✧ ✧

Two mountain men had come into town for a Saturday night. As they strolled down the street, looking into the various shop windows, one of them saw something and called his friend's attention to it. Then they both stood staring in the window of a drug store which featured a display of rubber gloves.

"I wonder what them things are for," said one man.

"Oh," replied the other sagely, "those are things you can put on and then wash your hands without getting your hand wet."

Toronto's 1864 Jail

(Toronto Star)

If Toronto had a jail with other than soft iron bars, there would have been no escape last November, and no Jackson and Boyd let loose upon the community, with all the disastrous consequences now so familiar to the public.

In October, other bars had been cut—those on the window of a corridor where 18 dangerous criminals were confined. An escape had been timed for the Royal visit. Discovery of the cut bars prevented it.

But tragic as the results of escapes may be, the inadequacy of the Don jail building in that respect is by no means the most serious indictment which can be launched against it.

Toronto prides itself upon its modern facilities—a $50,000,000 subway and all that sort of thing—yet its jail was built in 1864 when the city had only 45,000 inhabitants. Instead of the 240 prisoners for whom it has accommodation, it sometimes houses more than 600.

Hydro Workers Given Increase

TORONTO, April 4 — (CP) — The Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission announced Thursday the signing of a new wage agreement providing a 10-cent-an-hour across-the-board increase for some 3,030 employees.

A joint statement issued by Robert H. Saunders, chairman of the Commission, and G. Russell Harvey, chairman of the Niagara Development Allied Council (A.F.L.) which represents 18 unions, said the increase was retroactive to March 1.

The employees affected include 2,170 commission men and 860 contractors' employees engaged on the Niagara development program.

The increase brings the wage rate for carpenters to $1.90 an hour. Electrical workers will receive $2.05 with unskilled labor getting $1.20.

Also included in the new agreement are clauses covering payment of shift differentials, granting of two statutory holidays per year with pay and decision to work out a savings and insurance plan.

Timmins Population Up 2,000 Brushes Off Mining Strike

TIMMINS, Ont., April 4 —(CP) —Pessimists who said last summer's two month strike at the rich Hollinger Gold Mine spelled disaster for Timmins misjudged the pioneer-like vitality of this northern Ontario town.

During the walkout of 1,530 employees of the Porcupine district's biggest gold mine, there were predictions that Timmins would lose much of its population, business would collapse and the bustling gold-mining centre become a ghost town.

Instead, population increased reversing a downward trend that began in 1946. Business improved—bank clearings jumped $2,000,000 from 1950. And there is nothing ghost-like about the bustling business section.

The mine lost production of $2,000,000 and the men $750,000 in wages during the walkout which Local 4305 of the United Steelworkers of America (C.I.O.-C.C.L.) called to enforce demands for wage increases and checkoff of union dues.

The union asked a 25-cent boost in wages from the scale of 90 cents an hour for surface laborers, 96 cents for underground workers and $1.12 for skilled tradesmen. The management offered a two-cent flat increase, plus four more cents based on a job evaluation plan. It refused the checkoff, under which it would deduct union dues from pay cheques.

The men walked out July 9, after refusing a final company offer of two cents plus eight cents on the job evaluation plan. They voted Aug. 31 to return to work, ratifying a settlement scheme calling for an average increase of 16 cents and an arrangement for collection of union dues on company property. They went back on the job Sept. 4.

Alleviating Factors

Several factors helped to cushion the shock to business. The miners drew $100,000 in vacation pay. The union issued and redeemed $80,000 to $90,000 in food vouchers. Many strikers got temporary work in the bush and at berry-picking. This didn't make up for all the loss in wages but it helped. Strikers and business men got along. And by the end of the year merchants were able to report the biggest Christmas business on record.

The population grew to 27,383, almost 2,000 more than in 1950, helped along by arrival of immigrants from Europe. Some strikers went to southern Ontario centres to hunt for jobs but unemployment there brought them back.

The strike's wage issue is not yet settled. The key of the present argument is whether the memorandum of strike settlement, to which both parties agreed, constitutes a valid bargaining agreement. The union contends it is and has asked the Ontario Labor Relations Board for leave to prosecute the company for non-compliance with its terms. The company's stand has been that the memorandum was a document which could lead to a formal agreement.

The board heard the union's application in February and took the case under consideration. It has yet to issue a decision.

The two sides negotiated for four months after the strike in a fruitless effort to reach agreement on wage details set out in the settlement. Then, after Dec. 31, the company went ahead and put into effect its own wage scheme. It said this provided an average increase of 13.22 cents an hour. The union disagreed with the figure and claimed that the company violated the settlement plan by inaugurating the new rates without its consent.

BOMBAY, April 4—(AP)—A much-boycotted beauty contest Thursday picked "Miss India" from beauties parading in flowing saris instead of brief swim suits. Orthodox Hindus picketed Bombay's Bradbourne Stadium, where the judging took place.

Must Keep Rights

TORONTO, April 4—(CP)—Edward Cheyfitz, consultant to the American Motion Picture industry, said Thursday night industry must preserve its right to manage itself and resist the demands of unions which seek to share the management. Flying Instructor Dismissed From RCAF

GIMLI, Man., April 4 (CP)—An R.C.A.F. court martial Thursday dismissed with disgrace a 26-year-old flying instructor convicted on four of five charges of flying under the influence of alcohol.

The instructor, FO. Roberts K. Christiansen of Keewatin, Ont., was arrested Feb. 29 after he crash-landed his Harvard trainer on Rabbit Lake near Kenora.

Christiansen testified he had been drinking the night before in the mess at Gimli Air Station. The next thing he remembered was a flashing red light in the cockpit of the plane warning him the aircraft was out of fuel.

FO. Christiansen attended Queen's University, Kingston, before joining the R.C.A.F. He is a former intercollegiate heavyweight boxing champion.

Bouquet Ends Mayoralty War

OTTAWA, April 4 (CP) — A BIG bouquet of flowers seemed to bring at least a temporary truce Thursday in the verbal war between Ottawa's Mayor Charlotte Whitton and Toronto's Mayor Alan Lamport.

The Toronto mayor, who angered Miss Whitton Wednesday with criticism of Ottawa's treatment of Governor-General Vincent Massey, arrived in town for federal conferences.

He sent the peace-making bouquet to Miss Whitton. And the capital's mayor, who Thursday told Mayor Lamport in effect to mind his own business, was impressed.

The bouquet was so big, she said, "it shows that he has a much bigger appropriation for this sort of thing than the mayor of Ottawa. I couldn't afford such a huge bouquet for any purpose."

With the bouquet went a message of regret from the Toronto mayor that he wouldn't have time to see her here. But he promised to see her in Toronto where she is going Saturday to be guest of honor at a meeting given in honor of Ontario women mayors and reeves.

C.O.B.L. officials hope to get the ball loop all lined up at a Kingston meeting Sunday. Clayton, Watertown and Ogdensburg of northern New York State have all expressed interest in a senior amateur international circuit along with Kingston and mayhap Smiths Falls. Brockville won't re-enter. Belleville, Batawa and the Petes also are interested in the setup, and perhaps two sections may be the answer, with some interlocking games for centres closer to each other. Early action is indicated locally if a berth is found in the Central League, as play would commence in another five or six weeks.

Basketball is nearly finished in Peterborough for another year. A twin bill by the lasses takes place tonight in the Y.W. wnen the junior Normals and C.G.E. open their two-game finals at eight. It is followed at nine by the second game of the intermediate final sawoffs betwixt Nurses and Black's. The Nurses won the first 67-27 for a hefty lead in this return joust. The second junior playoff will be next Tuesday eve to conclude colleens' play, as Neill's romped to the senior championship. Next week, too, will see the windup of the Y.M.C.A. house league season with a sudden-death final. All other hoop activity is o'er.

Barons In The N.H.L.?

Doug Vaughan tells of bumping into Jim Hendy a few days ago. Hendy was here at a lacrosse game last summer lining up Ike Hildebrand for his Cleveland Barons in the American Hockey League. And Ike had a fine season with the club in the A.H.L. Should be in great shape for another gutted-stick campaign with the Petes this summer. Doug asked Jim if it was true Cleveland wanted an N.H.L. berth. "You bet it's true," Hendy said. "Cleveland is a big league city in everything but hockey. We've got the Indians in baseball and the Browns in the National Football League. We've come to the point where we could win the A.H.L. championship 10 straight years with the Barons and it wouldn't impress citizens, as the A.H.L. is minor league."

* * * * * *

Hendy points out that only four N.H.L. cities are bigger than Cleveland; they are New York, Chicago, Detroit and Montreal. The arena in Cleveland seats nearly 10,000 and can stand 1,500 more. "If we could fill the arena for 35 N.H.L. home games," he says, "without including standing room, we could do $700,000 net." He figures he could sell out 50 percent of the house for the N.H.L. season before September. Sounds right impressive, but where would he round up a team which could compete fairly successfully in the National Hockey League? There just aren't enough big-league puckists around, as Bill Tobin of Chicago Hawks will verify.

'Twas A Real Thriller

Puck fans will be talking about last night's senior "B" playoff here for a long time. As fine a fixture as you'd care to see—fast, close, good hockey and marked with a Merriwell finish as Arn Dugan batted in the winner with five seconds to go. Huge crowd rocked the place with applause as the hard-working blond battler settled the issue to put Petes back in the hunt. They're still down a game, with the next one Saturday at nine p.m. on Stouffville ice, but they know now how to beat the Clippers. Just sheer hustle and fight every second of the game. Crowd 'em, hurry 'em and outfight 'em. Another win and they'll be back here Monday all square on this hot series.

* * * * * *

Junior West, Gus Leonard and George Steele were the main marksmen for the Ellis squad, but every player shot the works in a do-or-die attempt against classy opposition. Had two more goals called back on them and gave Goalie Stunden a busy evening—so they really earned the verdict. And, mind you, they are minus Horton, Mason, Collins and Robinson, all out with foot or knee injuries. Though leading most of the way, the Petes had to come from behind in the final minute of play with two goals to beat the speedy opportunists from Toronto. Yes, 'twas a grand finish for more than 2,000 fans at the best senior puck tilt served up here this lengthy hockey season. The walls of Civic should budge for sure Monday night.

Campbell Approves Of M.P.'s Proposals

MONTREAL, April 4 (CP). — President Clarence Campbell of the National Hockey League said Thursday night he "will go right along with" Bona Arsenault, Liberal member of parliament, on Mr. Arsenault's proposals regarding hockey players.

"We don't compell anybody to do anything," said Campbell.

Mr. Arsenault said in Ottawa that the N.H.L. "conducts a real slave market." He placed on the order paper of the House of Commons a bill that would make it an indictable offence to unduly restrict the freedom of players to play with the club of their choice.

Said the N.H.L. head:

"I am just as much opposed to those things as Mr. Arsenault is. I would be happy to know from him or anyone else about persons obliged or compelled to do them. . . .

"We have nothing to hide. There is no compulsion on our part and never has been. . . ."

IN FURIOUS ACTION—A flash of hot action is shown here just after Goalie Norm Stundoll of Stouffville (sprawled on ice) robbed Petes' Chum Fryia—No 10—on a quick save in the second period last night, defenceman Bert Baker of Clippers clearing the puck toward the blue line. It was a sizzling encounter all the way, with Petes pulling out a 7-6 win the last few seconds of play.—(Examiner Staff Photo).

Here and There In Sport

By The Canadian Press

For the second time in the long history of Britain's famed Grand National Steeplechase, a Canadian sponsored horse Saturday will seek victory.

A small group of Canadian racing fans is at Aintree today. Their hopes are pinned on an 11-year-old bay gelding which once won a last-minute reprieve from a glue factory. The horse, Tantivy, is partly owned by a Toronto investment broker, Charles Burns, 44.

Tantivy was a 100-1 choice in a field of 50 entries when Burns acquired an interest in the bay last week but the odds dropped to 50-1 Thursday, possibly as a result of "sentimental" bets from Canadians.

In the rooting section are Burns, his wife, the daughter of Senator Carrine Wilson of Canada, and 75-year-old George Leacock, brother of the great Canadian humorist, the late Stephen Leacock. They will sit in the "second best box" at the track which belongs to Lord Sefton.

Tall Texan Ray Gafford, who seldom competes in golf tournaments, and pudgy Johnny Palmer of North Carolina led opening-day play Thursday of the 16th Masters' at Augusta, Ga. They shot 69s. Stan Leonard of Vancouver, only Canadian entrants, had a 75.

Washington Senators Thursday announced they were giving the renowned travelling man, Bobo Newsom, another chance to make good in the majors. The 43-year-old pitcher whom they plan to use in relief roles is hired for the fifth time by Washington.

He has pitched for every club in the American League except Chicago and Cleveland. And for variety has turned up on the rosters of Chicago Cubs, Brooklyn Dodgers twice and New York Giants in the National League.

Z. Levine Rink Captures Dobbin Trophy

By HERB. MARTIN.

By the score of 11-5 Z. Levine's rink won the final game in the Leads and Seconds bonspiel from Reg. Dyer's rink, and by so doing won the R. L. Dobbin Trophy.

The game started out well and for the first six ends it was as close as could be, but on the seventh end the Levine quartet helped themselves to a big four and that just about settled the issue. They were seven up coming home and the Dyer boys could not overcome that big lead.

In the semi-finals of the club championships, G. Clark won from R. Bastable and A. Ingram won from B. Harrison. The final game is called for 6:00 o'clock this evening.

Mrs. M. McCartney, Mrs. E. Northey, Mrs. M. Crough and Mrs. H. Hamblin are playing up in Copper Cliff. The bonspiel is being sponsored by the Copper Cliff lady curlers.

Mrs. H. Baptie joins Jim Curtis and Mr. and Mrs. A. Woollard at Fenelon Falls today. They are playing in the mixed rink bonspiel away up at North Bay.

Don't forget the big wind-up fun tomorrow night.

Today's thought: The days are too short for love, how can there be time for quarreling?

Nearing Finals

JONQUIERE, Que., April 4 — (CP).—Pembroke Lumber Kings today are within one victory of reaching the Eastern Canada finals in Allan Cup play following a 4-3 decision Thursday night over Jonquiere Aces. The victory gave them a 2-1 lead in games in the best-of-five series and a victory tonight would wrap up the series and send the Ontario squad into the eastern final.

Petes Defeat Clippers, 7-6 To Keep In Play-off Hunt As Dugan Tallies At 19.55

Arn Dugan's goal with five seconds of regulation time to go here last night gave the Petes a 7-6 victory over Stouffville Clippers as a crowd of more than 2,000 cheered wildly. It was the locals' first win in three starts of their best-of-seven O.H.A. senior "B" playoffs, the fourth being in Stouffville on Saturday and the fifth here on Monday. It was probably the best and the most exciting puck tilt served up here this year before the biggest crowd. Both sides stepped high, wide and handsome all the way in rugged but clean and smart hockey. The Petes earned the victory as they had an edge on play in every period and twice had goals called back on them. The visitors served five of the six penalties. Red Robinson was a Petes' absentee owing to a sore foot.

Led In First

The Ellis men had a 2-1 scoring edge in the first frame and led 4-3 going into the third. They had more chances in the windup stanza too, but barely eked out the win. It was tied twice in the last chukker and the Petes actually came from behind by tallying the last two markers, as the Clippers proved speedy opportunists on every chance they had. Bell went off once stunned by a puck but returned to play. A woman in the crowd also was hit in the face and cut by a flying puck.

Heavy gunners for the victors were Gus Leonard, Junior West and George Steele, the latter with three assists as Gus and Junior each scored two and aided on one. Arn Dugan banged in two goals. Jack Mortimer helped on a pair, Fred Garvey counted once, and single assists went to Bill Stewart, Chum Fryia, Don Floyd and Red Peters.

Scored A Pair

Ronnie Bell led the losers with two goals, as Frank Stevenson, George Stark, Jack Watson and Nick Bangay each had one. Stevenson assisted twice, singles being marked to Stark, Bob and Nick Bangay, Petch and Gibson. Goalie Stunden was plenty hot to hold down the score as he was busier over the route than Ray Harding, who also made some fine saves.

Clippers struck fast to count one within half a minute as Nick Bangay's screened shot from Stark at defence caught a net corner. Stevenson drew an interference penalty and a thrust by Dugan and Stewart came close. All were back when West evened it from Steele and Gus Leonard after a corner faceoff, pass back and forward flip, Junior swinging around to backhand one home. He almost got another as he golfed a whistler. It was up and down fast with Garvey in for a good try, and the Petes pressing hard when Bell was gated for holding. Dugan and Mortimer got one after the whistle, and then they scored for keeps with Stewart also in on it around the net and with a rebound by Arn. Bell returned and play was even at the gong.

It Cost A Goal

Machin went over early in the second for interference as the checking was close, despite fast travelling. West cashed in on it with a slap shot on Steele's corner passout from a faceoff. Machin returned and Jack Watson tallied with a very sharp angle drive from Bob Bangay going up the side on a three-man rush. Gibson went over the wall for elbowing and was back with no damage done, though Fryia nearly notched one. Bell took a passout after a faceoff near the net and his high shot from in front was partly screened to whizz by Ray. Garvey got that back shortly as a trailer behind Fryia and Floyd to smack home a rebound at close range. Fryia was waved away for slashing and Clippers pressed hard till he got back. A West-Steel stab nearly paid off ere the bell.

The third was another hot session up and down, but the Petes had more in-close chances. Gus Leonard got a lucky one early after skirting the net, the puck slipping in off a Stouffville skate. The Petes poured it on for a space and then Stouffville fought back. They were ganging up when Fryia broke away to score apparently, the puck seeming to go in and out fast. But the goalie was sitting on it when the ref arrived and, despite an argument, it was ruled no goal. Stark scored on a hard backhander from the side on a quick rush with Nick Bangay. Gus Leonard came close and, with Petch over for tripping, the Petes roared in hard. A fight threatened once at the crease. With Petch back, Mortimer and Dugan were robbed on a rush, and then Stevenson got the equalizer from Petch around the net and from a sharp angle, the puck slithering in off the goalie's pads Bell then put Clippers up on a rush with Gibson and Stevenson down the side, a passout and flip shot in close. The Petes fought back furiously and Gus Leonard tied it as he ganged up with Steele and West at close range. They tore in again seconds later and at 19.55 Dugan slapped the disc home on a play with Mortimer and Peters to win the game.

Hi Lee To Team With Hermann

Another of those wild and woolly tag team matches will feature next Tuesday's mat card at the Brock. Zorra and Lu Kimm will be on one side and Hi Lee and Hans Hermann on the other.

Zorra and Kimm were so burned up at losing this week's match that they demanded a return bout with another referee. Lee was more than willing but had to secure a new partner, due to Lord Layton being injured last Tuesday night.

This came about when some irate customer conked Layton over the head with a steel chair. Fans who witnessed this week's sizzling brawl will be back in droves next Tuesday. It was the wildest night in the history of the Brock.

Bobo Brazil, the Negro champion, and Warren Bockwinkle meet in the semi-final and this should be a mat classic between two fast and scientific grapplers.

The New Mexico sensation, Charro Aztec, making his first appearance here, will test Stan Mayslack in the opener.

Boston Blanks Canadiens 1-0 To Take Edge In NHL Semi-Final Series

By W. R. WHEATLEY

MONTREAL, April 4. (CP)—What may turn out to be the money goal of the series belongs to 21-year-old Jack McIntyre, Boston Bruins' husky young winger. It was the only goal of the game Thursday night but it was enough to send Montreal Canadiens reeling, a jolting blow that swung this best-of-seven Stanley Cup hockey semi-final in Bruin's favor, three games to two. The goal came after 43½ minutes of play and the victory climaxed a roaring comeback by the Bruins. They now have taken three games in a row—two of them on Boston ice. They return home for the sixth game Sunday in a commanding position to take the series and meet Detroit Red Wings for the Cup final.

All the glory wasn't McIntyre's. Up front, the Boston forwards covered their men. The defence was almost faultless. Behind them was a brilliant goaltending performance by Sugar Jim Henry.

Tough Loss

It was a tough loss for Canadiens, who took the first two games at home and then ran into a suddenly ferocious band of Bruins. After the double loss in Boston, the Montrealers counted heavily on taking the all-important fifth game at home and moving once more into command of the series. They poured 31 shots at Henry against the 20 that little Gerry McNeil stopped in the Montreal cage.

As the game wore on, it appeared it might run into overtime for the first time in the series.

The break came in the third period and the Bruins struck swiftly. Canadiens were hammering away at the Boston defence and trying to find some way of getting the puck past Henry.

From a scramble near the Boston blue line, Dave Creighton came out with the puck. He sent a short pass to Johnny Peirson and the two broke fast with McIntyre flanking them. As they reached the Montreal defence, Peirson rapped over a pass to McIntyre.

Fires Winning Shot

McIntyre, under full tilt, cut in sharply toward McNeil. As the goalie went down in an effort to save, McIntyre lifted the puck over him cleanly into the net.

It was the first goal of this series for McIntyre, a native of Brussels, Ont.

The lone goal proved all the Bruins needed. Canadiens tossed in power plays and tried everything. Then ran into methodical, close checking and a stubborn defence.

Canadiens had their best scoring opportunities in the first period when they outshot Boston 13-6. It was a rugged, rough period in which all seven minor penalties of the game were called. Four went to Canadiens and three to the Bruins.

But Henry was the rescue man cutting off everything down at the other end, rookie Leo Labine of the Bruins missed a gaping net with an open shot while McNeil was flat on the ice.

Good Defensive Game

With canny Milt Schmidt showing his mates how, the Bruins played a careful, deliberately defensive game through the first half of the second period. Then they opened up their offensive and when the period ended Canadiens were the ones who were hanging on.

Once the goal was theirs, the Bruins played even more cagily. Canadiens had only 10 shots on Henry in the final period.

Canadiens, weak down centre through the loss of two men because of injuries, filled the gap with defenceman Tom Johnson on the third line. Johnson played a hard, aggressive game. Paul Meger, leftwinger on the second line, was about the most effective forward.

WILLIE MAYS IS CHOICE

Willie Mays, 20-year-old New York Giant sophomore, was manager Leo Durocher's choice to replace Monte Irvin in the cleanup spot Thursday when the team arrived at Wichita, Kansas. Irvin broke his leg in sliding into third base Wednesday.

Pirate Players On Carpet Over Infractions

HATTIESBURG, Miss., April 4 (AP).—Manager Bill Meyer let his Pittsburgh Pirates know today they will have to obey training rules if they want to stay with the Bucs.

Meyer, who fined southpaw pitcher Bill Werle $500 and suspended him indefinitely for an unspecified violation of the rules Thursday, read the riot act before the field against the Chicago Cubs.

"This is only the beginning. I will not tolerate any more violations of training rules. I'm through covering up. We've got too many kids on our team and I'm going to protect them," he declared.

Meyer said waivers will be asked on Werle. The 30-year-old hurler, who cost the Bucs a reported $50,000 four years ago, was sent to Pittsburgh to await further instructions.

Werle didn't say what training rule he is accused of breaking. However, he intimated other Buc players may have broken some of the rules.

"If it's coming to me, I deserve it. But I'm being made a scapegoat."

Previously Warned

Werle was the third player Mayer has fined or suspended during a quarter-century of managing in minor and major league baseball.

The Pirate manager said he had previously warned Werle—and all players—either to observe training rules or be prepared for disciplinary action.

Werle has been anything but impressive this spring. He pitched 8 2-3 innings against major league opposition, giving up 10 earned runs.

Rickey said at Deland, Fla., that he wasn't familiar with Werle's reported infractions but that he had given Meyer his full support.

Werle won 12 and lost 13 games in his first year with the Bucs. In 1950 he had an 8-16 mark and last season won eight and lost six.

Mohawks Outscore Providence Reds 3-1

By The Canadian Press.

Cincinnati Mohawks outscored Providence Reds 3-1 in the battle of the disallowed goals in the American Hockey League Thursday night to chalk up their first victory in the best-of-five, semi-final series.

Providence leads the series 2-1 with the winner meeting Pittsburgh Hornets for the league championship and the Calder Cup.

Cincinnati scored three goals that were not allowed and the Reds had one called back.

Goalie Emile Francis of the Hawks had a shutout perking until 17:39 of the third period when Moe Morris slapped a 15-foot shot off Francis' glove that rolled into the net.

Chick Webster scored Cincinnati's first counter at 2:32 of the first period on a 30-foot screened shot. The Hawks scored two other goals, but each time the referee disallowed them.

There was no official scoring in the middle period, but Providence found itself scoring a goal which didn't count. The puck appeared to have gone in, but the goal judge said it did not cross the line.

Twenty-footers by Bob Fryday and Eddie Harrison, in that order, wrapped the game up for Cincinnati. Harrison scored another goal later, but the Mohawks were ruled offside on the play.

Livingstons Win Cage Crown

MONTREAL, April 4 (CP). — Tillsonburg Livingstons Thursday night won the eastern Canada senior basketball championship overpowering Y.M.H.A. Blues 57-49 in the third game of a best-of-three series.

Livingstons won the opener by a single point, 52-51, and the Blues scored a 53-47 triumph in the second game.

Tillsonburg now holds the Bunny Sabbath Trophy, emblematic of eastern Canada basketball supremacy, and will meet the high-powered Winnipeg Varsity Grads for the national title.

The finals are scheduled for Tillsonburg April 7, 8 and 9.

The first quarter saw the Ontario quintet go ahead 10-3 with brilliant play by Bob Simpson and Bob Phibbs.

During the last 10 minutes of the first half, the Blues crew came to life, spirited by playmaker Myer Knobovitch. Still, Livingston sharpshooters were hitting the net and held a 26-18 lead at the half.

In the third quarter the visitors, sparked by Simpson, kept the contest action-packed. Tillsonburg led 39-32 at the end of the period.

In the final stanza, Tillsonburg lost Simpson, Chuck Dalton and Phibbs via the five-foul route. Y.M.H.A. roared back but the visitors held on to the ball for the last two minutes of play to retain a winning margin.

Popular Demand In Jewelry For Coronation

BIRMINGHAM, England (CP)—Orders for coronation souvenirs are reaching this centre of Britain's manufacturing jewel trade from all parts of the Commonwealth.

Australia, which recently cut its imported jewelry by 80 per cent, and many other Commonwealth countries want samples of such trinkets a[illegible] bracelets, matching [illegible] other welry—[illegible] with Royal emblems. Coronet earrings and brooches will be produced by the thousand in the next few months.

"If the Coronation had been this September," said [illegible] Bloxide, director of a firm producing millions of brooches yearly for sale in the sixpenny stores, "we'd have had a struggle to get the stuff out in time."

Lines in cheap souvenirs include a popular design issued for the coronation of George VI—a crown in gilt and colored stones with white enamelled edging depicting the ermine base.

Union Jacks in red, white and blue stones with miniature inset photographs of the Queen and a jewelled E and the Roman number II, mounted on a gilt pin and separated by a gilt crown, will be two other designs.

Manufacturers say that souvenir fever is not so marked in the "expensive trade." One old-established firm of silversmiths, however, will commemorate the occasion by production of a set of six silver-gilt coffee and tea spoons, models of the anointing spoon used in the coronation ceremony and priced at about £7 15s.

Walter Dinsdale To Visit City

Walter Dinsdale, of Brandon, Manitoba, one of the youngest M.P's in the House of Commons is coming to Peterborough this weekend as guest of the Salvation Army.

Until last summer, when he decided to enter politics and scored an upset victory for the Progressive Conservatives by winning the riding from the Liberals in a by-election, Mr. Dinsdale was a lecturer on the faculty of the University of Manitoba.

Saturday night, he will be speaking at the Salvation Army Temple, and on Sunday he will be conducting the morning and evening services.

Sunday afternoon, Mr. Dinsdale will be presiding at the monthly Sunday afternoon musicale.

On Monday, he will address the monthly luncheon meeting of the Temple Men's Club.

This is the second time Mr. Dinsdale has visited Peterborough in recent months. In the fall, he addressed the Young Progressive Conservative Club just prior to the November provincial election.

During the Second World War Mr. Dinsdale served overseas with R.C.A.F. and was awarded the D.F.C. In Brandon, he is bandmaster of the Brandon Salvation Army Band.

Lawn Bowlers Start Planning For Season

Saturday, May 24th, is the day that clubs all over the province officially open their lawn bowling season, and the local club is no exception. It means that seven weeks from tomorrow the season will be under way; but what a tremendous amount of work must be done by committee before then.

Just now the membership committee is carrying the heavy load. It's their duty to contact all old members, seek new ones and, do what they can to assure a good membership. Ken Sloan is chairman of this important committee and he will be glad if any one who would like to join the club would phone him. He and his committee will see that you are attached to a rink.

This appeal is for any of last year's bowlers, who might have been overlooked or anyone who would like to try this wonderful summer sport. All you have to do to become a member of this, the largest lawn bowling club in Ontario, to play the game — be a man among men—and pay your way—it's that simple.

If you are interested contact Mr. Sloan or his committee now.

Will Retire Lady Liners At End Of Summer Season

OTTAWA, April 4. (CP)—The last of the famed "lady boats" of the Canadian National Steamships soon will be vanishing from the Atlantic seaboard scene.

The government-owned C.N.S., in its annual report to parliament Thursday, said the Lady Nelson and the Lady Rodney—ships that served valiantly in the Second World War—are being taken out of service at the end of the summer season.

The old passenger-carrying ladies won't be replaced with similar liners on the run between Montreal, Atlantic ports and the West Indies. Instead, the C.N.S. will provide prosaic freighters.

Mourners will include thousands of maritime couples who honeymooned to the semi-tropical West Indies on the lady boats before the war, and those who watched the ships come and go at Halifax and Saint John, N.B. They were regular visitors at the salt water ports for many years.

During the war, the Nelson and Rodney went into active service. The Lady Nelson was torpedoed by a Nazi submarine while at her berth in a British West Indies port. Refloated and repaired, she became a hospital ship and ferried thousands of disabled troops home from Europe.

The Rodney became a troop carrier. She was in heavy service between Halifax and St. John's, Nfld., for much of the war.

The C.N.S. did not indicate on Thursday what is to be done with the valiant old ladies. It didn't say much more than that the dowagers—the Nelson is 24 and the Rodney 23—are "no longer suitable for operation in this service."

Urges Speed-up In Adoption

TORONTO, April 4 (CP) — A speed-up program of adoption for older children now being kept in foster boarding homes was urged in the Ontario Legislature Thursday by Don Morrow (PC-Carleton).

Mr. Morrow, speaking in the legislature budget debate, said that although parents seeking to adopt infants had to be turned down because there are not enough adoptable infants to meet the demand, more than 9,000 other children were being cared for in foster boarding homes.

'Surely in this great province we have something better than temporary foster boarding homes to offer these children," Mr. Morrow said.

In most cases, such children "cannot have that sense of permanent security which comes from the feeling of actually belonging to a family."

Some of the older adoptable children had been in foster boarding homes for years, often shifted from one home to another. "Is it any wonder that some of these children become problems to themselves and to society at a later date?"

Rubber Workers Reach Agreement

AKRON, O., April 4 (AP) — The United Rubber Workers (C.I.O.) announced on Thursday night it had reached an agreement in a strike by 200 B. F. Goodrich Co. white-collar workers.

The strike has precipitated a mass walkout by 12,000 Goodrich production workers.

George R. Bass, president of U.R.W. Local 5, said the agreement must be ratified at a meeting, probably to be held today.

The office workers struck 37 days ago to protest the company's attempt to withdraw recognition of the union as their bargaining agent.

To Get Rectory If Horse Wins

FORT WILLIAM, April 4 (CP) —Whether St. Agnes Parish gets its new rectory depends on the results of a horse race.

The Rev. A. J. Hogan, Roman Catholic priest of the parish for the last 17 years, drew a horse in the Irish Hospital sweepstakes on the Grand National to be run Saturday at Aintree.

Father Hogan said Thursday that some of the winnings "most certainly" would be used for the rectory if the horse, Tavoy, is a winner.

The 60-year-old priest learned Wednesday that he had drawn the ticket given to him by a friend. If he wins he stands to collect $140,000. In any case he stands to collect $1,036 for drawing a starter.

Father Hogan's ticket is BC32678 and his psuedonym is Buick, used because a friend gave him a Buick for Christmas.

Lakefield WMS Asks Knitwear For Koreans

LAKEFIELD, April 4. (ENS)—Mrs. D. H. Charlton was hostess to members of the Women's Missionary Society of the United Church on Tuesday afternoon. "Easter Gave Us The Bible" was the theme of the devotional period conducted by Mrs. W. W. Leonard, who also led in prayer. Several stories of Easter were read from the Bible by Mrs. E. J. Millage, Mrs. Earl Orr, Mrs. C. S. Tanner, and Mrs. H. J. Brown.

The president, Mrs. P. H. Darling, conducted the business period, and welcomed the guests. Mrs. Orr gave the secretary's report and the financial report was read by Treasurer Mrs. J. McKerchar showing receipts from the Easter thank-offering to be more than $80.

Members were asked to bring in the knitted articles they are are making for a bale. The bale of clothing which is being prepared for Korea will be sent early in May. There is a great need for clothing for little children and especially for boys' clothing. All articles sent for shipment should be in good wearable condition as many of the recipients would have no way whatever of repairing them, although many are good sewers.

It was decided to hold a quilting the week following the Easter holidays. The president also announced that the Lakefield United Church was allocated $200 towards the new training school for leaders now being built in Toronto.

The meeting was closed by Mrs. Leonard, following which refreshments were served by the hostess, assisted by Miss Amanda Tourigney, Mrs. Darling and Mrs. Leonard.

British West Indians Hold Varying Views On Uniting With Canada

By JOE MacSWEEN.
Canadian Press Staff Writer.

Newfoundland's progress as a province of Canada is a matter of interest to many British West Indians who have long looked with favor on their big Commonwealth neighbor to the north.

The possibility of union between Canada and the British West Indies cropped up in the news again recently. British austerity, coming like a chill wind to the Caribbean colonies, has renewed speculation that confederation would be a healthy move.

Although there are powerful dissenting voices, F. Carlyle Noel, member of Grenada's Legislative Council, spoke strongly in favor of union in interviews during a visit to Canada.

And on the Canadian scene, Senator Neil McLean of New Brunswick served notice the matter will be considered in the upper house.

The Canadian Press, in a survey of the larger colonies, found that confederation is always good for an argument—in most cases merely academic—among the population of more than 2,000,000.

Newfoundland's decision to become a Canadian province, and subsequent development, was a subject that often popped up in these discussions.

Another factor was the situation in Britain, whose ups and downs are reflected sharply in colonial economies. One spokesman raised a plea for racial equality.

Dominion Status.

Underlying all West Indian plans and speculation is the fact that since 1947 a determined move toward Dominion status has been afoot in the colonies. A meeting of the 13 colonies in 1948 resolved that "this conference accepts the principle of federation."

Since then, the colonies strove to integrate their economies and effect such things as a customs union with the ultimate objective of political union.

In Trinidad, reaction to a Canadian union is on the whole favorable. The people would prefer such union to joining the United States. The feeling is for closer liaison with Canada both on sentimental and practical grounds.

One spokesman said the advantage of linking West Indian currency wtih the Canadian dollar is "obvious" but this attitude was flatly contradicted by Hon. Mitra Sinanan, deputy speaker of the legislature who described the proposal as "unthinkable —it could never materialize."

Another government official noted that Trinidad has a contract to sell all her sugar, her chief community, to Britain until 1960. And Trinidad oil would find a limited market in oil-rich Canada.

In Jamaica, a union proposal was backed 40 years ago and the strongest advocate today is Hon. Richard Youngman, president of the island's Chamber of Commerce. He is supported by a few other business men but the matter was never brought forward as a national issue.

Mr. Youngman says that Britain's financial position does not allow her to continue much longer bearing the responsibility for the Caribbean colonies.

Only alternative to union with Canada would be "independence through the hard road of local federation which seems far from achievement." Newfoundland's experiment should be encouraging to West Indians, Mr. Youngman says.

Discussed in Barbados.

In Barbados it was found that 30 years of trade relations have supported a desire for stronger ties between the Commonwealth cousins and the subject has been discussed increasingly during the last 10 years.

Such a need was emphasized during the Second World War when it became obvious the West Indies could not protect themselves. The desire was further strengthened two years ago when Britain cancelled colonial purchasing power toward London.

A Third World War would "furnish the needed impetus," one spokesman said.

In British Guiana, where the possibility has been seldom discussed until recently, an authoritive source declared "the whole country would be unitedly opposed to joining in any federation with Canada where proposals were not full and specific as they seem not to be at the moment."

Apart from political and economic considerations, this source said "the Guianese hate racial segregation."

"Unless the Guianese knows he can go to Canada and move around that country without embarrassment on racial grounds; unless he knows that provided he works hard enough he has an equal right and chance as any Canadian to become Prime Minister, his answer to Canada-West Indies federation will most assuredly be no."

Belov Sees Disloyalty In Russia's Army

FRANKFURT, Germany, April 4—(Reuters)—Pete Nicolayevich Belov, 33, former major in Russia's army, said Thursday the Russian army in East Germany is "no longer loyal to the regime."

Belov recently fled to the west to join his German fiancee.

Speaking at a press conference arranged by United States authorities, he said that if all Soviet army personnel in East Germany knew the U.S. grants asylum to all honest persons, "many thousands would want to come here as I have done."

The Communists have real cause for being afraid of their army, he said, because most officers and men are not sympathetic to the Communist regime.

But, Belov added, "criticism goes unspoken because criticism surely and quickly brings harsh punishment."

Truman To Work As Private Citizen

WASHINGTON, April 4 (AP)—President Truman said Tuesday he is going home to Independence, Mo., to work as a private citizen for peace and prosperity after he leaves the White House next January. He ruled out any possibility that he might run for the House of Representatives or Senate.

Truman made the statement at a turbulent, overcrowded press conference climaxed by his announcement that he had accepted the resignation of Attorney-General J. Howard McGrath.

McGrath had fired Newbold Morris, administration cleanup chief, a few hours earlier in a top-level row over a financial questionnaire sent to McGrath and other justice department officials.

Limps Into Port

SUEZ, April 4—(Reuters)—The Swedish tanker Trykon limped into port Thursday after an explosion which almost ripped her apart, started five fires and killed three of the crew. The 8,000-ton ship was steaming south down the Red Sea Monday when it was rocked by the explosion—believed due to oil fumes sparked by a blazing sun. The crew took three days to bring the ship 500 miles back to Suez.

Harold Morrow One Of God's Real Gentlemen

The late Harold Archibald Morrow was "one of God's real gentlemen" said Archdeacon W. P. Robertson in a brief funeral eulogy Thursday afternoon.

Civic dignitaries and close friends of Mr. Morrow joined his relatives in mourning the loss of one of Ontario's pioneer industrial engineers. The funeral service was in St. John's Anglican Church and burial was in Little Lake Cemetery.

Mr. Morrow died Tuesday in hospital after a lengthy illness at the age of 85.

End Of Name

Archdeacon Robertson regretted that the death of Mr. Morrow meant the end of a family name in Peterborough that had been well known and respected for three generations. Oughtry Morrow who died in 1848 was referred to as "one of our oldest and most respected merchants who grew up with the town." And Mr. Morrow's father, Robert A. Morrow who died in 1930, was a one-time president of the waterworks and was particularly interested in progressive agriculture.

Harold Morrow engaged in large construction contracts during the original industrial development of Ontario. While in Peterborough he followed his father's lead and interested himself in agriculture.

He bequeathed the Exhibition Park to the Exhibition Board in 1938 on the stipulation it should be used for agricultural purposes. Officially it is known as "R. A. Morrow Park".

Archdeacon Robertson also paid tribute to Mr. Morrow for his generosity to the local armories and the Prince of Wales Rangers.

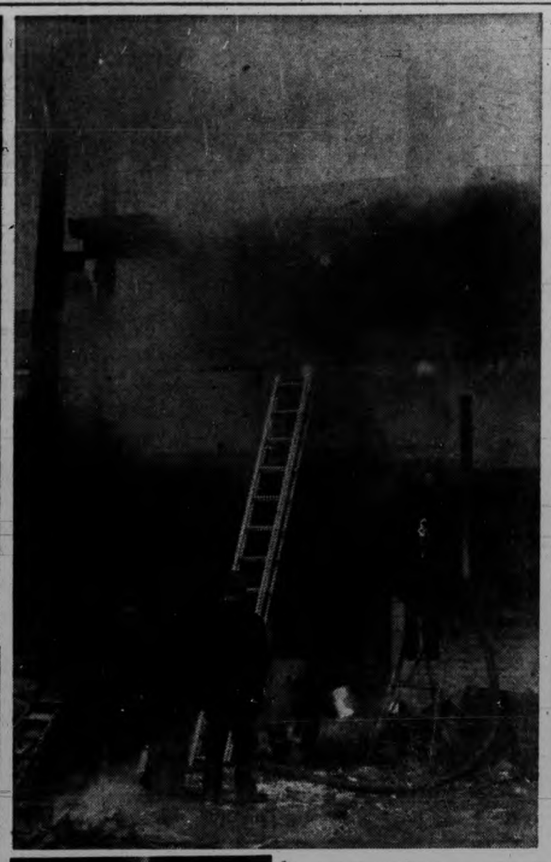
"Truly, he was one of God's real gentlemen," said Archdeacon Robertson.

Honorary pallbearers were T. A. Mackay, W. M. Cruthers, Gerald A. Wood, Fred Hills, Robert Abbott, W. C. Ackerman, Dr. S. Y. Walsh and H. C. Sootheran.

Active pallbearers were J. L. McKeever, Dr. T. E. Currier, Herbert I. Bradburn, Dr. A. R. Stevenson, Douglas J. Lawrie, and Col. J. A. Dewart.

Mourners were his three stepchildren: Mrs. Elizabeth Falkner of Peterborough, R. D. (Pete) Mulholland of Ottawa, and Mrs. H. W. (Mary) Welch of Toronto. Mr. Welch was also a mourner.

Among those attending the funeral were Mayor Hugh Waddell and several members of the city council.



FIREMEN WON in their fight with a downtown fire, Thursday afternoon and night, but not before the flames had raced through eight second floor apartments on Charlotte St. above Buehler's groceteria and the Hollywood cafe, which suffered water and some damage. Firemen Joe Nolan (left), Eddie Post and Bill Bloom pour water into the apartments from an adjoining roof. The fire began at the rear of the Hollywood cafe shown upper right. Mrs. Mike Ivanov (lower left), out shopping, rushed back to rescue her young daughter alone in their apartment. She became confused in the smoke and couldn't find her way out until her sister, Mrs. Ray Foster (lower right), followed her in and helped her and the child to the top of the stairs.—(Examiner Staff Photos).

Caused Disturbance During Fire, Man Fined

Fires can be exciting. In fact, they can be too exciting, as Joseph Primeau, 63, 709 Elcome Cr., found out Thursday night.

He became involved in a scuffle with Hotel proprietor D. A. McGillis when he refused to leave the hotel at Mr. McGillis' request at the height of the fire in the Braund block.

Constable Andre Dalton quelled the budding disturbance by taking Primeau to the Police Station where he spent the night in jail.

In police court today, he was charged with causing a disturbance in a public place. Primeau said "it was more of a misunderstanding than a disturbance."

However, he said he "would plead guilty to get it over with," as he did not want to come back again.

"Ten dollars and two fifty costs or ten days," said Magistrate W. R. Phip in disposing of the only case on the docket today. Primeau paid the fine.

Hastings County Undecided On Selling Forest

BELLEVILLE, April 4 — The question of selling Hastings county's forest property at Actinolite was laid over Thursday morning until the next session of Hastings county council.

Motions both to sell and retain the property were presented. Interested in buying the forest is the Moira Valley Conservation Authority.

Reeve T. C. Graham pointed out that if the forest were bought by the conservation authority, it would supervise it, but any money made from sale of timber would revert to the municipalities in the authority.

Reeve William Davis said he felt the county "had something in view" when it established the forest. He felt it should be considered an asset, rather than a liability.

Repurchase

If it were sold, he suggested a rider be added giving the county the opportunity to repurchase should the authority be disbanded.

Reeve Theodore Tryon of Bancroft asked what advantage there would be in having the authority own the forest. "If it were sold," he said, "the name Hastings would disappear. As it is, it is a monument to the councillors who established it."

After motions were presented both to sell and retain the forest, Reeve Graham then suggested the question be laid over for further consideration.

In 1929, they moved to Lindsay, where they have lived since.

Fear Few Germans Sold On Democratic Government

Author of the leading story in a Canadian magazine this month, entitled "Nazis Are Marching Again In Germany," Harry R. Downer of the Horizon Company of Canada was a visitor this week of Ald. A. B. Burrows.

He is now an importer of chinaware and a broad line of novelties. During the post-war period, Mr. Downer was engaged in organizing and setting up municipal administration in German towns and villages. That experience equipped him with the information for his story of resurgance of German nationalism and the spirit of Hitlerism.

"Germany has a democratic form of government, largely imposed by the Allies, but it is dubious whether more than a small minority are completely sold on democratic government, or even know the real meaning of democracy . . ." he said.

The Socialist Reich Party and its leader Otto Ernest Remer, temporarily in jail, present certain resemblances to Hitler and his stormtroopers.

Mr. Downer says it is wrong to say that there has been a rebirth of what is loosely called the Nazi spirit in Germany. Those who were Nazis are, with slight modifications, the same at heart. Hitler's mistake for them was not in causing the war, not in bringing about the death of millions of innocent people, but in losing the war.

"Remer is not important now. Call him a charlatan, a mediocrity, a demagogue, or what have you. At the same time remember that there are dozens of Remers in Germany, some more dangerous, some less. One day he, or one of his kind, could be the rallying point for the forces of extreme reaction, bitterness, hate of the Allies, want a nd general dissatisfaction which exist in Germany . . . The Remers of this world don't get anywhere in this country, in Britain, in France or in the United States,—but they do in Germany."

Ald. Burrows was interested in Mr. Downer because he knew from his experience in the first war quite a number of the villages and small towns in the Rhine country where new administrations were established in the wake of Hitler's destruction.

Approves Cease-Fire

ALBANY, N.Y., April 4 (AP)—Governor Thomas Dewey today approved a cease-fire on mink in northern New York State, after July 1. Dewey signed a bill prohibiting the taking of the fur-bearing animal with guns, except for scientific or exhibition purposes or the mink is caught destroying property.

Arrest Union Official

LOS ANGELES, April 4 (AP)—Harry L. Ruppenthal, 44, former secretary-treasurer of the Postal Employes Credit Union in St. Louis, was arrested by the F.B.I. Thursday. Ruppenthal allegedly absconded last Sunday with more than $100,000 of the Credit Union funds in cash and U.S. Treasury Bonds. At the time of his arrest he had $110,500 in cash and $75,000 in U.S. Treasury Bonds.

Cecil Osborne New President Y's Men's Club

Cecil Osborne, a member of the Y's Men's club for more than 10 years, was installed as club president Thursday night at the weekly meeting.

William Moorhead, past president, conducted the installation ceremony and charged the new executive with its duties for 1952-53. Retiring president, Joseph Barnard, presented the gavel to Mr. Osborne, wishing him success during the year.

Besides Mr. Osborne, the executive includes Donald Harwood, first vice-president; Robert Miller, second vice-president; Harry Powell, secretary; Jack Wilson treasurer.

Honor Retiring President

After the installation Jack Richardson congratulated Mr. Barnard on his work for the past year and presented him with the past president's pin.

In the president's annual report Mr. Barnard briefly covered the year's events, inter-club meetings, Rudy Weims' visit, the Christmas party, the Cinderella ball, and the 25th birthday party.

"We have strengthened the bond with the Y.M.C.A. itself and are feeling more deeply the need of service within these walls as well as outside. The time we have to put on actual man-power here is limited, for the business and home life of each member must come first," said Mr. Barnard.

Referring to Earl Spenceley, a club member who lost his life during the Zack's building fire, Mr. Barnard said, "We regret the passing of a loyal and valuable member. It is my hope that a memorial picture and a suitable inscription may be placed on the wall of this meeting room. Earl's heroic passing while rendering unselfish service will live forever in our hearts."

Mr. Barnard then mentioned the work of the various club committees and projects.

Line Too Costly

BOSTON, April 4 (AP)— The Boston and Maine railroad says its 110-year-old 16-mile section of line from Portsmouth, N.H., to Berwick, Me., has an average passenger load of eight-tenths of a person per day. The line adds that it costs $50,000 a year to run one eastbound train and two westbound trains on that section. A company spokesman said Thursday night the line will request permission from the Interstate Commerce Commision to abandon the section.

Legislature Gives Permission For US Trucks Use Highways

TORONTO, April 4 — (CP) — United States trucks will roll across Southern Ontario, carrying goods in bond between Detroit and Buffalo.

But there won't be many of them, and they will have to pay for the privilege.

This was announced in the Legislature Thursday by Premier Frost when the Assembly approved the principle of a bill to permit temporary use of the province's highways by trucks carrying goods in bond.

Mr. Frost said the government will keep strict control over such trucks, and was permitting them to enter the province only as an "emergency service" to speed the transport of U.S. defence supplies.

The bill will apply almost entirely to U.S. trucking between Detroit and Buffalo, using the route along No. 2 and No. 3 Highways which is more than 100 miles shorter than the route around the south shore of Lake Erie between the two cities.

Traffic Limited

The traffic would be limited, the Premier said, because of the "total inadequacy" of the two highways.

He indicated the move is being taken because of requests from "many influential quarters" for unrestricted traffic by U.S. trucks.

One request came from External Affairs Minister Pearson, who had written the Premier that the freedom of Canadian trucks to use United States highways might not be continued unless reciprocal rights were permitted to U.S. truckers.

The Premier and Acting Highways Minister Dunbar outlined the restrictions under which U.S. trucks will be allowed to enter.

Since they will be limited to U.S. defence needs, Mr. Frost said, they will not total more than 50 a day.

Traffic would be limited to certain days and certain times. Ontario load limits, generally lower than in the United States, would apply. Trucks would have to buy Ontario licence plates and pay an amount equivalent to the province's gasoline tax on the basis of their mileage.

Both the Premier and Mr. Dunbar stressed that the measure is a temporary one.

Mr. Frost told reporters after the sitting that if Ontario is required to permit unrestricted U.S. truck traffic, it may have to consider "another type of road."

Suggest Toll Road

There was a suggestion of a possible toll road in one of the Premier's remarks in the Legislature when he said that the ultimate solution to demands for unrestricted traffic was a limited-access highway across Southern Ontario "for which the users will pay."

The province was in no position at present to do that, however, and present highways could not bear the weight of unlimited U.S. traffic.

"We certainly can't accept the traffic problems of the city of Detroit and we certainly don't intend to."

Opposition spokesmen generally supported the government's arguments.

W. L. Houck (L., Niagara Falls) said he was forced to oppose the bill because of the possible effect it might have on employment in the railway centres of Niagara Falls and Fort Erie.

Mr. Frost replied that railroads would not be affected since the trucks would be carrying only material that now is being trucked the long way around.

The Legislature Thursday also gave second reading to the bill providing grants in lieu of municipal taxes on provincial government property.

Liberal House leader Farquhar Oliver opposed the provision under which the Municipal Affairs Department will assess the government property. He said the "dice are loaded" against municipalities because they could not assess the property themselves.

The statement brought a sharp reply from Mr. Dunbar, who said the government was always considered "fair game" by the municipalities.

The assessing would be done in line with assessment practices in the municipality concerned, the minister said, and the local council could appeal the decision to the Ontario Municipal Board.

"We're the ones that are giving," Mr. Dunbar said pointedly. No municipality in Canada had ever received such a grant before.

A Bill, passed with little comment, will increase the sessional indemnity and expenses of members to give them an extra $960 a session. A government Order-in-Council will restore the full pay of cabinet ministers to $10,000 a year.

They have been receiving $8,000 since a voluntary reduction went into effect during the depression years.

Legislature Has Short Session In Manitoba

By The Canadian Press

One legislature prorogued and another adjourned its session Thursday as provincial lawmakers continued clearing up as much business as possible before Easter.

Lieut. Gov. R. F. McWilliams prorogued the fourth session of the 23rd Manitoba Legislature, the shortest since 1943. It opened Feb. 5.

Ninety bills were passed and a record budget calling for expenditures totalling $49,099,000 was approved in the quiet session.

However the Manitoba Legislature may meet in special session this summer, depending on the outcome of a power referendum in Winnipeg April 16. The city's voters will decide on a government proposal to form a provincial power monopoly. If approval is given, a special session may be called to implement the plan.

Newfoundland's Legislature was adjourned until April 15, after Isaac Mercer (L-Port de Grave) defended provincial expenditures on economic development.

Announce Tenders

A jubilant Nova Scotia Legislature heard Premier Macdonald announce tenders have been called for construction of the Strait of Canso causeway. The $23,000,000 project is expected to take three years to complete. The house gave second reading, approval in principle, to a bill to impose a 10-cent royalty on gypsum.

United States trucks will be able to transport goods across Southern Ontario between Detroit and Buffalo under a bill approved in principle by the Ontario Legislature. Premier Frost said strict control will be kept on the trucks which are being allowed in only as an "emergency service" to speed the transport of U.S. defence supplies.

The federal government was asked by the Saskatchewan Legislature to apply the principles of orderly marketing and parity prices to all farm products. The resolution declared the international wheat agreement did not give sufficient protection to the farmer against exchange rate and other economic variations.

Alberta's Attorney-General Lucien Maynard told legislators that legal proceedings to challenge interprovincial livestock embargoes will not be taken until the results of federal-provincial talks which ended in Ottawa yesterday are announced.

Charge Doctor

MAYSVILLE, Ky., April 4—(AP)—A 72-year-old doctor is accused of raping a 25-year-old mother of two children in his office. A grand jury indicted Dr. H. H. Morgan on complaint of Mrs. Lillian King. Dr. Morgan denied the charge.

Father's Desires Must Yield To Welfare Of His Child

TORONTO, April 4 — (CP) — The Supreme Court of Ontario said Thursday that a father's wishes about the education of his children should be respected unless they conflict with the best interests and welfare of the children.

The opinion was given in a dispute between Mrs. Alice I. Smith, and her husband, L. Havill Smith, a Hamilton lawyer. Mrs. Smith, a Roman Catholic, enrolled her son, Richard Geoffrey Smith, in St. Michael's College here. Mr. Smith, an Anglican, sought to have the boy removed to another school.

The ruling said: "We are of the opinion that it is clearly in the boy's interest and to his advantage that he should remain, pending the trial of the issue, in St. Michael's college."

The court granted an appeal by Mrs. Smith from an order of Mr. Justice D. C. Wells that the boy be removed from St. Michael's. A second part of Mr. Justice Well's order, which was not appealed, was that the issue of Richard's education should go on trial.

Mr. and Mrs. Smith are separated. No date was announced for the trial.

Dollar Sets Record

NEW YORK, April 4—(AP)—The Canadian dollar soared to a 17-year high Thursday, closing at a premium of 2 1/16 cents in the New York Foreign Exchange market. This meant that traders were willing to pay $1.02 1/16 in United States currency for one Canadian dollar.

Resigns Position

OTTAWA, April 4 (CP)—F. L. Trethewey, the Defence Production Department's billion-dollar man, is resigning. The 58-year-old aircraft contracts administrator, who handed out almost $1000,000,000 in aircraft production contracts in the last year, will leave his appointment April 15, the department announced.

DADDY'S HOME—Little Margaret Ann Lowery, 4, hugs and kisses her daddy hard when he returns to Toronto on rotation leave from Korea. Her daddy, Cpl. Jack Lowery, is just as happy to see her. Mrs. Lowery, at right, is so excited she doesn't know whether to laugh or cry.

Scold Coldwell For Remarks Regarding Party Discipline

OTTAWA, April 4 (CP)—Jean Francois Pouliot (L, Temiscouata) Thursday took issue with M. J. Coldwell for a speech in which the C.C.F. leader suggested that some parliamentarians put party discipline and loyalty before their consciences.

Mr. Pouliot said he could not "stand for that kind of language being used with regard to the membership of the House of Commons." He had always given his colleagues "the benefit of the doubt."

Mr. Coldwell said he stood by his statement, made before a dinner of Ottawa C.C.F. supporters outside the House, that at times members "felt bound by party discipline or by party loyalty either to remain silent or to vote not always according to the dictates of their conscience."

He agreed that Mr. Pouliot was right in raising the question, but "I believe what I said to have been a fact and I want to say so in the presence of my colleagues in the House, for whom, on the whole, I have the most profound respect."

Speaker Ross Macdonald said he, too, had wondered whether "some exception" might be taken to the remarks, and reminded Mr. Coldwell that House procedure provides that no member may refer "derisively" to another member as "a servile follower of the government."

"I did not go that far," Mr. Coldwell suggested.

GOOD FIRE FIGHTING

Inspector Ray Simmons of the Fire Marshal's Department was right on hand for the $175,000 fire Thursday in the Braund block. He had dropped in earlier to talk over some business with Fire Chief George Smith. Inspector Simmons praised the work of the Peterborough fire department. He said he appreciated that it was a stubborn fire to put out, particularly so because of the false ceilings that served as hidden runways for the flames.

Fire Victims Lose Everything As Blaze Sweeps Apartments

Twenty people are homeless and five others were driven from their apartments by the $175,000 fire which gutted the Braund Block Thursday evening. None of the occupants of the eight second-storey apartments over the Hollywood Cafe and Buehler's Groceteria were able to save any furniture. Insurance on the contents was light and, in most cases, the families lost everything they had. Two mothers escaped with what clothing they could carry in their arms and their small daughters.

Mrs. Mike Ivanov, a mother of three girls was nearly overcome with smoke when she ran up to her apartment to rescue her 23-month-old baby daughter.

Mrs. Ivanov, who lived in apartment 4—the front apartment over the Hollywood Cafe—was out for a few minutes shopping at Loblaws when she heard the fire reels. Thinking of her baby, Jane, up in her crib, she rushed out of the store and up the stairs.

"When I got to the top of the stairs I couldn't see for the smoke," Mrs. Ivanov said.

Covered Baby

"I got through the dining-room and bathroom and into the bedroom. I covered the baby over with blankets from the crib and started back out, but when I got to the hall I was so scared that with the smoke and everything I was all mixed up and I couldn't find the stairs. It was then I heard my sister calling me.

"We found each other and I gave the baby to her and another man who helped us down the stairs to the street."

Mrs. Ivanov's sister, Mrs. Ray Foster, 291½ Louis St. when she heard about the fire rushed to the apartment. Floyd Murray, who works at Austin's Jewellery Store arrived just behind Mrs. Foster and carried the baby down to the street. He had come to the fire worried about his son Bob's apartment which is in the same building.

Returned For Clothes

Mrs. Ivanov made a second trip to the apartment accompanied by two firemen, one of them Joe Healey, and managed to salvage some of the baby's clothing from a clothesline.

Mr. and Mrs. Ivanov have two other children, Joan, a twin sister to Jane, who is in Civic hospital with measels and another daughter Ann, 9, who was at school when the fire broke out.

The Ivanovs lost everything in the fire; their furniture which included a new refrigerator, stove, oil burner, washing-machine and bedroom suite, and all their clothing. They estimate their loss at $2,000 with nothing covered by insurance.

Flames At Window

Mrs. John Nesbitt, was sitting in her apartment with a friend Sylvia Williams. Suddenly, she saw flames shooting past the window from a garbage chute, suspended between the two floors, underneath the rear balcony. The Nesbitts' apartment is at the rear above the Hollywood Cafe, and while Mrs. Williams hurried out with six-weeks-old Deborah Nesbitt in her arms, Mrs. Nesbitt gathered up some clothing for the baby and followed with the carriage where baby Deborah had been sleeping.

She took time to frantically dial the Fire Department, but dialed the wrong number and got a taxi company instead. When she reached the street, firemen were arriving as the alarm had already been turned in. The Nesbitts are staying with Mrs. Nesbitt's parents.

Bob Murray arrived home in time to rush upstairs through the smoke and flames which were spreading rapidly through the building and made his way out with some clothing and valuable papers. Mr. Murray estimated his loss at $2,000 which was covered by insurance.

"It was an awful shock," declared E. C. Everitt, who explained after the fire how he arrived home on a bus just as the fire was at its peak. He had been out of town for the day, and Mr. Everitt said he had an idea "it was my place". He hurried from the bus terminal and found his apartment in flames.

He had a few anxious moments as he inquired about his wife and six-year-old son Teddy. He learned that they were both safe at the home of his mother, Mrs. Irene Everitt on Chamberlain St.

With Baby Sitter

When the fire was discovered, Mr. Everitt said that Mrs. Everitt was not in the apartment. Teddy had been left in the care of Wendy Edwards. Mr. Everitt said he had repeatedly warned baby sitters when they were taking care of Teddy that they were to get out as soon as there was any hint of fire.

He said that he had recognized that the building was "a fire trap for years," and that regular fire drills had been a routine with he and his wife and son.

Mr. Everitt said he had a quantity of valuable papers which were not protected from fire and he fears they have been destroyed. His insurance, he said, would cover only about one-third of the value of his furniture.

Rings Left Inside

Madame M. Merriam was unable to get into her apartment in time to save a box of valuable rings and other jewellery. After the fire was completely out, Constable John Conlin made his way into her apartment and brought out the box containing the valuables which were not damaged.

Four diamond rings were among the jewellery saved from Madame Merriam's apartment after the fire and it was at first feared that one of the valuable rings in a small box had been lost. However, after Madame Merriam had decided to throw the box away, Mrs. F. H. Johnston at whose home Madame Merriam stayed for the night, examined the box again and found the ring in it.

Hotel priprietor Donald A. McGillis offered free accommodation to those who were forced out, and several of the fire victims took advantage of his offer, others ar-

CRUMBLING IN GAPING HOLES, the roof covering the Hollywood Cafe, Buehler's store and eight apartments was on the verge of falling through today. The fire, after gutting the apartments and forcing out the families, sliced up through the roof. Fearing a repetition of the Zacks fire when the roof collapsed on firemen, the firefighters Thursday took all precautions. Portions of the roof (above) fell during the heat of the blaze.—(Examiner Staff Photo)

Disaster Agencies On Hand To Give Help At Fire

As soon as the fire in the Braund block reached major proportions Thursday afternoon, agencies in the city, geared for such an emergency, swung into action. One of the first to pitch in was the Salvation Army. The "Sally-Ann" soon had a constant supply of sandwiches and coffee going the rounds of weary firemen and police officers.

Mrs. W. R. L. Blackwell and Mrs. Charles Ray of the Red Cross offered accommodation for all 26 people who were forced to sleep elsewhere for the night. Twenty of them were entirely burned out and lost most of their possessions. But two families of six people in the Anthony block needed only overnight accommodation. Their apartments were just smoked up.

The Red Cross also offered the firefighters coffee, sandwiches and smokes. Max Comstock was the third member of the Red Cross who remained on duty throughout the 5½-hour fire.

Also standing by in case of emergency were six men from the Peterborough Division and the Kawartha Division of the St. John Ambulance Corps. This time there were no injuries and they were not called on for aid.

A Nesbitt ambulance was also on hand in case there were any casualties.

Coffee and sandwiches were supplied by the King George and the McGillis Hotels.

Late in the evening Alderman Norman Graham started up a collection among the spectators to help pay for the cost of the refreshments.

Drop 30 Houses From First Plan

Cobourg Lumber Company may not complete the original housing plan on their High St. subdivision. The property which the company bought from Cecil Hayes extends from High St. to Western Ave., north of Frank St.

The block was laid out for 67 dwellings, Mr. E. V. O'Toole recalled to the Examiner. The last of 35 houses are now being finished, and will soon be ready for occupancy, but the company is also offering for sale ten of its lots indicating, apparently, that some 30 other houses which they had intended to construct here will not be proceeded with, at least not now.

Twenty-five of the Company's projected houses are now occupied by their owners.

Fire Burns Belongings Of Former City Man

TRENTON, April 4 — A stubborn fire that swept through an unoccupied house early Thursday destroyed all the possessions of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Dunk, who had intended moving into the house on Sunday.

Mr. Dunk, manager of a Trenton theatre, and formerly of Peterborough, said everything was lost, except a piano he had stored at the theatre.

As there were no heating installations in the house, it is believed the fire was caused by defective wiring.

Humane Society Re-elects Mrs. S. O. Shields

Mrs. S. O. Shields was returned by acclamation as president of the Peterborough Humane Society at the society's annual meeting held in the Green Room of the Y.W.C.A. Thursday night.

Mrs. Shields was named as the society's representative to the Red Cross and Community Fund. Mrs. Morley Powell and Miss June Fraser were elected as representatives on the Film Council. Mrs. W. T. Fanjoy will represent the Humane Society on the Local Council of Women.

Fred Holmes was appointed auditor.

The patrons of the society for the coming year are: Gordon K. Fraser, M.P., and Mrs. Fraser; His Worship Mayor Hugh Waddell and Mrs. Waddell; Mr. and Mrs. F. D. Kerr; and Mrs. Stratford Martin.

For the election of officers, Crown Attorney John A. Bradshaw acted as chairman.

Hugh Stuart, of Hilltop Farms, was the guest speaker. The subject of his talk was "Horses, and the Power of Kindness in Training Them." Mr. Stuart was introduced by Morley Powell and thanked by Fred Holmes.

Mr. Stuart's remarks were followed by three movie films in color: "Champions," on the raising and breeding of pointers; "Fighting Fish," an Australian film; and "Holiday in Manitoba," a travelogue on the provincial parks of Manitoba. Ellsworth Ingall operated the projector.

Humane Society Inspector Bruce Menzies delivered his annual report and was dressed in his new olive green uniform which he was wearing for the first time.

Refreshments were served by the social committee. Miss Phyllis Denne, the convener, was assisted by: Miss June Fraser, Miss Bernice Garside, Mrs. H. T. Smith, Mrs. S. R. Hamilton, Mrs. S. Weaver, Mrs. M. Powell, Mrs. William Cole and Miss Helen Lytle.

The table centre was decorated with Dresden figurines, spring flowers and yellow candles.

Tea was poured by Mrs. Stan Shields and Mrs. Harold Scott.

The Rev. C. G. Boyd opened the meeting with a prayer.

Mike Ivanov 25 Years In Canada Today

Mike Ivanov should be celebrating today but the 25th anniversary of his arrival in Canada from Europe is forgotten. For the umpteenth time he's beginning to build his home again.

The Ivanovs lost practically all their belongings in the fire which gutted the upstairs apartments above the Hollywood Cafe Thursday night.

With a cheery grin, the C.G.E. structural steel worker said today that with only $25 he landed "single and happy" in Canada, ready to start life anew in his adopted country.

He was one of 300 Central Europeans who crossed the Atlantic. Like his travelling mates Mike was leaving his family behind, his mother who died in 1936, his brother and sisters.

Rode Rods

From his arrival Mike has been gradually climbing a rough ladder of life. Without much money Mike's main means of travel were the "rods" and there he recalls many dangerous adventures, catching, missing and riding the "freights" from one province to another.

But he settled first in Saskatchewan and there farmed for four years, moving again east into Ontario and to Chatham. After five years, of farming there he found his interests were mainly in chick hatcheries. Until last June when he came to Peterborough, chicks have been his business. Now he works at the C.G.E.

Mike met his wife Isabel in Toronto and they now have three children, Ann, nine years old, and 23-month-old twin daughters, Jane and Joan.

Recalling her close escape from the fire, Mrs. Ivanov said, "I never leave the children alone but I needed oranges and had just slipped out to the store".

Upon her return she found the hall filled with smoke and broke through the smoke blanket to the baby in the crib.

"I threw the covers over the baby and ran. I believe Mr. Murray (Floyd Murray) took the baby in the hall."

The other twin, Joan, is sick in the hospital.

By the way birthday greetings will be echoing through Mrs. Ivanov's sister's home Saturday. Mike will be celebrating his 50th birthday.

Councillors Oppose Appointment Of Chief

COBOURG, April 4 — Controversy has arisen in Cobourg town council over the proposed appointment of Fire Chief Kenneth Baird as district deputy fire marshal.

Councillors Smith and Curtis felt that the town was going to pay for the Ontario fire marshal's plan to have the fire chief look after the counties' interests.

"It looks like more give than take," said Councillor Curtis.

The appointment would follow the fire marshal's plan to coordinate all fire fighting forces in the province for civil defence.

Council decided to ask the fire marshal's office to send a representative to discuss the proposal in detail.

Company Did Not Violate Arbitration Decision—CGE

The Canadian General Electric Company today denied violating the decision of the arbitration board that was reached over the dismissal of 16 welders. R. T. Bogle, works manager said in a statement:

"There is much misleading publicity in connection with the welders' case. I want to assure you that the Company has not violated the decision of the Arbitration Board and that the actions of the company throughout have been in the best interests of all employees.

"The decision of the arbitration board on this case is absolutely clear, 'the Company was justified in discharging the employees.' In considering the means the board said in part 'it is essential for the orderly settlement of grievances that the grievance procedure should be used to settle any differences . . . under the circumstances what other action could the company have taken than that which they did . . . past stoppages had resulted in suspensions and warnings and apparently had not been effective . . . and further . . . under these circumstances it would appear that the union is not entirely blameless in this matter.'

"As is sometimes the case the board added the recommendations that the company consider the reinstatement of 14 of the 16 welders. The company has considered this recommendation and advised the union that after appraising all circumstances, has decided not to re-instate the welders.

"A complete copy of the award of the Arbitration Board may be obtained by any employee from his foreman.

Good Welders

"These men were good welders. The company's production has been hampered by their loss. So far as production is concerned we could make use of the services of some of them now. Nevertheless, it is essential to all of us that we work in an orderly shop where problems are solved in an orderly way. Because these men persistently ignored orderly means for settling the dispute and in fact, refused to follow the advice of the union to return to work, we regretfully conclude that we cannot reinstate these properly discharged men.

"The basic issue has been and continues to be whether or not there is to be orderly collective bargaining at C.G.E.

"The company-union agreement gives protection in all matters of wages and working conditions. The contract recognizes that disputes may sometimes arise and provides an orderly procedure for resolving them. Orderly surroundings and procedures are just as important in an industrial plant as in any other section of our community."

Library Starts Spring Cleaning

The Peterborough Public Library's exterior will receive a cleaning and painting during the next two months.

The decision to go ahead with this renovation was made Thursday night at a meeting of the library's board of directors.

The board also authorized the purchase of a microfilm viewer, venetian blinds for the librarian's office and outer office and glass tops for four desks.

A letter was received from the city council granting the board's request for a grant of $48,300 to cover this year's expenses. The council also notified the board that the assessment of heating costs for the building had been lowered $2,189 to $1,200.

The board went on record as endorsing the recommendation of the Massey Foundation for the establishment of a national library.

Parking Regulations

The attention of all motorists is called at this time to the fact that the City of Peterborough has in its traffic bylaw regulations prohibiting motor cars and other vehicles to be parked overnight on city streets. Under these provisions no vehicle shall be permitted to park or stand on a city street for longer than six consecutive hours. The strict enforcement of this provision by the Police is necessary in order to permit the operation at night of motorized street sweeping equipment.

Plans Complete for Poultry Marketing Vote in Peterborough . . Conference of Central Ontario 4-H Club Leaders Sees Need of Assistants . . Federation of Agriculture Assisting But Not Sponsoring Poultry Scheme.

"The strength of the scheme for marketing poultry and eggs which we propose," said Ken Betzner of Waterloo, at a producers' meeting last week in St. Thomas, "is that the primary producers will have greater financial strength for the buying and holding of eggs than any private speculator."

Mr. Betzner is chairman of the provisional board of the Ontario Poultry Producers' Marketing Scheme, and also a member of the Milk Control Board of Ontario.

"We're gambling that we will have more money to protect the farmer than any one in private enterprise."

He said that if it were only an Ontario scheme he would not be behind it because he realized "that without the three egg-producing provinces of the west there would be a tendency to create inter-provincial competition."

Polls in Peterborough

Voting throughout Ontario takes place on April 17, 18 and 19. The Peterborough county vote will be taken at the following polls: Lakehurst in Harvey; Ennismore; Norwood for Asphodel and South Dummer; Westwood; Warsaw for Dummer and part of Douro; Springville; Apsley for the northeastern townships; Keene; Douro; Havelock for Belmont - Methuen; Bridgenorth; Selwyn; Lakefield for parts of Douro and Smith; and in Peterborough at the agricultural office for the convenience of farmers on the urban fringe of North Monaghan, Douro, Otonabee and Smith.

Frank C. Paterson, agricultural representative, is in charge of the three-days' voting as representative of the Ontario Department of Agriculture.

Corresponding plans are projected in Manitoba, Alberta, and Saskatchewan.

The core of the proposal is to set up reserve funds through the deduction of one cent a dozen from the prices of eggs marketed as a means of providing floor prices for the protection of the producer during periods of the year when there is a surplus.

Mr. Betzner estimated that such a national fund should amount to more than one million dollars. It might be one million and a half. He believed it could be supplemented by bank loans up to 75 per cent on inventory, based on the strength of the organization.

Two ballots are to be presented. One on the marketing of eggs and the other on poultry meat. If the vote is overwhelmingly in favor of poultry marketing, that plan will not be put into effect until the board has had experience in the marketing of eggs.

Polling officers will be neutral. No person in the poultry industry may be chosen. It will be necessary to secure 66 2-3 per cent majority of the vote.

Mr. Betzner said the Ontario Minister of Agriculture had set the total of the potential vote quite high. For that reason it was necessary for every person in favor of the scheme to turn out and vote.

Peterborough meetings this week are at North Smith Friday night and at Douro on Saturday night.

In the opinion of Mr. Betzner the price of eggs now would be down to 24c if the government had not maintained the 38c floor, netting the producer about 32 cents.

FEDERATION HELPING

Ontario Federation of Agriculture is assisting but not sponsoring the poultry and egg market scheme, said J. A. Ferguson, Port Stanley, first vice-president of the Federation, in a statement last week.

"The Ontario Federation has never proposed any such marketing scheme," he said. "The Ontario Federation has assisted a wide range of basic producer groups to get organized as commodity groups, and has assisted these groups in many ways after organization was completed, such as in public relations, secretarial service, etc. . .

The Federation has provided such assistance for the Ontario Poultry Producers, and is still assisting them at provincial, county and township levels to explain the proposed marketing plan, and assist them in the taking of the vote.

The scheme that is to be submitted to the Ontario poultry producers is being sponsored and presented by the Ontario Poultry Producers' Association. . ."

They were awarded the 1952 scholarships of the Nuffield Foundation of England. The two young men will spend six months in a study of British farming practice.

ASSISTANTS NEEDED

Increasing responsibility is devolving to junior club leaders, and it is becoming more important that assistants be recruited to gain experience and to share in the opportunity of service to the boys and girls who are coming into project clubs in increasing numbers.

That was one of the proposals at the Central Ontario leaders' conference at the Normal School Tuesday. Prominent in the practical phases of the discussions were Lindsay Anderson, of Campbellford, veteran club leader in Northumberland, who has a fine record of nearly 20 years among the young people of his community, and Keith McIntyre, president of Peterborough Junior Farmers

"I guess I did exaggerate just a little bit," replied the Hoosier senator in an apologetic tone. "Come to think of it, that fifteenth crow had only one foot on the cob."

IS ROTARY PRESIDENT

People are willing to pay more for frivolous things than for the very necessities of life, said Garnet Rickard of Bowmanville, speaker this week as guest of Whitby Rotary Club. Mr. Rickard, is president-elect of Bowmanville Rotary for 1952-53.

"There is more interest in growing tobacco than in growing apples, and more money in growing a crop for the malting companies than for the milling business," Mr. Rickard said.

Greatest loss to Ontario agriculture, in his opinion, was the luring of rural young people to the factories and shops of the cities. This drift has left the average farm operator today a man of 60 years.

Fifty-one per cent of the rural school children of Ontario were not given an opportunity for more than a primary school education, Mr. Rickard said. Most of the present day farmers had very little worth while education in the education of a farm.

Years ago it was not considered necessary for a man who was going to farm to have an education. "Stop cultivating a plant, and what happens,—it withers and dies." That is what happened to many adult farmers; their minds were not cultivated when they should have been. Problems of today are too big for many of them.

"We have some farmers who are living on their land, working in factories, doing a bit of farming nights and week-ends.—in other words, taking a second place to the laborer in the factory."

Mr. Rickard said the farmer with a $50,000 investment hadn't as good a living as the foreman in an industry with no investment in it.

CLUB ANNOUNCEMENT

R. E. Bell reports that the organization of boys and girls' clubs, especially for dairy and beef calves, will be completed in the next three weeks. All prospective members are requested to file applications early, and Mr. Bell hopes that there will be a large increase of new members. Parents are asked to encourage the young folks to joint at least one of the clubs.

Belmont Boy Thumbs His Way 26 Miles To Attend 4-H Tractor Club Meeting

Bruce King, a Belmont township boy of 14, hitch-hiked 26 miles to attend the organization meeting of the 4-H tractor maintenance club in the Ontario Department of the 4-H tractor maintenance club in the Ontario Department of Agriculture office Thursday night.

When the meeting ended about 10.30 p.m. Bob Bell, assistant agricultural representative, was posed with the problem of getting Master King back to his home and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Albert King, who live two miles east of Havelock.

It has been the practice of Mr. Bell in recommending these project clubs to rural parents to assure them that generally their youngsters would be safe in good hands.

When the Examiner looked in at the end of the meeting, there was Bruce King 26 or more miles from home at 10.30 at night. As the gathering of 14 boys adjourned until next month, Mr. Bell reached the decision that it was up to him to take the boy home, thereby fulfilling his undertaking of guardianship which probably had not contemplated that kind of mission.

It transpired that Master King had heard about the tractor maintenance club from his teacher, but the pith of his motive in setting out for Peterborough for that first meeting still eludes Mr. Bell. He probably knows the quotation: "A boy's will is the wind's will, and the thoughts of youth are long, long thoughts."

Certainly, Mr. Bell was confident that, if there were many youngsters in the county as determined as Bruce King in overcoming difficulties of attending 4-H Club meetings, the new title, adopted from the corresponding United States rural organization, would acquire bright lustre in Peterborough county.

One of the H's stands for heart, and obviously this Belmont lad must possess a stout heart to reach his destination 26 miles from his township home.

Irvine McIntosh is tractor club leader, and the speaker Thursday night was Ralph Gregg, field man in tractor maintenance club work in this district for the Ontario Department of Agriculture.

Girls' Achievement Day Honors Paid To Leaders

"A greater interest, a larger number and an increasing standard of work is clearly seen at Achievement Day over the past three years" stated Mrs. H. Shearer, District President of Peterborough County Women's Institute as she spoke to the 75 Homemaking Club members and their Leaders at the Achievement Day held Saturday, March 29th at the Y.M.C.A.

Members from eight clubs were present at the largest Achievement Day to ever be held in the County. For making this possible thanks was expressed to the Leaders for their work and co-operation by the Home Economist, Jean Noble as she presented Leader's badges to the following ladies, Mrs. B. K. Sinclair, Bailieboro; Mrs. A. Althouse, Belmont; Mrs. Clarence Mann, Fairview; Miss Eleanor Whitfield, Fraserville; Mrs. F. C. Bennett, Havelock; Mrs. Evelyn Anderson, Keene; Mrs. M. Payton, Lakefield; Mrs. Harry Digweed, Warsaw. These ladies were assisted in their work by Mrs. Alex Watt, and Mrs. R. Hazelden, Bailieboro; Mrs. W. Woodbeck, Havelock; Mrs. H. Kempt, Keene; Mrs. V. Farrow, Lakefield; Mrs. Fred Crowe, Warsaw.

Judging Program

Following registration the members took part in the judging work, presented oral reasons and answered a cereal quiz, thus giving them a review of what they had learned at the meetings of the 'Cereal Shelf' project and adding to this knowledge in many cases. Miss Florence P. Eadie, Supervisor of Junior Extension, Women's Institute Branch, Miss Elsie Irvine, Napanee, and Miss Ruth Shaver, Uxbridge, Home Economists assisted with the day's program.

Each club had spent considerable time in preparations for the afternoon program when skits and demonstrations were presented. 'Around the Clock with Cereal' was the favourite topic: Two Bailieboro members Isobel Kidd and Arlene Bateman, and Joan Hornsby, Dora Elmhirst and Edith Althouse of Belmont capably demonstrated the making of muffins. The following members represented their Clubs: Havelock, Lois McKay, Jean Kennedy, Dorothy Graham, Darlene Hadley and Lilian Toms; Warsaw: Effie McMillan, Barbara Davis, Doreen Little, Lulu Payne and Yvonne Tedford; Keene: Doreen Brown, Carol Ellison, Mary Joe Doris. Graded as very good were the Clubs of Fairview, Lakefield and Fraserville. Using a flannelgraph to illustrate menu planning Betty Allen, Mary Cockburn, Gwen McKee and Nola Wilson introduced a new method for displaying their ideas. All the club members took part in the Fraserville skit. Noreen Corkery, Theresa Farrel and Bernadette Wallbridge of Lakefield were very natural in their presentation of 'Around the Clock with Cereals'.

Excellent Exhibits

Preparaing exhibits appeared to be an easy task for the clubs this year as they were all of a very high standard. Fraserville used 'Corn and its products' and the comments given by Catherine Waterman were excellent. Barbara Mann representing the Fairview Club showed poise as she gave the comments for 'Whole Grain versus Refined Cereals'. Maureen Crowe, a new member, told the audience about 'Wheat on the Cereal Shelf' in a very capable manner for the Warsaw Club. Betty Delladonne spoke for the Lakefield Club, while the comments were given for the other Clubs by Betty Toms, Havelock; Eileen Davidson, Keene; Norma Fraser, Belmont; and Donna Wood, Bailieboro.

'Cottons may be smart' a popular clothing unit was selected for the County for 1952-53. The Club will be started in the fall with the Training School for Leaders. Each girl will learn to select styles which are becoming to her, to recognize quality cottons and make a simple cotton dress. During the summer Clubs from Fairview, Fraserville, Keene, Lakefield and Bailieboro will carry on the work of the Garden Club.

A Day In The City

As the day ended the girls were looking forward to April 15th when they plan to tour plants of interest in the city, attend a dinner as guests of the Women's Institutes and the Federation of Agriculture, and view a Fashion Show to be presented by the Junior Farmers in the evening.

Seed Cleaning Process Complicated Business

There is quite a difference in the appearance of the average 5-year old boy before and after his bath. And the same is true of seed as it comes from the thresher and after all it goes through a modern processing plant. In both cases the principle is the same. Bathing, like seed processing, removes a lot of dirt.

Based on actual tests, 100 lbs. of thresher-run clover seed will probably shrink to 75 lbs. when put through an ordinary fanning-mill; the 25 lbs. removed consists of chaff, soil, and the coarsest weed seeds. But the 75 lbs. left is by no means pure seed. It still contains many weeds including the bad ones some of which are classified as "noxious" under the Seeds Act. This is where the facilities of a modern processing plant are put to good use because weeds of the same general weight, shape, and size as the clover seed cannot be removed by the farm fanning-mill.

Without modern machinery the only way one could separate these weeds from the good seed would be to pick them out by hand and this would be quite a job. With a small clover seed like alsike, for instance, there are about 680,000 seeds to a pound and with the larger red clover seed 272,000. In a pound of hay or grass seed like timothy there are no less than 1,134,000 seeds.

Special Methods

The machines which do this work are highly complicated and expensive, and they use a variety of processes. For gummy coated seeds like ribgrass, the clover is mixed with damp sawdust which collects the sticky weed seeds into balls which are then ejected from the screens. Sometimes the clover is mixed with iron dust which sticks to certain weeds, and then electric magnets draw them out. Sometimes special funnels are employed which catch weed seeds of slightly different shapes. In other cases the mixtures are soaked in brine and the difference in specific gravity of the clover and weed seeds permits separation.

It's a pretty complicated business this processing of pure, tested seed, but it is vital work and the very foundation of good farming. Good stands of grasses and clovers cannot be produced from doubtful or inferior seed but only from high grade supplies, thoroughly tested for purity and germination and handled by reputable dealers.

NOTICE

Producers will have the opportunity of voting by ballot on the marketing scheme for eggs on April 17, 18 and 19, 1952. Polling stations will be established at strategic centres in each county or district. Due notice of the location and the time of voting will appear in this paper next week.

Each producer of eggs and poultry who wishes to vote will be required to declare his eligibility and to register with the returning officer before receiving a ballot. Your Agricultural Representative is the Chief Returning Officer for your County or District. Deputy-Returning Officers will be appointed for each polling division.

Sonja Henie Hopes Jinx Year Over

NEW YORK, April 4 —(AP)— Theh "Golden Girl" who parlayed the figure eight into fame and fortune hopes her "jinx year" is over.

"I think," said Sonja Henie, "that we've licked the jinx. Bad things are supposed to come in threes—and we've had our three. In Kansas City it started, when I broke my ribs."

Actually the hectic year started last summer when the long and profitable ice show partnership with promoter Arthur M. Wirtz was terminated.

Wirtz signed Barbara Ann Scott, the former World and Olympic champion from Ottawa, to take her place.

Miss Henie pulled her own show together but found many of the big city arenas closed to her. She had her own portable rink constructed and took her troupe to many places which had never seen an ice show.

In Baltimore a whole section of stands collapsed on opening night and scores were injured. Just before she was to open a two-week engagement in a New York armory, she announced the show had been cancelled because the management had requested an additional $1,000,000 safety bond.

"In spite of the troubles," she said, "it as been the most successful tour I've ever had. I didn't expect to do half as well. It's hard to say, in terms of dollars, how successful we've been because we've had to buy so many expensive things, like the rink and the ice-making machines and the lights. We can use them season after season."

In Kansas City she said she broke three ribs.

What happened was that Miss Henie took off on a leap and came down on the point of her right skate on some soft ice. She picked herself up and went through the show.

The strapping on her ribs had just been taken off when the jinx hit a second time in Baltimore. More than 200 suits have been filed by those injured.

Then came the demand for a larger bond from New York armory officials.

"You cannot arrange for a $1,000,000 bond in a few minutes," she said. "It takes time and we did not have enough time."

The next day she filled the gap with a three-week date in Havana's Blanquita Theatre, largest in the world and with its own ice stage.

Protest Dumping Of Foreign Clothing

TORONTO, April 4 (CP)—The Toronto District Labor Council (A.F.L.-T.L.C.) Thursday night protested "dumping" of foreign clothing goods on the Canadian market, particularly from the United States.

L. H. Rose, of the International Ladies' Garment Workers Union said Canadian-made goods can be obtained at the same price as the imports and are "much better made and made a much better living for Canadians."

He said that "overproduced" U.S. firms were reducing their prices to ship to Canada because they do not wish to "destroy the price category" of the brand at home.

Canadian Tourists Bring On Deficit

OTTAWA, April 4 — (CP) — Canadian tourists shot the works on their spending abroad last year, cutting Canada's tourist-dollar account to a deficit of $9,000,000—the first deficit in a quarter-century or more.

Spending abroad—mostly in the United States—climbed $134,000,000 to a peak $280,000,000, the Bureau of Statistics reported Thursday.

Visitors to Canada cut their total spending to $271,000,000, down $4,000,000 from the previous year.

Opium Dens Derelicts' Haunt Barred To Siam's Natives

By BILL BOSS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

BANGKOK, Thailand, April 4 (CP)—Every customer in the place was a derelict. There were 200 or more, rooted to their stalls by a long broad pipe and a dime's worth of opium.

Some were raised on an elbow, inhaling deeply; others flat on their backs lost in narcotic dreams. Some were solitary smokers; others shared a pipe between them.

The den I saw is one of many in Bangkok, where opium is forbidden to the Siamese but open to the foreigner. Most addicts are Chinese, and a few are Indians.

One buys the opium at a wicket near the entrance. Ten cents buys an hour's smoke of average quality. The best smoke sells for 25 cents.

Interior of the den is like a huge barn, with an upper storey reached by a ladder stairway. The room is partitioned at shoulder height into stalls for two men each and the floor on which they sit or lie is raised about three feet. A visitor walking down the narrow aisles sees the customers on either side at thigh level.

On the ground floor were 100 men in various states of trance, and another 100 were upstairs.

All were almost gaunt, with sunken eye-sockets, and none seemed to mind being seen in the dingy, sultry half-light of the place. Some were youths, most were middle-aged.

Dens Prosperous

In Bangkok they say that if you see a person who elsewhere might be taken for a malnutrition case the chances are he is an "opium-eater." There is a den in every quarter of the city, and all prosper.

The pellet of opium is put on the ladle end of a long-handled, narrow spoon which then is inserted into a glass-walled lamp. There the brown stuff is heated over a flame until it becomes volatile. When judged ready to be lit, the pellet is put into the large wooden bowl of a pipe, which then is turned upside-down with the bowl over the lamp. A few puffs and it is smoking like an ordinary pipe.

Opium pipes are so large that two men handle them, one doing the puffing while his partner holds the bowl over the flame. Once the thing is going it is passed between them.

There isn't much noise—only a subdued murmur, despite the number of smokers.

"These men live only to spend their time here," said my interpreter. "They forget their families, their friends and their work.

"All they want is the little money it takes to buy their daily opium and back they come."

Polite Refusal

TCA Will Increase Scheduled Air Service

MONTREAL, April 4—(CP)—A twenty-seven per cent increase in scheduled air service over Trans-Canada Air Lines routes from coast to coast will become effective April 27, it was announced Thursday.

The additional service will include a fifth daily trans-continental flight in each direction, and increased flight frequencies on many inter-city routes.

The company will also extend four-engine North Star service to the Maritmes and Newfoundland for the first time.

Research Base In Antarctic

MELBOURNE (Reuters)—Australia this summer plans to establish the world's first permanent research station on the Antarctic continent.

The government already is building a special ship to take an expedition of highly-skilled technicians through miles of pack ice to the land shelf of the continent itself.

The expedition will build and maintain a permanent weather station on the Australian section of the continent, but the exact location is not yet known.

Many Australian scientists feel Antarctica may yield vast mineral resources to countries controlling it.

A government spokesman said recently that the purpose of the new station will be "to maintain Australia's and Britain's interests in the Antarctic, to survey unexplored regions of the Antarctic coastline and to carry out scientific work."

For the last five years the government has been maintaining research expeditions at lonely snow swept islands in the Antarctic Ocean.

Two stations set up in 1947 on Heard and Macquarie Islands have provided valuable data for scientists throughout the world on geomagnetism, cosmic rays, radio-physics, seismology and aurora in the Antarctic.

The stations each have 17 men and about 25 huts. A powerhouse provides electricity for heating and lighting.

Every six hours results of meteorological observations are transmitted by radio to Australia, South Africa and New Zealand where scientists correlate and analyze them.

Blind, Crippled Form Sport Club

VANCOUVER — (CP) — Canada's first chartered sport club for blind and otherwise handicapped persons was started here five months ago.

It is known as the Indoor Sports Club, and is part of an international organization which has 3,000 members in the United States, Great Britain, Alaska and Hawaii.

Membership in the Vancouver group has grown to more than 75. The members are of all ages; from their early teens to late 70's. Some are blind but most are wheelchair cases.

An auxiliary, able-bodied group has also been formed to help the handicapped at their meetings which are held at least once a month.

The group, at first, had only a gymnasium for their use but now members have been offered the use of the swimming pool at one of the community centres in Vancouver.

Hog and Cattle Marketings Show Decline

Ontario farmers are rolling with the punch, a phrase from the sports fraternity.

In the Ontario agriculutral report this week, Perth county says, "Hog and cattle marketings have been orderly, and numbers normal during the week." And this is from Huron: "Several farmers are looking for good pasture farms in the hope of holding their high priced cattle over for a better market."

Glengarry reflects the same disposition in the pinch: "Farmers are marketing no more live stock than necessary."

That's rolling with the punch, even the socking one-two — the embargo on cattle and the bottom fallen out of the cheese box.

Grey county reports "seed cleaning plants are rushed with business; work is done only by appointment." In Essex seed cleaning plants are kept busy as farmers prepare for spring seeding.

Sowing of clover on fall wheat is fairly general as indicated by Lambton, Prince Edward and several other counties. In that county there is a glimmer of light and cheer: "Farmers are generally well pleased with the price agreed upon for peas, corn and tomatoes."

Lanark says a sale of pure bred cattle this week resulted in an estimated loss of $100 per head as a result of the embargo.

The overshadowing of the hog markets is reflected in weak prices for young stock. South Simcoe reports weanlings sellin at $2 to $5 each. In one case a sow with nine little pigs, three weeks old, sold for $45.

Not Conceited About Oscar Malden Says

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD, April 4—(AP)—There's no fear about Karl Malden "going Hollywood" because he won an Oscar.

He doesn't even plan to move his family here from the east until he's sure his movie career will be fairly permanent.

"I've signed a contract with Warners", said Malden, who got the supporting actor award in "A Streetcar Named Desire."

"I'll wait and see how the studio feels about me after the end of the first year. If it looks as if I'll be staying here, I'll bring my wife and daughter out from New York."

Malden was signed to the contract before he won the Oscar. The deal, which calls for three films a year with one permitted away from the studio, is rather unusual. Most studios no longer put character actors under contract, and Malden is not exactly the pretty-boy type.

He Knows It

"I admit I'm not the usual leading man type," Malden said. "But I'd like to play some of the biography kind of things that Paul Muni did with 'Pasteur' and 'Zola'."

Unfair Advantage.

The academy victories of Malden, Kim Hunter and Vivien Leigh this year and Judy Holliday and Jose Ferrer last year have aroused some controversy. In each case, the player had played his film role on the stage for a year or more. This has been termed an unfair advantage over those actors who create their roles solely for films.

Malden doesn't agree, however.

"For every advantage, I can show you a disadvantage. On the stage, you do a play for two hours, building up to an emotional climax. When you do the role in the movies, you might come in and read three lines of the most emotional scene.

"On the stage, you have complete freedom of movement. In movies, you have to stand on certain marks and be conscious of the camera. You have to forget many of the things you learned while doing the stage role. I don't see that doing the stage character offers any unfair advantage.

Traffic Crashes Take Two Lives

OTTAWA, April 4 — (CP) — A woman and man were killed Thursday night in separate traffic mishaps, and four members of a Hearst, Que., family were injured in one of them.

June Mathilda Green, 22, of Thessalon, Ont., was killed when the automobile in which she was a passenger crashed head-on into a car driven by Emile Audet, 50, of Hearst.

Audet suffered chest injuries, his 48-year-old wife fractured a wrist, and sons Rene, 29, and Louis, 27, suffered head and face lacerations and shock. They were brought here to hospital from the scene of the crash about 10 miles west of the city.

The driver of the second car, Gordon Fleck, escaped with leg bruises.

In another accident, Pierre Laurier, 68, of Hull, Que., was killed when knocked down by a taxi at an intersection in Hull.

8 Employees Take Lie Detector Test

TORONTO, April 4 — (CP) — Officials of American Airlines said Thursday eight Canadian employees of the Toronto ticket office were given lie-detector tests in Buffalo last month after mysterious disappearances of money from a cash drawer. The losses totalled about $500.

Eight persons who had worked in the office during the period of the disappearance were asked to take the tests "to clear the air." Police found no evidence on which to prosecute.

Explorer Regrets Failure To Hold Wrangell Island

OTTAWA (CP)—The story of how Canada lost claim to strategic Wrangell Island, in the Arctic Ocean north of Siberia, was related here by Dr. Viljhalmur Stefansson, noted Arctic explorer.

The white-haired veteran who has lived more than 10 years in the Arctic, told a Canadian Club luncheon that Canada nearly had the island—at longitude 180 west and 300 miles north of the Arctic circle—which would have been invaluable as an air, radio and weather station base.

Following a 5½-year expedition north of Alaska and Canada which he led for the Canadian government from 1913 to 1918, he interested Sir Robert Borden in the importance of discovering and claiming all the islands of the Arctic north of Canada.

One island in which he was particularly interested was Wrangell Island.

Wrangell had been discovered, he said, by a British captain named Kellett, thus giving the empire a prior claim. Later it had been visited and mapped by two United States ships, and the captain of the latter called it Wrangell—the name of a Russian explorer he knew to have conducted an unsuccessful search for it.

It was first occupied, however, by a crew of Canadians who were shipwrecked there, giving Canada a prior claim to its title.

After his return from his expedition in 1918, he persuaded Sir Robert Borden to let him head an expedition of discovery and to claim all the islands he could find in the name of the empire and Canada. He then went to London to obtain final permission.

Stefansson's "Mistake"

While there, he had made the "mistake" of confiding his secret to Sir Ernest Shackleton, then preparing to head an expedition to the Antarctic. Sir Ernest soon was seeking to make the Arctic trip in place of Stefansson.

A long political argument followed over who would head the expedition. It ended in a cabinet deadlock, and finally, "somebody suggested that since nobody could decide who should head the expedition, nobody should go at all."

At this point several United States scientists interested in the project made their own expedition to Wrangell, headed by a Canadian chosen by the University of Toronto.

However, a short time later, Ramsay MacDonald's Labor government in England, and in an effort to make friends with Russia, "gave them various things they (the British) didn't want.

One of the concessions was Wrangell Island.

Dr. Stefansson, who is on a lecture tour, stressed as he has in previous addresses that Canada is lagging far behind Russia in northern development.

He admitted he had not foreseen in 1918 what present world conditions would be like, though he had always believed in the importance of northern expansion.

Canada was still "looking southward. Russia was actively expanding north, and this expansion was bringing her closer and closer to Canada.

Make Attempt To Salvage Grain

PORT ARTHUR, April 4 (CP)—One of the biggest salvage operations in western history speeded up today when the first lake freighter of the season, the Scott Misener, sailed with a cargo of tough wheat.

It is part of the west's 250,000,000 bushels of moist grain, harvested last fall from rain and snow-sodden fields. Terminal dryers at Prairie, coast and lakehead terminals have worked throughout the winter to put part of it in shape for market.

When the Scott Misener steamed into port Thursday, lakehead terminals were crammed with 71,500,000 bushels of grain; 6,460 railway boxcars held another 11,500,000 bushels.

Canada's largest lake freighter took on a cargo of 640,000 bushels. She is bound for Sarnia.

At Winnipeg the Board of Grain Commissioners announced that shipments of damp grain would go to dryers at Buffalo, Duluth, Superior, Wis., Sarnia, Walkerville and Toronto.

Male Bathing Suits Scanty, Revolution In Few Years

TORONTO.—When man bared his chest to the sea in the early 30's, it was a triumphant exposure. By then public censure had lost its bite. Womens' organizations and their protests had failed. Even the Toronto Harbor Commission's objections were overruled. All had lost the battle to keep bare-chested men from the city's beaches.

The evolution of the male bathing suite had taken a marked step forward.

But the Canadian bathing suit story really begins at the turn of the century. Then men wore one-piece black cotton jersey garments which hugged the legs just above the knees, and sleeves came down almost to the elbows. The outfit was likened by a high-cut round neck. Some of the more daring suits had a red band around skirt and trousers.

Before 1919 skirt and trouser legs crept up an inch or so, sleeves became shorter, and some suits actually had no sleeves. Then the armholes were banded in red. This color contrast gave spirit to an otherwise deadly garment.

First Two-Piece Suits

By 1922 and 1923 the first two-piece lifeguard suit made its appearance. The top was rather like mens combination underwear; it was stepped into, then the shorts were pulled over the underpants. The color was still dark, with a white cotton belt.

One year after the lifeguard suit was seen on the beaches, another change was noticeable. The black top was changed to white, then stripes appeared on the white top. At the same time, the all-wool knitted ribbed suit was becoming extremely popular. It was one-piece and all black. The chest was still covered, but the skirt was creeping higher.

Competitive swimming was catching the public fancy in 1928 and the competitive suit became all the rage. It had to be cut for action and the speed suit was the answer. This slippery article had a low-cut back, with an extra hole on each side of the suit, just below the armholes. It was all black.

A year slipped by, and armholes were cut lower. So low in fact that the only way of holding back and front of the suit together was with a couple of straps on each side. This number was all navy.

The austere feminine world rolled dizzzily when a renovated lifeguard suit made its debut in 1930. It was the first out-and-out attempt for a bare chest. It was the thin edge of the wedge. A two-piece suit, its trunks and top were held together by a small zipper. One zip and a bare chest was revealed. Some places allowed this extreme behavior, but, on the whole, men still remained well covered.

But a few years later, suit evolution moved. Brief cut wool trunks appeared in Canadian stores, without tops. There were stripes on either side of the trunks, and the woven cotton belt remained. The belts buckle was always a thing of interest. Sometimes it was a metal anchor, sometimes a dragons head.

In 1934 the first satin lastex trunks were produced in California. In a variety of shades, they were briefly cut from bright shiny lastex. Just as important as the defininte style change was the changeover in bathing suit production methods. The weaving trade had moved into a field hitherto held by cotton jersey and wool.

Alfie Phillips was the man who brought the satin trunks to Canada. British Empire professional champion for many years and the man was has thrilled thousands by his spectacular high dives, Alfie still is a great swimmer. Annually his aquacade show draws giant crowds at the Canadian National Exhibition.

Satin Lastex Trunks

Alfie saw the trunks in California, liked them, and thought there would be a good Canadian market for them. He showed them to a Canadian bathing suit manufacturer, and satin lastex trunks appeared in this country.

At first there was definite resistance to satin trunks. They were called "ladies undewear" and fit for the lingerie department. Buyers laughed at them, and retailers were afraid to show them. However, once the initial hurdle of convincing shop owners to display the trunks was accomplished, they sold rapidly.

In 1939, just before the war, boxer-type swim shorts made of plain-colored gabardine were produced. With elastic shirring at the waist, these shorts were designed for the figure which could not wear skin-tight satin lastex trunks. Floral prints appeared in lastex and then in gabardine suits.

Today most men are wearing either of these two suits. But there have been more recent changes. Latest is the even briefer trunks, which are cut below the waist, the man's Bikini suit. Then there are trunks with holes cut over the hips, with fine straps covering the gaps.

There is a decided trend toward matching swim outfits. Sweethearts and husbands and wives can buy suits of the same material with similar patterns. Beach jackets and towels are designed to make the outfit complete. Some swimming suit companies have designed suits for the whole family; all of the same material but of varying styles to fit each member.

BRIGHT SPRING FANCIES in this boy's frontier suit, LEFT, with pants in gabardine and a gay all-rayon check shirt while, CENTRE LEFT, is a good-looking casual shirt styled with new "Palmroll" collar and in, CENTRE, is the sportsman shirt, stunning wear for boys. This grey flannel three-button, single breasted suit, INSIDE RIGHT, combines with a handsome all-wool vest for smart distinction. The casual air for boys is expressed in high style trousers, RIGHT, with simulated leopard belt and shirt trimmed with two-color stripes.

St. James' W.A.

St. James W. A. met in Wesley Hall on Tuesday. Mrs. H. Turner president, opened the meeting by reading a poem entitled "The Cross Was His Own."

Mrs. N. Brown in the devotional period spoke on "The meaning of the Cross." Several items of business were discussed and settled.

Conveners all gave splendid reports on their work.

The meeting closed with the Mizpah benediction in unison.

Color Chart For Men To Follow

The well-dresed man is thoughtful when he dresses. He is careful to wear the right-colored tie with his blue suit. He thinks before he put on his shoes: will these look well with my suit?

Unfortunately there are many men who do none of these things. They dress without a thought, throw on any tie and wear whatever shoes are within reach. Some of these men may be thoughtless, but the majority are just not sure what is correct. For these men the following correct color combination has been arranged:

With the blue suit: A grey hat is correct; a white shirt; a tie with red, blue and grey combinations or a solid colored tie of these three shades; black, grey or blue socks and black shoes.

With the grey suit: A brown or grey hat; a white or blue shirt; a red, blue or grey tie or combination of same; grey, blue and maroon socks and black or brown shoes.

With the brown suit: A brown or green hat; a sand or green shirt; reds, greens and browns are good for ties; red, brown and green socks and brown shoes.

With the green suit: A brown, grey or green hat; a white or sand shirt; a tie with brown and green combinations or solid shades of same; green or brown socks and brown shoes.

Tyroleans, Straws Perk Up Hat Wardrobe

What hat to wear is an age-old question. Modern man has an easy time compared to the man of history. Nowadays a man can wear a hat which makes him look best according to the suit or clothes he wears and according to the occasion. The he-man of old sometimes had his hat pre-selected because of his occupation, station in life or what the law demanded.

In pre-Christian times, when the Romans freed a slave they gave him a specially designed hat to show that he was a free man.

In higher circles of society— and this carried on almost to our century— a mans rank was designated by the hat he wore. Kings, of course, wore a crown, and it is hard to believe that these sturdy rough rulers of yore wore their crowns at all time . . . into battle . . . in court . . . attending events . . . eating . . and we would not be surprised if they wore it sleeping Hats showed authority.

Selection may have been lacking in the old days but now one can go to a wide variety of stores and select a hat for every occasion. If every young man starting out in business life owned four good hats he would have a good start. He can add as he travels upwards in life. These four start a basic hat wardrobe:

A snap brim leads the list. It goes with single or double-breasted suits of worsted, cheviot or flannel, and woollen or worsted coats. Its neat ,businesslike lines make it ideal for work and day-to-day wear.

An off-the-face hat is good for business wear and goes well as a dress-up hat. A good way to triple up on these two hats is to choose a different brim edge (welt, bound, raw or felted) for each.

A telescope or Tyrolean is correct with casual or liesure-type clothing like tweeds or Shetland and gabardine jackets. A Tyrolean can perk up any leisure outfit and is a refreshing change from the week-day style.

A straw hat completes the basic list. The snap and style a new straw gives your summer outfit as well as the head comfort it provides earn it an honored place among your headwear necessities.

The younger man may already find a telescope type hat included in his wardrobe as this type of hat traditionally sets off the younger face. This year's popular color which matches almost any suit is blue. From this he can branch out to a smart snap brim for business and, as his social life increases, procure a dignified off-the-face hat.

Today's smart youth uses his head and makes his hat work for him, adding polish to an otherwise neat appearance.

Site Of First Coffee-House Marked By Plaque – London

LONDON—(CP)—In a drizzle of rain, crowds watched a ceremony commemorating the opening 300 years ago of London's first coffee-house.

Sir Leslie Boyce, Lord Mayor of London, stood hatless in an alley to unveil a plaque on the Jamaica Wine House in Cornhill Street.

"Here stood the first London coffee-house at the sign of Pasqua Rosee's Head, 1652," said the plaque.

The first popular use of coffee in London is traced to Daniel Edwards, a merchant who returned from abroad with a taste for coffee, a supply of beans and a Greek servant, Pasqua Rosee, to brew it for him. In 1652 the Greek set up business in a booth where the Wine House now stands.

Here was issued the first advertisement extolling the "vertue" of coffee. Rival shops soon opened and the coffee-house became a London institution, attracting the intellectuals of the age.

The historian MacAulay wrote tnaat the coffee-house was the Londoner's home and said those who wanted to find a "gentleman" usually asked not for his address but for the name of his coffee-house.

The coffee - houses became known as "penny universities" because of the penny admission and because of the calibre of the men who frequented them. Lloyds of London, the famous insurance firm, started in a coffee-house.

The Times, in a special article, noted that Samuel Pepys the diarist recorded that he helped excite enthusiasm for the Dutch wars by starting rumors "at the coffee-house where it will spread like leprosy."

The Manchester Guardian had this wry comment on the ceremony at Cornhill Street:

"That this taste so early acquired . . . has survived in spite of the things British caterers can do to the coffee bean and the liquor it produces was a line which the Lord Mayor did not take up."

Young Singers Entertained

Junior and intermediate choirs of George St. Church enjoyed a supper party Wednesday as guests of the senior choir. Eighty four young folk with the Rev. and Mrs. A. A. Mathews, Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Allen and Mrs. Ross Moore as guests of honor were seated at tables decorated in the Easter colors with spring flowers, miniature Maypoles and balloons Mr. Mathews thanked the young singers for their contributions of praise throughout the year. Votes of thanks to the senior choir members were expressed by Eileen Armstrong for the intermediates and Nickie Chaggares for the juniors. Following a harmonious sing song the two choirs returned to the rehearsal in the church. The supper is an annual treat and was convened by Miss Bernice Greatrix.

Give Easter Readings

At the home of Mrs. Alex. Fitzgerald, 283 King St., on Wednesday afternoon was held the meeting of Group Six of George St. Church W.M.S. Leader Mrs. F. Horton presided. Roll call was answered with readings on Easter. Miss Doris Horton gave an inspirational message on Easter which was fully appreciated. A social hour was then enjoyed with Mrs. S. M. Ward and Mrs. F. Shaw serving refreshments.

Table Arrangement Admired

Very attractive tea table arrangement for the P.C.V.S. Home and School Association "open house" on Wednesday was much admired. It was the work of Mrs. Ken Kingston, and she used an epergne of cut glass filled with spring flowers and scattered little bouquets of mauve flowers in tiny crystal holders on the table top. Hostesses on this occasion were Mrs. W. G. Ovens, Mrs. N. E. Elliott, Mrs. H. Bradburn, Mrs. R. R. Faryon, and Mrs. W. J. Hamilton The tea was convened by Mrs. H. J. Long, assisted by Mrs. F. Dobson and her committee. Mrs. W. Switzer, Mrs. H. J. Moebus, Mrs. C. G. Collins and Mrs. Paige Rowell poured tea and Mrs. C. S. Browne and Mrs. J. Low, Mrs. W. H. Frise and Mrs. Jack Fanning were in the receiving line. The candy booth was convened by Mrs. Frise and Mrs. J. M. Beatty was in charge of the home baking table.

Fete Gym Teacher At Reunion Party

A wonderful and complete surprise came to Miss Caroline Littlefield when she entered her regular Thursday evening class in the Y.W.C.A. gymnasium last evening. Miss Littlefield, who has been physical director of the "Y" for many years, was greeted by women who had been in her classes as long ago as 30 years as well as the present class which had arranged this reunion.

The oldsters kicked off their shoes and joined in an hour of gym routines for the fun of it. They had all signed a guest book as they entered the gym and this was later presented to Miss Littlefield.

A program of entertainment arranged by Mrs. M. Banks was enjoyed in the recreation room where the tea table was laid with centre bouquet of spring flowers which were a gift from Miss Mary Harstone a former class member.

Karen Hooey played several piano solos and Mrs. Dorothy Sullivan gave a "happy gypsy" dance number. Mrs. Al. Spencley, a class member of the early 1920's, sang several favorite songs. Then, several girls wearing the old style gym bloomers and middies went through old routines.

A purse of money was presented to Miss Littlefield with the autographed book by the "old girls", Mrs. Myrtle Pearson and Mrs. Lil Slaughter making the presentation. The present class presented a pair of red ballerina slippers filled with spring flowers as their gift and Mrs. M. McBride, gym pianist, was given a model rickshaw wagon filled with flowers.

Tea arrangements were in charge of Mrs. S. McBride and Mrs. W. G. Ovens and Mrs. H. T. Rehill presided at the table. Mrs. B. L. Hooey was in charge of the refreshments and serving.

$2,037 Deficit In T.B. Group

The Peterborough County Tuberculosis Association has an operational deficit of $2,037 at the end of its fiscal year, March 31.

This figure was quoted in the financial statement given by R. B. Arnold, treasurer, at the annual meeting of the association held in the Y.W.C.A. Thursday afternoon.

Mr. Arnold reported that the year's total receipts including the seal campaign, special donations and bank interest, totalling $5,761. Total expenditures for the year were $7,798.54.

This deficit will be met by the association's surplus of $8,317 which it had at the first of the year. However the cost of the Thoracic operating table presented to the Toronto Hospital for Tuberculosis at Weston also was taken out of this surplus. This leaves the association with $4,267 for this year's program.

James Heffernan reported that the program is expected to cost the association $8,000. This will include a weekly referred clinics estimated to cost $3,000; pre-employment X-rays at estimated cost of $1,000 and the work done for the Peterborough city and county patients in sanitorium at a cost of $1,000.

The remaining $3,500 is the estimated cost of a mass county and city X-ray to be carried out by the association and expected to begin in September of this year.

The work done for patients in sanitoriums includes visits by the association's secretary, Mrs. R. J. Ward, which take place every three months; gifts and baskets of fruit. At present there are 30 patients from the city and county in sanitoriums.

Mr. and Mrs. Fee 25 Years Wed

Mr. and Mrs. Newton Fee of Mount Pleasant celebrated their 25th wedding anniversary last Saturday, and were at home to their friends during the evening. At the reception Mrs. Fee wore a navy dress trimmed with lace and a corsage of Talisman roses. In her living-room was a silver bowl filled with pink snapdragon and the dining table was lovely with a lace cloth and silver candalabra and centred with a three-tier anniversary cake decorated with two horse-shoes forming a belfrey for a silver bell.

The cake was a gift from Mrs. Fee's sister, Miss Ada Lee of Peterborough, who also poured tea. Helping to serve the refreshments were Misses Margaret and Catherine Earle, Miss Marie Ballantyne and Miss Orma Brooks.

Asks U.S. Not To Push Europeans Too Hard

WASHINGTON, April 4 (AP) —Queen Juliana of the Netherlands today asked Americans not to "hurry us too much" in developing a united Europe.

"It takes time, and there is still a lot of misunderstanding," she said "But I do trust it will come into being."

Too much haste, the visiting queen said, "is not good for a healthy growth of the young plant of European unity."

She made her plea for understanding and patience with Europe's problems in an address prepared for a luncheon for Washington press, radio and television correspondents.

Queen Juliana said her country does not make "spectacular news" because "harmony seldom makes a headline."

But, she said, "should it not be news that the sea is turned into land; that where once was deep water the fertile earth now supports thriving populations; that no economic or customs union can be compared with the progress of the Benelux achievements?

"It is not news when two so-called small nations pool their joint scientific resources to develop the peaceful elements of atomic energy as the Netherlands and Norway are so quietly, successfully and constructively doing for the benefit of mankind?"

Retain Custom Of Arranging Marriages In India

MONTREAL (CP)—Marriage comes first and love second in India and what's more it seems to work better than the western custom of "marrying for love."

So says M. C. Dharmaraj, general secretary of the Y.M.C.A. in Nagpur, India, adding that India has retained its ancient custom of parents arranging marriages for their children.

"Couples fall in love following the wedding and it seems an effective system as we hear of no cases of broken marriages," he says.

"An Indain girl can be her natural self because she knows she will be married off. There is little danger of her developing an inferiority complex", he says.

Mr. Dharmaraj says marriages in India aren't as much of a "gamble" as they are in Canada and the western world because the girl's parents check the man's background, financial position and other characteristics before they sanction the union.

Some families hire astronomers to decide if the match would be a suitable one. If the astronomer gives the "green light" then the marriage is allowed to take place, he says.

Trinity Federation Easter Meeting At The Manse

Mrs. D. B. Gordon opened her home for the Trinity Federation meeting Wednesday evening. The theme, "What Does Easter Meap to You," was most appropriate for this occasion.

The devotional service was led by Mrs. E. O. Westbye and her group. Special Easter hymns, There is a Green Hill Far Away," "When I Survey the Wondrous Cross" and "Christ the Lord is Risen Today," were heartily sung. Mrs. [illegible]. R. Philp accompanied at the piano.

Scripture passages from St. John's Gospel were read by Mrs. C. H. Huffman. Mrs. J. B. Clarke read a poem on the theme, and Mrs. L. Croft read the story of the crucifixion. Mrs. H. A. Mitchell and Mrs. Gordon rendered the much-loved hymn, "I Know That My Redeemer Liveth." Prayer, led by Mrs. R. E. Dimma, concluded the devotions.

The Rev. Dr. D. B. Gordon, guest speaker, was introduced by president Mrs. D. Hamilton. "Christianity" was the theme of his sermon, and he referred to the church and its functioning as far back as 850 A.D. when there was but one known church (Roman). He very ably explained and illustrated the signs and symbolisms of the Christian church and their meaning.

A lively Easter-time quizz was conducted by Dr. Gordon after his address.

After business had been taken up by Mrs. Hamilton the group in charge served dainty refreshments. Mrs. S. Heard moved the vote of appreciation to the hostess and those who presented the program.

The first was Betty-Jean Hagen, Calgary violinist, who won in 1950.

Use Carefully

LONDON, April 4—(Reuters)—The new anti-tuberculosis drug isonicotine acid hydrazide should not be used indiscriminately, the ministry of health said in today's issue of the British Medical Journal. "It is by no means certain it is harmless; animal experiments indicated the possibility of toxicity, particularly when the drug is used for a considerable time," the article said.

SPRING TOPPERS from top Parisian designers feature thick and fleecy wool. The one by Maggy Rouff (left) is light mauve lined with light navy shantung. The dress is fine wool in the same shade of mauve, with a flared skirt and a close-fitting bodice. The whole dress is entirely worked in pleats. Jean Desses' new V-line is shown in his topcoat (right), which widens at each side. The fleecy wool is light as a feather, and the deep-armholed sleeve captures interest.

Drastic Changes In 15 Years In Men's Sportswear Field

Those who say that men's fashions today never change are either thoughtless or uninformed, says Perkins H. Bailey, executive fashion editor of New York's Men's Wear.

According to Mr. Bailey there have been dramatic changes in the sportswear field over the past 15 years. At that time "the major item, if not the only item" was the blue melton cloth zipper jacket. Today the range of sportswear is almost limitless. He cites the Norwegian moccasin.

"Originally introduced as an item of leisure footwear, it has grown in the last few years to a highly respectable position of summer and town business shoe for warm weather," he says.

Since that time has come the slip-on shoe and the combination mesh and leather sole. The latest in shoes with mesh uppers are those with a nylon weave.

Really lightweight sports shirts, says Mr. Bailey, now currently available every place, had their beginning only three short seasons ago. They spring from the dotted Swiss sports shirts introduced at Palm Beach. Then they existed in less than a lot of three dozen at a time.

The return of caps about three years ago, Mr. Bailey says, is another indication of changing fashion. From these caps, a whole new category of headgear with interesting variations appeared.

In men's suits there have been changes. Not long ago 13, 14 or 15 ounce fabrics were not considered too heavy for winter wear. Now the average weight for fall and winter suiting fabrics runs nearer to 11 and 12 ounces.

Mr. Bailey emphasizes the fact that today a man can be comfortable in warm weather, when even two or three years ago it was impossible. To back it up, he gives this formula:

Two or three ounce straw hats, washable ties or lightweight silks in bows or four-in-hands, tissue-weight business shirts, lightweight undershorts, many of them of the foregoing shirting materials, mesh hose and mesh shoes, and light tropical suits.

THE EXPERTS SAY:

Practise Self-Discipline And Beat Further Inflation

By KAY REX
Canadian Press Staff Writer

It's a "daily heartache" for Canadian women to shop in the face of soaring prices and declining savings, says Mrs. W. R. Walton Jr., of Oakville, Ont.

As president of the Canadian Association of Consumers, Mrs. Walton has devoted much time to studying the problems of homemakers across Canada.

Six months ago the C.A.C. announced whole-hearted support of the Thrift Drive launched by the National Council of Women. Since then it has kept after its 13,000 members to carry the campaign into their own homes and those of their neighbours.

"Every time we enter a grocery store, buy clothes for our children or fuel for the furnace, we experience the full impact of what inflationary conditions are like," said Mrs. Walton. "The Canadian Association of Consumers has appealed to its members to take the lead in practising self-discipline—to practise it now before further inflation can bring about economic chaos."

Economy Rules

Large purchases of sweet goods such as cakes and pastries do much to push up the weekly food bill, said Mrs. Walton. Purchasing in larger quantities or by bulk helps cut costs.

"Neighbors with families can co-operate to reduce the cost of milk," suggested Mr. Walton.

Powdered milk could be bought this way in 50-pound drums.

"One group did this and the 50-pound drum produced 200 quarts of milk at five cents a quart," said Mrs. Walton.

The C.A.C. president has discovered herself that it's possible to reduce the quantity of sugar in recipes by as much as one-eighth of a cup when a full cup is called for.

"Food snobberies" should be eliminated, she said. Beef liver soaked in milk tastes like calf liver and costs half as much. Bologna is a nutritious food.

The C.A.C. head has an inexpensive method for making whipped topping from powdered milk. It looks just like whipped cream.

Ingredients: One-half cup water; one tablespoon lemon juice; one-half cup skim milk powder; two tablespoons sugar; one-quarter teaspoon vanilla.

Put water and lemon juice into bowl and add the milk powder. Beat until stiff, gradually adding sugar and vanilla at the same time. Chill and use as you would whipped cream. This recipe gives 2½ cups of topping.

Here is one of her suggestions for stretching a pound of steak.

Meat loaf: One pound minced round steak; three-quarters cup tomatoes; three-quarters cup bread crumbs or dry oatmeak; salt, pepper; mix well. Add onion to taste. Bake from 30 to 45 minutes.

Next week: Les cercles de fermieres of Quebec.

What's Right?

You are playing cards or some other game.

WRONG: Drum on the table with your fingers while waiting for others to play.

RIGHT: Sit quietly until your turn to play comes around.

Of Interest to Women

IN THE YOUNG COTTON FASHIONS for 1952 the Gibson Girl figures prominently. She promenades in ballooning sleeves, her skirts swirling out from a tiny faistline. The fabric story is told in terms of sheer weaves, from the tissue chambrays and ginghams to nylons and organzas. But it's also related in terms of texture, which means the satin stripe ginghams and slubbed cotton tweeds. Other cottons are highly polished, woven with a glint of gold or are glazed, as in the case of chintz. A tasty gingham stole dress (left) is done in black-and-white woven plaid with bodice in black broadcloth. Victorian ball fringe is used to edge the triangular stole. All-over embroidered broadcloth (right) has the look of a print. Fabric in solid color is used to trim neckline of low-cut dress, which is topped by a brief Spencer.

DOROTHY DIX

Dancing And Charades Best At Modern Teen-Age Party

DEAR MISS DIX: Three girls and I are planning a party. Our problem is that we think the boys will want to play kissing games all evening and my mother won't allow it. We don't like the idea either. Can you suggest something else we can do to keep the party going? The girls are from 14 to 16, and the boys to be invited are 16 and 17. SMITTY.

ANSWER: For one thing, Smitty, if your mother is sure to stay home on the evening of the party, as she most certainly should, the boys will be discouraged from suggesting kissing games. The best way for teen-agers to pass an evening is by dancing. If some of the group can't dance, it will be a good opportunity to teach them.

If your mother doesn't mind the noise, square dancing is a wonderful party pastime. It mixes the crowd, provides plenty of action and is lots of fun. Records will supply the music, and if you don't know the routines, get a book on square dancing from the library. The library, incidentally, will also have on hand some excellent books on teen-age parties which will give details of many games.

Charades is another good party game. It gives everyone a chance to perform and can be as simple or complicated as the players wish to make it. I agree with your mother's tabu on kissing games, but with so many other forms of amusement available you will have a fine party without them.

✧ ✧ ✧

He's Not Interested

DEAR MISS DIX: I'm a girl of 16, very much in love with a boy of 18. He is very nice and seems to like me, but doesn't come to see me very often. He blames this on poor transportation and though I try to point out that he could take a bus, he says it's too inconvenient. How can I make him prove his love for me? J.M.W.

ANSWER: Aren't you assuming a lot, J. M. W.? Just because you love the boy doesn't mean he loves you, and from his actions (or lack of them) I'd quite definitely say his interest wasn't too acute. Don't urge him to come and see you. If he likes you enough he'll come without coaxing. If he shows his indifference by keeping away, why not turn your charm on some other boy who will have more appreciation.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: I'm engaged to a man I love very much. He gave me two beautiful rings before he got his divorce. Now he is a free man and says he doesn't want to get married again. He wants his rings back, and I won't return them. Am I right? O. B.

ANSWER: You haven't been right at any part of these romantic proceedings. Continuing your wrongdoing isn't going to make things come out any better in the end, so the best course for you is to return the rings, accept defeat gracefully, and look for another man. Married men who go a-wooing are seldom interested in anything more than a pastime, but girls will persist in believing the tempter's tales and hopefully waiting for the wedding ring that never comes. You played a foolish game and you lost. Be thankful you're not worse off than you are.

DEAR MISS DIX: At 17, I am an attractive girl with lots of girl friends. However, I don't go out with boys and have no steady. This doesn't bother me, but my relatives seem to be gravely concerned. They are constantly asking me when I am going to get a boy friend. At first I accepted it in a teasing manner, but now they persist so much that I am beginning to be annoyed. DOUBTFUL N.

ANSWER: I don't know why grown-ups have so little consideration for the young that they persistently tease about matters they know are bound to be embarrassing. It certainly indicates a lack of imagination and humor, coupled with a low intelligence quotient. I could scarcely blame you for politely telling them to keep quiet.

However, since you must live with your relatives and naturally must continue to be polite, there is nothing you can do but accept their teasing as gracefully as possible. Don't let anyone rush you into going with boys until you're good and ready. If you have good times with your family and girl friends, stick to it. There is plenty of time ahead.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: I am very much in love with a man in the service. He loves me too, but he hasn't proposed as yet. How can I rush the matter a little? I am 19. BETTY.

ANSWER: This is Leap Year, the year when, by tradition, young ladies may take the prerogative in affairs of the heart. Exercise your rights and do the proposing.

MARY MOORE SAYS:

Filling For Homemade Chocolates

QUESTION: Will you kindly print a recipe for caramel filling for homemade chocolates. If you do not know of one maybe one of your readers would send me some if they have any. Mrs. John G. H.

ANSWER:

Quick Caramels

Two and one-half tablespoons butter, 2 tablespoons molasses, 2 cups light brown sugar, ½ cup cream, 1 teaspoon vanilla. Melt butter, add molasses, brown sugar and cream. Stir, heating slowly until sugar is dissolved, then boil to 250 deg. Fahr. (Firm ball will form when tested in warm water. I do not recommend making caramels or any candy without a thermometer.) Add vanilla and turn into buttered pan to thickness of ¾ inch. Let stand until quite cold, then cut into squares with heavy knife, and wrap in wax paper squares.

Vanilla Caramels

One and one-half cups white sugar, ½ cup corn syrup, 1-3 cup whole milk, ⅛ teaspoon salt, 1½ teaspoons flour, 2 tablespoons of water, 3 tablespoons butter, 1 teaspoon vanilla. Mix first four ingredients, bring to boiling, and boil gently without stirring until temperature is 255 deg. F. Remove from heat, and add the flour which has been mixed to a paste with the 2 tablespoons water. Heat again to 256 deg. Fahr. Remove from heat, add butter, stir just to mix and pour into buttered pan. Let stand just long enough to cool so that you can handle it. Add vanilla. Now pull this in your greased hands until it is white and becomes almost too stiff to pull. Cut with greased scissors into ¾ inch cubes. Nuts may be added with vanilla—up to ½ cup.

QUESTION: I read your column every day and enjoy it immensely. I am a mother with three active preschool youngsters. I love my job as housewife and particularly like to cook. My husband and children love my homemade bread. I am anxious to try my hand at baking that crusty chewy French Bread. I have scanned the recipe books for such a recipe but have never found one. Could you perhaps help me? Muriel K.

ANSWER:

French Bread

Two teaspoons sugar, 1 yeast cake, 2 teaspoons salt, 12 cups sifted bread flour, ½ teaspoon cornstarch. Cream together the yeast cake and sugar by rubbing with back of spoon. When creamy and smooth add 4 cups lukewarm water (just slightly warmer than your hand) and stir together. Into large mixing bowl measure the sifted flour. Make a hollow in centre and pour the liquid into this. Mix well, then knead on a floured board until smooth and elastic and squeaky. Cover and stand to rise in warm place until doubled in bulk. Do not hurry this—it may take all of 4 hours. Knead again and cover and let rise again until doubled. Mould into long loaves with pointed ends, place on baking sheets, cover and again stand in warm place to rise until doubled and light to touch. Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. for 1¼ to 1½ hours. Fifteen minutes before baking time is up make a cold paste by stirring the ½ teaspoon cornstarch into 2 teaspoons cold water. Pour into this 1-3 cup boiling water and stir over heat until thick. Brush top of loaf and sides with this and finish baking. Do not brush loaf with butter, and do not cover when cooling after baking.

QUESTION: I had your recipe for biscuits supreme but have hunted high and low and can't find it. Mrs. Ed. MacD.

ANSWER:

Biscuits Supreme

Two cups stirred but not sifted all-purpose flour, 4 teaspoons of baking powder, 2 teaspoons sugar, ½ teaspoon each salt and cream of tartar, 2-3 cup milk, ½ cup butter or good shortening at room temperature. Sift dry ingredients. Cut in butter. Quickly stir in milk. Roll out and cut in 2-inch biscuits. Bake at 450 deg. F. 10 min.

Tweed Topcoats Bring Zest To Man's Spring Wardrobe

A topcoat with a quality look brings zest to the well-dressed man's spring wardrobe. And the answer to this quality demand, with a dash of spice, is the tweed topcoat.

More and more tweed topcoats will be seen. Most popular style is that with a balmaccan collar, raglan sleeves and a full back. Top patterns are small checks and Glen checks.

A good-looking color combination was one with brown, white and pale blue interwoven checks. This topcoat could be worn with grey, navy or brown. Another quality mixture had two shades of brown, white and red in it. This is best with brown and grey outfits.

There is still a heavy demand for navy topcoats in worsteds, sealskin and velour. Another big seller is the beige, grey and taupe-colored gabardine coats with set-in sleeves.

Despite the steady demand for these, salesmen are assured that the tweed topcoat will be a popular item this spring.

All topcoats, like other forms of men's attire, will be slightly lower in sprice this spring than last spring. Most are priced around $50, though they ascend rapidly depending upon texture and style.

ranged for emergency accommodation with relatives and friends.

In addition to the apartments of the Nesbitts, the Ivanovs, the Everitts, Madame Merriam, Mrs. L. Barringer, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Fry and Mr. and Mrs. Bob McCallum and their eight-year-old daughter Carol also lost their clothing, furniture and belongings.

Two families occupying apartments in the Anthony building adjacent to the Braund Block were also forced to vacate when fire threatened and were unable to return to their apartments on account of smoke and water damage. They were: Mr. and Mrs. George Novotny and their five-year-old son and Mr. and Mrs. S. W. Burrows.

Life Of TB Victim

family and economic problems that may be the result of a hospital sojourn. Schooling facilities are provided up to and including Grade 13 and commercial, and some trades are taught. Participation in these activities is always governed by the patient's exercise category.

"Our main advice throughout all the treatment period is, don't get impatient," Dr. Wicks said. "A patient is naturally always anxious to get home, but we can't emphasize too much the necessity of remaining until medical discharge is given. When a patient leaves too early they nearly always have to come back and these repeated treatments get increasingly longer. Twenty-five per cent of the people who enter sans are coming in for the second, third and fourth time and the common reason for this is that they were not well enough to leave the first time. The average stay is 15½ months.

"Don't be influenced by the way you feel. Quite often when a patient is caught in the early stages of this disease he feels fine all during his treatment."

Following this picture of life as a patient in a sanitorium, Dr. Wicks turned his remarks to the need of stressing prevention work.

"To make a country safe from this disease everyone should have regular chest X-rays," he said. "A person who goes without periodic X-rays is not being fair to himself, his family or his associates."

He remarked that some system of compulsory X-ray plans such as pre-employment X-rays might be advisable. In this way people with TB are discovered in the early stages when treatment won't take as long and they are kept from spreading the disease to others.

In his concluding remarks, Dr. Wicks congratulated the Peterborough Association on the work they have been doing in the county.

"I don't know of any association that is doing a better job in the fight against tuberculosis than the Peterborough association, and I know that I speak for the trustees of the hospital at Weston as well as myself. We only hope that we will be able to count on your continued support."

Dr. Wicks was introduced by Dr. L. W. Thompson and thanked by C. J. Ray.

Man Burned To Death In House Blaze

HULL, Que. April 4 (CP) — One man was burned to death and his parents injured when fire broke out early today in a two-storey home and gutted the dwelling.

The body of Henri Beland, 25, was found by firemen after the blaze was extinguished. He apparently was half-way out of bed in a futile attempt to escape.

His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Georges Beland, were able to force a window and drop two storeys to the sidewalk 15 feet below. Both were taken to hospital.

The fire was traced to an overheated kitchen stove.

Chief Calm At Warning Of Weakened Roof Sagging

Once the fire reached into the second floor apartments and broke through the roof, all precautions were taken to prevent another Zacks fire disaster.

When the roof began to sag, firemen warned others in the building to "get out. The roof's sagging." A minute later Chief George Smith, quite unconcerned, walked out of the burning building. Bystanders noted his calmness.

Early during the fire when firemen were trying to confine the blaze to the cafe kitchen, they had to break through the false ceiling to the flames. The men were kept busy, both pouring water on the fire and ducking the falling plaster.

A sign in the Hollywood cafe advertised "A Special, Fried Chicken with Rice." As two firemen passed it, one noted, "Fried Chicken? It's roasted now."

The many false ceilings hindered the fire-fighters, often making a small job quite dangerous. In the thick of a smoke blanket, three firemen were hacking a hole between the ceilings at the rear of the buildings. They started to pour water through; the smoke forced them back and just in time, a large orange flame leapt through the hole where their faces had been.

Several spectators who were watching at the back received their Saturday bath two days early this week. By mistake a hose was turned on before someone had hold of the nozzle. It spun around, spraying the men and women.

Shortly after the hose incident, spectators at the front saw a small gusher rise on Charlotte St. The line of hose was being lengthened and the water was turned on before the lengths were coupled together.

A survivor of the collapse at the Zacks' fire, Bob Webb, was in the thick of the action Thursday helping firemen with various duties, carrying axes, shoes and clothing for them, and pulling lines of hose.

The Parthenon of Greece at Athens was the chief temple built to the goddess Athena.

Ice Jam Threatens Million Dollar Bridge In West

SWIFT CURRENT, Sask., April 5. (CP)—Army Engineers were on the scene today as a huge ice jam in the South Saskatchewan River threatened to push out a $1,000,000 bridge and halted all traffic on the main highway north from here. The year-old 1,215-foot Saskatchewan Landing bridge, 35 miles north of here, was in imminent danger of being knocked out. An ice jam built up about 12 miles east of the bridge and the pile-up extends 82 miles back under the bridge and along the river. The army engineers planned to blast the ice in the vicinity of the bridge but government officials said they doubted if blasting operations would do any good. They feared that once the water began to flow freely again the ice would begin to move with greater force.

Meanwhile, at Medicine Hat, about 100 miles to the west, the South Saskatchewan rose six feet in an hour.

Medicine Hat authorities said there was little danger of the free-flowing river flooding the city but the heavy movement of ice downstream was bad news for this area.

Suspend Bus Service

Bus service between Swift Current and Saskatoon on the main highway, of which the bridge is a part, was suspended. All other vehicular traffic was being stopped by R.C.M.P. who have been posted at the bridge.

The bridge stove in from six to eight inches at one end and its deck heaved up about an inch in places on Friday.

Ice was packed up to the bridge railings and water was up to the deck. At low level, the floor of the bridge is 31 feet above the water.

The gravelled approach to the bridge was washed out for 100 feet on one side and two cross-arms supporting telephone cables across the structure were ripped out.

The bridge, opened last June by Premier T. C. Douglas, has six 90-foot concrete spans, three at each end, and three 216-foot steel spans in the centre.

Continue To Mop Up

Meanwhile, civic authorities continued to mop up at Medicine Hat after the worst flood of the Seven Persons Creek matie some 1,000 persons homeless.

The Seven Persons and Ross Creeks, both draining into the South Saskatchewan, were well within their banks, and no longer considered a flood menace

The Red Cross has offered to assume all responsibility for relief measures at Medicine Hat until rehabilitation has been completed by civic flood directors.

Teal Winner In British Grand National

AINTREE, England, April 5—(AP).—Teal won the 106th running of the famed Grand National Steeplechase today defeating a field of 46 other jumpers in the world's toughest race over the barriers.

Legal Joy was second and Wot No Sun finished third in the four-mile, 856-yard course over 30 jumps.

There was an 11-minute delay at the start, when about a dozen horses in the bulky field broke through the tape in a false start.

The official starter had them flagged down, and ordered a new tape be strung.

Teal, ridden by Arthur Thompson, won by five lengths, and Legal Joy was far ahead of Wot No Sun.

The winner is owned by H. Lane.

100-To-7 Choice

Teal was the 100-to-7 choice in the betting to the favored Freebooter. Freebooter, 10 to 1, won the race in 1950.

A late scratch of Texas Dan had cut the field to 47.

Legal Joy went off at 100-6 and Wot No Sun at 33-1.

Uncle Barney, one of the rank outsiders, was placed fourth by judges.

Both Teal and Wot No Sun were trained by Neville Crump at his stable in Yorkshire. Crump trained Shiela's Cottage in 1949.

The visibility was so poor because of a heavy mist that little of the actual running could be seen from the stands. It rained several times during the day, but the track was in firm condition.

Cashes In

"El Rado"—a ticket holder in Valleyfield, Que., today won $140,000, top prize in the Irish Hospital Sweepstakes.

The lucky ticket number XC-17694.

"El Rado" is the ticket-holder's nom de plume.

H. W. Stevenson, London, Ont., and Porger Vaughan, Victoria, B.C., won second money—$75,000—with tickets on Legal Joy.

Juliana To Visit An Old Friend

WASHINGTON, April 5 (AP)—Queen Juliana left here by plane today on a roundabout trip to a weekend visit with an old friend, Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt.

The Netherlands monarch and her party headed first for Philadelphia. The flight is the first leg of a country-wide tour following a three-day visit here as guests of President and Mrs. Truman.

After arrival in Philadelphia the Queen has scheduled a visit to Independence Hall and the Philadelphia Museum of Art before going on to visit the military academy at West Point, N.Y.

On hand at the airport to bid farewell to the Queen and her husband, Prince Bernhard, were State Secretary Dean Acheson and his wife and other officials.

Canadian Horse Goes Down In 2nd Lap

AINTREE, England, April 5 (Reuters).—Tantivy, running under lease for Toronto businessman Charles Burns, went down in the second lap in today's Aintree Grand National Steeplechase.

Tantivy, an 11-year-old bay gelding which once won a last-minute reprieve from a glue factory, carried distinctively Canadian colors — Paddy green on white, with maple leaf front and back.

Burns, 44-year-old Toronto investment broker, became part owner of Tantivy little more than a week ago.

Extra Grant Made

CARACAS, Venezuela, April 5 (Reuters)—The Venezuelan government Friday decided to allocate an extra $3,000,000 for the formerly owned Guyana Gold Mining Company which was expropriated last year. The money is to be used partly for compensation to the former owners and partly for restoring the mines to operation.

Big-Time Bookmakers Baffle Ontario Police

TORONTO, April 5 (CP). — Ontario provincial police were unable to halt most of last year's activities of big-time bookmakers, acting commissioner Arthur Moss said in the annual report of the force tabled in the Legislature Friday.

He blamed a new "gimmick" by which bookies avoid detection through tracing long-distance telephone calls.

Such calls were being transposed into local calls with a relay telephone arrangement, he said. Police were powerless to get convictions as long as "these operators know they have immunity on their operations through the use of the automatic dial telephone."

INVITED TO LONDON

TORONTO, April 5 — (CP) — Canadian veterans of the South African War have been invited to take part in ceremonies in London May 31 commemorating the Peace of Vereenigning which ended the war 50 years ago.

Seven Killed In Second U.S. Tornado

Have Million Damage In Southern States After Severe Storm

NEW ORLEANS, April 5.—(AP)—The deep south, hit twice in two weeks by terrifying tornadoes and wind storms, counted its newest losses today — seven dead, 65 injured and more than $1,000,000 damage.

The destruction came from wind and rain storms carrying four tornadoes that tore at Louisiana, Alabama and Northwest Florida Friday.

Louisiana, Alabama, Arkansas, Mississippi, Tennessee and Kentucky were raked by tornadoes that killed 233 persons March 21, injured 1,100 or more and did multi-million dollar damage.

One tornado Friday killed four members of a farm family at Arnaudville, La., 10 miles northeast of Lafayette, deep in the French speaking Cajun country. Twenty-four persons were injured there and 20 families left homeless. The Red Cross estimated damage at $75,000.

32 Injured

Three others died and 32 were injured in the New Orleans area as recorded winds reached 90 miles an hour—hurricane strength. The New Orleans weather bureau said winds may have reached 150 to 200 miles an hour after measuring instruments failed. A radio tower constructed to withstand 135 miles an hour winds was bent to the ground. Damage estimates ran between $175,000 and $300,000 for the general area.

Flying bricks injured two persons at Mobile, Alta., when a tornado struck the municipal airport area. Damage there was estimated at $100,000.

Some beach homes were flattened in a North Louisiana area near Shreveport damaging several houses to the extent of $10,000.

The worst financial loss was at Jeanerette, La., about 30 miles east of Lafayette, where homes were damaged and a sugar refinery flattened. Five persons were injured. Damage there was expected to reach $500,000. Nearby Charenton was struck a $50,000 blow.

Lightning set fire to a lumber mill at Caston, Lt., near Alexandria. Owners estimated damage at $125,000.

Charges Brief Sabotages O.T.F.

TORONTO, April 5 (CP). — Nora Hodgins, secretary-treasurer of the Ontario Teachers' Federation said Friday that a brief issued by the Urban and Rural Trustees' Association was a "premeditated and unprovoked attack" designed to sabotage the Federation.

The trustees' brief asked the government to abolish the "closed shop principle" of the Teachers' Federation and the compulsory check-off and readjust the blacklisting powers of the Secondary School Teachers' Federation.

Miss Hodgins denied a trustees' charge that secondary school teachers have used blacklisting powers illegally.

Seaway Costs Not Excessive Wisconsin Senator Declares

OGDENSBURG, N.Y., April 5 — (AP)—Senator Alexander Wiley of Wisconsin, today branded as "absurd" the contention that the cost of the proposed St. Lawrence Seaway would be excessive.

In an address prepared for delivery at a meeting sponsored by the Northern Conference of Municipalities, Wiley said both the navigation and power phases of the project would pay for themselves.

Wiley, ranking Republican on the Senate Foreign Relations Committee and a longtime supporter of the St. Lawrence project, said opponents had contended that the U.S. government's $374,000,000 share of the cost of the proposed seaway phase would be a "tremendous charge."

"With the vast iron ore in Labrador, with the increase of all types of agriculture and other tonnage that will proceed over this great waterway, with the increased travel that will result, it will pay for itself right from the start," he said.

"And," he added, "we know particularly well that the electric power development will immediately be a self-liquidating proposition.

"The northeast is hungry for the U.S. share of power—6.3 billion kilowatt hours at half the prevailing rate in this area."

The Wisconsin Senator said the U.S. share of the waterway costs was less than the cost of building three aircraft carriers.

"To contend, therefore, that this modest cost pro-rated over a five-to-six-year construction period is excessive, is to make an absurd contention," he said.

Earlier in the day, officials of northern New York and eastern Ontario communities escorted Wiley on a tour of the international rapids section of the St. Lawrence, site for the proposed project.

Desperate Bid Made To Halt U.S. Steel Strike

NEW YORK, April 5—(AP)—The United States federal wage chief, in a desperate bid to stave off a strike by 700,000 steel workers, strove today to bring industry and union officials together at a bargaining table.

But Nathan Feinsinger, chairman of the Wage Stabilization Board, would not say whether he had power to try to forge an agreement by altering his board's recommendation for a 17½-cent-an-hour wage boost.

The United Steelworkers of America (C.I.O.) have agreed to the W.S.B. proposals, but industry refuses to accept them without government approval of $12-a-ton increase in the present $110-a-ton price of steel.

Negotiations on the government wage pattern collapsed Thursday, and the union served notice that it would strike at midnight Tuesday against the vital steel industry.

Gloomy Outlook

Even as Feinsinger worked here to hammer out an agreement in the controversy, government officials in Washington gloomily studied emergency steps to take if the strike is not averted.

Feinsinger flew in here from Washington Friday and promptly met separately with the union and representatives of steel's "Big Six."

Separate meetings with the two factions were scheduled again today, Feinsinger said Friday night. But he gave no indication when he expected to bring them together at one table.

"I hope to be able to reopen negotiations," he said simply.

Then more emphatically, he added: "I'm on my own. I have one simple instruction—settle it." He would not elaborate.

Hint Armistice May Be Near

MUNSAN, Korea, April 5 (AP)—Negotiators made no headway today toward breaking a two-way deadlock holding up agreement on a Korean truce. But there were persistent rumors that an armistice might be signed soon.

The sub-committee on truce supervision wrangled for 20 minutes over Communist nomination of Soviet Russia as a neutral inspector and a United Nations demand for a ban on airfield construction.

Observers said staff officers apparently were near agreement on a formula for exchanging prisoners of war.

The secret prisoner talks were recessed indefinitely Friday. The observers said both sides are busy bringing their prisoner lists up to date.

The U.N. command has insisted that it will repatriate no prisoners against their will. The Reds want all U.N.-held prisoners back.

Settlement of this bitter dispute might pave the way to agreement on the other two unsettled problems.

Living Cost Drops 1.7 Food Prices Down In Feb.

OTTAWA, April 5. (CP)—Lower food costs were a major factor in a 1.7-point decline in the cost-of-living index during February, and a further decline was forecast by Trade Minister Howe. Before the Bureau of Statistics reported Friday that the index took its biggest monthly point drop in nine years, Mr. Howe forecast the decline for February and a continuation of it in March's index.

Meat prices led the decline, particularly a five-cent-a-pound drop in beef, which offset increases in rents, fuel, furniture and other items. The drop in meat prices speeded up following the outbreak of foot-and-mouth disease in southern Saskatchewan.

Other foods that declined included fresh pork, down three cents a pound; bacon, down almost five cents; eggs, cabbages and oranges.

They weren't the only factor in driving the index down to 189.1 from 190.8 in January and 191.5 last December when it touched its highest point. Other lower-priced items were top-coats, men's suits, textile furnishings, cleaning supplies, automobile tires and soap.

This was the second straight monthly decline of the prices barometer which uses 1935-39 prices as equalling 100. It also was the first such consecutive decline since 1949.

The food sub-index slipped to 241.7 from 248.1 in January. The peak was last October's 250.2. Rents, surveyed for the first time in five months, jumped to 155.2 from 151.3. Fuel and light were up to 152.5 from 151.3 and home furnishings to a peak of 200.8 from 200.1.

The miscellaneous sub-index also touched a new high, 146.0 from 146.5. This group includes health and personal care, recreation and transportation costs.

The bureau noted price declines on the wholesale side of the index in steers, wheat, raw rubber, beef hides, sisal, raw wool, crude oil, zinc, lead and copper. The index for some 30 industrial materials was down to 264.2 at March 28 from 268.6 on Feb. 29.

M.P. Says Money Being Wasted

OTTAWA, April 5. (CP) — George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, suggested Friday that Defence Minister Claxton is living in a "dream world of his own invention."

The minister, said Mr. Drew in a continuing defence debate in the Commons, was "dissatisfied with nothing." This was in contrast to the attitude of Prime Minister Churchill in the United Kingdom Commons, who had expressed dissatisfaction with the British forces.

Mr. Drew expressed dissatisfaction with the lengthy defence review given to the Commons on Thursday by Mr. Claxton. The official opposition wanted an "understandable report" so it could express an intelligent opinion on the defence expenditures being placed before the people.

The government's 1952-53 defence expenditures of $2,100,000,000 broke down to $150 for each man, woman and child in Canada or, on a family basis, $750 for the head of every family of five.

Lt.-Col. Douglas Harkness (PC-Calgary East) said that by "eliminating waste and unproductive efforts, we could save many millions."

Not Good Example

Neither the government nor Mr. Claxton, he said, has been setting a good example. He cited some of Mr. Claxton's trips by R.C.A.F. plane.

Commander's Son Missing In Korea

SEOUL, Korea, April 5 (AP)—Lieut. James A. Van Fleet, Jr., son of the U.S. Eighth Army commander, today was listed by the air force as missing in action.

The air force said he failed to return Friday morning from his third night bombing mission over North Korea.

The 26-year-old Van Fleet was piloting a B-26 light bomber.

He arrived in Korea only three weeks ago and was assigned to a B-26 squadron based a short distance from his father's headquarters.

A West Point graduate, he saw his father for the first time in 15 months on March 19—the General's 60th birthday.

He is the general's only son.

Given Back To Germans

BUENOS AIRES, April 5 (Reuters)—Juan D. Peron Friday hoisted the West German flag over the old German embassy here, which Argentina took over when she declared war on Germany, March 27, 1945. A band played the national anthems of both countries as the embassy was handed back to West German Ambasador Herman Tardenge.

Cargo Aircraft Hits Heart of Queens Residential Section

NEW YORK, April 5. (AP)—A twin-engined cargo plane smashed into the heart of populous Queens today, killing at least seven persons and possibly many more. The big plane dropped from rainy skies, ripped through two buildings, then barrelled into another one, setting several structures aflame. Officials at New York International Airport, on the south side of Queens, said the plane was trying to make an instrument landing, and fell short.

The twin-engined plane barrelled down into the middle of the populous borough, and burst into flames. Eight buildings were set afire.

One wing of the plane rammed a cruising police car and killed a police inspector, Thomas V. Boylan.

United States Airlines, a non-scheduled cargo carrier, said it believes the plane was its aircraft, a C-46 with a crew of two, inbound from Fort Lauderdale, Fla.

Mrs. Helen de Franco, an Associated Press receptionist, who lives near the crash scene, said the plane made an "awful sound" before crashing.

"I never had heard anything like it before," she said. "It was a roaring noise and lasted for about a minute. Then there was silence."

Plane Afire

William Boyle, an office worker in Jamaica, said the plane was afire and that its wing fell off as it neared the ground. Boyle said "there was a huge ball of flame surrounding the plane as it was going down."

Towering billows of smoke and flames shrouded the area for several blocks.

Seven cars parked on the street were wrecked.

The plane apparently struck one house, skidded across a parking lot, hit another house and shot across a street, hitting another building.

The area, consisting of small apartment houses and stores, was described as a "shambles."

Health Fight Still Not Won—Chisholm

GENEVA, Switzerland, April 5. (Reuters)—Canada's Dr. Brock Chisholm, World Health Organization director-general, said today three out of every four people in the world still suffer from diseases "spread by unsafe water supplies, uncontrolled insects and rodents by inadequate protection of milk and other foods."

He was speaking on the theme of World Health Day, fourth anniversary of the founding of W.H.O., which will be held April 7 in the 79 countries which belong to the organization.

Chisholm said "the responsibility for this tragic wastage of human life and energy rests with each of us as members of the family, the local community and as citizens of the world."

Three Years Of NATO Gives West New Hope—Pearson

OTTAWA, April 5 (CP)—The Atlantic Pact, in its first three years, has ended the feeling of dismay in the western world, External Affairs Minister Pearson said Friday night.

In a CBC broadcast on the Pact's third birthday, the chairman on the North Atlantic Council looked forward to the day when the west's growing strength would enable it to negotiate settlements with Russia which would ease world tension and lead to disarmament.

He recalled the high hopes of 1945 and the bitter disappointments which led to the signing of the Pact in 1949.

He added:

"Three years ago we anxiously faced a world in which bad faith and the threat or the reality of violence seemed likely to take advantage of what was then our weakness. Now, although we are not free from anxiety, and although our strength must still be increased, we know that while we and the free peoples with whom we are allied are still anxious for the future, we are, however, no longer dismayed.

"It should be clear to all that the forces of NATO will never be used for any aggressive action and are being built up solely for defensive purposes.

"We sincerely hope that these forces will never have to be employed and that from our growing strength we may be able to negotiate political settlements which will relieve the world tension and lead eventually to agreement for the general reduction of armaments.

"Our resolution and our growing strength have entailed some sacrifices for us in Canada and we are still far from enjoying that peace which we thought we had attained seven years ago. In 1948 this treaty marked our joint determination to make peace a reality and to defend the traditional principles of human dignity and of justice. Our determination today has not lessened; and our strength has increased. This strength consists not only of arms but also of the spiritual values and social and economic ideals of the people of the Atlantic area.

"No peaceful and law-abiding state can honestly regard NATO with jealousy or fear.

Costello Guilty Of Contempt Of U.S. Senate

NEW YORK, April 5 (AP) — Frank Costello, who twice stalked out of a Senate crime committee hearing rather than answer questions, was convicted Friday night of contempt of the United States Senate.

The 61-year-old gambler and underworld figure, who four times previously beat government efforts to put him behind bars, faces a possible maximum sentence of 10 years in prison—plus $10,000 in fines. He was continued in $5,000 bail pending sentencing Tuesday.

Government prosecutor Myles J. Lane, who finally tripped the Italian-born racketeer, hailed the jury's guilty verdict as a "turning point"—and said it was proof that no man "no matter how cunning or powerful he might seem to be, could be bigger than the government itself."

The usually calm and poised Costello, visibly shaken by the verdict, had "nothing to say."

Jury Shuffled

The jury had undergone some shuffling by the judge in a dramatic last-hour development. Judge Sylvester J. Ryan had fired two of the jurors—and called in alternates.

One of the ousted jurors was the foreman, Mrs. Helen Louise Mason, a housewife.

She told reporters later that Judge Ryan had accused her of being involved in a $250 bribe to deadlock the jury, and prevent a verdict. She called the whole thing ridiculous.

Costello, a shadowy figure of the underworld, described by his counsel as a "man of integrity" held up to scorn and ridicule in the widely-televised Kefauver crime committee hearings, was convicted on a 10-count contempt charge.

The charge emanated from his two "walk-outs" during the New York hearings of the committee in March, 1951, and his stubborn refusal to answer specific questions put to him by committee counsel Rudolph Halley.

3 Doctors Visit Queen Mary

LONDON, April 5 (Reuters) — Three doctors, one an eye, ear, nose and throat specialist, were called to visit Queen Mary today.

The 84-year-old Dowager Queen who is suffering from a slight chill, was remaining indoors during the week-end at her London home as a precaution, officials stated.

The doctors who visited her included her two personal physicians, Sir John Weir and Sir Horace Evans, and Dr. J. D. McLaggan, the specialist.

Woman Bears Triplets After Quints, Quads

WILLIAMSTON, N.C., April 5 (AP) — A 23-year-old woman, who already has given birth prematurely to quadruplets, quintuplets and twins, Friday gave birth to triplets, her 13th, 14th and 15th children.

Dr. L. S. Lewellyn said Mrs. Viola Brown and the triplets, two boys and a girl, are geting along fine.

The doctor said he delivered the quints July 12, 1950. They were about three months premature and did not survive. On Feb. 16, 1946, Dr. Lewellyn delivered the quads, which also were premature and did not live.

Mrs. Brown also gave birth to a son in 1948 and to twins April 15, 1951. The twins and the single son survived.

Dr. Lewellyn said he did not record the births of the quads and the quints because "we just don't record them when they're that premature."

Marmora Men Hear W. E. Smith

MARMORA, April 5 (ENS)—Fear and courage, was the topic of an address given by W. E. Smith at the monthly dinner meeting of the Marmora Chamber of Commerce in the Royal Hotel, Thursday evening.

Mr. Smith is the secretary-manager of the Trenton Chamber of Commerce.

Fear disturbs man more than any other emotion, the speaker said. There are five main fears: fear of accident and disease, fear of displeasure of associates, fear of failure, and the unknown.

Mr. Smith described courage as the quality man shows when he goes ahead at the times he is afraid. Also needed to combat fear besides courage is the realization that a certain amount of luck turns up in every case, the practice of co-operation, and above all faith in ourselves, one another and God.

The speaker was introduced by the Rev. G. D. Young and thanked thanked by A. F. Fraser, past president of the chamber.

Mr. Fraser, chairman of the Red Cross Drive committee, reported that the fund now totalled $397.80, and explained that half of the canvassers had still to report.

Roger Young, chairman of the membership committee, reported that there were 86 members with a further effort planned to bring it up to 100.

A. J. Maynes, R. J. Walsh, J. Appleton and R. Olsen were appointed as a committee to study the possibilities of installing artificial ice in the arena.

A motion was passed recommending that the village council place street name signs at the ends of streets as soon as possible.

The chairman of the business meeting was Vaughan Glover, president.

Students Boss School For Day

CALGARY. —(CP)— Most of the teachers wore T-shirts and sweaters, blue-jeans and loafers, and not one of them was more than 18 or 19.

They were teachers for a day at St. Mary's boys' school here.

The regular teaching staff for Grades 10, 11 and 12 stayed away one day recently leaving their students in charge of teaching and administrative work.

The idea was thought up by the students. The teachers and the separate school board agreed to carry it through. They felt it would help develop the students' sense of responsibility and initiative.

The whole idea was taken seriously. About 12 boys arrived late and found themselves offering excuses to Gerald Stotts, 17-year-old Grade 12 student, elected principal-for-a-day. Gerald handed them the usual late slips.

Even the position of school janitor was filled by a student, Merlin Dobry, who combined his janitorial duties with his regular classes.

Second Northeaster Floods Toledo Area

TOLEDO, O., April 5 (AP) — A second northeaster in 13 days Friday sent Lake Erie waves pouring again into flooded residential areas near Toledo through four breaks in the battered dike.

"We've got more water here now than we had after the first break March 22," said Charles Swartz, chairman of the Reno Beach (a lakeside community) conservancy district.

In North Toledo, police said water stood three feet deep on some streets. Several cottages in the area were reported flooded and scores of basements filled with water.

An estimated 205 families in Reno Beach and adjoining Howard Farms have not been able to return to their homes since the March northeaster.

Reading from a cost list prepared by the R.C.A.F., he mentioned ministerial flights to Montreal at a cost to the air force of about $150 each. This could have been done for $7.50 by regular four-times-daily commercial flights.

H. W. Herridge (CCF-Kootenay West) a veteran of the First World War, said he had talked to batmen who did nothing more than look after the clothes of senior officers and wash the floors of the homes of officers' wives. That was no way to spend the defence dollar.

The Rev. E. G. Hansell (SC-MacLeod) called for a review of the policy under which contracts are granted on a cost-plus basis. He had been told there was a wastage of manpower and materials under such contracts, because the contractors took the view that the more the cost, the greater their profits.

PEI Disapproves Of Heavy Trucks

By The Canadian Press

Overloaded trucks aren't welcome on Prince Edward Island highways.

The P.E.I. Legislature Friday gave second reading to a bill providing for impounding of motor trucks for exceeding the maximum weight limit. Attorney General W. E. Darby said it is the only way to prevent serious damage to the highways.

Premier J. Walter Jones said the Legislature probably will prorogue before Easter.

The Saskatchewan House cleaned up its business and was prorogued and two other Legislatures were working toward the same end. The New Brunswick House, faced with a heavy volume of legislation, adjourned until April 15.

The Nova Scotia Legislature started debate on highway estimates totalling $13,000,000. The highways estimates are one of the final items in the Budget debate and prorogation seems likely before Easter.

The New Brunswick Legislature is faced with perhaps another two weeks of work when it returns from Easter holidays.

Bisley's Big Shoot Now Queen's Prize

LONDON (CP)—The champion rifleman of the Commonwealth will become Queen's Prize winner at this year's Bisley meeting to be staged next July at the famous Brookwood ranges in Surrey.

For 50 years the royal prize of £250 has been known as "The King's," and under that title was won last summer by Lieut. Gilmour Boa of Toronto. This year it reverts to its original name "The Queen's," in honor of Queen Victoria who inaugurated the prize in 1860.

Maj. E. G. Munro, chairman of the National Rifle Association, announced the change after Queen Elizabeth made it known that she would follow the line of earlier sovereigns in contributing the royal prize annually.

Acknowledged as the Commonwealth's most exacting test of marksmanship, the competition is held in three stages over distances ranging from 200 to 1,000 yards. Only the 100 top scorers in the preliminaries qualify for the final stage. Altogether 303 prizes are distributed among the competitors.

Uranium Strike In Manitoba Starts Big Rush

LYNN LAKE, Man. (CP) — A chunk of rock, a bright glitter in the sun, and a new Canadian town was born.

Here in Manitoba's northland more than 500 miles north of Winnipeg, a new community mushrooms among the forest and trees.

A possible uranium strike has been reported in the Wekusko Lake area, about 50 miles north of The Pas. More than 350 claims have been filed and the district is believed rich in copper-nickel, the ore that brought Lynn Lake into existence.

There is a big search for nickel at two other Manitoba points — Lac Du Bonnet in the south and another west of Lynn Lake. Traces of cobalt and iron have been found in the Bird River area in east central Manitoba.

Manitoba also has copper and gold. But the most noted discovery of all is Lynn Lake. It now is considered to be the richest discovery of copper-nickel in the world, apart from Sudbury.

Its history began in the summer of 1941 when Austin McVeigh, prospecting for gold, was paddling around the lake and noticed a mineralized chunk of rock on the shore. A sample showed six-percent nickel.

The discovery was kept under wraps until 1945 when further prospecting by McVeigh showed there was something worth working on. As soon as news leaked out in 1947, one of the wildest staking sprees in Manitoba's history blanketed the country for miles around.

Ore was shipped by tractor train to Sherridon to develop a satisfactory refining process. Concentrates were flown to Ottawa where an experimental recovery plant was set up.

Huge Expenditures

Since the Second World War, $8,000,000 has been spent on development work.

The Canadian National Railways expects to spend $7,800,000 this year on a 155-mile line between the lake and Sherridon. Before the line is completed in the fall of 1953, $14,725,000 will have been spent.

To supply power to the new mine and town, a dam and powerhouse are being built at Laurie River, 33 miles south of Lynn at an estimated cost of $3,570,000.

Concentrates from Lynn Lake will be shipped to Fort Saskatchewan, Alta., for treatment. A refinery being built there will cost $17,500,000.

Lynn Lake development also entails the largest single freighting job in Canadian history, moving a complete town and mining plant. Almost every day during the winter tractor trains arrived at Lynn hauling homes and equipment from Sherridon, now exhausted of its ore and slowly becoming a ghost town.

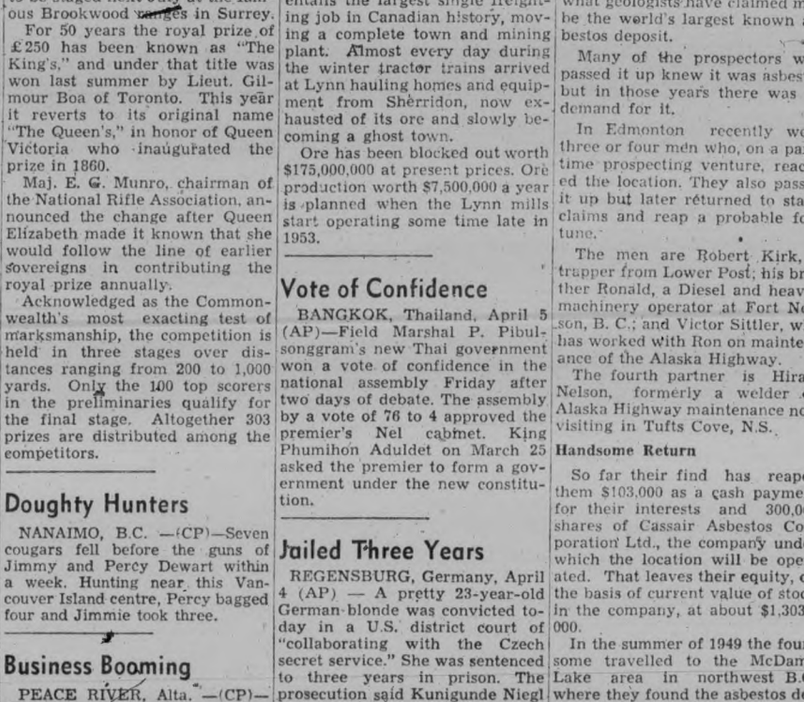
Ore has been blocked out worth $175,000,000 at present prices. Ore production worth $7,500,000 a year is planned when the Lynn mills start operating some time late in 1953.

Vote of Confidence

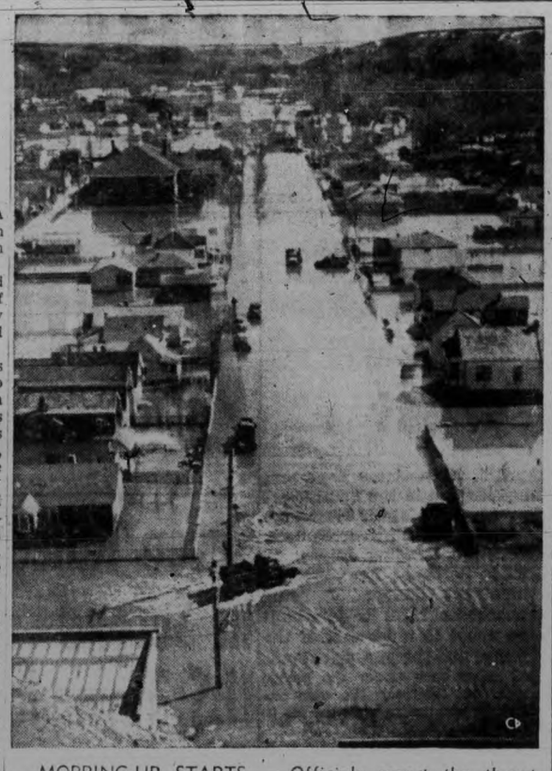
BANGKOK, Thailand, April 5 (AP)—Field Marshal P. Pibulsonggram's new Thai government won a vote of confidence in the national assembly Friday after two days of debate. The assembly by a vote of 76 to 4 approved the premier's Nel cabinet. King Phumihon Aduldet on March 25 asked the premier to form a government under the new constitution.

Jailed Three Years

REGENSBURG, Germany, April 4 (AP) — A pretty 23-year-old German blonde was convicted today in a U.S. district court of "collaborating with the Czech secret service." She was sentenced to three years in prison. The prosecution said Kunigunde Niegl had lured unsuspecting victims across the border into Communist-controlled Czechoslovakia, where they were urged to become spies and then were sent back into U.S.-occupied Germany.



PRESIDENT VINCENT AURIOL of France, plagued by toppling governments, gets away from it all for a quiet spell with the trout in a millstream near the River Andelle, outside Rouen.



MOPPING-UP STARTS——Officials report the threat of further damaging floods to Medicine Hat from runoff waters of Seven Persons Creek has passed. A portion of the Alberta city where 1,000 persons were flooded out earlier this week is shown. Clean-up work is in progress but the flood area embracing some 255 homes has been declared a health menace. Fumigation of many homes will be necessary before the evacuated families can return.

Rocks Spurned For Years Hold Big Asbestos Deposit

EDMONTON (CP)—High on a mountain in the northwestern corner of British Columbia there is a 300-acre area jutting out from the side like a green blister on a desert. From the distance it has the appearance of a patch of peas in a bed of limestone and slate.

For the last 80 years prospectors have sighted it, examined it and then passed on to search for something "valuable" as they tested, then discarded particles of a formation which has been described by an Indian as "rock with hair on it."

The outcropping they passed up now is the basis of a multi-million-dollar mining proposition.

The "rock with hair on it" is asbestos and marks the location of what geologists have claimed may be the world's largest known asbestos deposit.

Many of the prospectors who passed it up knew it was asbestos but in those years there was no demand for it.

In Edmonton recently were three or four men who, on a part-time prospecting venture, reached the location. They also passed it up but later returned to stake claims and reap a probable fortune.

The men are Robert Kirk, a trapper from Lower Post; his brother Ronald, a Diesel and heavy-machinery operator at Fort Nelson, B. C.; and Victor Sittler, who has worked with Ron on maintenance of the Alaska Highway.

The fourth partner is Hiram Nelson, formerly a welder on Alaska Highway maintenance now visiting in Tufts Cove, N.S.

Handsome Return

So far their find has reaped them $103,000 as a cash payment for their interests and 300,000 shares of Cassair Asbestos Corporation Ltd., the company under which the location will be operated. That leaves their equity, on the basis of current value of stock in the company, at about $1,303,000.

In the summer of 1949 the foursome travelled to the McDame Lake area in northwest B.C. where they found the asbestos deposit. Thinking it of little economic value, they passed on to stake silver and lead claims.

Next February they read an article in a mining magazine which forecast that in the near future asbestos would soon be near the top of the "strategic list."

Sittler went back to the "rock with hair on it" that June and staked a claim for the four of them.

They then blazed a trail to the site, about 100 miles southwest from the Alaska Highway at a point near Watson Lake. They took in Dr. B. T. O'Grady of the B.C. mines department and his report on the deposit was extremely optimistic.

Now a road has been built to the site, equipment moved in and construction of a townsite is well under way. The partners hope the mine will be in production by December of this year.

Wild-Flower Paintings Advertise Canada

LONDON (CP)—A special display of Canadian wild-flower paintings was arranged by British Columbia House here to give persons who had never visited Canada a chance to size up her floral beauties.

The paintings were by Emily Sartain, recently returned to Britain after 12 years in Canada, mostly in British Columbia.

Grey-haired Miss Sartain said the display was arranged to counteract the idea that Canada is a land of ice and snow.

A typical example of the London exhibits was a posy of the wild-flower emblems of eight of Canda's provinces — the pitcher plant for Newfoundland, violet for New Brunswick, trailing arbutus for Nova Scotia, trillium for Ontario, prairie crocus for Manitoba, orange lily for Saskatchewan, wild rose for Alberta and white dogwood for British Columbia.

Last January, Miss Sartain won the Grenfell Gold Medal, highest award of the Royal Horticultural Society in London, for her Canadian studies. Many of the 200 paintings were done in Canada.

Miss Sartain, who has never taken lessons, lived in Vancouver and Victoria from 1946 to 1951. She has given many displays in those two cities and in Nelson, B.C., Calgary, Edmonton and Montreal.

Five Alarms Sounded

Five fire alarms were sounded.

The crash was the fifth aerial crackup in the greater metropolitan area recently.

Three of the crashes were in nearby Elizabeth, N.J., taking a total of 119 lives. Another airliner crashed in the East river, adjoining Manhattan, but all aboard escaped death.

Location of the crash was given as 171st street and 89th avenue in the centre of Queens. The borough lies midway between La Guardia field and New York international airport.

A steady rain was falling, and skies were heavily overcast.

Queens is one of five New York boroughs. It is situated just across the east river to the east from Manhattan, south of the Bronx and north of Brooklyn.

Outline Plans For Ontario Construction

TORONTO, April 5 (CP) — The Ontario legislature, heading for prorogation next Thursday, voted full budget estimates of the public works department in 18 minutes Friday and cleared its order paper of several routine bills.

Public Works Minister Thomas announced a series of new capital construction projects in the coming fiscal year.

He told reporters the province's work program will involve an estimated $17,000,000 expenditure this year—$10,000,000 on works now under construction and $7,000,000 on new works.

Topping the list of new projects are 1,960 new beds in Ontario mental hospitals.

Another $1,950,000 is being set aside as the province's contribution to river valley conservation projects, provided the federal government will agree to match Ontario's share in each project.

Introduce New Bills

A number of new government bills were introduced.

One, sponsored by Welfare Minister Goodfellow, will provide for provincial grants towards housing projects for elderly persons. Such projects are provided for under agreement between municipalities and the Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation, and the province proposes to pay half of the municipal share, up to $5,000 a housing unit.

A second bill, which will lift some of the competition on dairy products, provides for licensing of manufacturers and wholesalers of edible oil products. It will give the agriculture minister power to regulate the advertising and labelling of such products.

Mr. Thomas said the main effort of the public works department is toward building more bed space in mental hospitals.

To Enlarge Hospitals

Work would start this year on 300 beds for mentally ill children between the ages of two and six at the hospital school at Orillia.

Other mental-hospital additions would provide 460 beds at Port Arthur, 600 beds at Brockville and 900 beds at Smiths Falls.

A new mental hospital of 1,200 beds was planned in the North Bay area to serve northeast Ontario.

Bills dealing with the province's share of hydro development of the St. Lawrence river, in conjunction with the deep waterway, were put through committee stage.

Health Minister Phillips introduced a bill to establish the Ontario Cancer Institute, with nine members.

Mr. Thomas said his department plans to establish regional offices across the province to supervise construction projects. The first office would be established at the head of the lakes to supervise all works from Geraldton to the Manitoba border.

To Renovate Hatcheries

The department was also studying plans for new researeh buildings at both the Ontario Veterinary and Ontario Agricultural colleges at Guelph.

Premises were being purchased at Chatham, Simcoe and Brighton for provincial police stations which would also provide living quarters for one or more officers. New O.P.P. detachment buildings were planned for Ignace, Long Lac and Minden.

Two new headquarters buildings for chief forest rangers were planned for Sault Ste. Marie and Trout Lake, near North Bay.

Future plans also called for renovation of fish hatcheries at Sault Ste. Marie, Codrington and Chatsworth, and improvements at the Deer Lake hatchery.

U.S. Girls Drool Over Brando's Caveman Style

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD, April 5—(AP)—"Looks like the Marlon Brando holocaust has struck feminine America."

That's the comment from Tom Wood of the Twin City Sentinel, Winston-Salem, N.C. He reports that all the girls down there are ga-ga over Brando and "the big attraction seems to be the beast in him."

Wood says he asked a girl, "would you like a guy to beat you up like that?" she almost swooned, "with a goony smile at my question." He adds: "What good is civilization if they all faint over caveman tactics?"

That's a good question, Tom. It is one that a friend of mine pondered. We'll call him Ambrose Bomeisler.

Ambrose is happily married to a sweet little girl named Agnes. At least they were happily married until Marlon Brando came along.

Agnes first was infatuated with Brando in "The Men." She went raving mad for him when he played Stanley Kowalski in "A Streetcar Named Desire." Her joy was complete with "Viva Zapata."

Plan Devised

All she could talk about was Brando, and she sneered at Ambrose's timid advances. Ambrose was alarmed. His happy home was in jeopardy. He devised a plan.

Ambrose went to see the three Brando pictures. He saw them again and again. He practised the slurring Brando diction. He lifted weights to stimulate a muscle-bound appearance. Then he sprung his plan.

"Come to dinner, Ambrose," Agnes called in bored tones one evening.

When Ambrose came to the table, she stared at him. He was wearing a sweaty pair of dungarees and a shredded T-shirt. He slouched with hair awry, a beer can in his hand.

"You can't come to the table like that!" Agnes scolded.

"Woosez icn comd table likis?" he snarled, scratching his stomach.

"Speak up! I can't understand a word you're saying."

"You hear me! I said 'Woosez icn comda table likis?' " he growled, scratching his bare foot. "Ambrose, what has come over you? Have you gone crazy?"

Broccoli Cold

"Crazy! who are you calling crazy?" he snapped, scratching. "I'm your husband. Right now I wanna kiss." He grabbed her fiercely and planted a kiss on her lips.

"Ambrose, let me go! The broccoli is getting cold!"

"Broccoli! I'll show you what I tink of broccoli!" He picked up the dish and threw it, broccoli and all, out the window. The window was closed at the time.

Agnes grabbed the pitcher of ice water and poured it over Ambrose's head. "That's just about enough," she said, and Ambrose agreed.

Western Oil Speculators Swamp Toronto Exchange

By DICK BAIDEN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Western Oil speculators swamped Toronto's Stock Exchange this week with a flood of "buy" orders that boosted prices and transactions to record highs.

Recommendation Wednesday by the Alberta Conservation Board to permit gas export from the Peace River district to the west coast touched off the most hectic buying since fall.

The board's recommendation that Westcoast Transmission Company Limited be allowed to tap the gas fields of central and southern Alberta sparked Pacific Petroleum for an opening jump of more than $2 Thursday. Pacific controls Westcoast Transmission. Within minutes the advance had spread to Anglo-American, Calvan Consolidated, Home Oil, Sapphire, Trans Empire and a broad list of lower-priced issues.

Within the first hour the Exchange's western oil index jumped more than 4½ points and, although profit-taking whittled gains steadily for most of the session, closed with an advance of almost two points. During the day, the exchange's ticker service fell as much as 15 minutes behind the flood of orders.

New York responded swiftly to the news as Canadian oil issues listed on the curb market provided the heaviest trading in more than six years.

Heavy trading continued Friday but the index slipped in sporadic profit-taking. The market split sharply between buying and selling with individual issues showing changes ranging to about $..

Although most brokers were too busy to analyze the market, a few explained the split as a clash between selling, largely Canadian, and heavy buying from the United States.

Other professionals pointed out that the board's recommendation would call for an appraisal of other British Columbia industries that would be affected by the prospect of cheaper power.

Almost obscured by the attraction of western oils, industrials, golds and base metals maintained a steady advance. Trading was mainly in leading issues and a few selected lower-priced stocks.

New York prices drifted irregularly lower except for a weak rally Thursday. Rails and oils were most active.

From Friday to Friday, the Toronto Stock Exchange indices showed Industrials up 2.91 at 329.42, golds up 2.71 at 88.31, base metals up 1.99 at 188.79 and western oils up 8.78 at 153.98.

In the Montreal averages banks were up .11 at 29.86, utilities up .1 at 85.5, industrials up .2 at 208.1, combined up .2 at 167.2, papers down 7.56 at 728.31 and golds up 1.82 at 66.80.

In New York, the Associated Press average of 60 stocks dipped 60 cents to $102.00.

May Change Plan

TORONTO, April 5—(CP)—C. B. C. Scott of the Massey Harris Company Friday predicted a swing away from compulsory retirement at 65 under a pension plan. He told the annual conference of the Personnel Association of Toronto that many workers object to being forced out at 65.

Niagara Merchants Wrestling With Premium Problems

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y., April 5 (AP)—Merchants on both sides of the Canadian-U.S. border Friday wrestled with the problem of retaining their international business in the face of the Canadian dollar's growing value.

On the official exchange, the Canadian dollar is fluctuating around 2 per cent more than the U.S. dollar. The Canadian dollar, that is, is worth about $1.02 in the U.S. and the U.S. dollar is worth about 98 cents in Canada.

At the moment, most merchants in this resort city and its over-the-river sister, Niagara Falls, Ont., are working on a par-value basis.

A few gas stations here, however, are giving a one-cent premium for Canadian dollars. And the Niagara Falls Merchants Association expects to take some formal action on the question soon, with every indication that the members will decide to give a premium.

Merchants here feel that if they don't give Canadian customers at least 1 per cent, they will lose business.

On the Canadian side, meanwhile, the problem is exactly the reverse. Many merchants believe they will lose tourist dollars during the coming summer unless they continue to accept U.S. money at par. At the same time, they will cut their own dollar profits unless they discount U.S. money.

Accepted At Par

A spot check indicated Friday that only one department store in Niagara Falls, Ont., is discounting the U.S. dollar at 1 per cent. Most grocers were accepting U.S. money at par, although some smaller ones were discounting as much as 1½ per cent.

Tourist homes, motels and other businesses catering to travellers all were accepting the U.S. dollar at par.

The Canadian dollar topped the U.S. dollar in value for the first time since the Second World War only a couple of months ago. At its lowest ebb in recent years—December, 1947 — the Canadian dollar was discounted at 12 per cent.

Let Us Keep Our Self-Respect

The extraordinary suggestion was made in the Senate on Thursday that the Canadian Government should assure the people of the U.S.A. that their dollars will be accepted at par in this country, even if our Canadian dollar should be at a premium. This proposal was made by Senator Isnor, and we are glad that other Senators, and Senator W. D. Euler in particular, disagreed with him sharply. It was Senator Isnor's fear that if U.S. dollars were at a discount here the tourist trade would be harmed.

* * *

This is a matter in which common sense must be used. In the first place, the Canadian Government would look very foolish, servile and lick-spittle if it assured the people of the U.S.A. that our merchants and hotel keepers were to be compelled to absorb the loss on their money in order to keep their trade. On the other hand, few Canadians are going to make a fuss about a two- or three-cent discount on the American dollar; but if the discount were to reach a figure where acceptance of the American dollar at par would mean a considerable loss on the season's business, Canadians will, very rightly, charge for it. And a further application of common sense suggests that everybody who does business with American tourists must take great care not to cheat them by so much as a single cent; they will be deeply resentful of any discount on their dollar, and they must not be given the slightest cause to say that they are being cheated.

* * *

Self respect demands that we should not make our money cheap. We give the extra few cents when American money is worth more than ours; we must get what is coming to us when our money is worth more than theirs. We are sometimes accused of having a sense of inferiority toward the U.S.A.; accepting their money at par if it happens to be at a discount would be the surest way of acknowledging that the charge is true.

Canadian Navy's Purpose

Four-fifths of the earth's surface is water. Canada has earth-circling commercial and political interests. Her coastline is among the longest in the world. She faces three oceans; "the wholesome sea is at her gates," as an inscription over the main entrance to the Houses of Parliament says. Shipping and naval defence are therefore important to Canadians. This importance is underlined in the current issue of a trade magazine called Canadian Shipping which is devoted entirely to the Royal Canadian Navy and the Merchant Navy.

Canada has had a navy since 1755 when "His Majesty's Provincial Marine" came into being on the Great Lakes. Under direction of the Royal Navy it policed Lake George, Lake Champlain and Lake Ontario. Not until 1910 however, was a separate Canadian Navy established, and until 1920 this was commanded by a Royal Navy officer, seconded to the Canadian Navy—Admiral Sir Charles Kingsmill. During the Great War, except for some short patrolling, the Canadian navy was chiefly merged with the Royal Navy. Nearly 9,000 Canadian officers and men served the navy during that war, most of them being attached to the R.N.

After the Great War the Canadian naval establishment was reduced to 336 officers and men and the Canadian naval college closed. During the thirties naval activity increased. When war broke out the R.C.N. had 1,770 officers and men, six destroyers, five minesweepers and a few auxiliary craft. It was an inadequate force to do the job required. Canadian shipbuilding was renewed and men answered the call to the ships. At its wartime peak, the Royal Canadian Navy had 95,705 officers and men on its rolls and 400 ships.

Demobilization again cut Canadian naval strength, but not as drastically as in 1922. In 1947 the R.C.N. had 6,882 officers and men, one aircraft carrier, one cruiser, four destroyers, two frigates and two minesweepers.

The authorized strength of the regular force was ten thousand, with 7,500 regarded as the ceiling for immediate planning purposes. The 'Cold War' against Russian Communism, the Korean War and the forming of NATO changed this. The R.C.N. today is assimilating 300-400 young men each month. More ships are being manned, and to fulfill its NATO commitments Canada will have by 1954 a fleet of a hundred vessels, with a personnel of about 21,000. The naval construction program already contracted will give Canada 39 new ships, including fourteen destroyer-escorts of revolutionary Canadian design. The first of these, H.M.C.S. St. Laurent was launched in Montreal last November.

The task of the R.C.N., in the North Atlantic Treaty defence plans, says Mr. Brooke Claxton, Minister of National Defence, is: "To participate with the Royal Navy and the United States Navy in the broad and taxing task of anti-submarine and general escort work across the North Atlantic." The experience of the last war shows this emphasis on anti-submarine warfare to be properly placed. In a single month (July 1942) enemy submarines accounted for 800,000 tons of allied and neutral merchant shipping. During the whole war more than 14½ million tons of merchant shipping fell victim to the U-boats.

From a purely Canadian point of view, shipping lanes must be maintained open and secure. Three-quarters of the Canadian peace-time requirements of the following critical materials is brought into this country by sea: bauxite (aluminum ore), sugar, tin, cordage and rope, fibre, cobalt, antimony ore, vegetable oils. Half our supplies of manganese ore, of rubber and of wool, are brought by sea. In wartime the vital shipping requirements are greatly increased. Canadian export also depends on ships. And a war in Europe or Asia requires vast supplies of goods from this country, to keep our troops (and those of allies) fed and equipped.

The last war could not have been won without convoys, such as this, the largest ever to cross the Atlantic: on the 17th of July, 1944, a convoy of 109 ships sailed from New York and was joined three days later by 31 ships from Halifax, two days later by 24 ships from Sydney, and another two days later by three ships from St. John's, Newfoundland. The convoy of 151 ships destined for the United Kingdom carried:

Grain	84,561 tons
Sugar	84,948 tons
Foodstuffs	47,167 tons
Lumber	35,588 tons
Oil	307,874 tons
Molasses	37,500 tons
Iron and steel	36,705 tons
Other general cargo	80,699 tons
Vehicles and tanks	53,490 tons
Other military equip't.	251,297 tons

In view of the menace of the submarine and the importance of keeping sealanes open and safe, it is not to be wondered at that the Chief of the Naval Staff, Vice-Admiral E. Rollo Mainguy says determinedly, "We intend to place ourselves, beyond shadow of doubt or question, in the ranks of the greatest living authorities on anti-submarine operations." And excepting the two cruisers and the mine-sweepers, every ship in the Royal Canadian Navy today has the basic purpose of conducting anti-submarine operations.

Praise For The Fire Department

In the opinion of an Inspector from the Fire Marshal's Department who watched the Charlotte Street fire on Thursday night, the local Fire Department did as good a job as any fire-fighting unit could have done under the circumstances. We repeat this fact, which has already been recorded in our report of the fire, because we feel that it is important that everyone should know of this expert opinion. There are in every city critics of the fire department who know nothing about fire-fighting, but who are convinced that a fire has been bungled if it is not extinguished at once. But there are many fires in which the utmost has been done if the fire is contained within the building where it began.

Every Ontario city of Peterborough's age is full of fire traps. Old buildings, containing much wooden construction, are always quick to burn. This is particularly true if they have been re-modelled for use as apartments. Light partitions and lowered ceilings are hazards, and where they exist the job of the firemen is unusually difficult.

Knocking the fire department is a popular sport among the uninformed. People who know what fire-fighting is have a high opinion of the Peterborough Fire Department, and that high opinion is amply supported by the work the Department has done in two major fires during the past year.

NOTES AND COMMENT

Spring styles, we read, are designed to make women look "frail, fragile and feminine." Obviously crafty camouflage for leap year.

Tailors announce that there will be no change in men's pockets this year, nobly giving up a wonderful opportunity to make them smaller without causing anybody any inconvenience.

An approving writer in Saturday Evening Post describes Mr. Churchill as "half-American." Wait a few days and Russia will claim to have invented the other half.

An electrical skin test for hidden cancers of the lungs and stomach has been successfully demonstrated at Johns Hopkins Hospital in Baltimore. This is another weapon against cancer; no "cure" for that disease has been found, and it may be that many different cures will be needed for different aspects of it, but the fight against it is not without its victories.

Barren Lands and Hop Land

THE PEOPLE OF THE DEER—by Farley Mowat. (McClelland & Stewart)

THIS FASCINATING ACCOUNT of life in the Barrenlands of Canada's far north has appeared at an opportune moment, when our attention is focussed on the strategic importance of our northern boundary. Mr. Mowat, a grand-nephew of Sir Oliver, who now lives near Orangeville, spent almost two years after he returned from overseas among the Ihalmiut, a branch of the Eskimo race, and learned to know and understand the People of the Deer. He has portrayed the life and thought of this simple people with great sympathy and in doing so has revealed to Canadians a new facet of their own land.

◇ ◇ ◇

THE BARRENS, a vast rolling plain of two million square miles, runs west from Hudson Bay and north from the timber line to the Arctic Sea. Full of contrasts, it is a land of half-light and frozen wastes with temperatures down to 60 below in winter, which changes rapidly to heat of 100 degrees, valleys of wet moss with perpetual ice underneath, great varieties of flowers and birds and swarms of flies. This is the country of the caribou—Canada's reindeer, who winter just inside the timber line until spring, when the northern trek begins: "On the slopes of the distant hill I could just discern a line of motion. It seemed to me that the slopes were sliding gently downward to the bay . . . I tried to count the little dots. Ten, fifty, a hundred, three hundred, and I gave up. In broken twisted lines the deer streamed out onto the ice until they were moving north across a front of several miles." They feed on lichens and small shrubs and are constantly on the move in search of food.

◇ ◇ ◇

JAMES B. TYRELL HAD traversed this land in 1896, but since then it had not been visited by a white man until Mr. Mowat flew 350 miles from Churchill in 1947. After seeing the deer moving north, Mr. Mowat stumbled on the secret of the people when "I found I could not think of the people without the deer" and he found the key to their hearts when he asked to learn their language. As a scientist the author describes how the Ihalmiut have adapted themselves to the land where it was thought no human could exist. Their whole existence depends on the deer, for food, clothing shelter and even tools. Their bodies have become modified to accommodate an enlarged liver which can assimilate the heavy protein diet and store nourishment against long spells of hunger.

But this is far from being a mere collection of interesting facts. It is the tale of the author's friends. Vootek and Ohoto, and their families, who make him their 'song-cousin' and are ready to share everything with him. They even evolved a 'basic' Eskimo language for him as a short cut to their difficult and highly inflected tongue, and not only the two men, but the whole tribe, used this patois when speaking to Mr. Mowat or in his hearing. Thus he learned much of their lore, their history and legends and came to know the unwritten code of law which operates in their land. We all have vague ideas on the morals—or lack of them—among the Eskimo. Mr. Mowat has shown the reader the reasoning behind these customs and one comes to understand why the hunter, on whose skill and well-being depends the welfare of the family, ranks first on the priority list in the face of hunger and starvation.

◇ ◇ ◇

THE AUTHOR DEALS at some length with the immediate problem of the extinction of this race. When Tyrell visited the country fifty years ago, there were 2,000 People of the Deer; now there are less than 30. Shortly after the traders met the Eskimo, they provided guns and ammunition to hunt the Arctic fox, whose pelt was in great demand. For a few years there was a lucrative trade in furs and the People of the Deer bought ammunition, flour, etc. and gave up their complete dependence on the deer. But in the 20's the fur market broke, traders withdrew from the isolated posts, and when the Ihalmiut arrived with their furs, they found the posts closed and had to return home with neither food nor ammunition to hunt game. The situation became desperate, since they had lost their skill in using bows and spears, and, in addition, had made unnecessary slaughter of the deer during the boom period. Starvation stalked the land and camps were decimated. Now, with only one main migration of caribou instead of several, and fewer camps, it is quite possible that a whole band miss the deer on their northward trek because they are too weak from hunger to follow them. In 1947 a message went out and the Canadian Government sent some aid—but the author speaks critically of supplies of flour, beans and fishing nets for people starving for protein and with no fuel for cooking during the winter months. He cites the fate of coastal tribes who have changed their diet completely from one based on meat and protein, to fish and starch of the white man. Here a hidden starvation is at work, undermining the whole race of Indian and Eskimo people in contact with our civilization, which, he claims, is responsible for the prevalence of disease, particularly tuberculosis, among them.

◇ ◇ ◇

IN CLOSING the author says "The People lent their eyes for the author to see things hidden from the white man. Now he lends his voice so the white man can hear the words the Ihalmiut cannot speak for themselves . . . Give them freedom from starvation—not as a dole, but by helping them to feed themselves." He states that the same methods used to save the buffalo from extinction can be used for the caribou and, if help comes immediately, the Ihalmiut may yet be saved. To provide this help is a requital we owe. Then, when we look to our defences in the North, we shall find a nucleus of native people, inured to hardship and adapted to their surroundings, who can assist us in establishing camps or stations in this inhospitable, but fascinating land.

A WINDOW ON A HILL by Richard Church (Robert Hale Ltd., London)

WE WISH TO NOTE in this column a lovable and lovely book about the English countryside. Mr. Church, poet and novelist, is also an essayist and country writer. He succeeded Sir William Beech Thomas as country columnist in The Spectator. This volume is a collection of Mr. Church's essays. They are of the Kentish countryside, seen from a window in a converted oasthouse high on a hill, where he and his wife make their home.

The writer has an emotional sense of the countryside, quickened by alert and detailed observation, deepened by a learned and reposed mind. The reflective essays—they are gentle rather than delicate—give as wide and gracious a view as the window on the hill: harvesting, stoves, the first nightingale, a wet summer day, addressing a meeting of the Women's Institute in a neighbouring village, the gardener listening to a broadcast when the Roosevelt memorial in Grosvenor Square was dedicated, the joys of solitude, notes on books about the countryside. The simplicity of the subjects is matched by the style, quiet, compact, sure in image. Such a sentence as this, for instance about a friend: "He carried friendship as a palpable thing, as a priest carries the Sacrament".

Because a life such as Mr. Church leads is very rare, and his qualities of mind are rare, this collection of essays is an unusual delight, to be savoured and taken to heart in a busy age by bustling people. The numerous pen and ink drawings by C. W. Bacon illustrate the text and accent the moods.

AS OUR FOOTNOTE, here is a verse from a sensible eighteenth century poet, John Byrom. Reasonable people might read the poem "Careless Content" today with benefit: "With more of Thanks, and less of Thought
I strive to make my Matters meet;
To seek what ancient Sages sought,
Physic and Food, in sour and sweet:
To take what passes in good Part,
And keep the Hiccups from the Heart".

British Socialists Earn Pin Money

(CALGARY HERALD)

IT HAS been a source of considerable amusement in Britain recently that many prominent members of the late Socialist government who heaped scorn on the so-called "capitalist press" while in office, are now busy as little bees writing for the newspapers they professed to detest, and are not scorning the money they get paid for doing so.

The most prominent member of the former government to break into print is the Right Honourable Clement Attlee, ex-Prime Minister. Some of his writing are now appearing in Canadian publications, no doubt to the delight and edification of our home-grown Socialists.

What Mr. Attlee has to say, it should be borne in mind, is said as the head of the Socialist party in Britain, and just because he used to be Prime Minister does not guarantee its worth. It is Socialist propaganda, and as truth some of it is highly dubious.

One of the early remarks he makes is that it isn't true that the British workman is less efficient than his American counterpart. He works just as well, says Mr. Attlee, except that the American has more machinery and more modern machinery.

That is a mixture of pap and half-truth, and Mr. Attlee must know it because there are reports galore in his own party's files to prove it. In the years since the war, the Socialist government sent many "teams" composed of technicians and labour union observers to the United States to study American industrial methods and American workers. Acutely aware of their sponsorship, many teams used weasel words in their reports when they got home, but in several known instances they reported that the American worker did work harder and better than his British counterpart, and they explained why. The American did a better job because he knew he'd get paid for it, and paid well. Some reports also noted the urge to be personally successful, the desire to chalk up personal accomplishment, which were far more obvious in the United States than they were among British workers.

Has Mr. Attlee forgotten those reports?

He complains about the Conservative move to slash the number of civil servants, something which the majority of Britons agreed needed doing. Mr. Attlee says the ultimate effect of the cut will be known only when the government follows the discharged people and finds out what new jobs they got. Perhaps the new jobs aren't as "useful" as the ones on the government payroll. What does this indicate? Certainly not any desire for government economy. It does reveal the Socialist passion for full employment at all costs, even if the taxpayers have to pay the shot for jobs being handled by half a dozen petty officials when one man could do the task well. Furthermore, why should the government "follow" anybody in his private life? Only a Socialist would think that way.

But Mr. Attlee isn't so dumb. He's getting good capitalist money for peddling Socialist propaganda.

Advertising

(The Chicago Tribune)

There having come to our hands a set of the advertising standards adopted by the Milwaukee Better Business Bureau, I have set about drawing up an advertisement which violates as many of these standards as possible. What is upsetting is to find, after a good deal of labour, that the result is not very different from some of the ads we see and hear every hour. Here it is

1. Asterisks referring to footnote qualifications should be avoided whenever possible.
2. "Regular price" should mean the actual price at which the item sold just before and will sell just after the sale.
3. Descriptions such as silky, linen-like, and ivory-type are improper unless the item is made of that material.
4. Guarantees should be specific. This umbrella, for example, might turn out to be fully guaranteed against fire and fading.
5. When quoting a range of prices, the minimum and the maximum should be stated.

There are other features of the Milwaukee code, but I didn't see anything referring to the "88 per cent of the doctors who know best" who are being quoted to us so frequently on the radio. Who decides which one knows best?

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

And the multitude of all the nations that fight against Ariel, even all that fight against her and her munition, and that distress her shall be as a dream of a night vision. It shall be even as when all hungry man dreameth, and, behold, he eateth; but he awaketh, and his soul is empty: or as when a thirsty man dreameth, and, behold, he drinketh; but he awaketh, and, behold, he is faint, and his soul hath appetite: so shall the multitude of all the nations be, that fight against mount Zion. (Isa. 29: 7,8.)

The night is far spent, the day is at hand: let us therefore cast off the works of darkness, and let us put on the armour of light. (Rom. 13: 12.)

◇ ◇ ◇

For ye were sometimes darkness, but now are ye light in the Lord: walk as children of light: (for the fruit of the Spirit is in all goodness and righteousness and truth;) proving what is acceptable unto the Lord. And have no fellowship with the unfruitful works of darkness, but rather reprove them . . . .

Wherefore he saith, Awake thou that sleepest, and arise from the dead, and Christ shall give thee light. (Eph. 5: 8-11, 14.)

◇ ◇ ◇

As for me, I will behold thy face in righteousness: I shall be satisfied, when I awake, with thy likeness. (Ps. 17: 15.)

Welfare And Fanfare

(Hamilton Spectator)

Down in Rochester the other day our Federal Minister of Health, Paul Martin, was telling a group of Americans about tremendous strides in "welfare progress". Measured by money Canadian governments and voluntary agencies will spend $1,330,000,000 during 1952 on social security compared to $15,000,000 in 1913, and Mr. Martin cheerfully presented this as a token of our rise to the position of a world power.

In a way he was right—and so right. In fact, if you take what Canada spends per capita on social security, which now is around $95 annually for every man, woman and child in the land by Mr. Martin's figure, you will find it is far greater per capita spending than in so-called socialized Great Britain.

But the significant thing is that we are just at the beginning of the great state adventure in looking after us all from cradle to the grave, with intervening years to be haunted by a voracious tax collector.

"Ain't that nice, Butch? You'll be able to tell the folks back home you nearly saw the Boat-race."

A·F·I·E·L·D with NICK NICKELS

PORT HOPE—The only way to learn about fish and fishing is to visit the experts. In the case of smelts I went down the Ganaraska harbor mouth on Mill St., S., to see Hughy Campbell and his son Johnny.

In fact they were out on Lake Ontario all morning and came tooling back to town at eight miles per hour in their 42-foot open fishing boat just as I reached their fish house. They were followed by a white cloud of gulls right to their mooring berth. Various hangers-on who sat on empty fish boxes and lounged against the net drying racks began to speculate on their catch before the boat came to a stop. They were pretty close, too, when the fish were finally put on the scales.

Hughy is a Scot with an Irish accent, about 65, I would judge, and a commercial fisherman most of his life. He spoke intimately of various fishing banks off the British Isles, of taking salmon on the Pacific Coast and winter fishing in Northern Saskatchewan. All this before coming to Port Hope many years ago.

How was smelt fishing?

Sports Take Over, Experts Through

As far as he and Johnny were concerned it was just about over. His haul that day would go about 100 pounds and he was right within a pound or two. They had started fishing this year about March 1, five or six miles out and gradually worked inshore with the smelt run that, at the peak, netted 750 pounds in one swoop. Now it had fallen off because the female fish had spawned fairly close to shore in ten or 12 feet of water. And the bucks—males—have just started to run up the numerous small county streams. He estimated the beach and stream run started on Thursday evening and that it should be at its best about Easter week-end this year. Of his 100-pound haul nearly all the fish were females, big ones that averaged a quarter of a pound each. Townspeople and city buyers vied with the gulls for disposal of the catch and his day's take was gone in about 15 minutes.

Hughy and his lakeshore fishing pals are mighty glad to take a cash crop from the smelt run. Ten years ago one or two fish in the nets were an oddity but for four years now they have been very numerous and are getting better each spring.

Miles Of Nets Gone Inseine

Commercial fishing is an expensive business. First there is the boat that costs a pretty penny and then the nets. Fishermen speak of owning so many gangs of nets. A gang is two miles long and they think themselves badly off if they haven't got at least 12 or 15 miles of seine nets on hand all the time. And all of it is woven in their fish houses by hand. They buy twine—these days nylon preferred—and the top and bottom ropes and hollow aluminum floats and lead sinkers. Smelt mesh is one and seven-eights inches, herring 2½ inches and whitefish, 4½ inches. Nets are hauled aboard by a patent winch that runs off the 160 h.p. engine and storms play havoc with them. When they are not on the water, and during their three month rest period in winter, there are nets to make. It is an endless job.

Slit and Twist

To see Hughy and Johnny cleaning fish for customers is something to watch. A couple of flicks with a sharp knife, a gouge with their thumbs to remove the innards and it's done. No trouble to dispose of the waste, either; the hovering gulls fairly snap it out of the cleaning tubs.

Commercial fishermen probably don't make a great deal of money but there is more than enough for beer and skittles. And no other type of earning a living would suit them. From what they say the smelt have been a boon to them.

Kawartha selling is going great guns, according to the C. of C. boys who have been to and returned from the Cleveland Sportsmen's Show. There never were such crowds, they say, inquiring about our district. Clevelanders make the Kawartha booth a regular meeting place and reminisce about happy summer days in front of the attractive wall map. The booth is better manned this year than in former years, more dispensers of information in larger shifts, and you may be sure not a shred of selling is lost on these trained teams.

Fishermen Lures Not Enough

The new booklet they are passing out this year is the best yet. Very attractive and contains a separate district map. Future visitors and fishermen from Ohio will really have something to mull over between now and early summer. It is pretty sure to be a boom tourist year in the Kawarthas IF they heed Deputy Travel Minister Tom McCall's warning that we must bring our vacation costs into line with similar offerings that are to be had in the U.S.A. The difference in money rates will promote some shrewd holiday shopping.

Famous Deaths—IV.

Socrates (399 B.C.)

Crito made a sign to the servant, who was standing by; and he went out, and having been absent for some time, returned with the jailer carrying the cup of poison. Socrates said: You, my good friend, who are experienced in these matters, shall give me directions how I am to proceed. The man answered: You have only to walk about until your legs are heavy, and then to lie down, and the poison will act. At the same time he handed the cup to Socrates, who in the easiest and gentlest manner, without the least fear or change of colour or feature, looking at the man with all his eyes, Echecrates, as his manner was, took the cup and said: What do you say about making a libation out of this cup to any god? May I, or not? The man answered: We only prepare, Socrates, just so much as we deem enough. I understand, he said: but I may and must ask the gods to prosper my journey from this to the other world—even so—and so be it according to my prayer.

Then raising the cup to his lips, quite readily and cheerfully he drank off the poison. And hitherto most of us had been able to control our sorrow; but now when we saw him drinking, and saw too that he had finished the draught, we could no longer forbear, and in spite of myself my own tears were flowing fast; so that I covered my face and wept, not for him, but at the thought of my own calamity in having to part from such a friend. Nor was I the first; for Crito, when he found himself unable to restrain his tears, had got up, and I followed; and at that moment, Apollodorus, who had been weeping all the time, broke out in a loud and passionate cry which made cowards of us all.

Socrates alone retained his calmness: What is this strange outcry? he said. I sent away the women mainly in order that they might not misbehave in this way, for I have been told that man should die in peace. Be quiet then, and have patience.

When we heard his words we were ashamed, and refrained our tears; and he walked about until, as he said, his legs began to fail, and then he lay on his back, according to the directions, and the man who gave him the poison now and then looked at his feet and legs; and after a while he pressed his foot hard, and asked him if he could feel; and he said, No; and then his legs, and so upwards and upwards, and showed us that he was cold and stiff. And he felt them himself, and said: When the poison reaches the heart, that will be the end.

He was beginning to grow cold about the groin, when he uncovered his face, for he had covered himself up, and said—they were his last words—he said: Crito, I owe a cock to Asclepius; will you remember to pay the debt? The debt shall be paid, said Crito; is there anything else? There was no answer to this question; but in a minute or two a movement was heard, and the attendants uncovered him: his eyes were set, and Crito closed his eyes and mouth.

PLATO: THE PHAEDO (Jowett Translation)

Mr. Pickens, 80, Spent 30c On Medicine But Many Hastings Doctors Were Busy

By MRS. GERALD MARRYAT

It is a good thing for the medical profession that everybody is not as healthy as Andrew Pickens, senior, who confided to the Hastings Star that he was 80 years old in January 1898 and that he had never had a pain or an ache in his life, while he had taken only thirty cents' worth of medicine. Quite a record.

Born in 1818 in Ireland and coming to North Percy about 1840, Mr. Pickens must have known, by sight, at any rate, the various doctors who looked after the less rugged residents in the Hastings district. Here are a few brief facts about those early saddle-bag physicians, who lived hard and often un-rewarding lives—upheld by their own high ideals, and the knowledge that their knowledge and effort made their backwoods world a better place.

DR. J. D. BOGART

Dr. D. Coate, M.D. was advertising in the Peterborough Gazette, October, 1846, that he was a Licentiate in Surgery, Physic and Midwifery, residing at the Marble Faced Cottage, next door to Mr. Fraser's on Hunter Street. Miss Eleanor McCrea of Keene told me that Dr. Coate's first wife was a Read, and that Mamie and Sophie Coate were great friends of the late Miss Bessie Read. The doctor moved to Hastings in June 1861 and died there in the house now owned by Dr. J. H. Hess in 1861-62, when the family when to Cobourg. But they often came back to visit the Blacklocks.

Dr. Amos McCrea of Keene and Peterborough was often sent for to aid the stricken inhabitants of Hastings. Bad accidents were a purely local affair in those pre-hospital days when the kitchen table and candle light were the only operating room accessories and laudanum and opium the usual sedatives. It was not until after 1860 that chloroform was first used in the backwoods of Peterborough county.

Miss McCream has added something to the story of her father as contributed by me to the Examiner of July 2nd, 1846. The first of the family in North America was the Rev. William McCrea, a Presbyterian minister in Stillwater, New York. His son, the Rev. James McCrea, lived in Stillwater, and his son, Samuel, was the Loyalist who came to Upper Canada to Prescott or near there. Originally the McCreas came from the north of Ireland. Dr. McCrea was born in Merriekville, July 2, 1821, the son of Edward McCrea. He settled at Norwood, moving to Keene in the spring of 1852, just a century ago, and in June of the following year married Agnes Reid. He practiced in Keene until April 1882 when he moved to Peterborough, where he was among the first to use the new electric lights. In October a move was made back to their old home and there on October 15th the doctor died. Mrs. McCrea died on June 25th, 1895 at the age of 62.

Dr. James N. McCrea was an older brother but a younger doctor who lived in Keene for a year studying with his brother Amos. He was in Roseneath in 1859 and often had to come to Hastings. He afterwards moved to Warkworth where he was established for many years.

Dr. John B. Wilson was doctoring the people of Westwood and Asphodel in 1853; was living in the Hess house in 1854-55; then departed mysteriously, but was on the county census list in 1869. I do not know whether he and "old Dr. Wilson of Seymour" were one and the same person, or not.

Dr. Tracy or Tracey, also lived in the house on Albert St. and was very much missed when his superior talents made an opening for him in Belleville. His mother-in-law, Mrs. Dunlop of Kingston, his wife and he, were frequent visitors with their old friends, but there seems to be very little information about them, except that the doctor was prominent in militia circles and Medical Officer to the Headquarters staff of the district about the same time. Belonging to a prominent Trenton family, and connected with the Birdsalls, he and his brother, a lawyer, were popular young gentlemen until they moved away.

Dr. Walter Barringer was called a "quack" by some and a miracle worker by others who had been cured by his knowledge of herbs and their use in sickness. Maybe he would qualify as a Homoeopath in our day. He lived where Wesley Montgomery lives now. His son, Samuel, died in Peterborough, at the age of 81, sometime in the early 1930's. The Barringers came from Consecon, Prince Edward County.

Dr. Sinclair came from Colborne, I think. He was a fine singer and of great assistance to the Presbyterian choir and Sunday School. He contributed a dollar to the funds of the Lacrosse Club along with A. E. Wallace, the druggist, Hugh Jones, son of J. M. Jones, manager of the Woollen Mills, Alec Wilson, Harry Fowlds, F. W. Fowlds, Harry Fowlds, Johnny Murray, J. Bird and James Moore. That was in 1877.

Dr. Fergus of Seymour, who lived at "The Patch," was paid by the Fowlds' store for attending a Frenchman in Hastings; or maybe in one of the Percy lumber shanties, in 1856.

Dr. Yeureux was here in 1883, but with the exception of the late Alec Wilson no one else has mentioned him.

Dr. Bogart bought out Dr. Sinclair. His office in the frame building on the Royal Bank corner was destroyed in the "big fire" of 1882, when he moved to Campbellford, where he died on May 20th, 1900 at the age of 65.

Miss M. E. Blacklock of Meadowvale, now in her 93rd year, but still interested in Hastings, has told of the doctors of her early youth:

"The Clarks were well known people; the old doctor was a very clever man and was always a striking figure—he had a leonine head of hair—silvery, with whiskers to match; he was a widower with three grown-up daughters, Nellie, Tillie and Jessie (first organist in the Presbyterian Church) and two sons, John Whichelo, and A. Neal Clark. His predecessor was Dr. Purdy, who afterwards made a name for himself in Chicago."

Miss Blacklock could not remember Dr. Fife who was here before 1867, but she did remember going with her mother to pay a call on Mrs. Fife, then a bride, and being much impressed with her pretty room (Probably one of the large rooms facing the street in the double brick house on the west side of the Victoria St. hill). This room was done in green and gold—most drawing rooms at the time in Hastings being rather nondescript. "This being my first introduction to the artistic in home furnishings at the mature age of six or thereabouts, it remained permanently fixed in my mind."

The many friends in Hastings made by Dr. Joseph A. Fife during his stay here of ten years mourned his loss when the Examiner, February 13, 1902, announced his death on February 12 after a long illness, which had forced him to retire from his professional duties.

DR. TRACY

Joseph Alexander Fife, M.D., was a native of Canada. His grandfather, John Fife, left Greenock, Scotland, May 24, 1820, and settled the same year on Lot 22, Concession 4, Otonabee. When Thomas, Dr. Fife's father, and one of John Fife's seven sons, was 18 years of age he took up Lot 26 in Con. 5, Otonabee, where he he[lped] farm in the wilderness and built the house where his son Joseph was born. Thomas Fife married a daughter of John Beckett of Renfrewshire, a pioneer in the Westwood district, whose thrilling adventure in crossing Rice Lake by pushing a plank ahead of him over thin ice was told in the Examiner by Mrs. William Tinker.

Joseph A. Fife received his education in Peterborough and Victoria College, Cobourg, entering the School of Medicine in 1860. Three years later he went to Washington, with a view to admission to army or navy practice, and at once received a commission as Assistant Surgeon in the Navy. He was in Admiral Dahlgren's Fleet, in the South Atlantic Squadron, and was present at the bombardment of Charlston, S.C. during the American Civil War, and was for nearly two years on blockade duty. After the war was over he took a regular course in Bellevue Hospital, New York, and subsequently returned to Canada, completing his medical course at Victoria. He first practised in Brampton, then in Hastings, but later moved to Peterborough where he established himself as an outstanding member of his profession and was appointed to the first staff of the Nicholls Hospital.

He married a daughter of the Rev. Ashton Fletcher of Woodstock, whose pretty drawing-room in Hastings was admired by young Miss Blacklock, then aged 6. At his death, his family was scattered William at Boland, Man., Ashton T. at Rat Portage, J. Harold in Vancouver, B.C., and two daughters, Mary and Alice, at home.

Dr. Fife was recalled as a man of amiable character, upright and straight-forward, zealous in the work of George St. Methodist Church of which he was a trustee. The accompanying photograph was lent by his niece, Mrs. Thomas J. Richardson, Hastings, and reproduced by the Roy Studio.

From 1857 to 1880, Hastings was the scene of great industrial activity and in 1869 Dr. William French and Dr. Charles W. Purdy were practising here as well as Dr. Fife. Dr. French soon went elsewhere, possibly to Seymour.

Dr. Charles W. Purdy, whose photograph was supplied by Miss Blacklock, whose family doctor he was in 1870, went to Chicago, Ill. where he died in 1901. He came from Brighton and a well-known lumber dealer, S. L. Purdy, was a cousin. The Hastings Star, Feb 20th, in announcing his death, mentioned that he was "a very distinguished medical practicioner and a recognized authority on all diseases of the kindeys." No other details were given.

Andrew Pickens, senior, who had told the Hastings Star, that in January, 1898, he was 80 years of age, had never had a pain or an ache, and had taken only 30 cents' worth of medicine in his life; lived to the good old age of 86-past, dying at the family residence in Percy on August 11th, 1905—outliving most of the men who had rendered aid to the sick and injured in Hastings and district in his life-time.

Color Of Soil No Criterion Of Fertility

By HENRY PREE (NEA)

A productive soil is one that is capable of growing plants. In order to be productive the soil must be well supplied with organic matter and with certain nutrients required to sustain the life of the plants.

Many folks are under the impression that the color of the soil is the determining factor, that the blacker the soil the better it is.

Color has nothing to do with the soil's fertility. A yellow soil, providing it is friable and rich in the essential nufrients, is just as productive as black soil equally rich.

Because these essential nutrients, commonly called chemical elements, are constantly being taken out by leaching and by plants, it is necessary that the gardener make up this loss in some way.

The easiest and quickest way is to use a complete commercial fertilizer or plant food. These fertilizers may be purchased in many name brands at most all garden supply stores.

The question of "what is a fertilizer" is well answered by Victor H. Ries, author of "The Gardener's Troubleshooter or How to Keep Your Plants Healthy."

Ries writes: "Fertilizer is any material that increases the fertility of the soil, that adds the necessary plant nutrients to the soil. If the material is made up of plant or animal by-products it is called an organic fertilizer.

"On the other hand if it is made up of chemicals it is called an inorganic fertilizer."

The formulas of the earlier fertilizers were based on the three essential elements — nitrogen, phosphorus and potassium. Despite regular feeding of the soil with these fertilizers many plants failed to produce satisfactory yields because of the absence of other elements also vitally needed by the plant.

The major and minor elements and their functions in plant growth are:

NITROGEN — An important constituent of plant proteins.

PHOSPHORUS—An important plant growth and induces early maturity of plants.

POTASSIUM— Strengthens the stems of plants and regulates fruit production.

CALCIUM — A component of cell walls which imparts strength to the plant structure.

MAGNESIUM — Imparts green color to plants.

SODIUM — Acts in the same capacity as potassium.

SULPHUR—A part of all plant proteins. Produces larger root systems.

IRON—Essential for the production of the green pigment of plants. A lack of iron shows up by a yellowing of leaves and stems.

MANGANESE — Plants deprived of it make stunted growth and produce no seed. Deficiency symptoms include the gray speck disease.

IODINE — Stimulates plant growth when applied in small quantities.

ZINC—Foliage of plants grown without zinc is smaller and often covered with brown spots.

COPPER — Stimulates plant growth, particularly in organic soils.

Gardening Questions

Q.—What is the best method for the propagation of chrysanthemums, and how is it done?—P.C.

A—Chrysanthemums are commonly propagated by cuttings. Follow this method: take pieces 2½ to 3 inches long from the tips of strong shoots. These are placed in a rooting medium of clean builders sand, vermiculite, or a mixture of 2/3 builders sand and 1/3 peat moss. Keep the rooting medium constantly moist — not soggy.

Q.—We are being troubled with little white daisies growing in our front lawn. We can not seem to dig them out. Is there any weed killer we can buy that will take care of these weeds?—W.T.

A—The tiny white daisies in the lawn can be readily killed by spraying them with one of the several 2-4-D weed killers recommended especially for dandelions. Spray them on the first warm day in spring and again in three or four weeks.

Boiled Sap For Sugar, Not Syrup

Pioneers of this district looked forward to the time of the "sugaring-off" more anxiously than their present day descendants, for maple sugar was the sweet staple of their diet. Cane sugar was costly and hard to bring in; maple sugar was at their back doors.

It was one of three by-products of the forest important to the first settlers, and before that, to the Indians, whom the settlers copied. The other two were potash (the "ashery" had a significant place in pioneer life before soap manufactury came into being); and, tanbark. Extract from the bark of hemlock was used to cure hides.

The boiling down of sugar from the sap of the hard maple is of primitive origin, the Indians having made it from very early times. The pioneers of this district in general used the Indian method, except that the birch bark bucket was replaced by the big iron kettle.

These kettles ranged in size up to nearly four feet in diameter. The fires were kept burning under the kettles night and day in the woods during the sugaring-time.

No Syrup

The early settlers made sugar exclusively and then, if they desired maple syrup, they would turn the sugar back into syrup.

In the diary of Edmund Wilson, an early lumber mill operator in the Ganaraska district (the diary is in the possession of the Wilson family of Garden Hill), there is this reference to sugaring operations: "In winter of 1841 and 1842 there was very little snow. The sugar making commenced very early in March, the finest Year for it I ever saw, we made near 200 lbs.".

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

By CEC. PERDUE, Sports Editor

Quite a raft of Peterborough puck followers will follow the Petes to Stouffville tonight for that fourth senior "B" playoff tilt. If the Ellis crew can take it, they'll be back here Monday all even on the best-of-seven serial. A loss will put them with their backs right up 'gainst the w.k. wall Monday eve. The Stouffville arena holds about as many as Civic, so don't be too late getting there if you want seats, even if the game is a nine o'clock touch. That great finish by Petes here Thursday caught the fans' fancy and they think the locals will eventually rub out the classy Clippers to proceed in provincial playoffs.

* * * * * *

Only once a week does the Stouffville Tribune appear, and we have a copy of it after the second game. With a front page heading: "Clippers Go Two Up in Series Over Peterborough", and a big picture of Goalie Norm Stunden. One para—like a touch of foresight, eh?—said: "Arnold Dugan, Petes' winger, is by far the fastest skater on the club and a dangerous threat every time on the ice. Though not as polished around the net, this speedster skates like a second Tommy Burlington of Owen Sound." High praise, indeed, Arnie—and you showed 'em what's what with that winning marker Thursday here, huh? But Petes can't let down a fraction in tonight's big one.

* * * * * *

Well, The Bruins Did It

Boston Bruins might well be setting a swell example for the Petes. Canadiens clipped Bruins two in a row to open their Stanley Cup semi-finals. It looked like four straight, same as Wings took Leafs. But the Bruins battled back fiercely to win the next three in a row and might wrap it up on home ice tomorrow. If not, seventh fray will be in Montreal, but Bruins are given a fine chance now of moving into cup finals against Detroit. Good stuff. Petes also lost two straight to open their series, but bounced back to grab the next one—and they can even it up at two-all tonight if they hustle all the way. So, come on, you Petes and Bruins!

* * * * * *

Swinging over to the diamond for a moment, the C.O.B.L. annual meeting is tomorrow aft in Kingston. The Petes have applied for entry and may get a definite reply at this session. We note where Brockville won't be back, claiming it cost too much. However, it looks like lack of players there is the real reason. Brockville skipper Andy Hershock has been chosen manager of St. Thomas in the Intercounty Loop and he has signed four Brockville players with the Saints and may take a couple more with him. We wonder if Andy realizes the calibre of baseball they play in that minor pro circuit in Western Ontario. Well, he'll learn ere next month endeth.

His Nibs' Noggin Hurts

A pro grappler known as Lord Athol Layton wants no more of mob scenes in Peter's borough, and he's sitting this next team bout out, whilst nursing a sore head. Stopped a steel chair with his royal noggin, a chair tossed by an angry fan. Anyway, villainous Hi Lee has added hateful Hans Hermann as his partner in the main bout against Lu Kimm and Zorra, the popular gees, for the Tuesday night card at the Brock. No doubt, another wild and woolly mat affair as everything goes in these tag tussles. Bobo Brazil meets Warren Bockwinkle in the semi-final of the program, while newcomer Charro Aztec of New Mexico faces Stan Mayslack in the opener. Fans are asked to use their chairs only for sitting purposes this time.

Nurses won the intermediate championship of the Girls' City Basketball League at the Y.W. last night. They took the round by 98-60 to prove worthy winners, though the five-girl Black's squad made a great show in the final game. They won it 33-31 but were much too far back from the first fray to come close. J. Bell sparked the Nurses' attack, as C. Raper and R. Nayler proved best for Black's. In the first of the junior finals, C.G.E. took Normals 32-16 to tote a 16-point lead into the return tussle Tuesday. Scoring was pretty well spread around in this one. Neill's recently took the senior title in the lasses' loop. Next week winds up basketball here for the season.

Nurses Get Int. Hoop Title As C.G.E. Wins Jr. Opener

Though losing 33-31 to Black's in the Y.W.C.A. last evening, the Nurses took the round by a 98-60 score to capture the intermediate championship of the Girls' Basketball League. C.G.E. opened the home-and-home junior finals by grabbing a 32-16 victory over Normals in the other game to take a 16-point lead into the return match next Tuesday evening. Neill's previously won the senior girls' crown.

Black's floored but five players yet came up with a fine display to edge out Nurses by two points on the game. The latter led 18-16 at the half and it was nip-and-tuck through a dandy second stanza, play being wide-open and quite clean. C. Raper dropped in 14 points to pace Black's attack as R. Naylor clicked for 11, M. McIlvena being good for half a dozen and E. McIlhagga two more. J. Bell led the losers in a nifty showing with 17 points, as S. Slater got six, P. Martin five, B. Dawe two, and J. Smith a free shot. The teams:

Nurses — J. Bell, B. Dawe, S. Slater, J. Smith, P. Martin, J. Plunkett, A. Davis, F. Hannam, M. Stackhouse.

Black's — C. Raper, M. McIlvena, M. McGill, E. McIlhagga, R. Naylor.

Close At First

The opener of the junior playoffs was close enough at first, but Electrics gradually built up a 12-9 lead at the intermission, and showed a better shooting attack in the later stages. Normals had four fouls called on them, two being cashed in, while two of the free tosses against C.G.E. were good. Marg. Batley dropped through eight points for the victors, Barb Luther and Dot Jackson being good for seven each, as Pat Nixon had six and Madge Jones four. Betty Scollard and B. J. Waddington of Normals clicked for six points apiece with Betty Osborne and Gwen Todd each hooping the ball once on field throws. Teams:

Normals—B. Osborne, B. Merritt, B. J. Waddington, L. Faircloth, G. Todd, B. Scollard, G. McCullough.

C.G.E.—J. Luther, M. Jones, M. Wayne, D. Jackson, M. Batley, P. Nixon, B. Luther.

Officials — M. Gillen and J. Cooper.

Here And There In Sports

Slamming Sammy Snead took a three-stroke lead Friday at the 36-hole mark of the annual Masters golf tournament. He had a score of 137.

Playing near perfect golf, Snead led runner-up Ben Hogan who had a 140. Sammy was seven strokes under par under the par-72 Augusta, Ga., course.

Jim Ferrier, Canadian open champion, was five strokes off the pace, tied with Tommy Bolt and Johnny Revolta.

Stan Leonard of Vancouver, only Canadian entrant in the tournament, where only the best compete, dropped far behind. He shot a 76 Friday to bring his total to 151.

Snead was in a driving contest all the way and it was largely his long ones that enabled him to whip par. Three of his six birdies came on long, par-five holes. He was firing iron shots close to the pin all day.

Among the crowd of 7,000 was the Duke of Windsor.

It will be Pembroke Lumber Kings against Stratford Indians in the Eastern Canada senior hockey finals for the right to seek the Allan Cup, emblematic of the Canadian Senior Amateur Hockey championship. Pembroke eliminated Jonquierre, Que., Aces Friday night three games to one with a 7-3 win.

Fort William Hurricanes Friday night eked out victory over Winnipeg Monarchs in their best-of-seven semi-final series for the Western Canada junior hockey championship. Hurricanes won 3-2 in overtime, taking the series three games to one, with two tied. They now meet Regina Pats in their quest for the Memorial Cup, emblematic of the Canadian junior hockey championship.

"Babe would have loved it," said the widow of George Herman Ruth Friday at Fayetteville, N. C., where she unveiled a marker on the spot where 38 years ago the Bambino hit his first home run as a professional baseball player. It was the forerunner of 714 homers the Babe hit during his fabulous career.

Frank Ortell, veteran handicapper of the New York World Telegram and Sun, picked the winner of the first seven races at Jamaica Friday. A $2 parley would have brought $8,439.25.

Don Cockell, British and European light heavyweight boxing champ, Friday relinquished his title because he couldn't get a purse large enough to make it worthwhile to fight in that class. He will meet Randy Turpin, in London, June 10 in a middleweight bout.

SH And KE Take City Titles In School Play

Hockey fans were treated to a thrilling show at Civic Arena Friday night as elementary school finals were played before a fair-sized crowd of enthusiastic parents and supporters.

The curtain-raiser saw Sacred Heart intermediates triumph over Prince of Wales by a 6-3 count, while King Edward earned a close 2-1 decision over Pat Doherty's Sacred Heart seniors after a piping two-way struggle.

Bill Mahoney, versatile defence and forward star for the Sacred Heart, proved the individual hero of the opening game as he fired four goals past the enemy fort and set up a pair, to virtually sew up the game singlehanded with a bang-up display. Frank Daley and Don Walker tallied the others while Jim Murphy scored a pair for the losers and John McFadden backhanded a peach from the blue line into the Sacred Heart net for the third tally. Every boy gave his best in both teams, and it was a fine, cleanly contested game all the way, though Sacred Heart had a fair edge over the route.

A Fine Fray

Jim Burns' King Edward senior squad edged Sacred Heart in the afterpiece of the twin set by a 2-1 margin, in a keenly contested struggle that might well have gone either way. The Doherty boys took an early lead on Pat Baker's sparkling tally; but King Edward notched the equalizer later in the frame as Jimmy Mills potted a low screener from the centre blue line area later in the period.

Terrific two-way action followed with Sacred Heart holding a fair edge much of the time, but Al Curtis proved a second Sawchuk to foil their best efforts. Benny Floyd tallied for the Kings on a sharp right wing drive following an attack with Jack Phillips in the mid-frame, and this proved the deciding factor in a torrid battle. Sacred Heart fought gamely in the final frame and held off their rivals but Curtis proved unbeatable to lead his team to victory in a nifty, clean duel. Every boy gave his best as the first elementary school finals proved a big success. Manager Walter Smillie of the Arena promoted the popular series.

Sacred Heart Seniors: Goal, Hickson; defence, J. Flynn, T. Doris; centre, P. Murphy; wings, P. Baker, W. Mahoney; alts., R. Armitage, J. Clancy, R. Blodgett, F. Woodcock, J. Rogers, D. Johnstone (spare goalie).

Grant Clark's Rink Wins Club Title and Foote Cup

Grant Clark's rink won the club championship and the Harry Foote memorial trophy, last night, when they met and defeated A. Ingram's rink 10-5. The game started off at a slow pace, owing to the ice condition, but after the second end it developed into a good game.

Clark's rink seemed to have the edge, and when in the middle of the game he counted a three end, it just about settled the issue. Both these rinks won their group honors and then came through an elimination series with eight other rinks to reach the finals.

A Fine Trophy

This beautiful trophy was donated to the club in 1940 by the late Harry Foote. It is played for every year and is considered the classic event of the season.

The game was witnessed by a large crowd and the good wit and humour of No. '8' was really smart.

Winners

1st and Harry Foote Memorial Tropry—W. Beggs, J. P. Watts, A. R. Jones, G. Clark, skip.

Runners-up—J. G. McDougall, W. T. Westram, W. A. Lewis, A. Ingram, skip.

Seven rinks from the Lindsay curling club motored down last evening and enjoyed a friendly game with local curlers. This is the last big event of the season and it was one of the many sponsored by the club. These games are supervised by the friendly games committee of which R. Payne is chairman.

At the conclusion of the games light lunch was served in the club's parlors, by the ladies.

Make Arrangements

Robert K. Christenberry, chairman of the New York State Athletic Commission, said Friday in New York City that the Ontario Athletic Commission is among the groups which have arranged reciprocal agreements with New York. The agreement calls for mutual recognition of boxing suspensions, licences and other sport matters.

Flying Today

Southpaw Curt Simmons, expected to make Philadelphia Phillies a strong contender for the National League pennant this year, is flying home today from Frankfurt, Germany. He says he will rejoin the Phils without "wasting any time." He won 17 while losing eight in 1950, helping the Phils to a championship before he was called to service.

Marmora Millionaires Defeat Trenton Flyers To Even Series

BELLEVILLE, April 5—A fast-skating, hard-checking Marmora Millionaires' squad stopped the Trenton R.C.A.F. Flyers' offensive cold last night and forced their best-of-five Trent Valley Hockey League finals into the fifth game with a well-earned 4-3 victory. The deciding game will be played in Memorial Arena here on Monday night.

It was fast, close-checking hockey all through with only five penalties being handed out, three to the Flyers.

The teams battled on even terms in the first period with Marmora drawing first blood after five minutes of play and the Flyers tying it up with seconds to go.

The village crew had a decided edge in the second and third periods, scoring two goals in the mid-session while holding the Flyers pointless and adding another in the third although outscored two to one. A penalty to Parnall, Flyer star, in the late minutes of the third period robbed Flyers of a lot of their effectiveness, and Marmora staved off offensives successfully.

Both goalkeepers turned in outstanding efforts throughout. Lavender, Stewart, Maynes, Gray and Trumble were the pick of the winners with Scott, Parnall, Beatch, Attrill and Bowman going strong for Flyers.

Lavender paced the Marmora offensive with two goals with Trumble and Stewart getting the others. Beatch got one and one for Flyers with Attrill and Dickson accounting for the remaining pair.

The teams:

Trenton Flyers—Goal, Scott; defence, Bruce, Faulkner; centre, Parnall; wings, McDonald, O'Mears; subs, Pumple, Hampson, Beatch, Bowman, Attrill, Toberage, McLean, Dickson.

Marmora—Goal, Killian; defence, Maynes, Gray; centre, Forestal; wings, Lavender, Trumble; subs, Doyle, Darrah, Jones, Stewart, Mantle, Kerr, Smith, Brown.

Referees, Buzz Cane, Cobourg, Don Barrett, Cobourg.

Summary:

First period—Marmora, Lavender, 5.29; R.C.A.F., Attrill (Beatch) 19.49; penalties, Maynes, Faulkner.

Second period — Marmora, Stewart (Jones), 5.29; Marmora, Trumble, 9.59; penalties, Smith, Faulkner.

Third period—R.C.A.F., Dickson (McLean), 7.32; Marmora, Lavender (Maynes, Trumble), 12.26; R.C.A.F., Beatch (Attrill, Bowman), 15.13; penalties, Parnall.

Rookie Hurler Blanks Cardinals 3-0

SAVANNAH, Ga., April 5 (AP) —A palm ball acquired from the repertoire of Jim Konstanty helped rookie hurler Steve Ridzik of the Philadelphia Phillies pitch his first no-hit game.

The 22-year-old righthander, who pitched for Toronto of the International League in 1950, blanked the St. Louis Cardinals 3-0 in an exhibition contest here Friday.

It not only was Ridzik's first no-hitter in a brief baseball career but the first such one-man performance in the 1952 spring training campaign. The Chicago Cubs were held hitless on March 17 in Los Angeles but it took two New York Giants pitchers to turn the trick, Jim Hearn and Monte Kennedy.

Reason To Be Nervous

Young Ridzik—he'll celebrate his 23rd birthday April 29—had every reason to be nervous in the ninth. Wally Westlake, St. Louis outfielder, stepped up to the plate with two out and sent a fast grounder between third and short.

Willie Jones—who had clouted a two-run homer in the eighth—sped over to his left and snared the ball for the final putout.

Ridzik was more than a little wild in the first four innings. He walked four and hit three batters before he settled down.

"I was using a fast ball and a curve," said the rookie hurler, "alternating them with a palm ball which I picked up from Konstanty this spring. He's working with me on it."

Bruins Plan To Follow Close-Checking Technique

BOSTON, April 5. (CP)—Lynn Patrick plans to stick with his strategy of checking close and waiting for the breaks when Boston Bruins try for the deciding victory Sunday night in the National Hockey League playoffs with Montreal Canadiens. The Bruins, by virtue of a comeback string of three victories, carry a 3-2 edge in games into the sixth game of the best-of-seven series at Boston Garden. Canadiens face elimination as Bruins need just the one win to earn full Cinderella rating by qualifying to meet Detroit Red Wings in the Stanley Cup final.

Patrick is well aware that against the explosive scoring potential of the likes of Rocket Richard, Boom Boom Geoffrion and Dickie Moore tight checking is the only hope for Bruins, who produced 33 fewer goals than Montreal during the regular season.

Bruins will depend on Sugar Jim Henry who has been brilliant in the nets in the last three games, including last Thursday's 1-0 shutout in Montreal.

Not Downhearted

Canadiens are for from downhearted, despite their weakness at centre ice through injuries.

Montreal Coach Dick Irvin has said the team "that beats us Sunday will have to play the best game that has ever been played in the National Hockey League." Irvin is determined the series will wind up in Montreal next Tuesday night.

The two teams arrived in Boston this morning. Canadiens have been resting for the last few days, trying to regain the edge that brought them one-sided victories in the first two games of the series.

Bruins engaged in only a light workout Friday before boarding the train.

Biltmores Drub Porkies 13-4 To Take Best-Of-Three Series

GUELPH, April 5 (CP) — Guelph Biltmores move into Montreal Sunday for the first game of their best-of-seven Eastern Canada Memorial Cup finals against Montreal junior Canadiens.

The Bilts earned the right to advance against the Quebec champions by sweeping a best-of-three series from Porcupine Combines in a pair of one-sided games.

Wednesday they downed the Northern Ontario champs 5-2 at Timmins and Friday night showed their Ontario Hockey Association Junior A title was no mistake by drubbing the Porkies 13-4 here.

With the Eastern Canada finals opening Sunday afternoon in the Forum, the second game is scheduled on the same ice Tuesday and the third here Thursday. There is a possibility the fourth clash will be played in Toronto's Maple Leaf Gardens next Saturday night.

The New York Ranger farm club made no mistake about it here Friday night as they piled up a 7-0 lead in the first 20 minutes of play, then outscored the visitors 3-2 in each of the succeeding sessions.

Ron Murphy led the Guelph attack with four goals while Dean Prentice came through with three. Singletons went to Chuck Henderson, Ron Stewart, Harry Howell, Aldo Guidolin, Bill McCreary and Ken Laufman.

Butch Festarini notched three of the Combine markers and Bill McCord got the other.

Art Mousley, the Porkies' goaltender, played a steady game despite the shower of pucks that beat him. He made several spectacular stops in the final period and turned aside 34 pucks.

Dukes Crush Hawks In 7-2 Semi-Final

TORONTO, April 5 (CP). — Western Dukes overpowered Belleville Black Hawks 7-2 Friday night in the first game of their best-of-seven Ontario Hockey Association Junior B semi-finals.

The game was liberally sprinkled with penalties. Belleville moved into an early lead when Pat Gilmour scored early in the first period. After that the Hawks were no match for the Weston team. Hector Lalonde scored the other Belleville goal.

Centre Billy Harris paced the Weston scoring with a trio of markers, Billy Harris, Dave Reid, George Jamieson and Tom McCarthy also scored for the Dukes.

The second game of the series will be played in Belleville next Tuesday.

Friends Of Jesus Responded By Seeking Ways To Help

By WILLIAM E. GILROY, D.D.

A modern human-writer has written:

"I've found a Friend, O such a Friend;
He loved me ere I knew Him;
He drew me with the cords of love,
And thus He bound me to Him."

That was precisely what happened among the first disciples, as they responded to the friendship of Jesus, and heard His call. Fishermen left their nets as He invited them to become fishers of men.

Levi, renamed Matthew, a publican (that is, a Roman tax gatherer), despised for his work by many in the community, left his government job when Jesus said, "Follow me." His name is honored in the first book of our New Testament.

He prepared a feast for Jesus in his house, and a great company of publicans and others were there. People reputed to be religious were outraged by such a scene, and they complained to the disciples, "Why do ye eat and drink with publicans and sinners."

How many of us "good" religious people would react differently today, if the unrecognized Christ came into a modern community, and attended a party with many persons of bad reputation? It is a common maxim that "a man is known by the company he keeps," but that isn't always a good criterion.

What an answer Jesus gave to His "respectable" critics! "They that are whole need not a physician; but they that are sick." He never implies that the publicans were better than the Pharisees. As a matter of fact, among the strict sect of the Pharisees were many fine and earnest people. What Jesus did imply was that the publicans needed Him most.

What a different world this might be, if all who profess to believe in Jesus were filled with the same zeal for helping those most in need—the sinful, the discouraged, the poor and needy, the careworn and heavily laden!

If we had been living when Levi gave his party, would we have been with Jesus among the guests? Or would we have been among those who looked in, and found fault?

What sort of response do we make to the friendship of Jesus? Do we try to be friendly, as our Master was, to those who need understanding?

There were two sorts among the friends of Jesus? Do we try to be friendly, as our Master was,

"SMELT BOATS IS ACOMIN'" in and out of Ganaraska rivermouth harbor, Port Hope, these days with decreasing catches of smelt as the fish started to migrate up shallow streams of Ontario, Durham and Northumberland counties. Hugh Campbell (left, in top left photo) and son Johnny dump 100 pounds of smelt on the weigh scales. Their fish house and boat beside the net-drying racks are shown (in top right photo). A general view of Fishermen's Wharf, Mill St., is shown (in the lower left photo). Bob Welch, a commercial fisherman for four years (standing, right centre), and his grandfather Alfred Welch, with 40 years on the water (lower right), watch the arrival of rival fish boats and speculate closely on the haul even before they see it. — (Examiner Staff Photos)

Bert I. Burgess, G. W. Hodgson Promoted In CGE

Details of two C.G.E. promotions announced in Toronto earlier this week were released today.

Bert I. Burgess, newly appointed manager of the meter department, Apparatus Division and works manager of the Quebec City plant has left for Quebec.

S. O. Shields, former production manager of the Peterborough works, has succeeded Mr. Burgess as manager of the switchgear division here.

All division operations in the newly created Apparatus Division are carried out by six departments and four of the heads of these departments are men who first achieved prominence as members of the Peterborough works.

Financial Manager

Gordon W. Hodgson is one of the four and has been promoted from assistant accountant of the plant here, to the executive post of manager of the Apparatus division's financial department.

As manager of the meter deparement, Mr. Burgess will be responsible for all aspects of the company's meter production, including engineering, manufacturing and marketing. The Quebec City plant is the production centre for C.G.E. meters, clocks and instruments.

In addition to his responsibilities as works manager there, Mr. Burgess will assume the product manufacturing responsibilities for products of other divisions turned out by the Quebec works.

Mr. Burgess joined the C.G.E. here 31 years ago, as a test course student from the University of New Brunswick in 1922. He then went into switchgear engineering where he remained until his latest promotion. After working under Dr. Gordon Langley, then in charge of switchgear engineering Mr. Burgess became engineer in charge of the division in 1938. In July 1939, he was promoted to manager of the division.

As manager of finance for apparatus, Mr. Hodgson's responsibilities will include: general accounting credits, collection, controls and procedures, and internal audits for the division. In addition, Mr. Hodgson's new post includes functional responsibility as a central policy and procedural headquarters for accounting activities in the three apparatus division plants at Peterborough, Davenport, and Quebec.

Joined In 1936

A native of Hamilton, Mr. Hodgson joined C.G.E. here in September 1936 as an audit student in the accounting department, after graduating from McMaster University in economics. Less than a year later, he joined the audit staff of head office, as a travelling auditor.

In 1941, he returned here, to head the accounting department in Genelco, the government owned armament plant operated by C.G.E., and served as assistant to manager Ian F. McRae, operations chief for both the Genelco and C.G.E. plants. He became assistant manager of Genelco in 1944. When C.G.E. purchased the Genelco buildings in 1946, Mr. Hodgson became assistant works accountant of the plant here.

Several months ago, he left Peterborough to assist in planning the re-organization program which has resulted in his executive appointment. His department will operate from apparatus division headquarters in Toronto, and Mr. Hodgson plans on moving his family to Toronto at the end of April.

Red Cross Gives Bedding To Fire Victims

The Peterborough Red Cross is providing bedding for one of the families made homeless by Thursday's $175,000 fire.

Mrs. Walter Blackwell of the Red Cross disaster committee, reported that the committee may also provide some children's clothing for the same family.

Disaster committee chairman Max Comstock said that as far as he could discover, all other families were being cared for by relatives and friends.

He added that if any are in great need of clothing or other necessities, they should telephone him or other members of the Red Cross branch here.

Kettle Spills Boy 4, Scalded

A kettle of boiling water spilled over four-year-old James Quackenbush Friday evening, scalding his left leg from the knee down.

His condition is described as satisfactory by Civic Hospital authorities today.

The child's mother, Mrs. George Quackenbush, 384 Dobbin Ave., was getting dinner and James was standing on a chair by the electric rangette, watching her.

Mrs. Quackenbush was standing on the opposite side of the stove from her son and as she attempted to place a saucepan on the stove, she did not notice the kettle of boiling water, and it upset, spilling over him.

HOCKEY CHAMP

A former Prince of Wales school pupil, Jack Armitage, was honored recently by the Montreal Canadiens of the National Hockey League.

Son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Armitage, a former assistant manager at a local department store, the 10-year-old boy led the Montreal West Pee-Wee hockey league in scoring this season. He also was the "pride and joy" of the Montreal West elementary school.

The family leaves Monday for Vancouver, where Mr. Armitage is working as a store manager. Before the boy left Montreal, Paul Meger of the Canadiens, took Jack's hockey stick to the Montreal Forum where all the Canadien players autographed it.

Meger has followed the pee-wee league's activities this year and apparently feels that the boy has big-league possibilities.

TWO CHIMNEY FIRES

Firemen had a chance to take it a bit easier Friday after Thursday's big fire. They were called out twice: both times for chimney fires. At 5.05 p.m. they went to the home of Charles Curtain where two handpumps were needed to put out the blaze. Shortly before 8 p.m. they went to the home of William Clapper, 301 King St., for another.

LOCAL GOVT COURSE

The next project to be tackled by members of the Junior Chamber of Commerce is a course on municipal affairs. Vern Slocum is the chairman. The Jaycee's public speaking course, conducted under the chairmanship of Al Tingley, ended Thursday. In that time some 200 speakers were heard. The final meeting was a round table discussion on suggestions for next year.

Stolen Auto Is Abandoned

A car stolen from Oliphant's service station at Dublin and Reid Sts. during the night was recovered by provincial police on Highway 28 just outside the city.

City police are investigating a break-in at the service station which netted the thief or thieves about one hundred copper coins and the keys to the recovered car and a panel truck.

Entry was gained by breaking a small window at the rear and then reaching through and unfastening the night latch. Inside, an inner door was forced, to get into the office. There was no money in the cash register which was broken into, other than the coppers and the keys for the car and light truck which were parked on the lot outside.

Constable Douglas Farthing is investigating.

Smelt Netting Poor Fishermen Get 'Rat

TRENT RIVER, April 5—(ENS)—Finding the smelt fishing in a nearby creek poor, three men started for home and caught a muskrat on the way.

Albert Kuno of Peterborough and his two sons-in-law, Ab Voss and Boyd Kyle of Havelock were driving along a sideroad after a luckless evening of smelt fishing when they saw a large muskrat in the road.

The 'rat' was blinded by the car headlights and Ab Voss jumped out of the car and chased it. He caught it by the tail, but it slipped away through a fence.

When he caught it again, he kicked the animal on the head, stunning it, and another blow finished it off.

Angling Oddity

CORNWALL, Ont. —(CP)—Fish experts have always said trout could not survive in eastern Ontario waters, so young Jean Lebrun didn't recognize the five-pound speckled trout he caught in the Cornwall Canal. The big fish snapped at a makeshift hook and line.

802 Musicians Enter Festival

Peterborough Music Competition Festival committee have received 802 entries for the 1952 festival.

This marks an increase of 160 as compared with the number in 1951. In addition the committee expects a few more entries to come in during the next few days.

As well as increasing the number of entries, the 1952 festival has increased its territory. Five entries have been received from Willowdale, 40 from Toronto, 20 from Kingston and one from Gananoque. Last year no entries were received from east of Cobourg and there were fewer from the Toronto area.

The greatest number of entries are from Peterborough with a total of 348. Port Hope is next with 87; Lindsay third with 57 and Bowmanville, fourth, with 54.

Other centres from which entries have been received are: Oshawa, Cobourg, Belleville, Trenton, Bobcaygeon, Norwood, Millbrook, Orillia, Lakefield, Tweed, Campbellford, and Gananoque.

Unconscious 5 Days Driver Dies

Philip Convey Lived In Peterborough; Car Ran Off Highway

After lying unconscious in Oshawa General Hospital for five days, 34-year-old Philip Convey, a onetime resident of Peterborough and Hastings died Friday morning.

He was fatally injured Sunday night when his eastbound car ran off the paved surface of Highway 2, east of Whitby, and rolled over four times. Mr. Convey was unconscious when removed from his wrecked car and he was taken to hospital and placed in an oxygen tent.

Before the Second World War he worked at the C.G.E. plant here and then he joined the Canadian Army, serving overseas for two and a half years. After discharge he lived in Hastings for some time.

Moved To Oshawa

Four and a half years ago he moved to Oshawa where he was employed as an assembler at General Motors.

Mr. Convey was born in Percy township on the "Dutch" line. His parents were the late Felix Convey and Rosanne Murphy. He was educated in Percy and later moved to Peterborough.

He leaves two brothers, Joseph and James of Hastings, and two sisters, Mrs. John Gibson (Madaleine) of Asphodel, and Mrs. Bert Young (Eileen) of Brickley. He was a bachelor.

Mr. Convey was a member of the Hastings branch of the Canadian Legion and also a member of the Holy Name Society.

The body is resting at the home of his sister, Mrs. Gibson, R.R. 3, Hastings. Requiem mass will be 9.30 a.m. Monday in Our Lady of Mount Carmel Church, Hastings. Burial will be in Mount Carmel Cemetery.

Dr. Moorhouse Supt. Of Cobourg Hospital

WHITBY, April 5—(CP)—Dr. H. C. Moorhouse, who has been assistant superintendent at the Ontario hospital here for the last several years, has been promoted to the position of superintendent of the Ontario Hospital at Cobourg.

Dr. Moorhouse, a graduate of the University of Western Ontario, has been in the provincial government service 22 years. He was on the staff of the Ontario Hospital at Brockville from 1931 to 1939. During the Second World War he was command consultant psychiatrist in the R.C.A.F. with the rank of Squadron Leader.

He came to Whitby in 1945.

Smelt Fishing Shifts From Lake To Streams

PORT HOPE, April 5.—Smelt fishing at the mouths of the streams running into Lake Ontario from Ontario, Durham and Northumberland counties rides hard on the heels of winter ice fishing on the various bays. There has only been about a two-week recess for sportsmen who have waited impatiently for the smelt "run" to begin. Since smelt were practically unknown ten years ago in Lake Ontario, the sport of dipping for the silver fish can said to be about five years old.

The men who know most about smelt are the commercial fishermen who follow their migrations from far out in the lake to inshore shallows. They have been netting them since about March 1 and each day set their nets closer to shore.

According to the limited number now being taken they estimate that the run started upstream on Thursday. This applies to streams from Port Hope east. For more than a week now Oshawa sports have been taking shore smelts in limited quantities.

When the stream run starts, the fish that travel up them are all males—it is an indication that spawning has taken place in the gravelly bottom of the lake in ten or 12 feet of water. The run should be at its height this year about April 10-12, they say.

Lake-netted variety is larger than the stream run fish, because the majority of them are females; they go about four fish to the pound and sell readily at the waterfront fish houses for 20-30 cents per pound wholesale and 35 retail.

Lake smelt fishing is cold, hard and expensive work, according to the four boat operators on South Mill St. Their boats must be large and heavy. Gill netting, which is hand-woven, is expensive, especially when a couple of miles of it is required for a "gang" or set. Spring storms play havoc with their gear and seasonal fogs often keep them riding off shore while homebound for several hours at a stretch.

On Tuesday of this week, they experienced one of the worst fogs in years, they say. It was so dense that, though the water was quiet, they were unable to hear the foghorn at Cobourg which gives them echo sounds to plot their whereabouts.

Commercial fishermen have to go farther out from shore each season. They recall the time when there was good fishing in a deep bay immediately west of the Ganaraska River mouth. But, say the fishermen, heavy industry has been built on its shore which dumped poisonous chemicals into the lake. Fish, weeds and shore vegetation have disappeared.

The two principal fishermen who operate from the Mill St. docks are Hugh Campbell and Alfred Welch, their sons and grandsons. The older men have been at it for more than 40 years and Campbell holds two commercial fishing licenses entitling him to fish from the shores of Hope and Clark townships in Durham County and Hamilton and Haldimand townships in Northumberland. Other operators have only one license.

Lake fishermen are naturally pleased about the spring smelt run. It has added considerably to their pockets within the last few years and, keeping their fingers crossed, they say that the little silver fish are on the increase.

2 Tax Assessors To Stand Trial

FORT WILLIAM, April 5 (CP). —Two former tax assessors were committed for trial Thursday on nine charges involving tax irregularities.

Wallace Du Gary the accountant and Joseph Seguin were charged jointly with conspiring to commit an indictable offence and Seguin also was charged, along with Israel Grosman, with breach of trust.

The conspiracy charge was laid in connection with what investigators said was an attempt to defraud William Zoroski, owner of two hotels. Witnesses said Du Guay and Seguin tried to induce Zaroski to enter into an agreement whereby they would obtain settlement of his tax liability for less than he could legally be required to pay.

The charges of breach of trust against Seguin and Grosman accused them of collecting $3,000 from Mrs. Irene Howard, late in 1951, as her tax liability and not turning it in to the proper authorities.

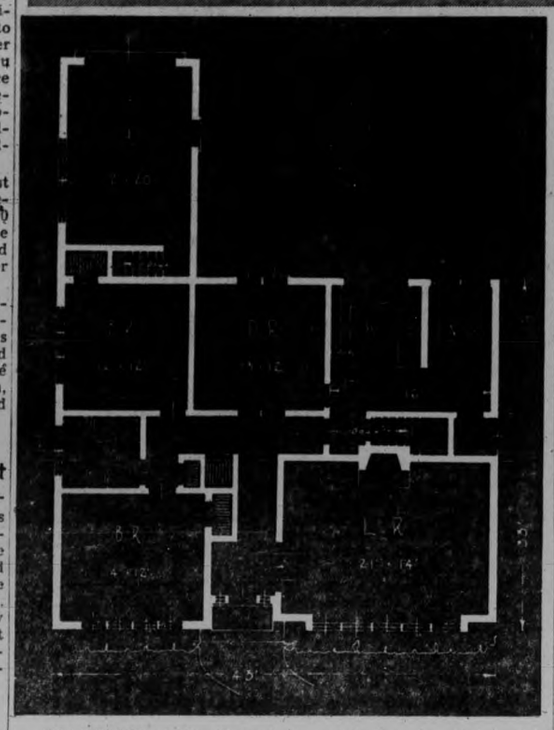
Mr. Zaroski's son, John, testified that Du Guay, who was employed as accountant for his father's hotels, promised he could "save" some money on income tax by arrangements with Seguin, then a tax assessor. Zaroski said his father refused the offer.

Complications on Report

COPENHAGEN, April 4 (Reuters)—Medical and legal experts from three Scandinavian countries in an official report advocate giving both wives and unmarried women the right to have test-tube babies by artificial insemination. But the governments of Norway and Sweden, for reasons not yet disclosed, are holding up publication of their report, it was reported here Thursday night.

PIONEER ENGINEERS

Canada's development of water power resources, then used for sawmills and such, dates from the early French settlements.



HOUSE NO. 540—Canadian architects who developed this Western style deserve credit for making a vital contribution to house architecture. It correctly interprets today's living requirements in an uninhibited style which just naturally come from the space and newness of the West. Featuring this plan is the spaciousness of the rooms. Check them over. What a fine room that 21 ft. by 14 ft. living room would be! There's no feeling of crowding here. Sufficient hall space too is provided to eliminate cross room traffic. The arrangement of the basement stairs and side entry is a particularly ingenious bit of planning. For exterior colours, the walls are white and the cedar shingle roof stained black. The red brick under the picture window adds a characteristic touch of warm accent colour. Cubic contents, about 26,000 cubic feet.—For working drawings write Home Building in Canada, 372 Bay St., Toronto.

Fear Strife To Mar Festivity

CAPETOWN, April 5 (AP). — Fears of racial strife shadowed the gaily-planned celebration Friday of the 300th birthday of the first white settlement in South Africa.

Tens of thousands of men, women and children have converged on this mother city for the event, arranged by the Nationalist government of Prime Minister Daniel Malan.

But most of the country's non-whites — Negroes, Asiatics and Cape coloreds, persons of mixed blood—have boycotted the festival in protest against the government's white supremacy policy. A few hundred non-whites have turned up but their numbers fall short of what the organizers expected.

Birthday festivities reach their climax in a re-enactment of the landing of Jan Van Riebeeck, Netherlands merchant sailor who set up the first white settlement.

The country's white population —2,500,000 as compared to the 9,500,000 non-whites—is bitterly divided on the racial question. The anniversary celebrations have brought about a temporary but uneasy truce among them. The issue, however, threatens to erupt again.

Dam Regulation Demanded By Congressman

WASHINGTON, April 5—(AP) —Removal or regulation of Gut Dam in the St. Lawrence river is proposed in legislation prepared for introduction Friday by Representative Harold Ostertag (Rep. N. Y.).

Ostertag contends that the dam, constructed in 1902 by Canada with the consent of Congress, has contributed to the high, destructive level of Lake Ontario waters.

His bill would direct the Secretary of the Army to ask the Canadian government either to remove the dam or install regulatory works so as to reduce the level of the lake.

Ostertag said army engineers estimate the dam has caused the lake to rise six to eight inches. This, he said, has contributed to "millions of dollars" in damages to lakefront property.

The dam is a few miles upstream from Prescott and Ogdensburg, N. Y.

Refuesd To Act.

Ostertag, in a statement accompanying the bill, said:

"I appealed to the Secretary of the Army last summer to take action in this mateer and he flatly refused to do so.

"Today, after further damage aggregating many millions of dollars he is still temporizing, although I am informed he is 'studying' the matter.

"The Secretary has had all the time and all the evidence he needs to use the authority which was long ago confered on him by Congress to abate this critical situation."

Congress consented to the construction of the dam on the condtition that Canada would install regulatory works if the lake level rose to a dangerous point.

Theft From Autos

When looting E. Ruffet's car I took his drivers card for which I am verry sorry. Maybe he cannot drive his car without it, so I am sending you it hopping you will give him it.

We Thugs are not all alike

yours truly

A Kind Hearted Thug

CHANGE OF HEART — Papers looted from a car driver were mailed to a Montreal newspaper with the above note explaining that it was not an "April Joke." The thief, who modestly describes himself "a kind hearted thug," looted a taxi of the driver's papers then possibly to confirm the aforementioned kind - heartedness, mailed the papers to the newspaper with a note filled with sweetness and light—plus a few misspelled words—with instructions to return same to the driver. Car driver Emile Ruffet, lower photo, wasn't aware of the theft until notified by the police.

Ministers Get Salary Raise

TORONTO, April 5 (CP). — Married ordained United Church ministers in aid-receiving charges will have their salaries increased.

The Rev. Thomas Hart, home mission superintendent of central and northern Alberta, reported church work in his western rural areas has been "well maintained."

The Rev. W. P. Bunt, home mission superintendent of the British Columbia conference, said industrial development in British Columbia presents a "challenge to the Christian church."

Life around a downtown Vancouver church was described by the Rev. R. A. Redmag, mission superintendent of that city's First United Church. He said that due to lack of staff and facilities the church "cannot meet as we should the needs of those who look to us."

Hospital Board Session Stormy

WINDSOR, April 5 (CP). — An East Windsor hospital inquiry which opened and adjourned in placid fashion Thursday had its aftermath in a stormy five-hour session of the board of governors.

Members saw W. Ernest Atkinson stalk away from the council table early today after declaring to chairman M. F. Brobst: "You have never let me say anything I have to say. I'm leaving this meeting and I'll never attend another as long as you're in the chair."

They saw Chairman Brobst entertain a motion for adjournment without a vote of the board, make a ruling that the meeting stood adjourned and stride away from his place saying: "I'm not going to stay and be subjected to the abuse I have taken all night."

Members heard Dr. P. J. G. Morgan, hospital superintendent, charge that a deliberate attempt had been made by "a person or persons" to discredit him in his position.

The hospital investigation was ordered March 12 by Attorney-General Porter on the instigation of Mr. Brobst. A two-hour session was adjourned Thursday to await the completion of an audit.

Houde Criticizes Gov.-General

MONTREAL, April 5 (CP) — Mayor Camillien Houde said Friday night he chose the "most dignified method" of protesting against what he termed "the manoeuvre of the centralizers" when he did not personally receive Vincent Massey, Canada's new Governor-General, during his first official visit to the city Thursday.

Mayor Houde said in a statement that he respected the office but that Mr. Massey has been "the most tenacious of all the centralizers" for 30 years.

He said the federal government furnished Mr. Massey "the finest opportunity to arrive at his ends by entrusting him the chairmanship of a commission charged with the preparation of federal intrusion in the domain of teaching.

"It is known that the Massey report is sharply criticized in our province. Many informed persons see in it a grave threat to provincial autonomy and to the survival of the French-Canadian group. . . "

GOLD DREDGES like this are busy again out west, scooping up old gold sands for something more valuable—monazite.

Old Gold Mines Yield More Valuable Monazite

CASCADE, Idaho (NEA).—Old gold mines of the Far West are starting to hum again, but the yellow metal isn't what they're after.

Dredges are scooping up tailings from gold seekers of years ago in the quest for monazite sands. You've probably never heard of this complex material, but it may prove even more valuable than gold.

Many of the rare earth minerals so badly needed by American industry are in monazite sands. An alloy called misch metal (German for mixed) goes into the making of jet engines to withstand heat. Engine producers rate it as an absolute must.

The sands, too, contain about four to four and a half per cent thorium. This is radioactive and fissionable, so all of this goes to the U.S. Atomic Energy commission, which now has jurisdiction over these old river and creek beds.

✧ ✧ ✧

Found in 1862

Here, in the mile-high Warren Valley, about 80 miles north of Boise, three huge dredges are scooping up about 15,000 yards of sand and gravel daily. It is a gold mining area first discovered in August, 1862.

Now three companies, Baumhoff-Marshall, Warren Dredging Co., and Idaho-Canadian Dredging Co., are working on what geologists believe to be at least 40 million cubic yards of dredgable gravel. All told, Idaho is expected to yield more than 200 million cubic yards of monazite.

Big Molybdenum Corp. of America, near Ivanpah, Calif., has spent $300,000 for the old Sulphide Queen mine, which is believed to contain rare earth metals. This mining camp was first opened up in 1869.

Until several years ago, this country's monazite sands came from Brazil and India. When the nationalistic fervor of those countries stopped exports, replacement was needed for the 2,500 to 3,500 tons we normally imported.

So the scramble is on in the old gold fields for rare earth metals, including such tongue-twisters as lutetium, ytterbium, lanthanum, praseodymium, neodymium, samarium, europium, gadolinium, terbium, dysprosium, holmium, erbium and thulium.

Many Uses

These "ium" metals have many uses. Cigarette lighter flints are made from their alloys. Others are used to clean and filter aluminum and magnesium and to strengthen it. Cerium compounds help make textiles and canvas mildew, moth and water proof. Some beauty preparations contain lanthanum salts.

The development of the gas mantle lamp started monazite production in this country in 1885. That year the U.S. produced 787 tons and was world supplied until 1895, with most of the sands coming from Florida and the Carolinas. The more costly U.S. production was stalled by Brazilian imports in 1910.

Like all scarce materials or metals, the monazite sand shortage has skyed prices. In 1922 the price was $180 per ton, slumping as low as $60 during World War II. But now sands containing 65 per cent rare earth metals are reported to be worth $375 per ton.

Geologists say some of the rare earth metals are worth up to $1 a milligram — about enough to cover the head of a pin.

TCA Planes Will Boost Seating Capacity To 48

TORONTO, April 5—The modification program includes the rearrangement of cloakroom and restroom facilities, permitting the installation of the extra seats without any reduction in leg room or passenger comfort in a move designed to meet the growing demand for air transport space anticipated by the company.

The program of the 17 North Stars of the domestic fleet will be carried out at the company's maintenance base at Winnipeg in 1952. The aircraft will go into service as they are completed.

MONTREAL, April 4 —(CP)— The Transport Department has authorized an increase in the seating capacity of TCA's domestic North Star fleet from 40 to 48 passengers, the company announced Friday.

The company said that as the North Star was designed primarily as a long-range aircraft, capable of transatlantic operations, advantage has been taken of these characteristics to increase passenger capacity on the much shorter domestic flights.

Five Types Of Stonework Used In Building Of Walls

QUESTION: Could you give me a brief description of the most common kind of stonework—the difference between the different methods of coursing?

ANSWER: Most common kind of stonework for walls is rubblework in which no work is done on the stones except to break them up with a hammer. If the rubble is built in courses it is called Coursed Rubble. Ashlar is when the stones shown on the outside surface of the wall are squared. Broken Ashlar is ashlar in which stones of different heights are used. Coursed Ashlar consists of stones laid to form courses around the building, all of the stones in any course being the same height. Hammerdressed Ashlar designates work where the stones are roughly squared with a hammer.

Rammed-Earth, Adobe Construction

QUESTION: I have been reading something about rammed-earth construction and wonder if this is basically the same as adobe construction. Where does it differ?

ANSWER: Two entirely different principles, adobe construction is a type of work in which the exterior walls are built of blocks made of soil mixed with straw and hardened in the sun. In rammed-earth construction exterior bearing walls are composed of a controlled mixture of sand, clay, coarse aggregate, and moisture compacted by pressure into forms.

Fuel Savings With Storm Windows

QUESTION: I have heard all sorts of estimates about fuel savings possible through installation of storm windows. Have you any reliable figures available from actual tests?

ANSWER: Research by the housing department of a well-known university indicate fuel savings of over 20 per cent when all windows are fitted with storm sash. Exact percentage of savings you may expect will vary with the climate and glass area of your home, making it impossible to give a blanket percentage figure for fuel savings.

When outside temperature is zero, storm windows increase the temperature of cool air moving down the window surface to the floor from 56 degrees Fahr. up to 62 degrees Fahr. For poorly fitted windows without weatherstrip, cubic feet of air leakage per hour for every foot length of crack around the sash is reduced from 110 to 50 cu. ft.—and for average fitted windows without weatherstripping from 40 down to 25 cubic feet.

Heat Loss Through Glass

QUESTION: I have been wondering if heat loss through a window might not be appreciably lowered through the use of thicker glass—say byusing ¼" glass instead of ordinary ⅛". Would this be worthwhile?

ANSWER: It has been shown by test that there actually is less transmission of heat loss through ¼" glass than there is through the same type of glass ⅛" thick, but the difference is somewhat less than 1 per cent—too small a difference to take into account in practical figuring of heat loss.

An Explanation of 'Dry-Rot'

QUESTION: The term "dry-rot" has me a little bewildered. How is it possible for a dry material to be affected in this way?

ANSWER: Dry-rot is decay caused by certain fungi which are peculiarly adapted in regard to supplying their own moisture requirements. The fungi commence growth always in moist wood, but are later enabled to spread to dry wood, owing to the development of special water-conducting organs.

Beef Breeders Told Expect Lower Prices

TORONTO, April 5 — (CP) — Beef breeders were told Friday it is likely that marketing will be heavy this year in both Canada and the United States and they can look for lower prices.

Earl Manning, secretary-manager of the Canadian Council of Industrial Meat Packers, addressing the annual meeting of the Ontario Beef Cattle Producers' Association, said slaughtering had shown a slight decrease while there was an increase in the number of animals.

The next cycle was likely to be heavier slaughtering, reduction of herd sizes and tapering off which would lead to some cuts in price.

Beef Down 10 Cents

HALIFAX, April 5—(CP)—Beef prices dropped as much as 10 cents a pound here during the last month and pork dropped a lesser amount, a survey showed today. The decline was attributed to the cattle surplus created by the outbreak of foot-and-mouth disease in Saskatchewan.

Novelist Gives Group Hints On Reporting

TORONTO, April 5 — (CP).— Mme. Germaine Guevrement, Montreal novelist and winner of the Governor-General's fiction award for 1950, gave a Toronto literary group some hints on newspaper reporting Friday night.

"Journalism requires three senses," she told the Canadian Authors' Association. "It needs a sense of proportion, a sense of values, and a sense of news. If you have a sense of humor it also helps, and thank God for it, but use it sparingly."

Newspaper work is often unrewarding, she said. "I often felt that I was like a pearl-diver, spending my lifetime matching a set of jewels I would never wear. But now it is not so. Now the years on the newspaper were good years."

Recals Career

Mme. Guevrement started her newspaper career on the Sorel, Que., Le Courier and was Sorel correspondent for the Montreal Gazette for nine years.

She recalled some of her early trials in pursuit of the news. They included the customary "hot tips" from her children.

"They weren't always dependable," she recalled. "One day six-year-old Marcelle came running home to tell me a man had just killed another man. When I asked her where she had heard it, she said the sister had told. One man's name was Cain and the other was Mr. Abel."

"Writing for a newspaper is different than writing a novel. For a novel, what is inside you have to get out. But in journalism, what is outside you have to get in . . . In the paper."

Art Association Luncheon Marks Close Of Season Mrs. F. Turner Is Elected

Fitting close to an outstanding studio programme in the Women's Art Association this year was the delightful luncheon meeting Friday. Seventy-four members of the Peterborough Branch attended and had as their guests Mrs. John Harper, president of Toronto Branch, and three members of her executive, Mrs. Frayne, Mrs. Murphy and Mrs. Lemon.

Mrs. Harper is also National president of the Lyceum Club Women's Art Association of Canada and is the honorary president of the local branch. In the former role, she advised the ladies of the message of sympathy sent to Queen Mother Elizabeth at the time of the King's death and the message of devotion sent to Queen Elizabeth, and of the reply received.

Mrs. Seaton Retires

Mrs. N. D. Seaton who has led the women of Peterborough forward in cultural research and education the past seven years, retired from the president's office at conclusion of this annual meeting. Appreciation of her work was expressed by a past president Mrs. J. E. R. Munro and as a token of the members' esteem she was presented with a decorative piece of Staffordshire china.

During this seven-year term the Music Study Club was added to the Association and Mrs. Seaton gave it every support. When the need became evident she arranged that collections be made for food parcels to send overseas. At time of opening the new Civic Hospital, she and a committee of members selected a beautiful painting to be hung in the entrance lobby as a gift from the Peterborough Women's Art Association. In addition, she arranged each year to have prominent speakers on educational topics for the studio meetings. Several money-making public projects were successfully carried out to augment the studio fund.

On behalf of the National Association Mrs. Harper spoke of the contribution to this body made by Mrs. Seaton through example and advice. "We look upon her as one of the backbones of the Association" she said.

She was most heartily welcomed to the office in which she will have the backing of Mrs. Seaton as past president and Mrs. Harper as honorary president and the assistance of the following ladies:

Martin said the Guild of Arts and Crafts had continued to enjoy displays and demonstrations of many of the arts and hobbies but had included "guest night" as a new feature.

Mrs. William Derry, convener of the Home Arts Guild, outlined the wide variety of interests covered by this group of 21 ladies which included study of herbs and bulb culture. And to demonstrate and emphasize a recent studio lecture on flower arrangements she arranged the luncheon table decoration using rhubarb leaves as background for red tulips.

Great Educators Said Of Home And Community

BETHANY, April 5 (ENS. — The Women's Association of the United Church met at the home of Mrs. Walter Rowland on Wednesday afternoon, with Mrs. Harvey Fallis presiding, in the absence of Mrs. Mansell Finney. The members are all wishing Mrs. Finney a speedy recovery. Two minutes' silence was observed in memory of the late Mrs. Alfred Driver, a past president.

Plans were made for an operetta, "Sunbonnet Sue," to be presented April 18 by member of St. Andrew's choir from Millbrook; also for special decoration of the church on Easter Sunday, when both morning and evening services will be held and the new organ will be dedicated.

The program was in charge of Mrs. H. L. Challice, who conducted a Bible quiz, and read a poem, "Little Places." Mrs. Frank Bigelow gave a reading, "The Meaning of Easter." Mrs. Clarke Pomeroy gave the topic, "The Children In Our Community," saying in part "What is our responsibility towards children? A child is a gift from God; a man and woman are the agents of its making, but the gift of its life is the gift of God. Years ago the name of a baby would be entered in the family Bible and alongside its name 'A Gift from God.' This slick and streamlined age tends to laugh at that kind of thing, yet our forefathers had the right idea. The coming of a child places a sacred trust in the hands of the father and mother."

"Educational authorities tell us that it is the home and the community which educates, not just the individual teacher who conducts lessons at school. In a Christian home the child is learning all the time what the Christian way of living is . . . learning what God is like, because he can see the love of God at work in the life of his parents; learning what life is meant to be and ought to be, because he sees its beauty in all the relationships of home."

The Rev. James Hampson closed the meeting with prayer, after which the hostess, assisted by Mrs. F. Bigelow, Mrs. C. Pomeroy and Mrs. L. Challice, served lunch.

Incited By Music Boxers In Siam Put On Gory Show

By BILL BOSS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

BANGKOK, Thailand, April 5 (CP)—They box to music here. And they pray and dance before they begin.

But once the gentle preliminaries are over there are no more niceties—except for that music.

The boxers and the crowd are out for blood and generally get it.

The main difference between the music in Bangkok's Rajadamnern stadium and in a North American arena is that here the music starts when the boxing does, and stops with it.

Boxer down taking a count—the music stops. Fighting stopped while a clinch is broken — the music stops. And during the final two minutes of the last round the tempo steps up furiously, adding to the tension in the ring.

During the five three-minute rounds of Siamese-style boxing just about anything goes. Only the beginner sticks to his gloves. The experts use elbows, knees, feet. They kick in the chest, the stomach, the arm pits and even the opponent's face.

First thing in the ring, the boxers get down on their knees, foreheads to the canvas, and remain in an attitude of prayer for a minute or more. Then, raising their heads while still on their knees, they flex arm and chest muscles, test the neck and twist the trunk. On their bare feet at last they go through a loosening-up dance that also is intended to strike fear into the opponent and annoy him.

While they are in their corners awaiting the starting signal, water is poured inside their trunks and canvas foot-and-ankle protectors. The fight is on.

A Free-For-All

You mustn't hit a man when he's down, but you may kick him onto the ropes (from fore and aft) and close in with gloves, elbows, knees and more kicks. You can give him a final back-kick as you break away.

A fetching bit of play is catching your opponent's leg as he kicks at you and retaliating with a kick to the crotch.

Blood flows as tone-nails take their toll, and every kick draws roars from the crowd.

Siamese say that Japanese soldiers showing off during the Second World War tried to put a Judo hold on a Siamese. But they never succeeded because of Siamese ability to kick away extended arms from behind or in front.

Siam's most popular game is takraw. A hollow ball of rattan wicker, woven in a criss-cross lacework pattern, is used. Players are paired on opposite sides of a ring. Above the centre of the ring there is a hoop resembling a basketball net. The idea is to sink the ball into the net, which is about 15 feet above the ground.

Nobody wins. The idea, apart from netting the ball, is to keep it in play by hitting it with any part of the body. It sounds easy, but it isn't.

HAPPY TIMES TOGETHER in the home are the brightest moment in the life of every child. A walk with Daddy in the park, when he just takes his time and the children smell the flowers blooming in spring is another happy moment.

FOR PARENTS ONLY:

Happiness In Home Adds Joy For Family

By NANCY CLEAVER

"Are there Happinesses in his home! . . . Why you little wretch, it is crammed with Happinesses in every nook and cranny! . . . We laugh, we sing, we create enough joy to knock down the walls and lift the roof; but do what we may, you see nothing and you hear nothing. . . ."

This is what the chief fairy of the Troop of Happinesses exclaims to Tyltyl and Mytyl, the woodcutter's children, in "The Blue Bird" by Maurice Maeterlinck.

This lovely symbolic drama is in every public library. If there are school age children in the family, it is an excellent book to borrow and read aloud. It is fun to give the different members of the family the different parts. The dialogue is so much more interesting with the contrast of voices. In many homes there is a "Family Fun Night" once a week or once every other week. Instead of going out to a movie, or playing games, reading aloud is another activity which is enjoyed by quite a number of families

The speeches in "The Blue Bird" are short, there is plenty of action, and without overstressing the theme of the book, it teaches a lesson. Maeterlinck wanted his readers to realize that happiness lies in the search and not in the possession. Although people frequently seek for happiness in far away places, to their surprise they often discover that it can be found close by. The path of the loving, generous person is lighted by unexpected happiness.

Grown-ups often lose their zest for life and their gratitude for every day blessings. But the world of wonder and make-believe is not hard for a child to enter and small boys and girls take delight in new experiences. Here are some of the fairies which "The Blue Bird" mentions—the Happiness of Being Well, of Pure Air, of Loving One's Parents, of the Blue Sky, of the Forest, of Sunny Hours, of the Spring, of the Sunsets, of Seeing the Stars Rise, of the Rain, of Winter Fire, of Innocent Thoughts, of Running Barefoot in the Dew.

In these days of the high cost of living, it is difficult for parents to remember that there are many things which give a child joy which are not purchased in a store or paid for by an admission ticket. If mothers and fathers will take time to enjoy simple pleasures such as the bright sunshine, and the beauty of the changing seasons they add much to family life. "One of the nicest things which happens is when Daddy takes me for a walk in the park" a small girl told her chum. "He doesn't hurry and lets me smell the flowers."

Happy times together increase the parent's understanding of the child and his problems. In the process of growing up there are bound to be times when a boy or girl is torn by his loyalty to his parents, and to his chums.

Mother may consider that Junior, an eleven year old school boy, must be indoors and ready to begin his homework at seven o'clock. The other boys in the gang don't have to come home till eight or later. Junior will be more co-operative if Mother is willing to listen to his side of the story.

Sometimes a small compromise will satisfy Junior. At eleven he is old enough to see that his hour of settling down to homework must be early enough so that he can complete his school assignments and still get to bed at a definite time. Getting sufficient sleep is much more important in Mother's eyes, than in Junior's. But homework and bed time should not be a continual source of friction.

Different hours and trying days come to every family. No home has fair weather all the time. It is the mother who to a great extent determines the atmosphere in the household. One of the finest things she can do is to cultivate the old-fashioned virtue of cheerfulness.

Moderns laugh at "Pollyanna"—But in a home where boys and girls are growing up they should not suffer from the depression of adults. The world news may be dark, and mother and dad may be having a struggle not to go into debt, but the optimistic parent is much easier to live with than the pessimistic one.

Cheerfulness adds greatly to home happiness. The light-hearted mother gets through her day with much less nervous strain than the serious-minded mother who is overwhelmed by all her duties. Shakespeare knew there was a practical philosophy of happiness when he wrote in "The Winter's Tale":

"Jog on, jog on, the footpath way,
And merrily hent the stile-a;
A merry heart goes all the day,
Your sad tires in a mile-a."

Of Interest to Women

DOROTHY DIX

Unreasonable Nagger Needs Professional Counsel

DEAR MISS DIX: I am a married woman with three children aged 10, 6 and 2. I do everything possible to be a good wife and mother, yet my husband says I am neither. He finds fault with everything and keeps on fussing over one thing for hours, sometimes even days. Even if I get his okay on something, he'll turn around and complain because it's been done.

Up to the last year, he at least never complained of my cooking (on which, incidentally, I pride myself). Now no meal suits him. He wants steak every day, yet the food bills must be kept to a minimum; you know that's impossible. He says he doesn't expect to live with me after the youngest child reaches 10.

I can't discuss this problem with my family, as they have enough worries without my adding to them. My husband says if I leave him I can't have the children; yet he doesn't show them any love or affection whatever. He actually acts as if he hated me. He never has a kind word for me, and has not kissed me but once in the past year and a half. He doesn't say good-bye when he leaves, or hello when he returns. I realize that I'm only a housekeeper and I'm desperately wondering what the future holds for me.

MARY LOU

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: You have given a very pathetic picture of a man badly in need of psychiatric care. The fact that your husband was once a kind, considerate person, and has now become a chronic nagger, indicates an emotional disturbance of some sort that needs attention. He will probably balk at the prospect of seeking aid, but if by any means you can persuade him to see a psychiatrist, or at any rate a good general practitioner, you may save your marriage.

He's Most Unhappy

Such a home life as he has created is bad for all of you, and I'm sure your husband is the unhappiest member of the family. The abnormality of his behavior is clearly shown in his desire for such luxury items as steak every day, at no increase in the food bill. If such conflicts are evident, you can be sure there are many more within that don't come to the surface. If you wanted to leave him, you'd probably have no difficulty keeping the children. It's doubtful if they would be awarded to a father so evidently unbalanced. However, separation would, I believe, make him worse. If you hope for a brighter future, stay with him, cope with his temper as best you can and try to get him to a doctor.

It will also be better for you if you take someone into your confidence. A situation as bad as this is too much for a woman to bear alone. If you feel that your family is already overburdened, talk to your pastor. It's too bad that the understanding and sympathetic advice of the clergy is so seldom sought by people in distress. So often they can give, even in a short interview, a clearer outlook on a problem than you yourself could reach in days and weeks of worry. If you don't belong to a church, go see the clergyman nearest you. With his spiritual help, and a doctor's practical aid, you should find a solution. I sincerely hope so.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: I'm six years younger than the man I go with. I love him very much, and he tells me he loves me, but not as much as I love him. He also says that I am too good for him; if I didn't treat him so well he'd love me more, which I believe is true. He says when he does fall deeply in love with me, his love will never die. How can I make him love me more? BERENICE

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: As they say in the vernacular, Berenice, you're being handed a line! Much as I hate to tell you to doubt your swain, that's exactly what I must do. It's possible that his reluctance to make a declaration of love is due to the fact that he's trying to save your feelings, but more likely he craves the attention he received from you and figures he'll get as much of it as possible.

His line of reasoning is so obviously false that only a girl very much in love would be so gullible enough to listen to it. How can he measure so exactly the proportion of your love to his? How can he predict the time when he will fall in love with you, or how deeply he will love you? And as for your being too good to him—when two people truly love each other, neither one can be too good to the other. When one gives love, the good that goes with it cannot be too much.

Try to look at your beau's actions objectively, and figure out for yourself where you're being fooled. Don't wait too long or you're likely to be hurt.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: Do you think it queer for someone who has known me for fifteen years to speak to me without ever using my name? This person claims it isn't necessary to address me by name, but I think now and then it should be done.

M. G. B.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: I have known people with this peculiar aversion to using first names. Why they have the disinclination, I can't fathom. It's a natural thing to address folks by name, in fact, it is often a privilege. Since you have spoken to your friend about it with no results, you can't force the issue any further. Just accept it as an individual idiosyncrasy.

What's Right?

You are having dinner with your date in a restaurant.

WRONG: Keep taking out your compact to make sure your hair is just so, that you have enough lipstick on, etc.

RIGHT: Forget your face and concentrate on what your date is saying.

Readers' Saturday Column by Mary Moore

QUESTION: Dear Mary; Don't ever leave us. I leave the best till last, the easiest work, the best tasting food and so I read everything in the paper before your column. I feel safe in trying your recipes, as if I had them from a personal friend. Will you please send me a calorie chart? What is the least number of calories a person should have per day? Will you please print a recipe for hot cross buns. Betty.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: With letters like that coming in I shan't leave you Betty.

For group averages it has been found that moderately active women weighing 123 lbs. should have 2,400 calories per day. That is not a reducing requirement though. Some not-too-heavy women cut down their calorie intake to 1,700 calories per day BUT they must have large quantities of meat, eggs, cheese and milk and a carefully supervised diet to make this work. I have sent the calorie chart.

Hot Cross Buns

(This is a different recipe from the one I gave you last week.)

Two cups milk, 1 cake compressed yeast, ½ cup sugar, 6 cups sifted bread flour, 1½ teaspoons salt, ¼ cup best quality shortening, 2 eggs, 1 cup raisins, 2 teaspoons cinnamon. Scald the milk and cool to lukewarm. Dissolve the yeast and half of the sugar in ½ cup of the lukewarm milk. Sift the flour and measure it. Add the salt to the flour. Add the dissolved yeast to the remainder of the milk, then add half of the flour and beat until smooth. Cover this sponge and let rise in a warm place until light and full of bubbles. Melt the shortening; beat the eggs, then add the remaining sugar, melted shortening, beaten eggs and raisins to the sponge. Sift the remaining flour with the cinnamon and add it to the sponge.

Beat thoroughly at this stage. Now turn out on floured board and knead the dough until it is smooth and elastic and squeaks as you knead. Place in greased bowl and brush surface with melted butter or margarine, cover, and let rise in warm place until doubled in bulk and light to the touch. Break off pieces of even size and roll into balls about 2½ inches in diameter. Place on greased baking sheet about 2 inches apart. When risen very light make a deep cross at centre with tip of sharp knife. Let rise a few minutes longer. Bake at 400 deg. Fahr. They require about 15 or 20 minutes. While they are baking prepare a glaze: Mix 2 tablespoons sugar with 3 tablespoons milk. About 5 minutes before baking time is up brush each bun with this glaze, working quickly. Return to oven until golden brown and baked. Finish the cooled buns by outlining the cross with plain icing.

✧ ✧ ✧

QUESTION: I have read your column and would like a calorie chart. Would you give me some recipes and different way to do eggs as I cannot eat fried foods.

Helen L. W.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: I have sent the calorie chart. Thank you for enclosing a stamped and self-addressed envelope.

Shirred Eggs

Butter an individual custard (ramekin) and sprinkle fine crumbs in it, then shake to remove excess. Break an egg into this cup, sprinkle with salted and peppered fine crumbs, dot with 1 teaspoon butter. Place cups in shallow pan of hot water, bake at 350 deg. Fahr. until white is firm.

Creamy Egg

Beat 3 eggs slightly and add 3 teaspoons soft butter, ¾ teaspoon salt, shake of pepper and 2-3 cup milk. Stir in top of double boiler over simmering water, until mixture thickens softly — stirring very slowly. Do not overcook. Serve on toast garnished with parsley or tomato slices.

But they little know the sorrow
That lies within the heart concealed.

Time To Start Collecting Fishing Gear

By The Canadian Press

It's time to start getting that fishing gear together.

The warm days that inspire Canada's fishermen to start their annual assault on the country's thousand's of rivers, lakes and streams are just around the corner.

In British Columbia the trout season has already opened on some waters in the interior. But in Quebec many lakes are still covered with ice and fishing through the ice is unlawful.

Provincial rules and regulations vary widely according to the type of fish and location. However, a Canadian Press survey today shows most seasons open between April 15 and May 1 and extend as late as Oct. 31.

Although the season opens May 1 in most of British Columbia's lakes, fishing is at its best in June and early July and again in September and October. Spring salmon have already been caught along the coast.

Year-Round Season

In Alberta the over-all season on pike, pickerel, perch and goldeye will extend over the entire year, having opened April 1 and running until March 31 next year. Limit catch is 25 fish. Minimum size of pickerel is one foot.

New rules are included this year in Saskatchewan's regulations. The element of weight will be used for the first time in catch limits. Also, regional catch limits will replace the old laws which were on a broad north and south sector basis. Non-resident licence fees have been increased while resident permits remain unchanged.

In Manitoba, length of the trout season depends on the side of the 53rd parallel on which you try your luck. South of the parallel the season closes Sept. 24, nine days later than on the other side.

Angling for sturgeon is not permitted in Manitoba. Officials of the Manitoba Fish Culture Service say adult perch and pickerel will be put in many lakes throughout the province. Also more than 15,000,000 pickerel eggs will be put in sporting lakes in the northern part of the province.

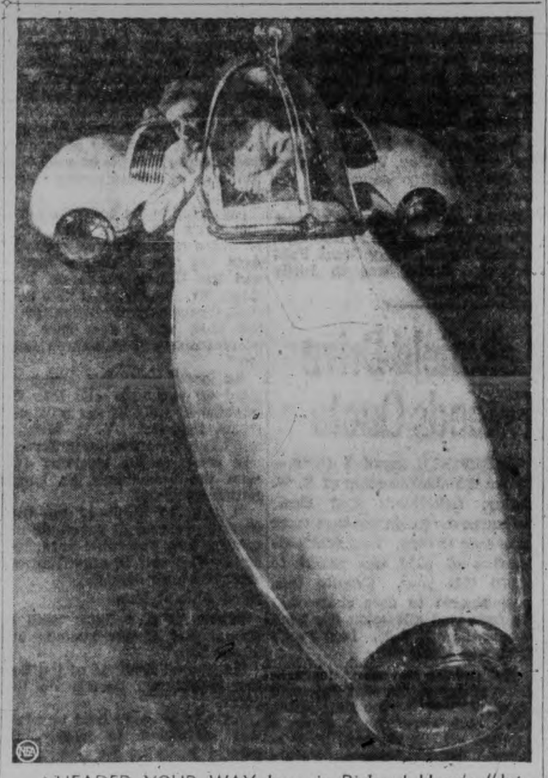
Good Season

The Ontario season promises to be a good one, provincial fish and wildlife experts plan to continue biological surveys, fish population studies and control measures. They will remove corse fish from some lakes and balance up the fish population of others by shifting game fish to more suitable waters.

In Quebec a new law will be enforced whereby it is illegal to use minnows in trout fishing except where the minnows come from the same waters as the trout. An official said the new law was imposed because fishermen threw back into trout lakes unused minnows, which, when grown, took up too large a part of marine food for the safety of fishing species.

In New Brunswick, it is feared that the winter's exceptionally heavy snowfall may make waters too high for good fishing early in the season. Fish-stocking will be especially heavy in several areas where akes were poisoned last year to get rid of undesirable species.

The high water situation is similar in Nova Scotia. The Atlantic salmon season opens from April 1 to June 14 in various places and extends as late as October 14.



HEADED YOUR WAY here is Richard Harp's "Jetmobile," a three-wheel car with room for only one passengeer —and barely that.

Three-Wheel Car Of Future Or Designer's Nightmare?

By RICHARD KLEINER

NEW YORK — (NEA) — The most amazing automobile in a collection of amazing automobiles — the International Motor Sports Show — is a three-wheel job called the Jetmobile. It's either a geninue peek into the future or a one-way ticket to a bad dream.

The Jetmobile is the creation of a young Boonsboro, Md., designer, Richard Harp. The model on display is the second one he built; the first was destroyed by fire after it won first prize as the most unusual design in a Washington, D.C., show. His friends chipped in to help him build the new one for $2,500. It was finished four hours before the New York show deadline.

"I think conventional cars are too blunt," says Harp, "so I borrowed aerodynamic lines for my car."

Engine In Rear

The Jetmobile is decidedly unblunt. It has a long nose, housing the plexiglass-enclosed driver's seat, which looks more like a cockpit. The engine is in the rear and the whole creation is low and sleek. Harp says he could design a family car on that style if he had the money.

✧ ✧ ✧

The show includes more than 100 cars, ranging from stock sports cars—like Jaguars, Bugattis, MGs and Siatas — through conventional Fords and aKiser's and Nashs and Cadillacs with custom bodies and on to one-of-a-kind custom cars.

There are old cars in and among the jet-inspired designs of today. Many powerful Packards and Duesenbergs and Rolls-Royces of the '30s are still handsome travel for sports-car fanciers.

But the major portion of the show is given over to the real sports cars. These are usually low convertibles with unusual features and strange designs. Some have chain drive. Some have right-hand controls. Some have the instrument panel on the floor. There are gear shifts on the wheel, on the floor and on the dashboard. Some look like mobile peanuts and others seem two blocks long.

✧ ✧ ✧

Most Imported

Most of them are imported, and it isn't hard to tell which. There was a warning sticker on one Italian-made Siata, which read: "In the first 1,000 miles NO EXCEED the limit of 3800 RPM."

But America is producing some new sports cars. Packard unveiled its new Pan-American which is a long sparkling creation.

The convertible top, when folded is covered with a metal lid, decorated with the radio aerial which juts toward the rear at just the right angle for spearing flying pedestrians. The instrument panel and steering wheel are trimmed in white leather.

The luxurious custom-made jobs have some fabulous touches. One has an electric phonograph built in. Many are air conditioned. A few have bars concealed in arm rests and other likely places.

✧ ✧ ✧

One custom car was big enough to include a desk for the travelling executive. Another car on display was the Phantom Corsair, originally built as "The Car of Tomorrow" for the New York World's Fair in 1939 at a cost of $37,000. Tomorrow hasn't come yet forthat car; it's still too futuristic for today's tastes.

It is practically a hide-out, because glass is minimized. The headlights are almost concealed and so would be any passengers riding in the car. When you open the door, part of the roof lifts up so you can enter it.

Also on view is the chassis of a sports car first exhibited in New York in 1915. It was made in Ireland. Many of its features are just now coming into general use. Some are still considered advanced by car designers.

There were no samples distributed.

Atom Research In India Makes Progress

NEW DELHI — (Reuters) — A glimpse into the research being carried on under a veil of secrecy by India's Atomic Energy Commission is given in the annual report of the Ministry of Natural Resources and Scientific Research.

During 1951-52, the report says, the Commission continued its work on specific problems in nuclear sciences aiming at the production and development of atomic energy.

The Indian A.E.C. has completed plans for setting up a factory to process monazite sands in India to produce rare earth compounds, trisodium phosphate and crude thorium hydroxide, for nuclear research purposes.

Another factory is to be set up for the production of uranium and thorium-bearing compounds.

The Commission's rare minerals survey unit is continuing to explore India for additional undiscovered resources of atomic energy minerals including uranium, thorium, beryllium, and monazite sands.

Survey teams have discovered "large" deposits of uranium and new sources of beryllium used in the production of alloys for munitions and planes.

The Commission is financing 24 research programs throughout India. At the Bombay Institute, scientific workers are being trained for the establishment of a new permanent Atomic Energy Commission.

In addition, teams of selected workers are studying nuclear physics, instrumentation, design and construction of mass spectrometer and counter tubes, and the use of photographic techniques for nuclear research work.

THIS MONSTER BEAVER, caught by Cliff Chaplin, Trent River, in his trap, weighed 60 pounds, the largest of the five Chaplin has trapped this year under a special beaver license he holds.—(W. W. Reid Photo).

60-Pound Beaver Caught In Trap.

CAMPBELLFORD, April 5 — (ENS)—Cliff Chaplin, Trent River trapper, got the surprise of his life on Wednesday when he made the rounds of his trap lines along the Trent River. Cliff noticed a huge beaver caught in one of his muskrat traps. When he approached it, it took off into the woods, trap and all, and Mr. Chaplin spent almost an hour tracking the animal dragging the trap.

He finally caught up with the beaver and finished it.

The beaver weighed 60 pounds, believed to be one of the largest ever captured in the district. Mr. Chaplin says the pelt is worth about $20. It is the fifth, and by far the largest he has trapped this year, under his special beaver licence.

The animal was caught on Steam Mill Island, in the Trent River.

Lakefield Drive Exceeds Quota

LAKEFIELD, April 5 (ENS.—Under the chairmanship of E. W. Bailey, Lakefield's Red Cross campaign for funds has once more gone over the top. Last year's allocation of $800 was raised to $1,000 this year. Despite this, total figures to date show that the increased allocation has been exceeded by $271.65. Last year's total was $1,071.65.

Much of the success of the campaign is due to the untiring work of Mr. Bailey. At the start of the drive each canvasser is given a detailed map of the area he is to cover, with houses plainly marked, so that no one will be missed. This idea, worked out several years ago by Mr. Bailey, has proved so successful that it is used each year.

Lakefield has a very active peacetime program in Red Cross which includes a thriving well babies' clinic, under the supervision of Mrs. Deladonne; a well-equipped loan cupboard and three hospital beds; a water safety and swimming program; the giving of vitamin pills to children of all grades in the public school; the supplying of a school nurse and an active participation in the work of the blood transfusion service in Peterborough.

Other alterations have been made on the property. A neat little woodshed was built at the back of the church last fall and a new fence is to be put up.

Two Grass Crops In One Summer Expert Urges

Making two crops of ensilage grow where one grew before, a slowly developing practice in farm manegement, was mentioned by John Pawley, manager of Caledon Farms, Credit Forks, Ont. in his practical and modest talk to 26 members of the Peterborough Jersey Breeders' Club Friday night in the office of the Ontario Department of Agricultfre.

Around the first of June a field of brome grass will be cut for silage, immediately followed by plowing for corn at Caledon.

Several of the members who have been ensiling grass said they were well satisfied with results. Mr. Pawley recommended the use of ammoniam nitrate on pasture. "We get wonderful results from it," he said.

In the general fertilizing program, Mr. Pawley said that minor elements were receiving more attention as signs apparently indicated that they were being leached out of our soils. One effect of that mineral deficiency might be the experience this year in some deficiency of conception.

Choice Of Bulls

Mr. Pawley discussed the choice of bul's in a breeding program, stressing the importance of heredity from good cow families, sound inheritance on the maternal side of sires.

"If we could only farm as well as we know how," was a Pawley epigram relating to a fact of experience that in herd care "there is something you have or you have not." And often the factor of having appears in the work of men who may have read little on the subject and who had also received scant instruction, but they got resuHs.

Mr. Pawley stressed the importance of regularity of feeding, and also the benefits of good ventilation in maintaining herd health.

Referring to the present state of the dairy industry, and other branches of agriculture, resulting from the loss of cheese exports and the U.S. embargo on livestock, Mr. Pawley said: "We have gone through many difficulties in the past, and I feel sure this present one will straighten itself out."

He mentioned the encroachment of vegetable oils into the established field of the milk and cream industry. V. S. Milburn caught public attention in Toronto this week in his assertion that even the cream-puff no longer contained cream.

"I hate to think of the continuing prospect of vegetable oils coming into our milk products," Mr. Pawley said in regard to new synthetic milk demand.

Need Animal Fats

"There is a definite need of animal fats in our makeup and in our diet."

He quoted findings of the British Nutritional Society on that point.

An acre of good land in wheat was estimated to supply the caloric needs of 2.4 persons for a year, the lysine (one of the amino acids) needs for only 1.8 people, and little or no ascorbic acid or vitamin A, and only enough calcium for the needs of 0.3 people for a year.

On the other hand, milk from an acre of good land was estimated to provide lysine needs of 4.1 people, calcium needs of 3.6 people, vitamin A needs of about 2.0 and caloric needs of 0.6 people for one year.

James Brenner, secretary of the Canadian Jersey Club, showed colored films of the tiny island home of the breed.

One reel was mostly pictorial, featuring scenic beauty, subtropical flowers, and the tourist attractions of the coastal towns. The other presented the 1951 spring show of the island cattle. Mr. Bremner said there were more Jersey cattle in the world than any other breed when their numbers were counted in New Zealand, United States, Canada, Great Britain and other countries.

H. L. Bamforth was chairman of the meeting, and Bruce Sargent moved the vote of thanks to Mr. Bremner and Mr. Pawley.

Soon Be Asked To Use Power

OTTAWA, April 5 — (CP). — Parliament, given authority in 1949 to amend the Canadian constitution on matters involving Federal jurisdiction, soon will be asked to make its first use of that power.

Stanley Knowles (CCF-Winnipeg North Centre) today placed on the order paper of the Commons a Bill to increase the quorum of the Chamber to 30 from 20 members.

The proposed change is relatively unimportant. However, the Bill will arouse interest because it is the first to deal with a constitutional change since the power over some constitutional amendments was transferred in 1949 from the United Kingdom to the Canadian Parliament.

The Bill may fix procedure for future constitutional amendments.

The constitution is based on the British North America Act, passed by the United Kingdom Parliament in 1867 when the Canadian provinces decided to federate.

Until 1949, the Canadian Parliament asked the United Kingdom Parliament to authorize constitutional changes dealing with matters within Federal jurisdiction or within the joint jurisdiction of the Federal and Provincial governments.

In 1949, the Canadian Parliament obtained from the United Kingdom Parliament the power to amend the constitution on most matters within Federal jurisdiction.

Mr. Knowles' bill is the first based on the Canadian parliament's new authority.

A clause of the bill, states that "notwithstanding the provisions of section 48 of the B.N.A. Act of 1867, the presence of at least 30 members of the House of Commons shall be necessary to constitute a meeting of the House for the exercise of its power . . ."

The existing quarum of 20 members was fixed in 1867 when the Commons consisted of 181 members.

"Now that the membership of the House has been increased to 262, it would seem to be beyond argument that the quorum should be increased in at least the same proportion," said Mr. Knowles.

The Bill, if passed, will be added to those statutes which form part of the constitution. However, most measures sponsored by private members are not accepted by the government and consequently are not passed.

Number Of Jobless Up 6,800 In March

OTTAWA, April 5—(CP)—The number of unemployed in Canada increased 6,800 to 377,700 by March 13, the Labor Department reported Friday. This was 82,000 more than in mid-season, 1951.

A major reason given for the higher unemployment was that many workers were being released from logging camps in Eastern Canada as the cutting season ended.

Peterboro' Ninth Ontario City

Oshawa has displaced Peterborough in eighth position in population among the cities of Ontario.

The 1951 census puts Oshawa with 41,545 people immediately below Sudbury with 42,210. Peterborough is ninth with 38,272, followed by St. Catharines and Brantford.

Oshawa's population was substantially increased by the annexation of part of East Whitby township on Jan. 1, 1951, but, says the Oshawa Times, "for all practical purposes that area was part of the Oshawa community long before that date."

The automobile city has its eyes on a population of 50,000, as have Kitchener and Sudbury.

Between the 1941 census with 41,545 people, Oshawa has moved up from 12th to 8th place.

Bevan Offers Alternate Plan For World Peace

By RONALD MACLURKIN

LONDON, April 5 (Reuters). — Aneurin Bevan, stormy petrel whose views on rearmament came near splitting the Labor party, came up with a plan for world peace today.

The peace proposal was the highlight of Bevan's political testament, his book entitled "In Place Of Fear," published here today.

Whatever the chances of the proposal bringing peace to the world, its concept offers little hope of bringing peace within the Labor party.

What he wants the world to do is mark off a set date on the calendar on which both east and west would put an end to their arms drive.

On that day, he proposes, all countries, including Russia, should divert some of their defence spending to an all-out drive for helping backward nations.

Bevan's Alternative

This idea is Bevan's alternative to the western arms policy which led him to resign from the former Labor government.

Publication of his book comes at a time when the Labor party is still licking its wounds following a bitter quarrel between Bevan and the official leaders of the party.

The Labor opposition in the House of Commons, having initiated the rearmament plan when it was in power, officially supports Britain's £4,700,000,000 arms program now being carried out by a Conservative government. Bevan, volcanic Welsh orator, and 56 other Labor members of parliament, defied orders from their leaders not to vote against the defence policy.

In his book he accuses the United States of taking panic measures and forcing the nations of Europe into heavy arms burdens which their economies cannot stand.

Weakens Democracies

The United States, he claims, has weakened instead of strengthened the democracies by urging large scale rearmament upon them—and thus has helped the Soviet diplomatic offensive.

Other points made by Bevan are that Communist China will, like Yugoslavia, refuse to be held in bondage by Russian dogma, and that Russia wishes to disengage herself from eastern Germany because she has pushed too far beyond her sociological frontiers.

Bevan's proposals for an alternative to the arms race, he says, were inspired by the solution Britain applied to her Indian problem in 1945 when she fixed a definite date for handing over power to the Indians themselves.

I.L.O. Budget Set At 6 Million In 1953

OTTAWA, April 5 (CP) —The International Labor Organization has set its 1953 budget at $6,223,368, down $1,554 from this year, Paul Emile Cote, parliamentary assistant to Labor Minister Gregg, said Friday.

Originally a 1953 budget of $500,000 higher than this year had been proposed, said Mr. Cote, back from the spring meeting of the organization at Geneva where he headed the Canadian delegation. However, the reduction was effected without jeopardizing any of the organization's activities.

Canada pays 4.3 per cent of the I.L.O. budget.

No Need To Worry

TORONTO, April 5 —(CP)—B. B. Warnica, president of the Ontario Beef Cattle Producers' Association, said Friday that horsemeat stores soon will go out of business because there are not enough horses left in Canada to keep them going. "Beef cattle producers need not worry about competition from horsemeat," he told the Association's annual meeting.

Steal Bird Seed

BRANTFORD, April 5—(CP)—Mr. and Mrs. Harry Shanahan are wondering who would want two tons of bird seed. Someone forced a lock on the door of their barn at nearby St. George and removed 4,500 pounds of spray millett. Millett, used in bird seed, is grown in commercial quantities by only one other farmer in Ontario, Shanahan said.

Friends Of Jesus

to those who need understanding?

There were two sorts among the friends of Jesus. To some He granted the privilege of following Him and being in His company; to others He gave the harder task of going home and telling of Him in their own communities.

Those forced to leave Him did have the greater burden. Think, for example, of the poor demoniac whom Jesus healed. That man wanted above all things to be with Jesus, but the Master told him to go back to his unfriendly neighbors and tell them what had happened to him.

Sometimes it is in plain unexciting tasks that we can best serve Jesus and show ourselves His friends.

Urges Farmers Sent Abroad

OTTAWA, April 5 — (CP) — Gordon Graydon (P.C., Peel) told Canada's diplomats Friday they should send some farmers abroad as ambassadors and they should certainly try to do something about the 'disease" of using initials to describe international organizations.

Mr. Graydon, the opposition's foreign affairs spokesman, outlined his proposals as a Commons committee buckled down to its annual job of studying the estimates for the External Affairs Department.

He argued that many qualified men are available — livestock breeders, wheat farmers and others.

The reply of A. D. P. Heeney, Departmental Under - Secretary, was that Canada now has 12 agricultural attaches abroad and the farming communities' interests "certainly aren't neglected."

The Graydon blast at initials came after Mr. Heeney exploded a brand-new one—P.I.C.M.M.E.—which stands for the Provisional International Committee for the Movement of Migrants from Europe.

Police Hold Woman For Abandoning Baby

TORONTO, April 5 — (CP) — Police are holding Mrs. Alice Clark, 27, of Belleville, on a charge of abandoning her 10-day-old daughter in a hotel here a week ago.

Arrested in Belleville on a warrant issued by Toronto police, she was returned here for trial.

Police said the woman took the child into the hotel in a suitcase and then checked out the next day, leaving the baby to be found by a maid.

Police said the truck driver Al Ballah of Fort Erie, had stopped because of engine trouble. Warning flares had been placed along the highway.

Cobalt Bomb Excites Great Interest

LONDON, Ont., April 5 (CP).—Now in its sixth month of deep-ray treatment of cancerous conditions, the world's first cobalt "bomb" has turned its atomic energy on the hopes and fears of more than 120 patients.

The results are "very encouraging" says Dr. Ivan Hamilton Smith, director of Victoria Hospital's clinic, sponsored by the Ontario Cancer Foundation.

The new beam therapy of cobalt-60 gama rays already has accomplished enough to offer "tangible evidence that the public's trust is justified," Dr. Smith reported.

At the moderate fee of $10 for each "shot,"—which promises to pay for the entire bomb apparatus —120 patients underwent a total of 1,608 treatments through March 31. A woman received the first treatment last Oct. 27.

Long Waiting List

Since then, inquiries, applications and referrals have come from all directions in and outside Canada. There is a waiting list, and workmen are constructing a new wing.

"There's no question that in five years the value of these units will be proven—no question about it," Dr. Smith said. Cancer researchers customarily withhold curative findings at least five years. Dr. Smith avoided "premature conclusions.

The cobalt "bomb" is about one inch in diameter and about one-half the size of a flashlight battery cell.

The cobalt-60 isodosages are being directed at a wide range of growths, including those that have withstood less potent beams, such as cancer of the lungs, gullet, pancreas, upper stomach and rectum.

Exonerated By Jury Boy Given Job

NEW BALTIMORE, Mich., April 5 (CP).—Exonerated by a probate court jury of blame for killing his father in a family row over television, Gerald Sikon, 16, began a new life Friday.

He started work on a job created by sympathetic merchants.

Late Thursday the jury found the boy not guilty of manslaughter and added a rider: "He is not a delinquent."

Evidence showed he shot his father to save his mother from a beating. John Sikon had knocked his wife down and kicked her in the face.

Yearly Report Of Humane Society

Being a Humane Society inspector has its lighter moments, Inspector Bruce Menzies told the annual meeting of the Humane Society when he presented his report Thursday night.

"Since I started as inspector last April 15, I would venture to say I have talked to half the population of Peterborough on the telephone," Mr. Menzies said. "I have had a good many laughs over some of the complaints," he added.

32 "Other Animals"

Between April 15, when he took over as inspector, and December 31, 1951, Mr. Menzies reported he had picked up a total of 353 animals. Of these, 182 were cats, 139 were dogs and the 32 others were listed as "other animals," including those unwelcome little visitors to the back garden — skunks.

Mr. Menzies said he had destroyed 239 dogs and 294 cats and had captured 257 stray dogs and cats. Three hundred and sixteen dog owners had been warned about obtaining licences, he said and he found homes for 48 cats and returned 97 dogs to their rightful owners.

Out-of-town complaints in regard to animals being mistreated numbered 22, Mr. Menzies' report stated. Three horses were wintered at a farm where they were properly housed and fed until conditions were improved at their owners' farms.

During the summer and fall, Mr. Menzies said he attended 14 fairs and circuses in the city and district and "found all livestock well cared for."

Every Saturday, the humane society inspector visits the city market and he said in his report that he has warned a few farmers about covering their trucks and wagons with tarpaulins and putting more straw on the floor when they are transporting animals.

The humane society inspector ended his annual report by thanking the president of the society, Mrs. S. O. Shields, the provincial and city police and all members of the society "for their kindness and co-operation during the past year."

Suggest County Councils Rule On Deer Hunting

TORONTO, April 5 —(CP)—The Ontario Legislature's fish and game committee Friday recommended that county and township councils be left to decide whether to permit deer hunting in the agricultural areas in southern Ontario.

Deer in southern Ontario are creating serious conditions which will become aggravated unless they are controlled, the Lands Department told the committee in a written recommendation.

"The only practical form of control known to the department is shooting, preferably in a proper open season." Where deer were abundant, they were damaging crops and woodlots, and were potential carriers of livestock diseases.

Many Starve

"In several places they have so depleted the natural winter forage . . . that they have starved to death," the department's recommendation said.

A three-day open season in agricultural areas was permitted last year, but was withdrawn by many municipal councils.

J. P. Johnstone (PC—Bruce) urged that the government take over control of deer from local councils. He said that last year hunters had crowded into Bruce County after Grey and Huron counties banned hunting. An open season in the three counties together would eliminate too heavy hunting in any one area.

355 Million Budget Surplus For 1951-52 Abbott Says

Reports Revenues Set All-Time Record Of 4 Billion

By D'ARCY O'DONNELL

OTTAWA, April 7. (CP)—A budgetary surplus of $355,737,000 for the 1951-52 fiscal year was reported today by Finance Minister Abbott. The surplus, sixth in a row for the Federal government since the end of the Second World War, compared with $211,294,000 in the previous year. Revenues for the year ended March 21 last, setting an all-time record, totalled $4,003,111,000 and expenditures $3,647,374,000. In the previous year revenues were $3,112,536,000 and expenditures $2,901,242,000.

The surplus reduced the country's net debt to $11,077,600,000, a decrease of $2,343,800,000 from its peak of $13,421,400,000 in 1946.

The figures were included in the government's annual white paper containing and economic review of the last fiscal year. Mr. Abbott, due to present his budget to the Commons at 8 p.m. EST Tuesday, set a precedent by tabling the white paper a day in advance of his budget speech.

Revised Forecast

In his budget speech a year ago, Mr. Abbott forecast a surplus of only $30,000,000 for 1951-52. Last fall, he revised his forecast and said he believed he would end the year with a surplus of between $200,000,000 and $300,000,000.

At the end of nine months of the fiscal year, the surplus had climbed to $721,000,000. The white paper did not list the expenditures month-by-month and did not explain what expenses had reduced the surplus from its peak to $355,000,000 at the end of the year.

A detailed explanation was given for the wide margin between the original forecast of a $30,000,000 surplus and the actual experiences.

Revenues were $292,000,000 greater than anticipated and defence expenditures were some $260,000,000 less than anticipated.

Higher Than Anticipated

The original revenue forecast was based on the expectation that the gross national product—the value of Canadian production—would reach $20,000,000,000. It actually reached $21,2000,000,000. Profits, incomes and imports were all higher than anticipated.

Other points in the 85-page white paper:

1. Personal income tax yielded an estimated $980,000,000 in 1951-52, an increase of $327,700,000 or 50.2 per cent over the previous year.

2. Corporation income tax, again the largest single source of government revenue, yielded $1,134,000,000, an increase of $334,800,000 or 42 per cent over the previous year.

U.S. Phone Workers Join Telegraphers In Big Walkout

NEW YORK, April 7. (AP)—A two-pronged communications strike flared across the United States today but an American Telephone and Telegraph spokesman said "most service is normal." The C.I.O. walkouts hit the Western Electric Company, installation and maintenance subsidiary of the Bell System in 43 states, and the telephone system itself in five states. Coupled with a continuing A.F.L. strike against the Western Union Telegraph System, the new walkouts made the communications snarl a three-way affair.

About 67,000 workers—16,000 of them employees of Western Electric and 51,000 of them telephone employees in Ohio, New Jersey, Michigan, Northern California and Nevada—quit their jobs.

They are all members of the Communications Workers of America (C.I.O.)

Picketing Sporadic

Although picket lines of the 43-state Western Electric crews would threaten telephone service generally, picketing was only sporadic so far.

In the Western Union strike, now in its fifth day, the company claimed today that service has been restored in 82 major cities of the some 2,000 cities and towns.

The union, the Commercial Telegraphers (A.F.L.) said this claim was company propaganda, and that "we have the country sewed up except for New York City."

Further mediation efforts were scheduled today, both for the telephone and Western Union phases of the strikes.

Wage disputes caused the communications labor troubles.

The Western Electric dispute appeared to be the most serious. This company is a Bell subsidiary, and the union plans to picket telephone company offices.

Ernest Weaver, a C.W.A. district official in New York, said 300,000 union telephone workers in the 43 States were prepared to respect the Western Electric picket lines.

In the Bell System disputes, most of the employees involved are operators. Wage demands and present scales vary in different areas.

Federal mediator J. R. Mandelbaum was to confer with Western Union officials today at their New York offices.

The A.F.L. Union is seeking a 16-cent an hour boost from the telegraph company. It also is asking a shorter work week and other benefits. Present wages average between $1.53 and $1.63 an hour.

Bridge In Sask. Crumpled By Ice-Boulders

SWIFT CURRENT, Sask., April 7. (CP)—A flood crest weighed with boulders of ice swept away, the brand-new $1,000,000 Saskatchewan Landing bridge with a great roar early Sunday morning. Three steel centre spans, weighing hundreds of tons, were hurled 40 feet, then sank in the South Saskatchewan River.

They left no trace save an eddy in the current marking where they lay on the river bottom. The 1,215-foot bridge, completed last summer, linked Swift Current

Meanwhile, the flood crest moved northward toward Saskatoon. Already thousands of acres of farmland in the Pike and Moon Lake areas 15 miles west of Saskatoon were flooded. In the city itself, chunks of ice battered the piers of Saskatoon's five bridges.

Gave Out After 3 Days

The Saskatchewan landing bridge went out at 1.55 a.m. after withstanding the battering ram of ice and water for three days. The river level, which had been even with the floor of the bridge, suddenly rose another three feet as the flood crest roared downstream.

The three big centre spans along with one of six concrete spans spilled into the water and disappeared in 15 seconds. Left standing were three concrete spans at the south end and two at the north end.

Premier T. C. Douglas placed damage at between $200,000 and $300,000. Highways Minister J. T. Douglas put the figure at $177,000, based on original costs. It is believed cost of replacing the missing spans at today's prices will be considerably higher.

Premier Douglas said the bridge will be repaired "within three months." In the meantime, he said, ferry service would be set up immediately and the army would be asked to lend a Baily bridge, the kind the Allies used for spanning rivers in the Second World War.

Highways Minister Douglas said the concrete piers and abutments along with the five remaining concrete spans are intact. He said the condition of the piers and remaining spans is evidence that construction was not faulty.

Suggests Built Higher

Liberal Leader Walter Tucker urged that the bridge be rebuilt at a greater height to eliminate the possibility of a recurrence of Sunday's collapse.

Only a few persons witnessed the early morning crumpling of the bridge. It had been closed to traffic since Thursday. The gravelled approaches, forming a part of No. 4 Highway, were washed out by the surging water and ice. Chunks of ice as big as small houses were thrown up on the river banks.

Abbott Reveals Budget Tuesday

OTTAWA, April 7 — (CP) — Canadians will be told Tuesday how much the federal government plans to take from them in taxes during the 1952-53 fiscal year, when expenditures will set a peacetime record.

Finance Minister Abbott will start reading his budget speech to the Commons at 8 p.m. EST. Both he and Prime Minister St. Laurent have given advance warnings that Canadians should expect no "substantial" tax reductions as long as the world situation remains as it is.

Co-operation Pays Off Get Hippopotamus

BERLIN, April 7 — (AP) — East-West co-operation paid off on the hippopotamus level today.

The Leipzig zoo in the Russian zone announced that Grete, 1½-ton hippo, gave birth to a 50-pound offspring, sex yet undetermined. The father is Knautsche, 3,500-pound male hippo in the West Berlin zoo.

The new hippo will be given to the West Berlin zoo, where Grete met for the second time last Augus with Knautsche. The first baby lives with Grete in Leipzig.

Sees Federation As Disaster

LONDON, April 7 (Reuters) — If Britain joined a Federation of Europe it would mean disaster for both and the end of the Commonwealth, Lord Salisbury, Commonwealth relations secretary, said today.

Broadcasting to Europe in a new radio series, "Britain's Place In The World," he answered European criticism that by standing aloof Britain is fouling attempts to make a strong, unified western Europe.

Salisbury said that by merging with a European federation, Britain would have to give control of her defence and foreign policies to the federal government.

He added:

"Britain would cease to be an independent sovereign state and as a result she would not be able any more to play her present part in the association of independent sovereign states which make up the Commonwealth.

"She would become just a part of Europe and the other members would go their own way."

Suggest Change In Regulations On Home Buying

TORONTO, April 7—(CP)—A change in rent control regulations to permit those who purchased homes before March 31, 1952, to take occupancy on six months' notice was recommended today by the Ontario Legislature's Committee on Rent Controls.

Present regulations permit a six-month notice to vacate only in cases where an occupied house was bought before last June 15.

The recommendation will go before the cabinet for decision. If approved, it will mean that owners who apply immediately for occupancy will obtain possession in early autumn.

Uanimously Adopted

The recommendation was made by Gordon MacOdrum (P.C., Leeds), committe chairman, and was adopted unanimously.

The committee also decided to ask members of the Legislature to get the opinion of council members on what areas can be removed from rent controls. Attorney-General Porter noted that the regulations provide that any area ordered decontrolled can be kept under control by decision of the local municipal council within six months after the decontrol order.

Gordon Hewitt, rentals board chairman, said that, up to the end of February, some 2,600 applications for notice to vacate had been filed.

Charlotte Refuses Kiss From Lamport

TORONTO, April 7 — (CP) — Mayor Charlotte Whitton of Ottawa just wouldn't be kissed by Toronto's mayor Allan Lamport.

He did his best at the Women's Service Clubs' dinner Saturday. The offer came on behalf of the citizens of Toronto to assure her that the dove of peace still could flutter after their recent verbal skirmish.

A news photographer was all set to take a picture of the kiss. But the Ottawa mayor settled for a handshake.

Teachers Federation Calls Trustees Brief Ridiculous

TORONTO, April 7.—Ontario teachers lashed back at criticism of their authority by the Urban and Rural Trustees' Association. Nora Hodgins, secretary-treasurer of the Ontario Teachers' Federation, charged the association with attempting to sabotage the federation. She said a brief issued by the trustee group was ridiculous, irresponsible and was an attempt to confuse the public with half-truths and misstatements.

"The whole document," she said, "is quite obviously a premeditated and unprovoked attack by a group of school trustees which for some years now has been devoting its energies in an attempt to curtail the basic civil rights of its teacher employees, and in general to bring about bad feeling between the teaching profession and the public."

Miss Hodgins' retort, on behalf of the province's 27,000 teachers, brought to a new climax a smoldering feud. Unlike most employer-employee relations, trustee-teacher negotiations are guided by an act of the legislature—the Teaching Profession Act of 1944, which established the Ontario Teachers' Federation and its five affiliates.

Target Brief

This legislation was the target of the Urban and Rural Trustee Association's brief. It asked for amendments which would abolish the closed shop principle of the teachers' federation and the compulsory check-off; readjust blacklisting powers which the trustees charged had been used illegally by the secondary school teachers' federation; broaden the teachers' board of reference to take in disputes which now result in blacklisting; and abolish the clause which gives a teacher being disciplined the chance to see the charge against him and reply to it before it is given to the school board.

The brief said the Teaching Profession Act had been the cause of steadily worsening relations between boards and teachers because it gave the federation unprecedented powers.

Biggest stimulus to trustee resistance this year was the unofficial blacklisting of three boards by the Ontario Secondary School Teachers' Federation because of salary disputes. One trustee went so far as to suggest that offenders should be jailed when a blacklisting occurred. Mrs. Edwin Bryce, chairman of the Kingston board, which

Dog Puts Out Fire, Saves 3

TORONTO, April 7—(CP)—A black-and-white hound dog kept a bedroom fire under control in suburban Scarboro Sunday, firemen said today.

The dog, Gunner, ran out of the house with burning sheets in his mouth and rubbed the flames out on the ground.

Firemen found three men asleep in the house and almost suffocated from smoke. They were George McNeil, 22, brother of the owner, Gordon McNeil and William Kellogg, 21.

Flaming pillows were thrown out a window. The dog leaped on the pillows, tore them to shreds and stamped the flames out in a mud puddle.

Mac McLean, a neighbor, discovered the fire but said he was unable to enter because of the smoke. He called the fire department.

"When I came back I was amazed to see that the dog had made three trips into the house," he said.

Firemen said the fire had broken out earlier in the night and the three men had extinguished it with a pail of water. Then it broke out again.

Police Hunt Smuggling Ring

BUFFALO, April 7 (CP) — A crack-down on smuggling aliens across the Niagara river and into the United States was announced today by Arthur K. Karnuth, district immigration director.

He said his department had information of an organized effort to smuggle into the U.S. some of the 200,000 European immigrants to Canada last year.

He said he believed that many of these immigrants entered Canada with the intention of eventually entering the U.S.

In Ottawa, the Immigration Department said Canada has no evidence to support a Buffalo immigration officer's statement about smuggling.

However, a spokesman said that doesn't necessarily mean that smuggling isn't going on because men could be slipping across to the Buffalo area by boat at night without Canadian authorities knowing about it.

Lightning Bolt Explodes Inside House

CAMPBELLFORD, April 7 — (ENS). — A freak bolt of lightning disrupted the household of Eric Ellis, one mile north of Havelock, on Saturday evening, when it shattered part of the kitchen.

Mrs. Ellis, her daughter Mavis age 13, and son Kenneth age 5, were alone at the time. Mr. Ellis had not yet returned from his work.

The bolt ripped two doors from the building, knocking Mrs. Ellis down with one of them. Electrical outlets were torn from the walls, lighting fixtures on the ceiling were shattered, and pictures were torn from the walls.

Stopped Watch

Thirteen-year-old Mavis was lying on a couch when the bolt struck. Her wrist watch stopped at 5:40 p.m., and all efforts to start it since have failed.

The kitchen stove was lifted from the floor, and one of the glass coasters on which the legs of the stove were resting came to rest on top of the stove.

Telephone wires leading to the home were burned for a distance of three pole lengths from the house, but there was no fire.

Neighbors who came to view the damage, said it was unbelievable, and Thomas Ephgrave, Peterborough insurance adjuster, said he had never seen so much damage confined to such a small area and caused by lightning in all his experience.

Workmen were unable to find any trace of several hundred feet of telephone wire leading into the home. It was apparently burned completely away. Neighbors began helping to repair the damage. The kitchen will have to be replastered and new electrical outlets and fixtures will have to be installed.

Fala Dies At Weekend Buried Near Master

HYDE PARK, N.Y., April 7 — (AP)—Fala, the little black Scotty who sat in on the making of history, died Saturday.

He was buried Sunday in the Rose Garden of Hyde Park, not far from the resting place of President Franklin D. Roosevelt, his master and constant companion for five years.

The Scotty was born April 7, 1940.

Reds Promise Allied POW's Peaceful Return

MUNSAN, Korea, April 7 (AP) —Communist radios today promised a peaceful welcome home to all Red prisoners returned by the United Nations command during a truce in Korea, even if the prisoners say they have renounced Communism.

The broadcasts may have been an attempt to sound out the U.N. on a possible compromise on one of the three key issues blocking an armistice—voluntary repatriation of prisoners.

Brig.-Gen. William P. Nuckols, U.N. command spokesman, said the command had no immediate comment.

Negotiations on the prisoner exchange issue are in recess to give staff officers opportunity to develop additional revenues for agreement.

Short Meeting

Sub-delegates considering the two other key issues met only seven minutes Monday but agreed to confer again Tuesday. Each side restated its position on the issues in the brief session.

The issues are: whether Russia will help supervise a truce and whether the Reds may rebuild military airfields in North Korea during a truce. The U.N. command disapproves of both.

The Red broadcasts promising immunity to their returned prisoners were attributed to the "Korean people's armed forces and the Chinese people's volunteers."

They repeated the Red stand that all prisoners held by both sides should be released and repatriated in the event of an armistice.

The U.N. command has insisted all along that no prisoner be returned against his will.

U.S. Plane Flies Over North Pole

ANCHORAGE, Alaska, April 7 (AP)—A United States Navy patrol bomber has landed at Thule Air Force base in northern Greenland after a flight over the North Pole, the Alaskan air command reported early today.

It was not known here whether the ski-equipped bomber, carrying 12 men on the trail-blazing flight, had actually put down at the pole, as planned. The plane was to refuel at Thule and fly back to Point Barrow, Alaska, headquarters of the navy's "Operation Ski Jump."

The plane was one of the two P2V Neptune bombers, each with 12 men aboard, which set out late Saturday from Point Barrow to attempt the first landings in history on the strategic polar ice cap at the top of the world.

The two planes landed on "Ice Island T-3," several hundred miles short of the pole, engine trouble forced one of the bombers to remain behind on the island yesterday.

Conservatives Lose Ground Consistently In UK Voting

LONDON, April 7 — (CP) — The Conservative party, which Prime Minister Churchill led back to power in national affairs in October, is losing ground consistently in local elections being held throughout the country.

In polling during the weekend, the Socialists won back control of two county councils, Essex and West Riding and some labor party leaders began clamoring for the resignation of the Conservative government. Sweeping Labor gains in rural districts followed a Labor victory of almost landslide proportions in the London County Council last week. In the London Council, where strength had been almost precisely divided, Labor gained 27 seats and in the administration of local affairs in the Capital will have a mapority of 55. Labor gains were recorded in most of the 22 county elections held during the weekend.

The first demand that the Churhill government should resign was from the Leftist Labor Member of Parliament, Aueurin Bevan.

"It may be that by the Fall of the year we can convince the Tories in the Huose of Commons that they have outlived their time," Bevan said in a speech at Sheffield Sunday.

But Conservatives, with a slim majority of 16 in the House of Commons, were not regarding such demands seriously. At party headquarters it was said that a momentary decline in Conservative strength had been expected.

Local elections will continue to May 10. Aside from the Labor seizure of the two outlying counties, there have been no changes in control but Conservative majorities declined in the counties they continue to hold.

Leo Reise Injured Lost To Red Wings

DETROIT, April 7 — (AP). — Detroit Red Wings lost the services of regular defenceman Leo Reise for the Stanley Cup hockey finals when he suffered a cut left instep in practice today.

The Wings' other regular defenceman, Red Kelly, is already sidelined by a wrist injury. But he is expected to be ready for the series which start this week against the winner of the Boston-Montreal semi-finel.

Reise's instep was punctured by Marcel Pronovost's skate when the two collided.

The Wings said they are trying to locate defenceman Hugh Coflin of their Indianapolis farm club who is reported "somewhere in Saskatchewan." They would fly him here as Reise's replacement.

Postpone Hearings

TEHRAN, April 7. (AP)— The Iranian joint oil commission agreed today to support a request by Premier Mohammed Mossadegh for a month's postponement of the International Court of Justice hearings on the Anglo-Iranian oil dispute. The hearings had been set tentatively for early May.

Willing To Meet Stalin If Situation Favorable

LONDON, April 7—(Reuters) — Prime Minister Churchill said today that he would welcome a meeting with Premier Stalin and President Truman if the circumstances and situation were favorable.

Labor Member Norman Dodds questioned Churchill in the House of Commons, urging that most people would prefer that he try and fail than not try at all.

Dodds wanted to know whether Churchill is still as enthusiastic about a meeting with Stalin as he was during the national elections last October when Churchill advocated such a meeting in his campaigning.

Churchill replied: "It is not so much a question of enthusiasm but of earnestness, and on my part that has in no way diminished."

Another Labor M.P., former Defence Minister Emanuel Shinwell asked: "What has caused you to change your mind? Have you been thinking again?"

Churchill brought cheers from his supporters with his reply: "I have not changed my mind at all but apparently Mr. Shinwell has changed his, since he and his party called my observations in 1951 a stunt."

"Are we to understand," Shinwell countered, "that the reason you are reluctant to take up the point is that you now regard it as a stunt yourself?"

Churchill said: "I have no reluctance at all. If the circumstances and the situation were favorable I should welcome the occasion."

The last time the Stalin meeting came up in the House was Jan. 19, also on a question from Dodds. Churchill then said that he had nothing to add to a reply he had given Nov. 12 which was:

"There are at present no plans for negotiations on general problems with the Soviet Union but the possibility of a high-level meeting should not be excluded if circumstances are favorable."

Armored Truck Guards End Weekend Walkout

BOSTON, April 7 — (AP) — Guards and drivers of the U.S. Trucking Corporation's armored trucks returned to work today as a weekend walkout ended.

The walkout was staged to protest suspension of three fellow workers in charge of a truck when it was robbed of $681,000 in Danvers, March 25.

A meeting of management and Teamsters Union (A.F.L.) officials was scheduled for today to discuss the controvesy which delayed movement of millions of dollars of bank and industrial payroll funds. Thirty-six employees were involved.

Asks New Parley Of Top Leaders After Stalin Talk

MOSCOW, April 7. (AP)—A half-hour conversation between Prime Minister Stalin and India's ambassador to Moscow has produced a new call for the world's "top people" to meet in an attempt to settle major international problems. "There is no outstanding problem now dividing the world which could not be settled with discussion and negotiation . . . every effort should be made to get the top people together," said the Indian ambassador, Sir Sarvapalli Radhakrishnan, after his conversation on Saturday night with Stalin.

Stalin's interview with the Indian diplomat was viewed here as another in a series of important Soviet moves apparently aimed at fostering the hope that the divided world can settle its differences peaceably.

Latest Moves

The Communist moves in this direction include:

1. Stalin's statement last week to a group of American newspaper editors and radio men that a third world war is no nearer than it was in 1949 or 1950 and that a meeting of the big power Chiefs of State would be useful.

2. The international economic conference now under way here at which M. V. Nesterov, president of Russia's Chamber of Commerce, said Saturday that the Soviet Union is ready for a vast expansion of trade with all countries.

3. The Russian proposal nearly a month ago that the United States Britain, France and the Soviet Union get together to negotiate a peace treaty with a united Germany.

The Indian ambassador talked with Stalin during a farewell call before leaving April 8 for India to become his country's vice-president.

Radhakrishnan said Stalin looked "as usual" and was in "a good humor."

Though there was no immediately official reaction in the western world to this latest suggestion for a top-level conference, non-Communist observers generally have considered the other recent Soviet moves as propaganda designed to arouse false hopes of peaceful Communist intentions in the west and to undermine the western rearmament program.

Bad Weather Grounds Planes

SEOUL, Korea, April 7—(AP)—Rain and clouds over Korea this morning grounded United Nations command planes and made life miserable for the foot soldier at the front.

Only weather reconnaissance planes took to the air, said a U.S. Fifth Air Force spokesman. He added "it was raining all over the peninsula."

On Sunday U.S. Sabre jet pilots reported they destroyed four MIG-15 Communist jets, probably destroyed two and damaged eight in three fights over northwestern Korea.

One of the kills was credited to Capt. Iven C. Kincheloe, Cassopolis, Mich.

U.N. and Red patrols skirmished lightly on the muddy battlefront Monday morning.

The Army said Allied troops Sunday reoccupied without opposition a hill northwest of Yonchon on the central front, near the scene of a two-hour battle Saturday night between U.N. infantrymen and 750 to 850 Chinese Reds. The Allied troops had withdrawn from their advance position during Saturday's battle. In that two-hour fight the Allied troops turned back a Red attempt to dent the U.N. line.

Says Seaway Bill Going To Senate

OGDENSBURG, N.Y., April 7—(CP)—Senator Alexander Wiley (Rep., Wis.) said Saturday he expects the Senate Foreign Relations Committee to send the St. Lawrence Seaway legislation to the Senate very shortly.

He told a seaway rally sponsored by the northern conference of municipalities that "we have the necessary votes in committee" and that the seaway legislation would go to the Senate despite opposition by Committee Chairman Tom Connally (Dem., Texas).

Wiley predicted the proposed seaway and power project would pay for itself. The project is estimated to cost $818,000,000.

Reporting the legislation to the Senate, he noted, would be only the beginning of a new battle over the controversial project.

"Another battle will occur in the House Public Works Committee, still another in the House Rules Committee, and then the final battle on the Senate and House floors," he said.

The link that had to come

The two main roads to the solution of life's problems, divergent though they may have seemed to be, are the way of Science and the way of Religion.

These two paths converge in Christian Science. Today the rational thinker finds logic, supported by proof, in the religious thinker's deep conviction of a primal cause, or intelligence, called God.

Science and religion can now agree, for through the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy, the actual Science of Christianity has been revealed.

This great book shows, through reason and revelation, the solution to problems of health, supply, or of any other kind. It may be read or obtained at all Christian Science Reading Rooms. The coupon is also for your use.

He told police he picked up a fare at Yonge and Bloor Sts. and was told to drive to a Balliol St. address.

Teachers' Federation

is one of the three, said if the high school had to be closed in September because of staff shortage due to blacklisting, it would be closed. The department of education could figure it out then.

Federation Shocked

In her reply, Miss Hodgins said the federation was shocked at the brief published by the association, which she said represented only a small group of trustees in the province. She said the group was going over the head of the Ontario Trustees' Council and was utterly ignoring its policies.

The council is made up of six trustee organizations in the province and was organized two years ago to discuss non-controversial topics of mutual interest, and has been carrying on discussions with the O.T.F. The Urban and Rural Trustees' Association is one of its major members. Decisions of the council are binding only when approved by the six member organizations.

Miss Hodgins said the sections of the act criticized by the trustees have been constantly reviewed in conferences between their council and the O.T.F. Meetings have been held two or three times a year and many mutually agreeable revisions concerning contracts and other regulations have been made. Some of these revisions were now denounced by the trustees.

Deplorable Attacks

"The attacks of this group on the teaching profession are deplorable enough," Miss Hodgins said, "but even worse in this public denial of agreements it has entered into in the trustees' council."

She denied the secondary teachers were misusing the blacklisting power. The so-called pink letter is merely a letter of information which any of the five O.T.F. affiliates may send to its members, informing them it has been unable to negotiate a satisfactory settlement with a particular school board, she said. Teachers may take jobs with that board if they wish, but will not get any assistance from their federation in salary or other negotiations with that board.

As for the discipline suggestion Miss Hodgins said it was an indication of the trustee group's attitude toward their teacher employees.

"Apparently they wish principals and school administrators to return to the former secret police methods, whereby a teacher might be reported on to a school board and dismissed, with a loss of professional reputation, without ever hearing the charges laid against him or being allowed to defend himself.

Steel Talks Reach Critical Stage

NEW YORK, April 7 (AP). — Hopes that the government can settle the steel wage dispute flickered today, like fires in the industry's blast furnaces already being cooled before the strike deadline Tuesday midnight.

The Wage Stabilization Board chairman, Nathan Feinsinger, and two members of the board planned new meetings today with representatives of steel's "big six" and the C.I.O. United Steel Workers.

Feinsinger met with union and industry representatives for several hours Sunday and later spoke cautiously of "gradual progress" towards a "better understanding" of each other's problems.

"It is too early, however," Feinsinger added, "to state whether or when the dispute will be settled."

His cautious optimism was tempered by these immediate developments:

U. S. Steel Corporation president Benjamin F. Fairless asked the union to call off the strike; and the steel workers' president, Philip Murray, promptly said it was the industry, not the union, which was "forcing the strike."

Gloomy Feeling

At Pittsburgh and in nearby steel towns, there was the gloomy feeling that the strike, postponed several times, cannot now be avoided. Mills cooled their furnaces and closed their coal mines. Steel workers were holding on to their cash, and merchants reported an Easter buying slump

Major manufacturing firms planned for steel shortages. The General Electric Co. instructed its executives in a news letter to stop all overtime work as soon as a steel strike started.

One spark briefly lighted the dreary picture—the Barium Steel Company, with four Pennsylvania plants and 3,600 workers, signed an independent agreement with the union, which now has pacts covering four companies with 11,000 workers.

The independents accepted the union's terms, that contracts be based on the Wage Stabilization Board's recommendation for a 17½ cents-an-hour total wage increase and other benefits.

Other steel firms, including the "big six", have opposed the board's recommendations.

Report Revenues

3. Revenue from taxes on cigars, cigarettes and tobacco was $24,800,000 higher, although the yield from excise duties on tobacco products and alcoholic beverages was $19,000,000 lower due to reduced sales.

4. Inflationary pressures have been brought under control but international events "could bring about a renewal of direct inflationary pressures that might seriously test our economic defences."

5. Prospects for 1952 indicate "continued high levels of employment and general business activity, without any renewal of overt inflation, and with most of the increased output occurring in defence and defence-supporting sections of the economy."

Hidden Tax Paid

The year's highest yield from indirect or "hidden" taxes came from the 10-per-cent sales tax. It brought in $596,000,000, an increase of $125,400,000 over the previous year.

The sales tax was among the levies which yielded more than was forecast in the budget a year ago. Mr. Abbott obtained $110,000,000 more than was anticipated from personal income tax; $158,000,000 from corporation income tax; $38,000,000 from customs import duties; $2,000,000 from the sales tax and $2,200,000 from settlement of accounts on the excess profits tax, repealed several years ago.

Revenue from excise duties was $23,000,000 less than forecast in the last budget. The yield from excise taxes was $11,000,000 lower and the amount obtained from succession duties was $2,000,000 lower than expected.

The forecast of revenue from personal income tax was based on an anticipated increase of about 12 per cent in salary and wages during the year. Salaries and wages increased by approximately 17 per cent. Estimates of corporate profits proved to be about 12 per cent too low.

Below Forecast

"The actual revenue from excise duties in 1951-52 fell well below the budget forecast because of a short fall of 24 per cent in the revenue from matured spirits and of 14 per cent in the revenue from the tax on cigarettes," said the white paper.

Referring to the $11,000,000-drop in excise taxes, it said:

"This was more than accounted for by the fact that additional revenue from the increased tax on tobacco products was about $10,000,000 less than expected, and that the revenue from the new tax on stoves, washing machines and refrigerators was also $5,000,000 short of the $16,000,000 expected at the time of the budget."

U.S. Dollar Unchanged

MONTREAL, April 7 (CP) — The United States dollar today opened at a discount of two per cent in terms of Canadian funds, unchanged from Friday's close. That is, it took $0.98 Canadian to buy $1 American.

The pound sterling was $2.75, up ⅝ from Friday.

Thieves Get $175 In Breakin

City detectives are investigating two break-ins reported during the weekend.

Early today, Duffus' Bowling Alley on Water St. was entered. A screw driver was used to pry open the cash register and $173, the bulk of Saturday's receipts were taken.

Entry was gained by smashing a window on the fire escape, and reaching in and opening the window.

The caretaker was cleaning up on Sunday and did not notice anything wrong, so it is believed that the break-in took place later Sunday night or early today.

Church Office

Sometime during the night, the office of George St. United Church was entered. An east door leading to the furnace room was not locked and after going through this door, the door on the church office was forced. No attempt was made to crack the 1,500-pound safe, but it was evident that the communion sets had been tampered with as several objects had been moved around near where they were stored.

Bridge In

The bridge, 35 miles north of Swift Current, was completed last year but most of the work was done in 1950 and there was no trouble when the ice went out last spring. This year ice was piled up for 70 miles upstream from the bridge.

But after the bridge went out the river level dropped 14 feet in three hours. When daylight came the river was relatively free of ice.

More Atom Facts Given Public 3 Nations Agree

OTTAWA, April 7—(CP)—Further releases to the public of hitherto secret atomic information have been agreed upon by Canada, the United States and United Kingdom, it was announced Sunday.

It is part of the gradual process of making public atomic information which the three countries no longer feel has to be kept secret for security reasons.

An official said it doesn't represent any significant lowering by the U.S. of rigid barriers around its atomic secrets. Both Britain and Canada have been negotiating for freer exchange of secret information between the U.S. and themselves.

New Setup

The new declassification, agreed upon last September at one of a regular series of meetings, principally affects data on the nuclear properties of uranium which is necessary in the development and understanding of low-power nuclear reactors or atom-splitting furnaces.

Such reactors can't be used either for atomic weapons or for power.

A statement said the three governments have determined that release of the technical information will assist the expanding manpower involved in their atomic efforts.

The revised declassification guide permits publication of the characteristics of the nucleus plutonium 239, similar to those released in 1950 for uranium-235. Plutonium is a fissionable material —its atom can be split—usable as a nuclear reactor fuel.

It is in this respect similar to uranium-235. One difference now revealed is that plutonium-239 releases three neutrons while uranium-235 releases 2.5 neutrons per fission induced by thermal neutrons.

Arsenal Whips Chelsea 3-0

LONDON, April 7. (Reuters)—Arsenal today crashed through to the final of the English soccer cup-tie by whipping Chelsea 3-0 in a semi-final replay.

Nicknamed the "Glamor Boys of Soccer," Arsenal enter the finals for the sixth time. They have won the trophy three times.

Bolstered by Peter Goring at centre-forward, Arsenal tied the Chelsea defence in knots before a crowd of 57,450.

Left-winger Freddy Cox slammed in the first goal in the first half and headed in his second after 28 minutes in the second half.

Chelsea hit back, but another headed goal four minutes later by Doug Lishman, at inside left, demoralized them.

Arsenal will meet Newcastle United, last year's cup winners, in the final here May 5. Prime Minister Churchill will present the cup.

Shot In Foot In Accident

CAMPBELLFORD, April 7—(ENS)—A fifteen-year-old Campbellford boy is waiting to have a .22 rifle bullet removed from his right foot as a result of a shooting accident early Sunday morning on the outskirts of this town.

Three local boys, Chic Poulton, age 16; Gordon Seymour, aged 17 and Wilfred Jones, age 15, were on the outskirts of town when Gordon stumbled. In reaching for the gun to prevent its falling, it accidentally discharged, sending a bullet into the right foot of the Jones lad.

Carried Two Miles

The two boys assisted their injured companion about two miles to his home where a doctor was summoned and he was taken to Campbellford Hospital, where X-rays and the fluoroscope revealed the bullet in the foot.

The bullet had entered the left side of the foot and passed under the bones, through the fleshy portion of the foot. The bullet was in two pieces, but no bones were broken.

Dr. J. R. Anderson, who attended the injured lad, said he would not attempt to remove the bullet for a few days, until swelling in the foot goes down.

Provincial Constable Donald W. Erskine is investigating.

Prices Show Drop On Toronto Exchange

TORONTO, April 7 — (CP). — Prices drifted downward today in early afternoon stock market dealings.

Trading was heavy as western oils and golds drew speculative interest. Industrial dealings spread from leading issues while base metals showed only sporadic activity. Volume for the first three hours was 2,897,000 shares.

Papers, utilities and refining oils led industrials with a broad list of declines. Agricultures, constructions, banks, manufacturing companies and miscellaneous issues also slipped, but steels, foods and retail stores held gains and losses in balance.

Western oil losses ranged from pennies to about 50 cents. Anglo-Canadian, Calvan Consolidated, Del Rio, General Petroleum A, Model Oil, New British Dominions, and Western Homestead dipped.

Base metals were mixed as East Sullivan, Mattarrow, Quebec Copper and United Keno Hill showed strength, while Consolidated Smelters, East Rim, Labrador, and Yukeno eased.

Senior golds made little headway. Bralorne and Dome strengthened while Lake Shore and Teck Hughes weakened. Wright-Hargreaves added pennies in active trading. Delnite, Pioneer, and Kirkland Hudson climbed strongly in a firm secondary list.

Port Hope To Annex Part Of Township
